WHO SHALL EXPLAIN THE STRANGE CALL OF NIAGARA---THE FASCINATION THAT HAS LURED THOUSANDS OF HAPPY LOVERS TO THEIR DEATH?

Twelve Persons Summoned to Spectacular Deaths Within Three Months—Hypnotism the Cause, Says Dr. Benedict—What Monotony Means.

ATTRACTION FOR THE FALLS

That Niagara Falls, the blissful scene of wedding sojourns since the time of our great grandmothers, should be also the leading stage whereon so many life tragedies have reached their climax, seems the very irony of paradox. And to students of mental phenomena the mysterious lure of Niagara Falls, which unfailingly year by year adds to the appalling roster of suicides, has long been a grimly fascinating puzzle.

This year during the period between July 1 and Oct. 6, twelve persons have ended their lives at the brink of the great cataract. Why did they pass by the secret, solitary gates of poison and gas, the quick turnstile of the pistol, the sinister twilight pathway of morphine, and, instead, seek out this foaming, bellowing, frenzied giant to beat out their puny lives upon the rocks at their feet?

The lure of Niagara for newly wedded lovers may be understood — it honeymoons are susceptible of being understood. Materially speaking, there are miles of shady and sequestered walks and hundreds of embowered nooks where, screened from prying eyes and ears Mary and John, by speak the dear new language they have learned or sit in voiceless rapture all undisturbed.

And, aside from these attractions, does there not lie a deeper and more subtle fascination for lovers—unsuspected by them, perhaps—in the mystic symbolism of the falls themselves? The lovers are at the threshold of a new life and may they not feel, though dimly, the parallel of the river and the cataract to the phenomena of human existence? The ever swiftly moving rapids, here placid as a pond, there eddying aimlessly, yonder worried and tossed; here boiling in passionate conflict with cross currents, there dashing themselves fruitlessly against impeding rocks; further on, at sight of the brink, rushing madly back as if in fright from the inevitable plunge, only to turn again in a sullen magnificence of resignation and pass over in beautiful and undeviating majesty to the oblivion below, that, to the eye of man, is only a mist and a solemn voice that is never still. This, it may be, is the sight, the voice, which lures alike the lover with his hopes and the suicide with his hopelessness. It is at once the picture of life and of death and so may explain the paradox.

But while the lovers live on and may explain these things to their own satisfaction—and that would seem to be all that is necessary—the others whose lives have ended in the mist cannot return to tell us why, if there was a reason, they chose Niagara as a trysting place with Death. There is evidence to show that with most of these death was not the result of choice, but of impulse; that a large proportion of suicides were persons who came to the Falls merely as visitors, with no other motive than to see the mighty cataract and were led to kill themselves by some sudden and uncontrollable desire fostered by the rushing waters.

Dr. A L Benedict, of Buffalo, A specialist in nervous diseases, finds the explanation of this sudden impulse in the hypnotic influence of the hurrying flood. For six years, ever since the February day when Miss Alice M Colie left Dr. Benedict's office in good spirits one afternoon and was never heard of again except through a note picked up on the bridge leading to Luna Island from Goat Island, the doctor has studied each case of suicide attributed to the lure of the Falls, with the result of confirming him more and more strongly in the theory that the victims were led to suicide by hypnotism.

"The waters are calling me," said Miss Colie in her farewell note to her parents and her betrothed. Dr. Benedict's observations lead him to the conclusion that the waters have called the majority of the twelve who have taken the plunge since July 1, as well as the majority of those who have gone over the falls in other years.

"I am thoroughly convinced that hypnotism is responsible for so many suicides at Niagara," said Dr. Benedict, "because thousands have experienced the hypnotic influence very strongly while watching the cataract and listening to its hoarse, monotonous roar. Remember," said he, "that word, 'monotony.' That they were not overpowered to the extent of losing their interest in life was their good fortune.

"I have met many persons who have told me that they cannot stand near the rapids or the cataract for any length of time without feeling a strong impulse to jump in. I, myself, would not care to sit within sight and sound of the rapids for any length of time, and I think I am above the normal so far as yielding to hypnotic suggestion is concerned. It is dangerous to sit beside the cataract, even for persons perfectly normal.

"I spoke of monotony. Monotonous stimulation of any of the senses except taste and smell, which are both obsequal, produces drowsiness or lebetude. The only requirement is that the stimulation be mild and repeated, and of the same degree each time.

"You can feel this effect through the sight, especially by looking at any bright object kept in regular motion. If the motion is irregular it will not produce the hypnotic effect. It can be produced through the hearing in the same way. Many persons are lulld to sleep by music, particularly if it be soft and in a minor key.'

A careful examination by a World correspondence of the places where suicides occur most frequently demonstrated how these conditions are fulfilled at Niagara Falls. In each case the current at that point is swift and strong and moves incessantly with a wavy motion. In the wave will be found bright green colours that repeatedly and monotonously dance and flash in the sunlight, irresistibly holding the eye. Joined with this is the hoarse and changeless song of the cataract. If Dr. Benedict's theory be correct, there are in these conditions hypnotic influences stronger than any but absolutely normal persons can resist. To persons suffering from nervous diseases it is likely to be fatal to get within reach of these influences.

No less than six places were found by The World correspondent which meet all of the conditions mentioned by Dr. Benedict. These are Prospect Point, at the very verge of the American Falls; the shore of the American Rapids, directly in front of the little pavilion in Prospect Park; the first arch of the Goat Island bridge, the crest of the falls on Luna Island, Terrapin Point and the heaving rapids tumbling beneath the bridge leading to the third of the Three Sisters Islands.

Prospect Park attracts every visitor to Niagara Falls. Here at the angle of the iron fence a view is obtained of cruel rocks below that might well deter even weaklings from suicide. But ten feet away the prospect is different. At this point the river sweeps along with ripples of gold and emerald and sapphire, and the one hint of the abysmal chaos below is the full round breast of the cataract as it shimmers toward a region of rainbows floating in space. Steady, steady is the deadly rush of the water, and on sunny days a thousand ever duplicated ripples dance upon its surface. And the roar of the torrent is loud here, but after a time it takes on a quality soothing, narcotic, and—this is a favourite spot for suicides.

Near the Prospect Park pavilion the bank slopes down to the rapids. A round stone affords a seat, scarce more than an arm's length from the brink, shaded by a willow whose branches sweep the surface of the river. Here is a wave ceaselessly rolling over a submerged rock and curling into foam at its base. Its smooth green surface gleams as steadily as the revolving mirrors used by nerve specialists to hypnotize their patients. To the weak-willed this is one of the most dangerous places on the Niagara reservation. More suicides are reported from this spot than from any other point at the Falls.

In the nearby summer-house and on the flat rock near the water's edge women's hats with notes pinned to them have frequently been found, telling all that is known of the end of some tragic story. The same conditions obtain at Luna Island, and it is only the matter of a moment to climb over the railing that guards the brink and leap into the rapids. Below is the fury of the Cave of the Winds, whose indescribable roar floats up, hoarse and muffled, with its vague message to overwrought imaginations. It was at this point that Miss Colie left her explanation, "The waters are calling me."

So powerful is the spell of the waters at Terrapin Point that men have been known to become suddenly insane and go dancing to their death. Here the green walls of the Horseshoe Falls incessantly shimmer. Unknown disturbances send the spray in fantastic clouds towards the zenith at fatally regular intervals. If elsewhere the waters call, here they may be said to command.

Where the swirling torrent rushes beneath the little bridge between the farther of the Three Sister Islands ideal conditions for hypnotism are found. Here is the rock upon which the victims sit until the fascination of the place works its spell. The thunder of the cataract below is blended with the roar of the waters as they tumble past these islands.

Here is the monotonous stimulation of the senses both of sight and hearing, producing drowsiness or lebetude. What visions come to the dreamer on the verge of this watery turmoil is a matter for the imagination. But it is not hard to understand how one might watch the sunbeams play upon the bosom of a shimmering billow until he becomes lost to all earthly considerations and is drawn to suicide.

It is a curious fact that nobody has ever committed suicide at Niagara who has seen the gorge and the whirlpool before seeing the falls. It is easy to see why this might be a significant fact with reference to the hypnotic theory; for to see these fearful things first is to prevent any illusion that the conditions above the falls might suggest. It is not difficult to realize how the waters above the falls might promise peace to the world-weary, but what peace can be hoped for when one looks into the abyss at the foot of the cataract? Indeed, for this reason, visitors subject to nervous disorders are often cautioned by their physicians, if they must visit the Falls, to take the trip through the gorge first. One susceptible to hypnotic influences will not be so open to suggestions of rest when he sees the diabolical sight presented by the river below the falls.

Perhaps the most sensational suicide of recent years at Niagara was that of an expert machinist, Hyppolite Schneidar, of Pittsburg, Pa. He was a handsome fellow, and perhaps a little vain. He had become infatuated with Miss Lillian Russell, but, coming to realize the hopelessness of his love, shot himself on the brink of the upper rapids, and then leaped into the torrent and was swept over the falls. He left behind a note saying, "I act with all my reason, and there is absolutely nothing of a lunatic or demented in my brain."

In Schneider's case it is apparent that not until he had placed himself within reach of the hypnotic influence of the waters did he have courage to end his life.

As an evidence of the superior fascination of Niagara Falls for suicides, the case of Peter Schemm, a millionaire brewer of Philadelphia is interesting. Mr. Schemm had for many years been haunted by the fear of total blindness. He was an eccentric man and had made a hobby of studying the various methods employed in self-destruction. His apartment was a veritable museum of relics associated with suicide, and he loved to plan new ways by which a man might end his own life. No one knew so well as he the advantages of one means over another—the effects of the different poisons, the surest place to sent a fatal bullet. All the most comfortable ways of death were known to him. And yet he chose to go over the great cataract. He engaged a cabman to drive him about the Niagara reservation, and when they reached Goat Island bridge he told the driver he would walk to get a better view of the rapids. Reaching the centre of the bridge, he shouted "Good-bye," and leaped over the railing.

There are many recent examples of the sheer power of the Falls to directly incite persons to suicide. Miss Nina M. Phillips, a young servant employed in the village of Niagara Falls, after telling several friends that the rushing waters had thoroughly fascinated her, leaped, as did Mr. Schemm, from the Goat Island bridge. She had gone out to do some errands for her mistress. Before going home she went to Goat Island, and on her return to the mainland she placed her hat, purse and gloves on the bridge and jumped into the river twenty feet below. She also left a paper bearing her name and address, with the words, "Over the Falls, July 15."

A similar case was that of Miss Gertrude Roth, a beautiful young society girl, of Allentown, Pa. She was of a particularly lively and sanguine disposition. She was a visitor at the Falls, and rising early on the morning after her arrival, engaged a carriage to take her to points of interest. She did not breakfast at her hotel, but after driving about for a while stopped at the Table Rock House on the Canadian side, where she ate a light repast. Then she resumed her drive, stopping to buy a souvenir to send to a friend and proceeded to the Whirlpool Rapids elevator. While standing on the platform over the water she remarked to the photographer there:

"It's a great wonder that more people do not commit suicide here; the rapids are so fascinating." Then, while the photographer's attention was directed to his gallery, she walked out on a large rock by the platform and plunged into the whirling current.

That it is no other power than hypnotism which lures so many to this dreadful death seems evident from the story told by Mr R. I. Helm, of of Philadelphia. Mr. Helm and a score of others were watching the falls from Prospect Point, when a richly dressed young woman who had been seated on one of the benches for some time suddenly arose and, walking hurriedly to the wall, climbed numbly over and jumped into the rapids.

McDermid and Jury Are in Their New Store

The current at this point runs at express train speed. Notwithstanding the peril, Mr. Helm stepped into the river at the brink of the fall and tried to save the woman. He succeeded in grasping her hand, but she resisted and slipped away from him. She smiled as the current caught her and drew her over into the awful abyss.

On the same day that this happened the Rev. C. H. Pritzeon, of Canonsburg, Pa., A. M. Ford, of Boston, and E. C. Palmer, of San Francisco, were standing by the river's brink when a man approached and addressed them.

"It looks as though one could never get out," he remarked. The others made no reply to this. The stranger gazed into the stream for a few minutes, when he suddenly cried:

"By Jove, I'm going to try it."

He made a motion toward the bank. The three men attempted to seize him, but before they could reach the spot he had deliberately jumped into the river and was almost immediately carried over the cataract.

The deliberation and nonchalance so often observed in these Niagara suicides are in themselves strongly suggestive of a hypnotic state in the victims. One rainy October day some years ago a man about thirty-five years of age strolled through Prospect Park. The weather had cleared the park of its usual crowd of visitors so that what the man did cannot be set down to a desire for spectacular effect. Arrived at Prospect Point he buttoned up his brown overcoat, removed his derby hat, drew some change from his pockets, placed it in the hat and put the hat on the stone railing. Then he calmly produced a cigar, lit it, climbed upon the parapet and turning, looked quietly back on the park. Seeing two hackmen flashing toward him from some distance away, he turned again and sprang, cigar in mouth, into the roaring waters.

Another example of the peculiar mental state brought about by the sight and sound of the monotonous rush of the current is the suicide of an elderly gentleman named Otis White. So enthralled was he by the racing rapids that he appeared to wish to make himself as far as possible a spectator as it were of his own death. He dislodged a large cake of ice from the bank of the river and, getting upon it, paddled out into the deadly stream. Then, standing on the ice cake with arms folded he coolly contemplated the sublime scene about him and so raced to his death, waving his hand politely to some people on shore as he passed the brink.

"You owe this for your uncle, but what of—of the other fellow? You must know that if one goes free so will they both. They can't be separated."

"It's almost too much to ask," the Kid took up, uncertainly. "But don't you think the work is done? I can't help but admire McNamara, and neither can you—he's been too good an enemy to you for that—and—and—he loves Helen."

"I know—I know," said Glenister hastily, at the same time stopping an unintelligible protest from the girl. "You've said enough." He straightened his slightly stooping shoulders and looked at the unopened package wearily, then slipped the rubber band from it and, separating the contents, tore them up—one by one—tore them into fine bits without hurry or ostentation and tossed the fragments away, while the woman began to sob softly, the sound of her relief alone disturbing the silence. And so he gave her his enemy, making his offer gamely, according to his code.

"You're right—the work is done. And now I'm very tired."

They left him standing there, the glory of the dying day illumining his lean, brown features, the vision of a great loneliness in his weary eyes.

He did not rouse himself till the sky before him was only a curtain of steel, pencilled with streaks of soot that lay close down above the darker sea. Then he sighed and said aloud:

"So this is the end, and I gave him to her with these hands." He held them out before him curiously, becoming conscious for the first time that the left one was swollen and discolored and fearfully painful. He noted it with impersonal interest, realising its need of medical attention—so left the cabin and walked down into the city. He encountered Dextry and Simms on the way, and they went with him, both flowing with the gossip of the camp.

"Lord, but you're the talk of the town," they began. "The curio hunters have commenced to pull Struve's office apart for souvenirs, and the Swedes want to run you for congress as soon as ever we get admitted as a state. They say that at collar an' elbow holts you could lick any of them eastern senators and thereby rastle out a lot of good legislation for us cripples up here."

"Speakin' of laws goes to show me that this here country is gettin' too blamed civilized for a white man," said Simms pessimistically, "and now that this fight is ended up it don't look like there would be anything doin' fit to claim the interest of a growed up person for a long while. I'm goin' west."

"West! Why, you can throw a stone into Bering strait from here," said Roy, smiling.

"Oh, well, the world's round. There's a schooner outfittin' for Sibeery—two years' cruise. Me an' Dex is figgerin' on gettin' out toward the frontier for a spell."

"Sure!" said Dextry. "I'm beginnin' to feel all cramped up hereabouts owin' to these fillymonarch orchestras an' French restarawnts and such discrepancies of scenery. They're puttin' a pavement on Front street, and there's a shoe shinin' parlor opened up. Why, I'd like to get where I could stretch an' holler without disturbin' the pensiveness of some dude in a dress suit. Better come along, Roy; we can sell out the Midas."

"I'll think it over," said the young man.

The night was bright with a full moon when they left the doctor's office. Roy, in no mood for the exuberance of his companions, parted from them, but had not gone far before he met Cherry Malotte. His head was low, and he did not see her till she spoke.

"Well, boy, so it's over at last."

Her words chimed so perfectly with his thoughts that he replied, "Yes; it's all over, little girl."

"You don't mind my congratulations—you know me too well for that. How does it feel to be a winner?"

"I don't know. I've lost."

"Lost what?"

"Everything—except the gold mine."

"Everything except—I see! You mean that she—that you have asked her, and she won't?" He never knew the cost at which she held her voice so steady.

"More than that. It's so new that it hurts yet, and it will continue to hurt for a long time, I suppose. But to-morrow I am going back to my hills and my valleys, back to the Midas and my work, and try to begin all over. For a time I've wandered in strange paths, seeking new gods, as it were, but the dazzle has died out of my eyes and I can see true again. She isn't for me, although I shall always love her. I'm sorry I can't forget easily, as some do. It's hard to look ahead and take an interest in things. But what about you? Where shall you go?"

"I don't know. It doesn't really matter—now." The dusk hid her white, set face, and she spoke monotonously. "I am going to see the Bronco Kid. He sent for me. He's ill."

"He's not a bad sort," said Roy. "And I suppose he'll make a new start too."

"Perhaps," said she, gazing far out over the gloomy ocean. "It all depends." After a moment she added, "What a pity that we can't all sponge off the slate and begin afresh and—forget!"

"It's part of the game," said he, "but I don't know why it's so, but it is. I'll see you sometimes, won't I?"

"No, boy; I think not."

"I believe I understand," he murmured, "and perhaps it's better so." He took her two soft hands in his one good right and kissed them. "God bless you and keep you, dear, brave little Cherry."

She stood straight and still as he melted into the shadows, and only the moonlight heard her pitiful sob and her hopeless whisper:

"Goodby, my boy, my boy."

He wandered down beside the sea, for his battle was not yet won, and until he was surer of himself he could not endure the ribaldry and rejoicing of his fellows. A welcome lay waiting for him in every public place, but no one there could know the mockery of it, no one could gauge the desolation that was his.

The sand, wet, packed and hard as a pavement, gave no sound to his careless steps, and thus it was that he came silently upon the one woman as she stood beside the silver surf. Had he seen her first he would have slunk past in the landward shadows, but, recognising his tall form, she called and he came, while it seemed that his lungs grew suddenly constricted, as though bound about with steel hoops. The very pleasure of her sight pained him. He advanced eagerly, and yet with hesitation, standing stiffly aloof while his heart fluttered and his tongue grew dumb. At last she saw his bandages and her manner changed abruptly. Coming closer she touched them with caressing fingers.

"It's nothing—nothing at all," he said while his voice jumped out of all control. "When are you—going away?"

"I do not know—not for some time."

He had supposed she would go to-morrow with her uncle and—the other, to be with them through their travail.

With warm impetuosity she began: "It was a noble thing you did to-day. Oh, I am glad and proud."

"I prefer you to think of me in that way, rather than as the wild beast you saw this morning, for I was mad, perfectly mad with hatred and revenge, and every wild impulse that comes to a defeated man. You see, I had played and lost, played and lost, again and again, till there was nothing left. What mischance brought you there! It was a terribly brutal thing, but you can't understand."

"But I can understand. I do. I know all about it now. I know the wild rage of desperation; I know the exultation of victory; I know what hate and fear are now. You told me once that the wilderness had made you a savage, and I laughed at it just as I did when you said that my contact with big things would teach me the truth, that we're all alike, and that those motives are in us all. I see now that you were right and I was very simple. I learned a great deal last night."

"I have learned much also," said he. "I wish you might teach me more."

"I—I—don't think I could teach you any more," she hesitated.

He moved as though to speak, but held back and tore his eyes away from her.

"Well?" she inquired, gazing at him covertly.

"Once, a long time ago, I read a lover's petition, and ever since knowing you I have made the constant prayer that I might be given the purity to be worthy the good in you and that you might be granted the patience to reach the good in me, but it's no use. But at least I'm glad we have met on common ground, as it were, and that you understand, in a measure. The prayer could not be answered; but through it I have found myself and I have known you. That last is worth more than a king's ransom to me. It is a holy thing which I shall reverence always, and when you go you will leave me lonely except for its remembrance."

"But I am not going," she said. "That is—unless"— Something in her voice swept his gaze back from the shimmering causeway that rippled seaward to the rising moon. It brought the breath into his throat, and he shook as though seized by a great fear.

"Unless—what?"

"Unless you want me to."

"Oh, God! don't play with me!" He flung out his hand as though to stop her while his voice died out to a supplicating hoarseness. "I can't stand that."

"Don't you see? Won't you see?" she asked. "I was waiting here for

"Don't you see? Won't you see, my pagan?"

the courage to go to you since you have made it so very hard for me, my pagan." With which she came close to him, looking upward into his face, smiling a little, shrinking a little, yielding yet withholding, while the moonlight made of her eyes two bottomless, boundless pools, dark with love, and brimming with the promise of his dreams.

Telephones and Fires.

The earliest application of the telephone in connection with a switchboard was made at Bridgeport, Conn., in June, 1878, where in the eagerness of various fire companies to arrive first at fires, the men of company No. 5, which was next to the telephone office, told the telephone operator to request his twenty-one patrons to give the information over the telephone of any fire and to report the fact at the engine house. This engine was not only the first at several fires, but in some mysterious manner was frequently on its way before the alarm struck.

This reached a climax on the occasion of a small fire in a dwelling, which the fire company attended with muffled bell, in response to a telephone message, and no fire alarm was pulled. On their return, the engine was driven by the house of a rival company with bell ringing, and when the men rushed out with inquiries they were told that the fire had been extinguished.

After this occurrence, the chief of the fire department gave orders that companies should not respond to a fire alarm received over a telephone, but the insurance agents of the city appealed to the city council, who ordered that all fire engine houses should be equipped with telephones.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Feast of Yule.

It was Pope Telesphorus, who died before the year 150 A. D., who instituted Christmas as a festival, though for some time it was irregularly held in December, April and May. But for centuries before there had been a feast of Yule among the northern nations, whose great enjoyment was in drinking the wassail bowl or cup. Nothing gave them so much delight as indulgence in "carousing ale," especially at the season of short days, when fighting was ended. It was likewise the custom at all their feasts "for the master of the house to fill a large bowl or pitcher, to drink out of it first himself and then give to him that sat next, and so it went around." This may have been the origin of that popular American custom known as "treating."

A novel centerpiece can be made of a huge yellow pumpkin, to which are fastened great clusters of purple grapes, each bunch concealing a tiny favor. Stickpins, silver bookmarks, any trifle that the grapes will hide, will do for these gifts. Or the pumpkin may be hollowed out and filled with fruit, with candles set at intervals about the edge.

This matter of fastening the candles to the pumpkin is simple enough if you leave a broad rim after you have scooped out the seed and pulp. A sharp knife will cut little sockets, and the candles are made a trifle more secure if the ends are softened by holding them to a lighted match just before they are set in place.

When you don't care for the candle trimmed pumpkin you may scallop the edges, and it is rather effective to suspend a similar pumpkin, scalloped and fruit filled, from the ceiling to a little distance above the one on the table. The cord by which this second pumpkin is hung should be concealed by a clinging green vine and this vine brought down, twined about the lower pumpkin and across the cloth to each plate, then circling the table.

A more conventional centerpiece is an ordinary flat fruit dish filled with fruit and banked with chrysanthemums. A number of chrysanthemums with very long stems extend from this banking, one ending in front of each guest's plate. This fruit dish remains in place during the entire meal, the fruit is eaten as a final course, and each guest carries away the chrysanthemum that touched his plate as a souvenir of the occasion.

If you want something novel in candlesticks, use carrots that have been cut off at one end to make a substantial base and hollowed out at the other to form a socket, or pumpkins or even apples, if you can get the big, rosy ones. Candles set in these fancy sticks are better without shades.

Of course the hostess who is tireless in her ambition need not stop at decorations which are for the table alone. She can carry out her Thanksgiving idea in her salads, in the garnishing of her dishes and in her ices. Her time, strength and pocketbook are the only limitations to her possibilities.

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. IN FASHION'S REALM.

Robespierre Cravats Are Interesting Items of the Toilet.

A WRINKLE FROM PARIS.

Girls With Buckles as Heirlooms Are Using Them For Smart Neck Ornaments—The High Ruff Effect Very Popular.

An interesting item of the toilet is the Robespierre cravat. This is a very notable affair in Paris, obviously born of the Napoleon collar, which convention decrees shall terminate an appreciable distance either side center front. A feature of the Robespierre is an immense jabot of lace edged, plaited, French hemmed lawn as filmy as a fairy web, surmounted by a great outspreading black satin bow, the center strap dragged through an old paste or severely plain gilt buckle.

Apart, however, from this particular cravat, the buckle is playing a distinctive role as a neck finish. A broad piece of black satin ribbon, supported either side, the back concluding in some coquettish bow and the front passed through a buckle, affords a finish that is stamped by the hall mark of the best Parisian favor.

The shops have brought out this quaint piece of neckwear which is shown in the sketch. It has no ruffle at the lower edge, but a high double one of swiss at the upper edge. The satin collar is a bright pink, and the little ribbon cravat at the base is of another shade of pink. This is worn with all manner of light gowns and especially white shirt waists.

The high ruff, which is the most popular neckwear of the moment, is made from a variety of materials. This sketch shows one for young girls which has a satin foundation, with double ruffles at each edge of white dotted net. Around the base is of satin collar is a narrow band of ribbon velvet tied in a big bow in front.

While the turnover embroidered collar is popular and becoming, it is not as fashionable as some other pieces of neckwear. This straight collar shown in the sketch is quite the smart thing and goes very well on shirt waists worn under the new military directoire coats. AMY VARNUM.

PREVENTION OF THE WHITE PLAGUE

The prevention of Consumption and its cure in the early stages is a matter of fresh air and nourishment, but to secure nourishment you must have appetite, and nothing is better known to medical science to stimulate and invigorate the system than the active principles of COD LIVER OIL—the only drawback has been that it has hitherto been impossible to separate the really valuable elements of cods' livers from the nauseous oil or grease, which fact has largely offset the good derived from the alkaloids or active principles contained in the OIL.

"BRICK'S TASTELESS" is a preparation of the valuable alkaloids or active principles separated from the grease and combined with Phosphorous in the form of the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, the nutritious Liquid Extract of Malt, and the Bronchial Tonic and Sedative Fluid Extract of Wild Cherry Bark.

In all cases of wasting diseases or an enervated condition of the system immediate improvement and eventual cure follow its use.

Read Brick's guarantee with each bottle.

"BRICK'S TASTELESS"

is put up in eight (8) ounce bottles, retail price fifty (50) cents; and in twenty (20) ounce bottles, retail price one (1) dollar.

ABOUT HAIR LOSS

WHILE every case of hair loss is sad enough, there is, now and then, one that is absolutely pathetic. The face of the person may show no sign of approaching age but the thinning hair with its dullness and lifelessness become a gloom instead of a crown of glory. Unconscious neglect due to ignorance of—or indifference to—the dandruff germ is at the bottom of most cases of hair loss.

MANY WOMEN

Many women take no particular interest in preserving the hair until it begins to fall. While it is still abundant they regard its destruction as out of the question; but when injury comes fast and furious they become almost frantic with alarm. A dozen remedies are tried in as many weeks all of which do little or no good whatever.

AN INSIDIOUS ENEMY

There is no more insidious enemy to beautiful hair than the dandruff germ (an invisible growth of vegetable character that finds lodgment in the sebaceous glands of the scalp.) Dr. Sabouraud—ask your doctor about him—says that this germ usually enters the scalp in youth, and that months or even years may elapse before its presence is even suspected.

The first symptoms are usually dullness and brittleness of the hair with later dandruff and itching scalp. Falling hair and dandruff represent the final stages of the disease.

WITH THE NAKED EYE

It is possible to tell with the naked eye whether a hair root is badly diseased or not. Pull a hair from the head of a young person and the root will appear large, whitish and ragged, showing the perfect adhesion that existed at the bottom of the hair follicle. If the hair from another scalp shows a smaller, gelatinous appearing root without the ragged edge, it points unmistakably to disease.

HOW IT OCCURS

The dandruff germ inflames the sebaceous glands causing the secretion of too little or too much sebum, resulting in extremely dry or very oily hair, with, usually, dandruff. This inflammation in time extends down the follicle walls to the papilla where the adhesions are loosened, thus cutting off the hair's supply of nourishment (hair nourishment comes from the blood and not from "hair tonics.") After these adhesions are broken by disease, the hair is apt to slip out at any time.

WHAT HERPICIDE DOES

The province of Newbro's Herpicide is to destroy the dandruff germ, after which the hair resumes its natural beauty and abundance; unless the disease was neglected too long. Herpicide has done and is still doing more toward saving and beautifying the hair than all other remedies combined. It does not instantly destroy the thousands of germ colonies in a badly diseased scalp, nor does it do any impossible thing.

JANUARY AND JUNE

Successful results from Newbro's Herpicide in January will not prevent a reinfection of the scalp in June, but the intelligent use of Herpicide will accomplish all that any human agency can accomplish, and that in many cases is little short of marvelous. As a hair dressing, and for toilet use, Newbro's Herpicide is recognized by connoisseurs as the daintiest and most delightful preparation in existence. It makes the hair light and fluffy and gives it a silken gloss. It contains no oil or grease and will not stain or dye the hair. Try it to-day.

BRUSHING THE TEETH.

Dentists Advise Especial Care at Night.

There has never been a time when so much attention was given to the teeth as now. It is often argued, with some truth, that women go to dentists too much.

They do not wait for anything to happen to the teeth. They make a practice of going at all times and seasons for the dentists to find something the matter.

Once or twice a year a dentist should be allowed to thoroughly clean the teeth so that not a bit of tartar remains. This is important and cannot be done at home. It requires the instruments of a professional.

Experts declare that if the teeth were kept absolutely clean they would never decay. But the majority of women let a dentist do the work twice a year and do not assist him at home.

They do not use dental floss after every meal, and therefore particles of food decay and attack the enamel.

They brush the teeth in the morning, but they will not brush them at night.

This is a very important mistake. After the day's three meals it is imperative that one should retire with the teeth absolutely clean from food.

If one bathes and dresses for dinner, the teeth may be brushed then, but it is much wiser to do it just before retiring.

Soft brushes should always be used. Stiff ones are injurious. Pastes are better for sensitive teeth than powders, and a mouth wash is the most important thing of all.

This should be used after every meal. It antiseptises the gums and the lining of the mouth as well as the teeth. It is not an unpleasant performance, as the washes are made of aromatic ingredients.

Tincture of myrrh is always good, and nothing is better than listerine diluted in water.

Mother Works Without Pay.

"Mother gets up first," said the new office boy. "She lights the fire and gets my breakfast, so I can get here early. Then she gets father up, gets his breakfast and sends him off. Then she gives the others their breakfast and gets 'em ready for school, and then she and baby have their breakfast."

"What is your pay here?" asked the man.

"I get $3 a week, and father gets $3 a day."

"How much does your mother get?"

"Mother!" he said indignantly. "Why, she don't have to work for anybody."

"Oh, I thought you just told me she worked for the whole family every morning."

"Oh, that's for us, but there ain't no money in that."—New York Press.

Earth Removes Odor From Silver.

One of the exasperating problems a careful housewife has to deal with is removing the odor of fish from silver.

Cooking utensils also retain this odor in a most tenacious way. Washing with soap and water is of no avail. Here is a reliable remedy:

Stick knives and forks into a pot of fresh earth and let them remain for about a half hour. If a frying pan or the kettle gives out the fish odor, scatter them thickly with fresh earth.

Honey For the Skin.

English cosmetic is pure comb honey strained and bottled. A very little of this is rubbed into the skin with a bit of cotton wool.

This is done just after the face has been thoroughly washed and cleaned—washing is not always cleansing—and the honey applied while the face is wet. After rubbing the honey in let it dry on the face. It will be absorbed by the pores if too much has not been used.

Another English cosmetic for greasy skins is a combination of rose vinegar and rosewater. To make the vinegar half an ounce of dried rose leaves should be placed in a gill of white wine vinegar for five or six days and the liquid strained off.

To this sufficient rosewater is added to reduce it to an agreeable strength. It may be used twice a day or once only if the skin is not very oily.

Leg Accidents.

The right leg is far more subject to accidents than the left. It has been found that the ratio is about thirteen serious accidents to the right leg to three to the left.

The Pamirs.

The Pamirs, sometimes called the "Roof of the World," consist of a number of bleak plateaux and shallow valleys situated about 13,000 feet above sea level. They lie to the north of India.

Trees In Switzerland.

A Swiss law compels every newly married couple to plant trees shortly after the ceremony of marriage. The pine and weeping willow alone are proscribed.

WINTER SUN PARLORS.

How They May Be Artistically and Inexpensively Furnished.

Nearly every house of any size now has its miniature sun parlor, where the family and friends can gather for a visit and inhale the spicy odor of pine and balsam, look at bright colored potted plants and enjoy the warmth of the sunes direct rays. Sometimes this little nook is only a bow window, and again it is a large conservatory effect.

The best and most appropriate furnishings are of wicker either in natural color or stained to suit one's tastes. Green paint or enamel is seen quite as often as the natural color, while white and pale gray tints are liked where the bit of outdoor life is used principally by the feminine members of the household. There are so many charming shapes in chairs, tables, desks and flower stands made up in this material that one need have no difficulty in making a suitable selection unless the difficulty arises from being confronted with an embarrassment of styles.

The floor of such a room is usually tiled, though it may be a plain wooden one with serviceable rugs to give it a cosy and inviting appearance. Everything should have a decorative value and should harmonize with the outdoor atmosphere of the other furnishings.

A wicker couch or divan will be found pleasant on which to while away a few hours reading or resting. A desk in another corner will be convenient for attending to the morning's mail. For holding books, magazines and papers a wicker table with shelves underneath should have a place in such surroundings, and if the room is large enough to have afternoon tea served within its inviting walls then a tea wagon of wicker, an oblong tea table with brackets or a teapoy of the same summery material will be essential to the proper service of this afternoon refreshment.

One of the most attractive color schemes for a small sun parlor is green and white. Another is dull green with gray, while still another is natural wicker with red decorations in the form of cushions and hangings.

Savings Banks.

Probably the first savings bank was the one established at Berne, in Switzerland, in 1787. It was called the "Caisse de Domestiques" and was intended for servants only. Five years later another one was opened to all depositors.

INCURABLE HEART TROUBLE

LOOKED FOR DEATH IN A SHORT TIME.

Entirely Cured by "Fruit-a-tives."

"Gentlemen,—The days of miracles are not all past and I feel that my complete recovery, from what seemed inevitable death, is practically a miracle. I suffered from severe Indigestion and Dyspepsia for nearly two years. I could not take food without fearful distress and I became almost a skeleton as the result of the suffering. I could not do any work and became so run down and weak that I could hardly walk. I was attended by three experienced doctors. They both pronounced my case heart failure and incurable, and I looked forward for death in a short time. I not only had the doctors but after they gave me up I tried many remedies and treatments but got no better.

At this time my son asked me to try "Fruit-a-tives," and from the outset of taking these wonderful tablets I was better and gradually this medicine completely cured me. I took a large number of boxes, perhaps a dozen, and now I am entirely cured and I have gained over thirty pounds in weight.

I am now so well that I have sold my farm and bought 200 acres more land. I make this statement voluntarily for the sake of humanity, and I am convinced that "Fruit-a-tives" is a wonderful remedy that will cure stomach trouble where doctors and everything else fail."

(Sgd) Henry Speers, J.P.

The doctors were all wrong. Mr Speers had what we call "irritated heart." Indigestion and dyspepsia completely upset the stomach. Poisonous gases were formed which swelled the walls of the stomach and pressed against the heart.

"Fruit-a-tives" immediately strengthened the stomach, insured sound digestion and regulated the bowels. There were no poisons—no noxious gases remained in the system, and the heart was no longer irritated. Then the pain and fluttering stopped.

"Fruit-a-tives" is put up in two sizes 25c and 50c. If your dealer has not both, write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A FEUD AND ITS FINISH.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyrighted, 1903, by Associated Literary Press.

Amelia Vernet sat out on the sand spit waiting for the turn of the tide. She had become absorbed in her sketching, and time had passed unnoticed until the curling swish of water told her that the sand spit had become a temporary island.

It was midday now, and she could not hope to reach the mainland before 5 o'clock—unless she waded. Amelia looked down at her pretty tan shoes and then turned and peered over the sand dunes toward the town.

A narrow channel of choppy water cut off escape for the present. Out in the bay a few sails flashed in the sunlight, but none was within hailing distance.

Amelia picked up her pencil and returned to her sketch book. "Aunt Tom will be worried," she thought, "if I don't return to luncheon, and yet—she will have the satisfaction of knowing that her predictions have been fulfilled—at last the tide has caught me on the sand spit!"

A shadow fell across the open book. Amelia lifted a startled face to meet the astonished glance of a tall young man.

"I—I beg your pardon," he stammered, lifting his white canvas hat. "I thought I had the island to myself."

"I wish you had," said Amelia plaintively; "the turn of the tide is responsible for my presence here."

"Mine too. I became interested in this confounded book, and I was dozing comfortably when the water crept around my ankles and woke me up." He thumped viciously upon the offending volume and cast it from him. "I suppose there is no escape until 3 or 4 o'clock."

"None," sighed Amelia, "and nothing to eat!"

"Wait; we'll see about that." The stranger disappeared behind the dune, and Melia saw him making haste toward the narrow inlet.

"How shocked Aunt Tom would be if she could see me talking to a perfect stranger, but—I am quite sure he is a gentleman, and he must be staying at one of the plantations near by. His face is familiar, and yet"—

He came around the dune and sat down on the sand beside her. "I hope you will share my luncheon," he said courteously. "A thoughtful aunt prepared it for me against possible starvation between an 8 o'clock breakfast and a 12:30 luncheon." He opened the good sized basket which he had brought and removed a snowy fringed napkin.

"You're awfully kind," murmured Amelia hungrily. "I hope I'm not robbing you."

"Not in the least. We are castaways and must make the best of the food we have saved," he said gayly.

"There should be a cask of water and some tinned things."

"Here are a flask of lemonade and a cup, chicken salad sandwiches, poundcake and grapes—a very ladylike repast!"

The young man spread a napkin in Amelia's lap and helped her generously. "You were sketching?" he ventured, glancing down at her drawing materials.

"Yes, a little—the marsh and the sloping hill beyond, with its masses of cedar and pine. Would you like to see it?" asked Amelia frankly.

"Yes," he replied, taking the book and opening at the page she indicated. In one corner she had inscribed her signature in bold black characters, "Amelia Vernet." He glanced at the name, and his eyes shot a peculiar look at the girl.

Amelia was looking at his strong brown fingers clasping the sketch book. Very capable, fine muscled digits they were too.

"Your sketch is good," he said sincerely, putting the book aside.

When the last crumb of poundcake had disappeared Amelia sighed contentedly. "That was the most delicious meal I ever ate," she said gratefully.

"Aunt Tom is a famous cook," he replied carelessly as he returned the napkins to the basket.

"Aunt Tom!" repeated Amelia. She seemed to stiffen under his look of mild surprise.

"Why not? A man may have an Aunt Thomasina, may he not?' Amelia flushed at the mischievous look in his gray eyes.

"Of course," she said, with reserve. "Only, you see, I have an Aunt Thomasina too."

"Not an Aunt Tom Forrest, I'll be bound," said her companion.

"No, but an Aunt Tom Vernet," announced Amelia haughtily.

"Oh, by Jove! A great-aunt?"

"Yes."

"So's mine. Then I went to school with you! You remember Donald Forrest?" he asked eagerly.

Amelia arose to her feet and shook the sand from her white skirt. She looked very young and lovely standing there in the brilliant October sunshine with the blue sky reflected in her eyes. She also looked very cruel and quite like a lady in a tragedy when she looked down at him.

"I believe I remember you," she said coldly. "I also remember the family feud. No Vernet ever speaks to a Forrest—willingly. But I have partaken of your lunch, sir, and I thank you for your courtesy. You will excuse me if I return to my sketching."

Forrest jumped to his feet. The red blood mounted to his dark forehead, and the angry light in his eyes seemed to leap like little flickering flames.

"It is a small matter, madam. A Forrest is courteous to friend or enemy. I will not intrude upon you longer." He picked up his lunch basket and, with a low bow, disappeared as suddenly as he had come.

Amelia sat down again, feeling very small and mean. It was quite evident that the heir of the house of Forrest would have ignored the feud if she, the last save one of the Vernets, had chosen to overlook the antipathy that had lasted for sixty long years.

But Amelia Vernet was Virginian to the core, and, although she never really knew the cause of the estrangement between the two families, she had loyally nursed the tradition.

And here was a young man, last of the Forrests, as Amelia was last of the Vernets, and they must carry on the feud. Amelia sighed involuntarily, for she had liked the young man who had been away so long and who must have recently returned.

There came a loud roar of thunder and a sudden darkening of the sun. Amelia looked timorously around at the threatening clouds.

There was a vivid flash of lightning. Amelia turned and fled toward the inlet. A boat was putting off from the mainland, and Forrest was watching it. He turned at the sound of Amelia's flying steps.

"I have signaled a boatman, Miss Vernet," he said politely; "he will put you ashore wherever you wish. If you do not object, I will accompany you. I do not relish the drenching that is coming."

Amelia blushed hotly. "Of course I do not object," she said, with embarrassment.

The drenching came before they reached the mainland. Amelia cowered in the bottom of the boat, while Forrest removed his coat and, in spite of her protests, threw it over her to shut out the lightning and rain.

At the landing an ancient servitor was seeking Miss Vernet, and he hurried his young mistress into the phaeton before she could properly thank Donald Forrest.

"Fo' de lan', Miss Melia, you' Aunt Tommy is nigh 'bout 'stracted." mumbled Uncle Aaron peevishly as he gathered up the reins.

A week later Amelia stood in the brown October garden among some late poppies. She looked pensively over the stone wall to where the bay sparkled and dimpled in the sunlight. There was a quick step beside her, and she looked up into Donald Forrest's smiling face.

"My Aunt Thomasina is calling upon your Aunt Thomasina," he said, removing his hat; "they sent me into the garden to find you and tell you the feud is off."

Amelia stared.

"I don't understand," she stammered.

"I looked up the cause of the feud and find that our great-grandfathers quarreled because each wanted to name his new daughter Thomasina. It was a distinctive name, and each craved its possession. I have argued with my aunt night and day—result, the two Thomasinas are drinking tea together. We cannot be so prejudiced as to"— He held out his hand.

"I'm so glad," said Amelia honestly as she placed her hand in his.

Trees and Landowners in England.

By the general laws of England oak, ash and elm are "timber" if not younger than twenty years or so old that a good post cannot be cut from them. What constitutes "timber" varies slightly according to locality, but when a tree is proved to be "timber" a person who has only a life interest in the land it grows upon cannot cut it down unless it be on an estate cultivated solely for the production of salable "timber" or unless he has a special agreement giving him power to do so. A mere life tenant may not even cut down trees which are not "timber," but which would at the age of twenty years attain that dignity. Botanists differ as to the poisonous nature of yew trees. There are many instances both of their poisonous and their harmless effect when browsed by horses and cattle, but the partially dried clippings of yew are certainly most dangerous. If a yew tree overhangs a neighbor's land and his horses eat the yew without trespassing, the owner of the tree is liable to pay for any injury the horses may sustain. On the other hand, if the horses or cattle cannot browse on the tree without putting their heads over the fence the owner of the horses must bear the loss, for his animals have trespassed.—London Answers.

When Victoria Laughed.

One day during Queen Victoria's reign three children were walking along the road between Windsor and Stoke Poges. They heard the sound of carriage wheels. It was the queen's carriage, and she was in it.

The oldest child, a little boy, had been reading stories of eastern life and fairy tales. He knew what was due a queen and cried to the others:

"Get down flat in the dust before the carriage, and we'll all call out together, 'Oh, queen, live forever!'"

Down went the three little bodies flat in the dust, much to the astonishment of the coachman, who reined up sharply.

The queen leaned forward and asked: "What in the world is the matter, children? Are you frightened?"

Three voices came out of the dust in a smothered treble:

"Yes, O queen!"

Then there was a pause, and one reproachful voice said, "There, we forgot the 'live forever' part."

The queen understood at once and laughed aloud, as her coachman afterward said, "more heartily than she had laughed for years."—London Queen.

Playing Cards.

The Hindoos were the first to use playing cards, though they were used in China as early as 1120 A. D.

The Piano.

The earliest known mention of the pianoforte was in a playbill dated May 16, 1767. The principal attraction was given thus: "Miss Buckler will sing a song from 'Judith,' accompanied by a new instrument called pianoforte."

Slate.

The material called "slate" is nothing more or less than hardened mud deposited ages ago at the bottom of the seas and subsequently upheaved to its present position.

Dominos.

It has been estimated that two persons playing dominos ten hours a day and making four plays a minute could continue 118,000 years without exhausting all the combinations of the game, the total of which is 248,528,211,840.

Quickly Hatched.

The eggs of a bluebottle fly if placed in the sun will hatch in two or three hours.

A Mathematical Name.

A remarkable name was that of the late Admiral W. W. Wood, which the cadets at the Annapolis Naval academy, when he was an instructor in mathematics there, always wrote "W cube, O square D."

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No! "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organized by Messrs. Windsor and held through out the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

TIMELY ARTICLE ON CHEESE-MAKING

From The Canadian Dairyman.

One of the difficult problems in cheese making for years past, has been the disposal of the whey, in such a way as not to injure the quality of the product. In many factories today the whey tank is still a hindrance to the making of the finest cheese. It is the source for bad flavors communicated to the milk through the cans when not thoroughly washed.

Some years ago a strong effort was made not to return the whey to the patrons, but to sell it in bulk to parties who would take it away or feed it to hogs at such a distance from the factory as not to interfere with the work. Some factories adopted this method, and a number have continued to sell the whey ever since. That these have been the factories that have made the finest quality of cheese, goes to show that the returning of the sour whey in the milk cans has been injurious to the business as a whole.

But notwithstanding the experience of the few factories which greatly improved their output by selling the whey, the movement in this direction did not make progress. Patrons wanted the whey at home for feeding purposes and the factories had to return it, or quit the business. The practice of returning the whey is now nearly altogether the practice, resulting in the perpetration of a system that is not conducive to the best results in cheese-making. Some of the more enterprising factories prepared to deal with the question as best they could by elevating the whey tanks, keeping them clean, and in other ways endeavoring to lessen the evil effects of the system. A great deal was accomplished by these efforts. But there remained hundreds of factories which paid little or no attention to the whey tanks so long as the patron had his proper quota returned to him in the milk can every morning. So filthy did some of the tanks become that not only the quality of the cheese but the health of the community was endangered by them. Considerable improvement has been effected in recent years by the efforts of the instructors, and whey tanks are much better looked after than they were five years ago. They are still a source for flavors that injure the cheese, and unless well looked after are bound to give trouble.

A year ago the Bright factory, in Western Ontario, began pasteurizing the whey. As Mr. Johnston's letter in this issue shows, the results have been satisfactory from every point of view. A bitter or "yeasty" flavor in the cheese, which had been a source of trouble for many years, disappeared as soon as pasteurizing began. The milk arrived at the factory in better condition, patrons could clean their milk cans easier, and the whey returned was better for feeding purposes. Other factories which began pasteurizing the whey had the same experience. This year there are a number of factories in Western Ontario pasteurizing the whey, with very satisfactory results as the letters from several makers in this and succeeding issues will show.

Considering the very great benefits resulting from pasteurizing the whey, the cost of the work is small. The cost is about 50 cents a ton of cheese made, or from 50 cents to $1 for each patron. It is worth this to the patrons if it did nothing more than enable them to clean the milk cans easier. But the greatest benefit will result from an improved quality of milk. One of the greatest sources of bacterial infection is removed, and to this extent the patron benefits in the improved quality of the output.

Pasteurizing of the whey is of value to the patrons nearly altogether. The maker does not benefit excepting in so far as it gives him a better quality of milk to work with, thus lessening his anxiety and worry as to what the finished product will be. The factory owner does not benefit, only so far as pasteurizing enables his factory to turn out a quality of cheese that better suits the market. It is the patron who benefits directly from the cost of pasteurizing the whey, and it is the patron who should pay for it. As we have shown, the expense is not large, and every patron should insist upon having the whey at his factory pasteurized. He will find it easier to clean his cans for the milk, and the finished article will be in greater demand on the market.

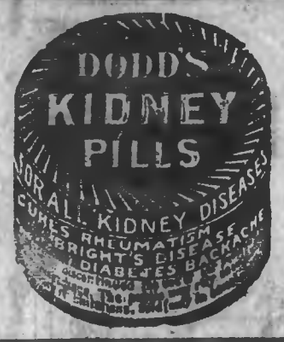
ABOUT THE DRESSING OF POULTRY

From The Canadian Dairyman.

If co-operation in selling the dressed poultry is not possible, the best thing is to have a private customer or two. If you know any families in the city, and you can promise a fairly regular supply of dressed chickens and fresh eggs, see if you can do business with them. Many well-to-do city people would be glad to get such a supply.

A good honest commission man comes next; don't send to any or every firm that advertises. Take an old established business in preference to others; one who remits promptly. Be willing to take suggestions re the picking, etc. The best dealers are only too willing to give you the benefit of their experience. If you are in the city call and see him. It's often more satisfactory to do business with a man you have seen.

Grade all dressed poultry and eggs. Do not put in anything that looks doubtful, but is thought to be good enough. Keep out sick and deformed birds. Send nothing you would not relish yourself, and some that would do at home might be better to be left there.—F. C. E.



A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

The Trouble Yields to the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

Ask any doctor and he will tell you that rheumatism is rooted in the blood; that nothing can cure it that does not reach the blood. It is sheer waste of money and time to try to cure rheumatism with liniment and lotions that only go skin deep. Your can speedily cure rheumatism with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, drive out the poisonous acid and loosen the stiffened, aching joints. Among the thousands of rheumatic sufferers cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mr. W A Taylor, Newcastle, N.B., who says:—For a number of years I was a great sufferer from rheumatism which was seated in my shoulders and knee joints. I tried liniments and blistering, but with no effect. In fact the trouble was getting worse, and my knee joints grew so stiff that they would snap if I stooped, and I could scarcely straighten up. Altogether I was a terrible sufferer, and nothing I did or took gave me any relief until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took the Pills steadily for a couple of months and every vestige of the trouble disappeared. That was two years ago, and as I have had no return of the trouble I feel safe in assuming that the cure is permanent."

Nine-tenths of the common ailments that afflict humanity are due to bad blood, and as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood, that is the reason they cure so many different troubles, such as anaemia, indigestion, rheumatism, eczema, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, paralysis and the ailments of girlhood and womanhood with all their distressing headaches, backaches and irregularities. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

WINTER PROTECTION OF FRUITS

From The Canadian Dairyman.

As the tender varieties of fruit bearing and ornamental plants are often the best in quality, the subject of winter protection becomes one of considerable importance. At the same time it is a rather difficult subject to discuss. The plant that will need protection in one locality may not need it in another. The method of protection best adapted to a particular plant in one locality may be quite unsatisfactory in a place less than a hundred miles distant.

Generally speaking, mulching of one kind or another is the one way of protecting half-hardy plants through the winter. Strawberries, asparagus, peonies, and many other herbaceous perennials, are regularly mulched. Grapes, raspberries, blackberries, dewberries, and many ornamental shrubs are first laid down and then mulched; in all cases, the object being to cover the plants with a blanket of some sort, to keep out some of the frost.

With herbaceous plants, straw, leaves or litter of some sort is generally used. These materials can be removed in the spring without much danger of injuring the crowns. Woody plants which can be bent to the ground are usually covered with soil. The depth to mulch of course varies somewhat with different plants and with different conditions. Plants may onds in any market.

THE APPLE CROP OF ONTARIO

From The Canadian Dairyman.

The apple crop of Ontario is much below earlier estimates. Prices appear to be stiffening somewhat but it is feared that the exceptional weather conditions that have prevailed will interfere with the keeping qualities of the fruit. The following reports are typical of many received by The Canadian Dairyman and Farming World:

HASTINGS COUNTY

Belleville.—The winter apple crop is scarcely a quarter of a crop. Prices in the orchard range from 75 cents to $1 for firsts and seconds.—F. S. W.

OXFORD COUNTY

Ingersoll.—Apples are turning out disappointing both in quality and quantity. Buyers are paying $1 a barrel for apples picked in the orchard, but do not seem to want them even at that price, except the best colored fruit. Shippers lost heavily on early fruit. There is fear that the late varieties are not going to keep well. Crop of winter fruit is less than half of last year's. About 3,000 barrels will go into store here.—J. C. H.

KENT COUNTY

Chatham.—There is not much change since last report except that buyers are not getting the quality that they expected in their pack, due probably to worms and fungi. Prices are ruling about $2.75 for No. 1, and $2.25 for No. 2, f.o.b. here. Greening and Snows are not keeping well; other sorts about as usual. Kieffer pears are a very heavy crop of medium size. —W. D. A. R.

DURHAM COUNTY

Orono.—The apple crop will average about one-third of a crop, highly colored and normal size. They will run 85 per cent No. 1. Apples outside our association were bought at 75 cents for fall and $1 for winter varieties on the trees.—E. J. H.

BRUCE COUNTY

Walkerton.—Apple crop is light. Quality is very good but quite wormy in some orchards. Prices have ruled low, mostly $1 a barrel in orchard except Spies which have brought 50 cents higher. Demand has been a little dull. In north of county some apples are not yet sold; quality good. —A. E. S.

A WELL EQUIPPED LAUNDRY

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Two things are essential to the establishment of a laundry system; those are the full equipment of the laundry and abundance of supplies. To have everything at hand, and everything of good quality, is a prime essential.

The intelligent selection of a washing machine is important; any machine will wash clothes clean, but some are harder on the clothes than others. When you are ready to buy a machine, send to the different manufacturers for catalogues and full information; acquaint yourselves with the good and bad points of each make, and take what appeals to you most.

The equipment of a laundry may be as elaborate or simple as the purse will admit, but the same essentials constitute the equipment. These essentials are:

One washing-machine, 2 tubs, 1 wash-board, 1 wringer, 1 boiler, 2 pails, 1 dipper, 1 knife, 1 ironing-sheet, 1 kettle for starch, 1 granite wash-basin, 2 baskets, 1 soap-dish, 1 clothes-stick, plenty of clothes-line, 1 strainer, 1 wooden spoon, 1 gross clothes-pins, 1 skirt-board, 1 waist-board, 4 sad-irons, 1 iron-stand or asbestos mats, 2 holders, 1 whisk-broom for sprinkling, 1 clothes-horse.

In laundry supplies: Soap, borax, washing soda, beeswax or paraffin, bluing, ammonia, starch.

To have each member of the household supplied with a laundry bag if possible for personal belongings is much better than to use one large hamper. Have them made of washable material, so they can be kept clean. It is also a good plan to have for the table linen a large bag that can be hung in the laundry; being hung up keeps away the mice, who smell the food and spots on tablecloths, but are unable to reach them.

Sort over the clothes, putting table linen and bedding in one pile; in another, things like corset covers, nightdresses and cambric underwear; in a third, white waists and handkerchiefs. Towels, washcloths and dusters must go in a pile by themselves. Colored clothes and stockings are better washed last.

The choice of soap is a matter of importance for the intelligent selection of a laundry soap will add to the wearing quality of your clothes.

Now prepare a boiler of soft water with one-half a bar of good yellow soap dissolved in it. If you must use hard water, dissolve one tablespoonful of borax to each pail of water. This will soften it and serve as a bleach to the clothes.

If you have a washing-machine this warm water can be used for washing the clothes, having first wet them with cold water. Some people scald clothes, and I know of no more satisfactory way than putting them in cool water and bringing them to a scald; but do not boil them, for this makes them yellow, grinding the loosened dirt back in again. A few drops of indigo bluing give the clothes a good color. There should only be enough to tint the water.

Take table linen first (having removed all stains), and if there is a small wash, the bedding can go into this lot. Very soiled parts can be soaped thoroughly first. When the clothes are clean take out of the tub and rinse well in two waters before bluing. Bear in mind the bluing water should never be used for the purpose of rinsing; it is simply to restore the color.

Draw off some of the water in the machine and add fresh clean water and more soap; take the next lot of clothes, use the same methods as before, and with care you will have perfectly pure white clothes. Remember that air and sunlight all add to the bleaching.

Treat Your Hair and Scalp Well

As a general rule the head cannot be too well cared for, any more than a horse's coat can be too much groomed. If you would have healthy, luxuriant hair, you must first stimulate the scalp by frequent application of Seven Sutherland Sisters Hair Grower. This will start the skin into vigorous action, and refresh the dying roots, and will help wonderfully to put new life into the hair. Always get Seven Sutherland Sisters Hair Grower. Price, 50c. and $1.00. Send 10c. for sample to Seven Sutherland Sisters, Spadina Avenue, Toronto.

LOOKING AFTER THE MILK SUPPLY

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Ottawa is taking an advance step in regard to her city milk supply. Dr. Hollingsworth, the city veterinarian, proposes scoring all dairies supplying the city by means of a score card. All dairies must come up to, or over, a certain standard score. With this object in view Dr. Hollingsworth is sending the following circular to all dairymen who either sell milk in the city or supply it to those who do:

"On my next visit to the dairy farms I propose using a score card and will expect every dairy to score over 70 per cent. out of 100. Any below the 70 mark will be marked under standard. The following points will be scored:

"Cows—Condition, health, comfort, ventilation, cubic space per cow, cleanliness, food, water, perfect score 35 per cent.

"Stables — Location, construction, cleanliness, light, stable, air, removal of manure, stable yard, perfect score 25 per cent.

"Milk house and storage—Location, construction, equipment, cleanliness, utensils, water supply for cleaning, storage, perfect score 25 per cent.

"Milking and handling milk—Cleanliness of milking, prompt and efficient cooling, protection during transportation, perfect score 25 per cent."

WORSE THAN ONIONS

Bad Breath From Indigestion Cannot be Overcome With Perfumes.

Nine-tenths of the offensive breath is a result of stomach trouble. It cannot be overcome by breath perfumes or any other palliative measures.

If you have a bad breath; if there is heartburn, flatulence and gulpings of undigested food; if the stomach burns or smarts; if there is sleeplessness, nervousness, headaches or any other symptoms of indigestion, use Mi-o-na stomach tablets and get well.

A 50 cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets lasts for a couple of weeks and will ward off a dozen mild attacks of indigestion, while its continued use will give an absolute and complete cure.

Wm. Madill has seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na stomach tablets that he gives a guarantee with every box to refund the money if it fails.

TAKE GOOD CARE OF THE COW

From The Canadian Dairyman.

It is acknowledged by all successful dairymen that in order to get the best of which milch cows are capable they must not be allowed to slacken in their milk flow. Once off, it is next to impossible to bring the flow back to normal. Just now cows require very careful handling to induce them to do their best. Neglect or exposure will be shown up with unerring certainty in the reduced amount of milk given.

It is imperative that cows be stabled nightly from now on. On fine days, they may have the run of the pasture field, provided there is anything there for them. Otherwise, it would be far better to keep them in a clean barnyard. Care must be exercised in turning them to pasture on frosty mornings. A large feed of frozen grass or other pasture will do much to diminish the milk flow. When it is uncomfortable for one to be outside in ordinary clothing, rest assured the cows are also feeling the cold. Their comfort must be considered if the best results are to be obtained.

With shortening days, the cool evenings come on early. It is then that cattle suffer much discomfort awaiting the time when they will be stabled. On all days, when a chilling blast is blowing, a considerate dairyman, realizing the value of his cows, will stable them. A little extra labor is involved, but it is handsomely paid for at the time and throughout the succeeding months. It is poor policy indeed to neglect cows from which we expect profits later, and to which throughout the winter we will devote our best efforts.

TRAINING HARRINGTON

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Crisp and bracing was the morning as Harrington came on deck, and he drew great drafts of the cool air down into his lungs, assuring himself that people who took vacations in the hot months were fools indeed. He even felt sorry for poor Fannie, who was left behind in the city. A few weeks of this bracing air would do her more good than the five-dollar-a-visit specialist who looked grave and shook his head when he stood by the bedside and declared that she must have complete rest.

It was true that Harrington himself had wanted to take his vacation in August, and when Fannie's collapse had prevented his leaving then he had stormed and chafed and succeeded in making everybody uncomfortable and bloodthirsty to varying degrees, according to their temperaments and fondness for Fannie. Harrington's calm assumption that Fannie had no right to be ill when he wished to go on his vacation was irritating to the others.

Now as the steamer moved slowly between banks on which the green was giving way to the first blush of autumn tints the world seemed good to Harrington, and he could even think kindly of the little woman who lay at home in a darkened room and whose breakdown had been responsible for his delayed vacation. In August he would have gone to the shore, as was his custom, but in the latter part of September the country offered greater appeal, so he was to spend a month with his sister. The latter had lent no ear to the call of the city, but had remained content to live a farmer's wife as she had been born a farmer's daughter.

It was afternoon when the train pulled into the tiny station. The ride had been hot and dusty and, after the early morning on the boat, the worse by contrast. Harrington met his brother-in-law with the tolerant patronage that the city man feels for his country cousin and considered that he had discharged his obligation when he offered the other a smoke with the explanation that it was a city cigar.

"I guess most of them come from the city," suggested Sam Dryer, with a chuckle, as he bit off the end and applied the match. "I guess you're about the twentieth chap this summer that's given me a city cigar with the air of expecting me to drop dead with delight because it comes from the city."

"You don't have to smoke it if you don't want to," snapped Harrington as the last vestige of the morning's benediction fled.

"I don't mind," explained Sam good humoredly. "I'm used to smoking city cigars. That's Lafe Spence's new barn over there. Before he got it done a pill man came along and painted one end up with his sign, and Lafe got hoppin'. He danced around and told the man that was just what he built barns for, and the man said if that was the case he guessed he'd paint the other end too."

"Well, what's the rest of the story?" demanded Harrington sharply when a pause was not broken by speech.

"I was waiting for you to laugh at that," explained Sam. "The answer is that he painted the hull barn, just like you see it. Lafe's constable, and he threatened to put him in the lockup if he didn't do the right thing."

Harrington cursed the evil fortune that brought him into contact with his brother-in-law and inane country jokes, and his irritation against Fannie returned. If she had remained well they would have gone to the shore, where amateur humorists could be snubbed into silence. He was glad when the old homestead came into sight and Ella, on the front porch, waved him a welcome.

The remainder of the afternoon and the evening passed off pleasantly enough, but the morning brought its troubles. Harrington was always at his worst in the early hours. He had been compelled to rise a full hour before his accustomed time, and there was no hot water for shaving. The studs were not in his clean shirt, nor was the shirt laid out. At home, even from her sick bed, Fannie had made certain that the little things were looked after. It was the little things that Harrington cared about, and he was in a black humor when he came to the breakfast table.

He had been slow in dressing, and the breakfast was cold, though it had been placed in the oven to keep warm. Sam had already left the table and Ella was alone.

Harrington pushed the bacon from him.

"I never eat bacon unless it's crisp," he said irritably, "and I don't like the eggs fried so hard. Can't you cook some more that are just set? And for heaven's sake, Ella, please remember I can't eat hot bread for breakfast."

"I'll get some cold bread," volunteered Ella. "It will only take a few minutes, Ben."

"Then hurry," he commanded. "I hate to sit idle at the table."

There was a little exclamation from Ella, and Harrington looked up into Sam's gray eyes. There was an expression there that he did not like.

"You're not going to sit idle at the table," exclaimed Sam. "You're going to hurry up and eat your bacon and eggs. You don't have to eat biscuit if you'd rather have bread, but that stuff was all good when breakfast was ready. If you want to spend an hour in your room cursing your cuffs and your collar button, get up earlier or else eat cold breakfast.

"You're welcome here, Ben, because you're Ella's brother and because she's got her heart set on a visit from you, but you've just got to understand that you can't cuss and domineer my wife into a sick bed the way you've done your own."

Harrington swallowed a retort; then he swallowed the bacon and eggs. Sam stood over the chair, and Ben knew that he meant what he said.

When the meal was done Sam left the room, and Ben followed him out to the yard to stammer an apology. Then he sat on the horse block while he smoked a cigar, and Sam's words came back to him.

His brother-in-law was right. He had cursed and domineered his wife. There had been lots of mornings when he had acted worse than this and with far less cause.

When the nervous breakdown had come he had cursed it because it had interfered with his vacation plans, and not until he had left home did he realize how much Fannie's quiet ministrations had meant.

Once or twice he half rose to go into the house and ask Ella's pardon, but he thought of something else at home and sank back into his seat again. He did not even realize that the horse block was an uncomfortable seat, and Sam came in from the fields at noon to find him still sitting there with a half smoked cigar, making an odorous offense to heaven.

"Thought worth a penny?" he asked pleasantly as he made pretense of feeling in his pocket for the coin.

"You can buy my whole miserable carcass for a penny," retorted Ben dolefully. "I've been sitting here thinking over what you said."

"I didn't mean to get so hopping mad," said Sam shamefacedly.

"It was right," went on Harrington. "I have rowed Fannie into her bed, just as you said. She made things so comfortable that when anything did go wrong I scolded her about that instead of giving her credit for all that she had done."

"If you know it, that helps some," reminded Sam. "I tell you what the trouble is, Ben. Just because you earn the money that pays the bills you don't realize that your wife is working too. You wouldn't dare talk to a servant the way you talk to her. You know your wife won't get mad and quit."

"I never should have come away and left her," lamented Harrington.

"They sent you on a vacation to give Fannie a rest," explained Sam, "but if you really mean to be a good boy it would be a good idea to send for her. The trouble with her has been that she cared so much for you that she worried when you were not pleased, and you never were pleased, so she worried all the time. It will do her good to come up here and have you wait on her."

"I'll go after her," offered Ben hastily. He was thinking of the cool of the morning on the boat when they two should have the deck alone. It was there that he wanted to tell her how sorry he was. He could not know that Sam had wired. It was well that he could not read the message, for it ran:

Better come up. Ben's found out what the matter was, and I'll see that he remembers. SAM.

But Sam's share of the task was light, for Harrington remembered of his own accord as he coaxed the roses back to where the lilies had been in his wife's pale cheeks. When his irritation rose there rose before him a vision of cold bacon and a threatening face. It was not romantic, but it was effective.

A Natural Laxative

Inward cleansing is as necessary as outward bathing. To keep the bowels free and regular is of even greater importance than to keep the skin-pores from becoming clogged. The neglect of either invites disease. Everyone needs a natural laxative occasionally, to free the bowels of accumulated impurities For this purpose take

A MOTHER'S HELP.

An Ideal Nursery Seat For Use When Dressing Baby.

This chair is indeed a mother's help and in every way an ideal nursery seat.

As shown in the illustration, there are two drawers, and they contain all that is necessary for the dressing of a baby. The drawers are divided into compartments to hold the safety pins, powder puff, handkerchief, brush and comb, feeding utensils and all the odds and ends that every mother likes to have handy when making baby's toilet.

The real beauty of the chair's utility of course lies in the fact that when all has been prepared for the bath there is no such thing as having to get this and that together and the possible risk of forgetting anything. All that is needed is to pull out the drawer before sitting down, and when the actual washing of the baby has been accomplished a hand can be reached over the side of the chair for powder, say. That can be replaced and the next thing needed brought from its resting place. And so on all through, with the result that the somewhat tedious operation of dressing the baby, particularly if it happens to be a bit fractious, is greatly simplified and accelerated, and the mother or nurse is saved two-thirds of the usual trouble.

The nursery chair is so simple of construction that there is no reason why a fairly handy man should not be able to adapt one out of a common chair. If possible one of the solid, old fashioned kind should be selected, but if this is not to be had an ordinary one will answer the purpose just as well. Supports and slides would have to be devised for each drawer, but this would mean very little to any one with ever so slight a taste for carpentering. While there is every facility for the transformation in the heavy old fashioned chair, a little more trouble will serve to equip the other kind with the needed requirements.

When all the carpentering is done and the drawers made so that they will slide in and out easily, the chair, supposing it to be at all shabby, can be polished up and the seat padded, then covered with a pretty pattern of chints not too light in color. Finish off neatly. Let the tacks be brass headed and not the kind with corners to catch on the dress. A little thought on these lines will save a lot of nerve wearing trouble to the mother or nurse and is but little additional labor to the home carpenter when completing his task.

A Soap Bubble Race.

This game makes plenty of fun. To play it provide each contestant with a Japanese fan or one made from stiff paper, for with these the bubbles are propelled to a goal. At a given signal the bubbles are blown from a starting point and fanned toward the goal.

If a bubble bursts before a player reaches the goal, the player may return to blow a second one.

Very similar to this is a soap bubble battle, for it consists in dividing the room by a string or screen, organising the players into parties, the reds and the blues, giving one company places on the right of the line and the others on the left, three feet from the line itself. Then, all being in readiness, armed with fans to drive the bubbles, the signal is given and the game begins. The sides blow in turn, the enemy fanning or blowing the bubbles back.

The point of the contest is to see on which side of the rope the bubbles burst, the side that sends over the greatest number of bubbles being the winner.

Among the appropriate prizes for the winners of this game are pieces of iridescent glass, glass paperweights or, indeed, any pretty article of sparkling crystal. Of course each contestant carries home the pipe with which he or she has done valiant service.

A SMART NEW BUCKLE.

Made of Beaten Gold and Worn With Moire Ribbon.

There are as many styles in buckles this season as there are in belts. All sorts of lovely ones are brought out to wear with brocade satin ribbon for empire gowns as well as plain moire belting for everyday suits.

Wonderful French ones set with brilliants are being placed on evening gowns made of satin and velvet. The buckle shown in the sketch is one of the very new shapes and is a return to an old fashioned art of the goldsmiths.

The loops and flowers are delicately bent together, and the whole effect is exceedingly dainty and light. The point goes below the waist when the buckle is worn at the waist line, but it is turned around when it is worn in the center of the back on an empire frock.

Breakfast Not Formal Meal.

"The house should serve you, and you should not serve the house," said a young woman the other day in giving her opinion of the ideal way to keep house. The fine order of things that made so much work a decade ago has almost disappeared. In many houses there is no formal breakfast, this meal being served in the bedrooms of the older members of the family, and other members eat as they please, coffee machines and chafing dishes keeping food hot. This is especially the case in families where irregular hours are kept and but one servant is possible. The maid takes a tray upstairs, sets the breakfast dishes in the dining room and goes about her work, while the children help one another, fruit, cereal and eggs with toast being the usual bill of fare. Dyspepsia breeding hot cakes, meat and fried things have disappeared from most breakfast tables.

How to Stretch Curtains.

When stretching curtains, especially those beginning to show a little wear, put a sheet on the floor and tack the most worn curtain down first, using bank pins to tack each scallop. Then hook the other curtains on the same as on stretchers. This method takes much less time. The curtains will be straight and of uniform size, as four curtains can be put down at once, and they will wear twice as long. Tack them down. Do not pin them, because when pinning the pins must be removed for each curtain and pinned back. Bank pins are sold in all department stores. They will not bend in tacking and can be used a number of times.

Where the Cook Is Queen.

No two women can work just alike, as has been often proved, and the woman who jeers at another because she rushes madly from carrots to cantaloupes and does not have her vegetables all in one place does not know what she is talking about, for she cannot know what trouble it is for some women to keep things in order and the tendency they have to get them mixed when they are all in what they call a clutter. Each cook must work out her own method, and the lady of the house will do well to be satisfied with results and not criticise too closely methods that are not her own.

Won on a Bluff.

"It does me good to meet up with one of that class of people who think they know it all," said the old man with the ancient hat. "I was coming over from Baltimore on a train the other day, and a man who was writing in a book asked me how to spell 'proper.' I told him, but a know-it-all who sat near disputed me. I bet him $10 even up that I was right and proved I was by four disinterested men. I gave the $10 to charity."

"How did the man contend the word should be spelled?" was asked.

"Why, he said there was only one 'p' in it."

"And you stuck for two, eh?"

"I did. I insisted that it was spelled 'propper,' and he finally owned up like a little man and handed me over the money."

"And would you like to make the same wager again and leave it to the dictionaries?"

"Not much! I consulted 'em all next day and discovered that I had bluffed that poor chap out of his wealth."—Washington Post.

A Pair of Mottoes.

"My motto," said the young physician, "is, 'Be sure you're right, then go ahead.'"

"And mine," rejoined the old doctor, "is, 'When in doubt perform an operation.'"—Boston Post.

A Pipe.

"Is your water supply good?"
"Yes, in the main."—Judge.

Judgment.

No critic of my neighbor let me be.
No flaws in him, I pray thee, let me find,
Or, if perchance some blemish there I see,
To it and him may I be ever kind.

But of myself as Father Time rolls by
Let me be critical of my own ways
And so reform my erring self that I Won't care a rap what anybody says.
—Judge.

The Emancipation Of the Chaperons.

By ALICE LOUISE LEE.

Copyright, 1905, by Alice Louise Lee.

"HUH!" Merriwether stretched his legs out luxuriously in front of the grate and pulled at his pipe. "A Christmas house party at The Pines." Then after a pause, "Who are invited?"

His nephew leaned against the mantelpiece and stuffed his hands into his pockets as he enumerated the guests, the uncle keeping up a running and caustic comment:

"Engaged—going to be—introduced for matrimonial purposes—engaged—the same." The numeration ceased. "Yes, I see myself helping to chaperon your house party. I stroll into the reception room and stumble over an engaged couple. I sneak into the library and am frowned out again by a newly introduced couple. I bang into the music room and overhear a proposal. No, thank you, Roy; I shall spend Christmas in peace and my own room."

Roy picked up his hat and moved toward the door. "Modern house parties are not conducted along the lines you've laid down, uncle. Change your mind and judge for yourself." He turned the knob. "By the way, I didn't mention the other chaperon, did I? It's Mrs. Angell, Bertha's widowed aunt, you know." With this parting shot, which he knew was effective, Roy discreetly retreated.

After he had gone Merriwether sat an hour staring at the fire and pulling away at a smokeless pipe. Then he arose and looked earnestly at himself in the mantel mirror. "We're apt to run down," he apostrophized his reflection; "apt to run to seed, we bachelors. Now, this tie—let's see, it's six months out of style, and Gertrude used to be—hum." He stepped to the phone and called up his tailor, realizing that his mind had already undergone the change Roy hoped for.

Ten days later he arrived at The Pines just in time to dress for dinner. He was accompanied by a man and a smart lot of luggage, accessories which made so marked a change in his appearance that when at 6 o'clock he descended to the lower hall Bertha Monroe, awaiting her aunt at the foot of the stairs, surveyed him in delighted amazement.

"Why, Uncle Bruce," she exclaimed, "you look so fine I scarcely knew you!" Bertha was his nephew's fiancee and already claimed relationship in private to the uncle. "I'd make Roy wear evening clothes in the morning if he had such a splendid figure—so filled out, you know."

Merriwether, following her into the living room, laughed grimly at the doubtful compliment. "Oh, he'll tip the scales at 220 soon enough, don't worry!"

"You surely don't look that stout," began Bertha and, turning abruptly toward the entrance, finished with, "Does he, auntie?"

Gertrude Angell swept past her niece and met Merriwether's outstretched hand cordially. "Look? Why, he looks surprisingly like the Bruce Merriwether I used to know so well."

"Fifteen years ago," was on the end of Merriwether's tongue, but he checked himself just in time. Gertrude probably ignored lapses in time as women have a habit of doing, he thought. But surely hers was a face, a form, a bearing, which had so successfully withstood time as to entitle her to the appellation of youth. Her brown hair had not lost its luster, nor had her blue eyes lost aught of their sparkling interest in life, while she carried herself with her old time spring and vivacity.

Merriwether noted all these things as he sat opposite her at dinner. His memory flashed picture after picture before him—the primary days in their old home school, their grammar room betrothal, the warm friendship of later years, which had meant something more to him; then her marriage and life abroad. As he looked at her he had the uncomfortable feeling that, although her birth had antedated his by one year, she was many years his junior.

He was just characterising himself as "old" when his nephew's voice aroused him and added point to his reflection. "Tomorrow morning we skate," announced Roy joyfully. "I've had the pond back here cleared for action, and the ice is O. K!" Then he added carelessly, "By the way, Uncle Bruce, I forgot to tell you to bring skates along, but I can easily provide you with a pair."

Merriwether quaked inwardly, but made no reply until after dinner, when he backed his nephew into a corner and addressed him privately and forcefully, "I've not been on skates for ten years, and I don't intend to make a spectacle of myself now by any means."

"Why, uncle—er—you know, that makes things rather awkward, for Mrs. Angell does all those things so well, and—er—we don't want her to feel bored here."

"Oh!" groaned Merriwether. "In that case I'll try, but watch out for a repetition of a chapter in the 'Pickwick Papers!'" and he turned abruptly into the ballroom.

"Are you looking over the scene of former triumphs?" asked a gay voice beside him. And Mrs. Angell moved across the room to straighten a candle in one of the candelabra.

Merriwether noted with admiration her free, light step. She was a superb specimen of womanhood, but he fervently wished she had appeared older. "Why is it," he asked impulsively, ignoring her question, "that women retain their youth so much longer than men?"

She paused with her hand on the candle and looked back. "I think," she replied thoughtfully, "it's because they insist on doing youthful things."

"There it is again!" he thought, with an internal groan. He would be obliged to skate and dance and do all the other uncomfortable things which forty years and 220 pounds shrink from. Still as he watched her move about the room the burden of it did not seem so onerous after all.

Therefore he danced not badly, but laboriously, all the while admiring the graceful ease of Gertrude Angell's motions.

"At least," he determined resolutely, "I'll not be caught skating, as I was dancing, without a bit of practice." It was 1 a. m. when he made this resolution and issued the command to his man, "Peter, get me up at 7—unless," in sudden inspiration, "it should be storming."

Promptly at 7 he was awakened in a rebellious frame of mind. "Stiff as a cart horse," he grumbled. "I hope it's snowing like blazes."

The man raised the shade and looked out. "Sky clear as a whistle, sir."

So, with his sleep cut short two hours at both ends of the night, Merriwether dragged himself and the pair of skates, produced by his thoughtful nephew, out to the pond behind the hill. For an hour he skinned his knees, bumped his head and disturbed the equanimity of his temper before he was able to move alone with moderate speed and keep his feet under him.

When he went in to breakfast he was thankful for a few moments alone in front of a glowing grate fire. He stretched his aching legs toward the heat and rubbed the back of his head where a bump was appearing which is not laid down in phrenological charts and pains from which were darting in every direction. He listened idly to voices in the hall until his attention was chained by two comments made just outside the door.

"Isn't she a perfect delight of a chaperon? And so young too! She can't be thirty."

The reply was given in a doubtful tone. "Why—e—e, yes, she must be all of thirty."

"Forty-one," muttered the listener doggedly, the light of his new resolve shining again in his eyes.

At 10 o'clock the entire party went out to the pond, and Merriwether skated and skated and skated until his teeth were clinched in desperation and his forehead knitted in his efforts to hold out as long as Mrs. Angell did.

That he was becoming a man of one idea he acknowledged to himself that afternoon on the sleigh ride. "What Gertrude dares, I dare," he told himself in feeble jest. That sleighing party was a nightmare to him for days afterward. The drifts were deep, and the sleigh was overturned again and again, generally with Merriwether at the bottom of the heap, owing to the fact that sleighs incline readily in the direction of 220 pounds. Then, to vary the monotony of the tip-overs, there were miles of hillsides with a southerly exposure where the sun had melted the snow and obliged the party to walk.

Merriwether toiled up the slopes, husbanding his wind by maintaining silence, watching Gertrude's elastic steps ruefully and feeling his resolutions in respect to youthfulness ooze from his chilled finger tips.

"All out for our last climb!" cried Roy as the horses stopped at the foot of a steep rise. "This is our last hill."

"Thank the Lord!" said Merriwether devoutly behind his mustache. He watched his chance when the attention of the others, especially Gertrude, was directed elsewhere, and then, assisting his pedal extremities laboriously over the side of the sleigh, he fell on them heavily, trusting to luck rather than to his tired legs to keep him upright.

Near the end of their climb he remarked to Mrs. Angell, with all the nonchalance he could command, "I should think you ladies would be a bit tired."

A light laugh put him to shame, and a pair of dancing blue eyes met his in a glance which stripped him of fifteen years and led him back to the days when he had walked beside her with never a thought of fatigue. "Tired!" she returned carelessly. "And by such a little trip as that!"

That reply, coupled with the day's unparalleled exertions, turned the tide of Merriwether's resolutions. In his room before dinner he eased his aching bones in a morris chair and determined to return to the city early next morning. He would be old and sensible and comfortable once more. He would forget Gertrude as long as he could not keep up with her youthfulness.

But alas for his determination! He nearly forgot his bruises and sprains that evening in the charm of Mrs. Angell's presence, and he noticed, too, with a pang of something very like jealousy, that Briggs, the youngest man in the party, occupied his spare moments looking in her direction.

"I'll see what the weather promises for tomorrow," was his irresolute comment as he reached his room at midnight and noted that Peter had obediently packed his things ready for the 9:10 train. "If it should storm, maybe"— was his last conscious thought, and then he drifted off into a land where Gertrude spent her Christmases with him beside a quiet hearthstone and chaperoned house parties no more.

Next morning, when he awoke, the snow was driving against the window, while the wind whistled savagely through the trees. Merriwether turned over with a deep grunt of satisfaction. There could be no sleighing, no skating, no tobogganing, such a day as this, and that night was Christmas eve and the Christmas tree. He had purchased an exquisite copy of "Maud" for Mrs. Angell. It was a poem they had once read together, and he wondered if his memory of the fact would touch her. With these thoughts he drifted back into sleep, and the morning train went thundering cityward without him.

But his triumph over the state of the weather was short lived. At the breakfast table his nephew curdled his blood by the announcement of the plans for the Christmas trees, which yet stood in the forest a mile across lots. "Two of the men are sick this morning, fellows, so we'll have to fall into line and fetch the trees," Roy proclaimed, with a relish born of twenty-three years and warm blood.

The "fellows," including Merriwether, worked in the storm until noon before the trees were properly cut, trimmed, cleaned and set up in the ballroom ready for the decorations and gifts. The ladies had the decorations in charge, but Merriwether found there was no rest for the weary. He balanced himself perilously by the hour on the top of stepladders, which swayed and creaked ominously under his weight; he climbed stairs to fetch packages from the billiard room; he searched for lost hammers and knelt on mislaid tacks until he relegated Christmas and house parties to the lower regions.

At last the trees were decorated, and Roy called the party into the music room to practice Christmas anthems. Merriwether saw his fellow workers safely into the music room; then he dragged himself upstairs for a solacing smoke, only to find his fire out and his chamber cheerless.

Shoving his aching feet into slippers, he got himself into a smoking jacket, lit his pipe and descended to the library. The library lay back of the living room, far from the music, and it contained an inviting couch, at which Merriwether had looked longingly, but had not found time so far to occupy.

He pushed aside the curtains at the entrance with a broad sweep of his hand and stepped within. Then he stopped abruptly. The couch was occupied. "I beg your pardon, Gertrude. I thought you were singing."

"Singing!" she responded crossly, struggling into a sitting posture. "Why, I've not a shred of voice left to sing with!" She did not smile, but passed her hand across her eyes in a gesture which caused a great light to break in on Merriwether.

"You're tired!" he accused in a ringing voice of triumph.

She leaned back, resting her head against the wall. "Tired!" she repeated in an intense voice. "I'm half dead with the awful pace of these two days. If I were a big healthy man now," glancing resentfully at the proportions of the man before her, "I might be able to endure everything and yet feel fresh, but, being a woman and forty-one"—

"Gertrude," interrupted Merriwether in a tone of solemn joy, "are you forty-one?"

"Of course I am," she responded almost irritably. "You know that I am."

"Ye-es," he replied vaguely, coming nearer, "but I didn't know that you knew it!"

"I have every reason to know it"—the tears were near the surface now—"when skating gives me the rheumatism, and dancing the headache, and that sleigh ride"— She spread her hands out in a gesture of despair. "I can't endure it any longer. I'm going home tomorrow on the 9:10 train and leave you to chaperon. Nothing seems to tire you." The tears had reached her lashes, and she turned her head away.

Merriwether sat down beside her uninvited. "Gertrude," he began in a voice in which rang a satisfaction out of harmony with his announcement, "the exertion attendant on chaperoning this house party and keeping up with you has given me the rheumatism in every joint and muscle, and not only the headache—the effect has penetrated to my disposition, which is"—

A door opened somewhere, and a burst of music interrupted him. "Peace on earth, good will to men."

The door closed, and silence reigned in the library. A realization of the spirit of the words came to Merriwether. His light manner dropped from him. He leaned over and laid his hand on Gertrude's. "Let's be old and peaceful together, dear. Don't go back tomorrow. Spend Christmas here—with me."

The firelight played softly over the woman's face. She glanced up with a smile which was tremulous in spite of her mocking words, "Now that I think of it, Bruce, I haven't bought my ticket yet, and—it is more comfortable to be old!"

Tiring at the Desk.

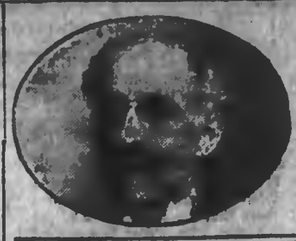
The office girl compelled to sit at her desk many hours a day will discover sooner or later a pain between the shoulders or along the spine. This is frequently because the toes barely touch the floor and there is a strain upon the body. Many to make the feet touch the floor and yet have their hands in the right position upon the typewriter or desk get a fixed posture which leads to this strain. You will derive much comfort from an ottoman or even a small wooden box slipped under the desk for a foot rest. It is not necessary to use it continuously, but there are times when one can throw the weight back upon the chair, rest the feet on the stool and overcome that strain which refuses to depart unless one gets up and walks around awhile.

Comfort For Germ Finders.

The woman who washes all her coin and handles bills with tongs can enjoy her money henceforth with less fear of microbes. Dr. Warren W Hildritch, a Yale scientist, has made bacteriological tests, with the result that "money constitutes an unimportant factor in the transmission of disease."

Strange as it may appear, the cleanest looking bills had the highest number of bacteria, while the dirtiest had the fewest.

However, this will not diminish a woman's love for nice, clean bills, but it will make her less nervous when she has to handle the dirty ones for fear she will contract some terrible disease.



HAVE YOU EVER FIGURED

What an immense amount of work your eyes have to do?

Every moment you are awake you use them steadily and those who read much or sew a great deal or whose duties require close application of the eyes are almost sure to stand in need of an Optician's services sooner or later. To wait until a more convenient time is an injustice, as the trouble is being increased every day. Decide right now to see us about the matter. We tell many persons that they need not wear glasses and will tell you if we find your eyes not under strain. Even if you need glasses you may get them where you like and when you like.

Peterborough Baptists Lead In Two Provinces In The Number Of Baptisms

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 31.—The "State of Religion" report presented at the Quebec and Ontario Baptists' convention here to-day showed that in one report Peterborough Baptists led all those in either of the provinces. During the last year there were 192 baptisms at the Peterborough Baptist Church, securing a net gain of 71. This means one baptism for every eleven members, and is the best record on the seventeen associations reported on. The report quoted many interesting statistics. It said that 57 of the pastors were agreed that the results from holding evangelistic services were often not of any really great value; deplored the fact that only 62 per cent. of church members attended the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and also that family worship was omitted to a large extent. It is expected that this afternoon or on Monday a resolution relative to "Church Union," will be presented. At home the Peterborough Association spent last year $17.458; expenditure abroad, $4,649; total expenditure, $22,108; per member at home, $2.20; per member abroad; $2.19; total per member, $10.39.

Creeks Have Dried Up And Mink Trappers Will Have Poor Catch

One of the consequences of the dry season as reported by a number of Indians from Chemong, who say that many creeks where in the past at this time of year, they have caught large number of mink, are now dried up and it is not likely that they will get any this season in those places. George Taylor is one of those who finds this condition existing and there are others who tell the same story. Tom Parker, a Hiawatha man, went up to the neighbourhood of Algonquin Park, but had to return without any success owing to the creeks having temporarily disappeared.

College Secretary Of Y. W. C. A. Dominion Council In The City

Miss Margaret O Anderson, travelling college secretary of the Y.W.C. A. Dominion Council, is in the city in the interests of the Y.W.C.A. work at the Normal School. Yesterday morning she gave an address to the ladies in attendance at the school preliminary to the forming of a College Y.W.C.A. organization to carry on the religious work of the institution.

This afternoon between four and 5.30 o'clock the Y.W.C.A. tendered a luncheon to the ladies of the Normal School and a very pleasant time was experienced.

Big Flocks Of Wild Ducks Are Now Being Hunted At The Lake

Jim Howard, renowned as a fisherman and duck hunter among the sportsmen who visit Rice Lake, was in the city to-day. With his brother Madden, he is mink-trapping on the Indian River and reports fair results. Jim says that ducks are plentiful at Rice Lake, but will be even better in a week or ten days. In front of Hiawatha a large flock have chosen a feeding ground and it is impossible to get near them.

However, all down the lake they are numerous, and the hunters are up to the average in numbers. Howard asserts that they are even too numerous but further reports show that there is plenty of sport for everybody.

Classy Fields Are Promised For The Examiner Road Race

A week from Monday will be Thanksgiving Day and as usual the principal feature of the observance in Peterborough, from an athletic standpoint, will be the Examiner senior and junior road race. The interest that is already being displayed in the two events give promise of two most successful contests. A large number of local runners are in training, and in addition the county will be well represented. The junior race will bring together a number of first class runners, who should make a grand race of it. Ernie Wilson, last year's winner and second the year before, will be entered by the Y. M. C. A., as well as Charlie Thorpe, Geo. Fowler, J. H. Adams and other crack runners; while the T. A. S. Athletic Club will likely be represented by a number of runners, including Knapp, O'Donnell and Neary. Geo. Robinson, John Brownlee and other members of the Otonabee Athletic Club, will be in the senior event, and there promises to be a host of independent runners, including such good men as Hanlon Howard, the new Hiawatha phenom, and Albert Smoke, the Chemong member of the Otonabee A. C. Those who saw the five mile race at the recent Otonabee Athletic Clubs meet will remember the great struggle between Wilson and Thorpe, of the Y. M. C. A. Harriers, and Howard, which was a battle to a finish.

The junior event will bring together a big field. It is probable that the Otonabee A. C. and Chieftain A.C. will be well represented, and a large number of unattached runners have signified their intention of running. Competitors should send in their names as soon as possible on the entry blanks printed daily in the Examiner.

Fair Directors Will Not Likely Have New Premises For Next Year

The Directors of the West Peterborough Industrial Exhibition took a little jaunt up to the Hillside Farm for the purpose of considering its fitness as an exhibition ground. They also looked over some land to the south of the city and returned by noon. Just what conclusions they arrived at they were not in the mood to say, but it is not believed that they will take the necessary steps to secure any of the lots seen to-day.

Defendant Pays Costs In The Cattle Cruelty Case

Yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Edmison, the case of Maria Gifford versus John Campbell, of North Monaghan, was heard and settled. The former accused the latter of cruelty to her cow and gave evidence that she saw him abuse it with stones. Mr. Campbell, who is a rather feeble old gentleman, stated that he was positive he had thrown no stones. His memory was not of the best and might, however, have abused the cow. The magistrate got the parties to settle the case amicably by the defendant paying the costs which amounted to $6.50.

Havelock Council Versus A Campbellford Butcher

A peculiar case in which the council of the Village of Havelock is the plaintiff and Mr. Simpson, butcher, Campbellford, the defendant, comes up before County Magistrate Edmison next Tuesday. The plaintiff accuses Simpson of selling and delivering meat in the Village of Havelock contrary to a village by-law. Mr. Sherry, of Norwood, is acting for Havelock and Mr. Colville, Campbellford, for the defendant.

Greek Priest Visits City

Probably the first priest of the Greek Church to visit this city was Father Theodoris, of Montreal, who passed through Peterborough yesterday, and paid a visit to Mr. M. Pappas. The Greeks in Montreal intend to erect a new church, estimated to cost from $50,000 to $75,000, and Father Theodoros is visiting many of the influential Greeks for the purpose of obtaining donations for the church fund. They have a building in the St. Lawrence City, but it does not meet the demands of the people and a new one was found necessary.

CONDITIONS IN WEST MUCH BETTER THAN THIS TIME LAST YEAR

Mr. R W McFadden, a former resident of Peterborough, and a brother of Mr. T McFadden, arrived in the city last night from Salt Coats, Sask., after spending five years in the west. He is being given a warm welcome home by his many friends in this city. Mr. McFadden reports that conditions in the west are much better than they were this time last year. There had been some frost but it had done little damage and the farmers on the whole seemed satisfied.

DEER HAVE TO DRINK IN THE LAKES AS THE CREEKS ARE NOW DRY

People acquainted with the back woods state that the deer will be found to a large extent keeping close to the shores of lakes as the creeks where they could go to drink are dried up and the lakes are a sort of last resource. A back woodman states that he has noticed them in larger numbers than usual near the lakes and their runways will all lead to these watering places.

BOBCAYGEON MAN WITH SHETLAND PONY DISPOSES OF CATTLE

Mr. John McDonald, of Bobcaygeon has been attracting considerable attention on the main streets by the little Shetland pony which he rides. He is in Peterborough on business, part of which was the sale of 100 head of cattle to Messrs. Morris & Brown for the Montreal market.

C.P.R. BRAKEMAN WHO LOST BOTH LEGS MAY YET RECOVER

The intelligence of the condition of John A McDermott, the C.P.R. brakesman, who lost both legs at Myrtle recently by a train of 27 cars passing over them, is slightly encouraging. He underwent an operation yesterday and it is learned that he may yet survive the awful experience which is sufficient to kill an ordinary individual.

DOUBLE DEATH AT RAMA

Sadness Enters Indian Family Twice Inside of a Week—Brother Drowned and Sister Dies of Heart Failure

SHOCK BY HAND OF DEATH TOO MUCH FOR HER

The old adage that "troubles never come alone," is well exemplified in the Sandy family—Indians who reside on the Rama Reserve. More than a week ago Thomas Sandy was drowned in Lake Couchiching, and last Monday it was recovered and buried on Thursday. The following day, Mr. Sandy's sister, Mrs. Henry Austin, suddenly passed away from heart failure, caused by the severe shock of her brother's death. She was a sister of Mrs. (Chief) Whetung, Chemong, who has gone to the Rama Reserve to attend the funeral obsequies.

No Ice On Lake Chemong Up To Present Time

Mr. Dan Whetung, Jr., informs the Examiner that one year ago to-day—Oct. 31st, 1907—he had to break the ice on the channel between the Chemong Reserve and the Ennismore shore in order to ferry across. Although last night was cold yet there was not sufficient frost to cause a similar state of affairs.

Banquet To Mr. Foy After Lecture To Hibernians

The officers of the A.O.H. after their concert at St. Peter's School Hall last night, entertained the lecturer of the evening, Mr. O J Foy, to an informal banquet at Hooper's. The only other guest was Mr. Daniel O'Connell. A very pleasant time was the result.

Special Force Of Police For This Evening

The chief of police wishes to reiterate his warning of yesterday in regard to the celebration of Hallowe'en to-night. A squad of police was enrolled to-day and assigned beats in different parts of the city. They were given instructions by the chief to arrest anyone engaged in the wilful destruction of property, and they together with the regular police, will endeavour to see that the damage is kept down to a minimum. Harmless fun will be permitted but there must be no rowdyism.

Some others may be good, but without doubt Miller's Compound Iron Pills are the best. Sold by J. D. Tully, druggist. Peterborough.

Moss Covered Cloth Found

Bancroft, Oct. 31. — Special.— Mr. W G Smith of Egan Creek, who is at present working north of Maynooth, sends a curiosity in the shape of a piece of a jacket which he found on a pine stump while cutting a waggon road through from Lake St. Peter to McConnell's mill. The piece of cloth is covered with moss such as is found on old stumps and logs in the woods. It is about thirty years since was cut in that section, and Mr. Smith thinks the remnant is part of a jacket left there by some lumberman at that time.

FOUR FINE FARMS SOLD IN SMITH IN THE LAST TEN DAYS

During the past ten days four farms in Smith township have been sold at handsome prices, three of the sales being effected through local real estate offices. One of the families will move to the west, another will take up residence and the other two intend coming in to Peterborough. The price of the farms averaged $60 to $70 per acre. Those who have chosen to come to Peterborough will likely retire from active work.

MORE BEER HUNTERS TAKE OUT LICENSES; NUMBER TOTALS 113

So far 113 deer hunting licenses have been issued in Peterborough and it begins to look as if the deer were in for a lively time of it during the next two weeks. In addition to those already published the following licenses have been issued:

R Sheehy, Dr Amys, H Cochrane, H Rose, B C Moore, A B Dormer, Bart S Scriver, T J Welch, Walter Hopkins, John James, C T Mitchell, H Evans, J S Waldron, F Brownscombe, A Fitzgerald, T H Askby, C Butcher, A Mitchell, W White, J Cottingham, J H Young, W Head, O Dumble, A C Corcoran, Thomas Thompson, John Stabler, Selwyn, E A Lillie, N D Neill, Brantford; J J Lundy.

NOT ENOUGH CHAIRS FOR THE WOMEN SO LARGE WAS THE MARKET

Mr. W A Stahler who assists Market Clerk Ball had his hands full this morning in the market hall. There were so many farmers' wives in with poultry, etc., that there were not sufficient chairs to seat them all. Every table was in use as the fowl was offered in such large quantities that each person's offering took up more than the usual space. Nobody need go without a fowl on Saturday after this as the prices are reasonable and the supply is large.

PETERBORO' LEADS AT QUARTER TIME BELL

Riverside Park, Saturday, 3 p.m.—The first quarter of the Rugby game between the T.A.A.C., Toronto, and the T.A.S., of Peterborough, ended in a score of 3—0 in favour of the homsters. The crowd is fairly large and their lungs are in excellent tram. The weather is ideal for Rugby.

The Toronto team won the game by a score of 7—6.

DISREGARD FOR LIFE AND MONEY APPARENT IN THE BIG AMERICAN METROPOLIS

Last night Mr. Louis Mendel arrived home from a week's visit to New York, where he had the good fortune to witness the great automobile race for the Vanderbilt Cup. The finish of the race was one of the most startling scenes he ever witnessed.

The fastest time made by any single car in one hour was 115 miles which gives some idea of the terrific speed at which they travelled. Chauffeurs covered with mud stopped blindly from their cars at the finish and had to be guided by an assistant.

When the three winners arrived at the goal the people in thousands closed in on the track in the face of danger from the racing autos. To avoid causing death among the multitude the engineers were forced to swerve their machines aside and invariably they themselves were sent hurling through the air. Their cars turned upside down and explosions instantly followed with the result that in a few moments they were going up in smoke and no attention paid to the consuming of fifty or sixty thousand dollars.

It was the most imposing sight in Mr. Mendel's career, and serves to show the utter disregard for money or even life in the great metropolis of the American continent.

The Articles Of Agreement Between Harrison and Hoagland

Hoagland and Harrison have signed articles of agrement in regard to the big walking match in the Brock Street ring on Thanksgiving day. Their agreement is as follows:

Articles of Agreement.

Entered into this 28th day of October, 1908, between W. A. Hoagland, of Auburn, N. Y., party of the first part, and James Harrison, of Peterborough, Ont., party of the second part, wherein they both agree to walk a square heel and toe race of 9 hours' duration, said contest to take place in the City of Peterborough, Ont., on November the 9th, 1908. Race to start at 2 p.m. and end at 11 p.m. It is agreed that Mr. Hoagland the party of the first part shall allow Mr. Harrison party of the second part a handicap of one mile. Said contest will be for a wager of $250 a side and division of the race at which time a referee shall be agreed upon. It is also understood that no coaching shall be allowed, only three cautions for unfair walking or fouling will be allowed, either contestant violating this rule shall be disqualified, the referee's decision shall be final.

It is still further agreed that the said race shall be under the management of Mr. Chris. Graham, who is empowered by both parties to arrange all details of this contest and to select the final stakeholder and assist in naming the referee. The above agreements are satisfactory to both contestants they therefore affix their signatures.

(Signed) Williard A Hoagland, Auburn, New York.
James Harrison, Peterborough, Ont.

REQUESTS DEALT WITH BY COMMITTEE.

Water Commissioners Apply for Hydrants —Watchman for Fire Hall.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night, when the following members were present—Chairman Ald. Johnston, Aldermen Buller and McIntyre.

A communication was received from the Water Commissioners asking for authority to place three hydrants on Patterson street.

One hydrant is to go just off Park street, another one about half way and the third near the boundary. Patterson street is built on one side all the way out to the boundary and the other side is being rapidly built upon. It is on this side that Mr. Paquette will erect his ten houses.

A motion was passed in favour of granting the request.

A request was made from Mr. T. F. Matthews on behalf of the Murray street Baptist Church for an electric light on Murray street between George and Aylmer streets, and as near as possible to the entrance of the church.

The committee could not see its way clear to grant this but decided on motion that the lamp at the corner of Aylmer and Murray streets be put out on an arm. This they thought should furnish plenty of light.

There is a desire upon the part of the fire brigade to have a watchman put on at the fire hall to be there when the brigade is called out to a fire. When the men are out the place is left free for anyone to go in or out, and if they desire to take away anything.

The matter was left in the hands of the chairman to inquire into and report at another meeting to be held shortly.

LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir — Is it not unfortunate that Peterborough has not yet taken its place among the other cities of Canada in coming into touch with one of the most remarkable movements of this generation?

I am sure that our Laymen are as enterprising as those of Kingston, Hamilton or Calgary.

The movement has developed so much vigour, sparkling enthusiasm and brotherhood that we cannot afford to be outsiders.

I venture therefore to suggest that each congregation (which has not already done so) should arrange to-morrow to send a delegation of influential men to the meetings in Toronto. These delegates, if impressed by the strength of the movement, would probably on their return, call a general meeting to discuss organization, and the rest of us may well keep our eyes open for reports of the Toronto gathering on Monday and Tuesday.

Yours, etc.,

ANGLICAN.

"TO THEM THAT HATH"

A Short Sermon to Fat Folks.

"To him that hath shall be given" is a sentence that applies to fat people very neatly. It is common knowledge that once a human being begins to fatten up, to what they have already is added more than they want until finally a stage is reached where reduction must be made or decided disadvantage results.

Then comes forward the ages-old query, "Reduce—but how?" To the uninformed nothing suggests itself but the (to them) twin evils—less eating—more activity. They contemplate a more or less lengthy siege of dieting and exercising. So it may be said safely that every man or woman in the land now undergoing the fattening-up process has his or her mental eye fixed dubiously on that not far distant day when he or she will have to don the "sahes and sackcloth of reduction."

This is not an enlivening prospect, and so it is with considerable satisfaction that we announce the emancipation of the fat. Nowadays one may reduce much or little a pound a day if desired, or hold their fat in chess, absolutely stationary, without doing a particle of harm or causing a salutary wrinke. All that's required, as hundreds testify, is the taking after meals and at bedtime of one Marmola Prescription Tablet, which tablets are sold by the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., or any good druggist at the uniform price of 75 cents, this sum being accepted for a case of tablets so well and generously filled that even one produces desirable results.

ELOQUENT LECTURE ON THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF DANIEL O'CONNELL AT A.O.H. CONCERT LAST NIGHT

The life and most important labours of the great Irish Statesman, Daniel O'Connell, known among the Irish people as their liberator, was the subject of an eloquent and entertaining address given last night by Mr. O J Foy, K.C., of Perth, at the St. Peter's School Hall. The Ancient Order of Hibernians were complimented upon the splendid programme arranged under their auspices and the assembly hall was filled with a fairly large audience who thoroughly appreciated Mr. Foy's graphic account of the troubles and trials of the Little Green Isle during the years from 1778 until 1830.

Rev. Father Kelly, Spiritual Adviser of the A.O.H., acted as chairman in a most acceptable manner, introducing the following programme:

Violin solo—Mr. Jas. Drain.
Reading—Miss Carrie White.
Vocal solo—Mr. Chambers.

Miss Estelle Kelly played the accompaniments for the musical numbers.

At the conclusion of Mr. Foy's address a humorous playlette was given by Misses A. Simons and Carrie White and Messrs. Jas. Hickey, D Quinlan and Jno Hanrahan. It depicted a laughable incident in the life of O'Connell in which the latter won a bet by out-talking a woman who was famed for her sharp tongue.

Mr. Foy's Address

Mr. Foy expressed his pleasure for the opportunity of speaking before the Peterborough branch of the A. O. H., and chose as his subject the life of Daniel O'Connell. Mr. Foy's portrayal of the uphill fight which the great Irish patriot had to make in his struggle in behalf of his fellow countrymen was interesting to a marked degree and was told with a realism that held attention through his entire discourse. The manner in which O'Connell travelled through the country, speaking everywhere, urging unity in the one cause and how his spirit was implanted in the whole nation, resulting in courage and hope taking possession of a people who had been in the very depths of despair—this progress was told in a splendid style. Thus Mr. Foy continued through O'Connell's being sent from County Clare to the House of Commons, to his successful struggle for Catholic emancipation until he was arrested, imprisoned, charged with sedition (falsely, the speaker said) and how broken in health and spirit, he relinquished his efforts for the Irish people, dismayed and discouraged by the treatment received from those who could grant the requests desired. He died in northen Italy on his way to Rome. Mr. Foy said that his great patriotism and self-sacrifice have not been surpassed in the annals of history. He was assisted and inspired by the faith of his fathers which he ever kept with him in every trial and tribulation, and was his guiding star through every crisis. Mr. Foy dealt with the Irish race to-day, its influences wherever any of its sons and daughters are found, and the high positions they hold.

Lack of space forbids a detailed account of this excellent address, given without any touch of bitterness and with that broad-mindedness which prevails among Irishmen to-day. At the conclusion a vote of thanks was moved to Mr. Foy for his eloquent address by Rev. Father McColl and Mr. D. O'Connell, both of whom made very appropriate speeches.

THE WEST AND THE EAST.

At present Ontario, with its 86 members in the Dominion Parliament, is the pivotal province in the matter of political representative power. The development of the west, however, promises to disturb the representative equilibrium. Since the census of 1901, the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta gained in population nearly 100 per cent., from 419,512 to 886,863 in five years, according to the special census of 1906, a gain at the rate of 92.81. If the present population increases at the same ratio for the next five years, after 1906, at the next decennial census, in 1911, the population of these three provinces will be at least 1,500,000. If, in the next five years, the Province of Quebec, the province which, according to the Confederation Act, sets the standard of relative representation, shows its normal gain of population, 10.77 per cent., the standard of representation in other provinces will be 30,000 per member. This will give a membership of about 40 to the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. If British Columbia will have maintained its ratio of growth, 81 per cent., it will have in 1911 a population of 323,400 souls and be entitled to 11 members, and if the Yukon makes similar advance we shall have in 1911 a population west of Lake Superior entitling this part of Canada to about 55 members. If this rate of advance in representative power of the west over the east continues, it will not be very far in the century before the balance of power in the matter of representation will be west of Lake Superior. After the next census readjustment of constituencies it seems probable that this region will get between fifty and sixty seats, instead of 35 as at present, without a corresponding increase in the eastern provinces. The figures given are not alarming but merely suggestive of the necessity of carefully administering the development of the west. There is necessity of measure to provide for bringing our new population into harmony with the highest national ideas. Of necessity the work of administration will have much to do in determining conditions. There is also a great field of work for moral agencies. Necessarily population will flow in rapidly. Not only should this be selected as carefully as possible, but church influences in their broadest character should accompany settlement. It is directly to the interests of the older communities of the east of Canada to provide for the moral influences that are to adjust the tone of the new citizenship so rapidly flowing into the Canadian West. While the claims of foreign missions cannot be ignored, yet their importance fades into insignificance in comparison with the claims of our own home field. We send missionaries to China, Japan and India by the shipload, scores of capable and devoted men and women, whose labour is sorely needed in our own harvest fields. What Canada needs is church work that will keep pace with settlement in the west. Neglect of the heathen may theoretically imperil benighted souls, but neglect of our own fellow-citizens bears not only the same peril but menaces the stability and good character of our civil institutions and imperils our national progress.

OBSTRUCTION AND CLOSURE.

The result of the general elections provides Canada with a Parliament from which better things are hoped than from the last Parliament. In especially the last session a course of obstruction was pursued by the Opposition, which derogated from the dignity as well as destroyed the usefulness of the sittings held. This obstruction will hardly be repeated. There are three chief reasons for this. In the first place the House has been purged by the electors of the principal offenders; in the second place, for the first two or three sessions it there were the inclination there will not be felt the need of making the business of the country subordinate to the manufacture of ammunition to serve in a general election. In the third place, it is probable that some form of closure will be adopted. As a principle, Opposition criticism should be unfettered. The genius of our constitutional liberty demands that. But there is a wide difference between legitimate criticism carried even to the point of exhaustion of a subject, and overt obstruction to parliamentary procedure. A shrewd counsel in court can easily discover if a witness is lying and take his measures accordingly. Even a parliamentarian of limited experience can easily differentiate legitimate criticism and legitimate desire for information, to which the public is entitled, and gratuitous obstruction. Last session the Opposition wasted the time of Parliament and incidentally added largely to the expense of legislation, by obstructive tactics—avowedly obstructive practices, everlasting talk on subjects that had been talked out. While it may be important for a needy Opposition to provide causes of grievance, in the interests of its party, it is much more important that the business of the country should be attended to with a deliberation and care such as are incompatible with a crusade of obstruction. As a matter of principle the Conservative Opposition should not be opposed to adopting some such provision of closure as exists in the Imperial Parliament and all other deliberative bodies of importance. The Opposition of to-day is Conservative; but it is possible that in ten or fifteen years the Opposition in Parliament may be Liberal. A reasonable form of closure as an antidote to obstruction would be in the national interests, would shorten the sessions of parliament and make the conditions of parliamentary life such as would tempt men of ability and capacity for really good service, to seek the responsibilities of public life.

What will perhaps tend to elevate the tone of the next parliament will perhaps, be the recognition by the present Opposition leaders and other more self-respecting members, of the futility of successfully appealing to an intelligent electorate on a policy of "scandal" and especially, of repeatedly discredited scandal—could kill her again"—such as formed the basis of obstruction in the last parliament. The experience of former general election campaigns, especially the last should teach them that something in the form of a constructive policy is needed to give force to an appeal to be endowed with the responsibility of governing the country.

THE REAL REASON

The yellowness of the Conservative journals in pointing to the comparatively small majority by which Hon. Mr. Sifton was elected and the defeating of Mr. Currows as an endorsation of the wild charges brought against these gentlemen. The result cited are not then in the fact that these gentlemen were lowered in the estimate of the electoral public, but due almost solely to the fact that the Manitoba voters' lists were loaded against the Liberal party. These lists are in charge of the Manitoba Government, a synonym where unfair tactics are concerned, of Messrs. Roblin and Rogers the conditions prevailing made it impossible to clear the partizan lists in the Liberal interests. The Liberals in Manitoba in the recent elections rested under a heavy handicap, which made success at the polls out of the question. This condition must be remembered as it is not probable that the Liberal party in Parliament will allow Manitoba to be made as it has been made a hive of Conservatives, by leaving it in the hands of Messrs Roblin and Rogers the power of making for both Provincial and Dominion voters' lists, that helplessly handicap the Liberals of Manitoba in a federal contest.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS.

Toronto World.

The fraternity of pressmen can take satisfaction that one of their veterans, E. W. Thompson, operating as a free lance volunteer, gave more valuable aid to Sir Wilfrid Laurier than was rendered in the recent election contest by perhaps any other single contestant. In August, when the Liberals were still in the doleful dumps, he wrote a lengthy review of the elements of the situation in the Boston Transcript, estimating that the ministry must win and prognosticating that Laurier would rather gain than lose strength in Ontario. That article was reproduced by Liberal papers throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion. It and the writer were assailed violently all along the line by Opposition writers and speakers. The total effect of the masterly performance was to put heart and hope and confidence into the Liberal rank and file, just when they needed courage. Mr. Thomson's prediction was so firmly based on common-sense arguments that there was no getting away from its judicial effect. Later Mr. Thomson went west on a correspondence tour for the Transcript. Being there rashly assailed by the Opposition press, he turned on his critics with striking force. It is simply true that E. W. Thomson "got there" every time and on every part of the field. Yet he retained his usual independent attitude consistently throughout. Now he will no doubt go away back and sit down, yet ready to take a hand in any new political fight, just to suit himself.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hon. J R Stratton has our heartiest congratulations on the splendid vindication given him by the people of West Peterborough.—Lindsay Post.

Mr. Borden, leader of the Conservative Opposition, certainly saved his bacon, but he saved more, he saved the $7000 salary he draws as leader of the Opposition.

The Winnipeg Free Press says the Opposition campaign in the recent election was one of "systematic and syndicated lying." A syndicated newspaper editorial service seemed to make the lying uniform, if not consistent.

Among the evidences of the growing time in Canada is the Kingston Standard, which shows a gratifying thrift, accounted for by the fact that it is founded on merit. Six or seven months ago the Standard incorporated the News, and with the change energetic management and bright newsy newspaper service brought the Standard forward with a bound, its circulation increasing at the rate of fifty per week. This is no surprise. The Standard is a good local newspaper, a good family newspaper and well deserves its success. The only objectionable feature is its politics, but even in this or these, it is not unreasonably rabid and its other good qualities abundantly make up for a little bad politics.

MR. MENDEL'S VISIT TO NEW YORK STUDIOS

Unusual Courtesy Shown Him by Distinguished Photographers And Painters.

Mr. Louis Mendel arrived home last evening from a week's visit to New York, highly delighted with the reception he received from distinguished artist photographers and painters, whom he met in that city. Some of those with whom he was favoured with personal interviews had no fixed home, but came from Paris and other parts of the world. Cosmopolitan artists, whose services are sought after by distinguished people in Europe and America. Such names as Clarence H. White, Alfred Stieglitz, Gertrude Kaesebier and others of equal celebrity in the art world, to gain an entrance to whose studios is considered a rare privilege.

Mr. Mendel was also presented with a valuable collection of original prints by some of the greatest master photographers of New York. These were mostly platinum prints made on Japanese paper, and are of almost priceless value to Mr. Mendel. It is already many years since the sun revealed its power to portray originals and beings more quickly and more accurately than pencil or crayon; but to-day it seems, after an inspection of some of these high class prints, that thought has found new fissures to penetrate the realm of the mysterious.

Mr. Mendel was entertained with special courtesy in some of the private studios of the principal artists on Fifth avenue, and received the benefit of private talks relative to special methods and formulas in photography, which will doubtless be demonstrated in his own studio on George street.

Mr. Mendel also brought with him some of the brightest and most artistic novelties in American mountings, cardboards, frames, etc., particularly appropriate for the approaching holiday season. 1dlw

OBITUARY

THE LATE W. E. ROXBURGH

This afternoon the mortal remains of one of the most highly and most deservedly respected residents of the County of Peterborough were laid at rest in Norwood. The large attendance at the funeral of the late W E Roxburgh was a testimony to the high esteem in which that gentleman was held during his half century residence in Norwood. The best qualities of Mr. Roxburgh's character are perhaps not best known, for he was of a quiet, reserved character, a man not seeking popularity, nor praise. What he had a fine public spirit, and he placed the services he was so well equipped to give effectively, at the disposal of interests in the public good. A native of Scotland, he has been a resident of the county half a century, every year growing higher in the esteem which the exercise of his sterling qualities engendered. He was for many years, about twenty, chairman of the Public School Board of Norwood. He unsuccessfully contested the East Riding in the Liberal interests, against the late John Burnham, and was for many years a prominent local merchant and grain and lumber dealer. But it was in his capacity as secretary of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society for nearly a third of a century that he did perhaps his best work, and by which he was best known in every part of the East Riding. In this capacity the late Mr. Roxburgh could not have a superior. Prompt, alert and with especial clerical efficiency he performed his duty exceptionally well and to its discharge and the practical interest he exhibited, much of the success that has attended the Society's exhibitions and contributed to its high standing, are due. In religion Mr. Roxburgh was actively and warmly identified with the Presbyterian church and here, as in every relation of life, his quiet zeal and effective interest in its welfare were exhibited. One of his sons, Rev. F D Roxburgh is a prominent minister of the Presbyterian church, and he leaves bereaved, besides, Gerald, an electrical engineer, of Winnipeg; John, a resident of Norwood, and one daughter, Mrs. (Judge) Stewart, of Calgary. Mr. Roxburgh needs "no storied urn or animated bust" over his last resting place to keep his memory green in the hearts of the thousands who held him in esteem in life and mourn his loss in death.

A SUCCESSFUL SCOTCH CONCERT AT CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Accounted for doubtless by the occurrences of many simultaneous counter attractions the attendance at the "Scotch concert" under the auspices of the St. Andrew's Church choir Last night in the Conservatory of Music Hall, was not as large as the memory of these former annual events and the merit of last night's programme should have made it. Those present however, were treated to an excellent entertainment in the varied programme presented. The chief contributor was Mr. Barclay Macdonald Robertson, the reader who gave several characteristic Scotch selections with fine appreciation of their pawky humour. His work was very highly recognized as evidenced by the encores demanded, and responded to for every selection. Master Edward O'Shea received a merited encore for his clever performance of the Highland fling, and later the sword dance, capably done by him and a little Miss Margaret Sanderson deserved the hearty applause their clever performance received. Miss Frances Manning gave a fine rendering of "Within a Mile of Edinburgh Town." Miss Katie Leary's reading "Bairnies Cuddle Doon", (with vocal refrain), was a captivating bit of work, and most heartily applauded. Mr. Mortimer Johnson sang his selection, "A Man striking on to his Name" in excellent voice. "I'm ower young to marry yet," was very creditably sung by Miss Ida Sanderson. Mr. Gordon Wright, a tenor of fine quality, gave a splendid presentation of the song "Mary of Argyle" and well earned the hearty encore to which he modestly declined to respond.

The Conservatory chorus and orchestra gave several Scottish selections with the effectiveness and finish to be expected from the training they received. Mrs. Charles McClelland was the efficient accompaniste. Altogether the concert was a very pleasing entertainment.

"ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME" AT THE GRAND NEXT WEEK

The play of the above name which will be put on in the Grand Opera House next Tuesday and Wednesday nights by a company of eleven local amateurs, is a four act comedy by Wm. Gillette, which enjoyed long runs in London and New York, and it is spoken of by the leading critics of two continents as the greatest comedy of modern times. There is not a dead moment in it; the situations and climaxes are a work of art. The dialogue is the wittiest and spiciest ever woven on the loom of language, and it compels attention from the rise of the first curtain until the final drop in the fourth act. The scene is laid in a drawing room in London, England, and Pettibone, who is the owner of this grand mansion, and is jealous of his second wife, takes the whole Pettibone family on a three months' visit to Venice, leaving his young nephew, Alfred Hastings, to take care of the house. Alfred is a young doctor and a hard luck artist who has most of his worldly goods in pawn, and shortly after his uncle's departure in order to raise money, engages a partner, Tom MacDaw, and turns his uncle's beautiful house into a lodging house, nails a large sign out in front announcing "Lodgings To Let," with a glaring foot note to the effect that lodgers will have "All the Comforts of a Home."

The Pettibone residence is situated in a residential quarter of London, and the sign is scarcely up before all kinds of people come looking for rooms. The first to appear is Dabney, a mad musician, who has an aversion to dogs; the second, "Langharne," an English dead beat; Fifi Aritanski, a charming actress of the Opera Comique, is followed by Mr. and Mrs. Bender and their pretty daughter Evangeline, and two more eccentric characters named Struthers and McSmith. With such an agglomeration of individuals there are bound to be happenings, that happen all right enough, and as neither man nor master know anything about running a lodging house, the fun at once becomes fast and furious. An attachment springs up between old Bender and Fifi, the opera singer, which is viewed with alarm by Bender's wife. Hastings falls in love with Evangeline, Langharne's old landlady is after him for her rent, McDaw is busy trying to keep two crazy men quiet, and just as the boys are getting the lodging house on a paying basis, the Pettibone family return from Venice. This is a scene never to be forgotten, and after that well, you'll have to come and see for yourself on the 3rd and 4th of November.

The cast for the coming production are capable and painstaking, and Irving Beers, the director, who put the piece on with phenomenal success in all the Pacific coast cities, says that the Peterborough cast is a superior one. The following are the principals forming the cast: Messrs. Chas. Barber, Geo. Lynch, Mortimer Johnston, C. G. Graham, F. D. Craig, D. B. McRae, W. G Ferguson, jr., A. C. Yokome, Claude Brady, Irving Beers and Misses L. L. Hallihan, Nellie Hallihan, Nell Graham, Agnes Pentland, Mona O'Shea, Pearl Morgan and Mrs. J. N. Barber.

Many vocal selections will be introduced throughout the play and the settings and scenery will be the finest.

BARRIE & CO.'S SPECIAL FUR VALUES

Copy of the Corrected Advertisement as it Should Have Been Printed.

Attention is again directed to the important offerings in fur jackets made by Messrs. Thos. Barrie & Co., of this city. Through an error in a previous insertion of this advertisement, the prices and goods were wrongly quoted and some trouble was caused by the mistake. It should have been stated that the prices quoted were for home-made Astrakhan jackets, not Persian lamb and seal skin jackets. The error was quite apparent to those who know the value of the different furs. The corrected advertisement appears in another column of to-day's issue, and the values are certainly very special.

JIM'S HOT FINISH.

By COLIN S. COLLINS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"What luck?" asked Ben Strome, as Jim Pettie his partner, and the other half of the Altair Brothers, emerged from the red ticket wagon, where Richard Clute was "counting up" the afternoon receipts.

"Worst sort of luck," was the reply. "I thought if I tackled the old man after a good matinee I could catch him in a fine humor, but it seems that the sheriff held him up just before I got there. One of the grafters he pinched told that the old man got a rakeoff, and the sheriff came around to get his—and I got mine. The old man's going to send Daisy to boarding school, and he mentioned a place I might go to—but it's nowhere near Daisy's school. You can bet on that."

"Can't you two hook it?" suggested Ben. "Its pretty close to the end of the season. If we lose a couple of weeks, I can stand my share of the loss if I don't get a chance to work a single act at some of the late fairs. See what the kid thinks."

"I don't have to see," was the gloomy response. "I know now what her answer would be. She won't beat it. She's going to have a regular wedding, with the old man giving her away or there won't be a wedding. She's told me that a dozen times, and she means it when she says it."

Strome nodded. Ever since they had joined the Clute show in midseason Pettie had been making violent love to Daisy Clute, the owner's daughter. It was not a large circus—a one ring affair—though they traveled by railroad instead of by wagon.

The performers all lived in a single car and in theory formed one large family. Daisy and her father had a car to themselves, but she was much around the tents, and her preference for the clean limbed young gymnast had soon become a matter for comment.

By supper time the fact that the old man had refused his consent to their marriage was all over the dressing tent, and you'd not need Daisy's red rimmed eyes and Pettie's frown to confirm the report.

Daisy was standing near the entrance when Pettie came out for the double act. He did a turn on the flying rings earlier on the bill, while Strome did a strong man act in the ring. Their double act in the air was the ring feature of the show—"the hottest act in the business," they claimed—and Daisy always tried to be near in case of accident, though she could not bear to watch them.

Strome did the "bearing," catching Jim as he leaped from his own trapeze to Strome's hands. He was a reliable worker, but Daisy always feared that some night those steady nerves would fail and that Jim's body would go hurtling through the air until it struck the ring bank or the seats, a limp and lifeless mass. She had seen one accident, and it had remained vivid in her memory.

Presently Strome joined the pair as they stood talking, and an instant later the four horses used in the double riding act dashed into the tent, followed by Paul and Letty Murphy, who boasted very different names on the bill.

The band struck up their music, and the two men ran into the ring. It was the work of a moment to climb to their perches. The apparatus consisted of two trapeze swings, one long one used by Pettie for the leaps and the shorter one from which Strome hung when he made the catches. On Pettie's end there was a platform from which he leaped to gain momentum, and this was but a few feet from the center pole which held up the tent.

The first two swings were made without trouble, and then Strome did some single work to give Pettie an opportunity to rest. Jim leaned against the ropes to steady himself and glanced below at the well filled tent. A sea of faces, white in the flare of the lamps, gazed intently upward as Strome hung by his toes from the short swing.

An odd roar caught Pettie's attention, and he glanced at the lamps. A cluster of gasoline flares hung from the center pole and supplied light for the tent.

Two huge reservoirs were fastened together to form a ring about the pole, and from these radiated the burners. Clute was old fashioned in many of his ideas, and his fondness for the old fashioned light amounted to a hobby.

Jim could see that one of the tanks had sprung a leak, and in some way the escaping gas had caught fire from the flames below. The heat was vaporizing the inflammable liquid more rapidly than usual, and it was only a matter of minutes before the heat would cause an explosion that would send the blazing fluid flying over the crowd below and the tinderlike tent.

There had been no rain for several days, and, on the other hand, the blazing sun had been pouring its rays on the tent since early morning. The flames would run to the guy ropes, and when these gave way the crowd below would be enveloped in a mass of flame.

There was no time to signal below to lower the lights. It was too far to jump to the pole. Strome was just climbing to the trapeze bar for a moment's rest, and Jim seized his own swing.

Strome gasped as he saw the movement and hurried to reverse on the trapeze. Jim took the count from his swing, and Strome could not understand the move. As the long swing reached the limit of its flight Strome caught Jim's voice.

He heard only the words "Emergency lights," but he guessed the rest, and as coolly as though it was a part of the act he dropped to the net below as being the quickest way down.

The big swing reached the platform and went beyond, then with increased momentum swung toward the opposite side again. A second time it swung toward the platform, and as it reached the farthest point Jim let go and kept on toward the pole.

Straight through the air he flew until his arms clasped the blue pole, and for a moment he hung there, the breath forced from his body by the shock of the impact. Then he began to climb upward.

The lights dazzled his eyes, and the heat was terrific, but he did not realize it. He knew only that seconds were precious, and right into the very heart of the blaze he climbed to reach the valve wheels that regulated the supply for the burners.

In a second the place was in darkness, but the band played its noisiest and the ring attendants were patrolling the ring and shouting that there was no danger, even while they kept their eyes on the single flame that still burned above the tanks.

Unmindful of the hot burners Jim forced his way between them, though they seared his skin through his thin silk shirt, and a moment late he clapped his hand upon the flame and held it upon the heated metal until the blaze was gone.

For a moment he swayed dizzily in the darkness; then from below there came a glare of light, and he heard Strome's voice above the blare of the band.

"Ride the lights down!" he was shouting, and Jim threw his blistered arms about the reservoirs as the men started to lower the apparatus.

They were within a few feet of the ring when strength failed, and Jim let go his hold. A dozen men swarmed to his aid, and, accompanied by two physicians from the audience, they bore him to the dressing tent.

When he came to the main tent was dark, and only the light in the dressing tent was burning.

"Did they get out?" he asked weakly.

"Every one of them," declared the old man's hearty voice. "They thought it was the 'sensational finish' we advertise until they saw what you were up to, and then we had the emergency lights going, and the crowd went out in order. It's a pity you didn't hear the applause they gave you."

"I was busy—just then," explained Jim, with a faint smile. He half raised his head to look about him, and Clute guessed his thoughts.

"Daisy has gone on the train to make up a berth in our own car," he explained. "She insists upon nursing you herself. The ambulance will be here in a minute to take you down. You want to get well quick, Jim, for there's a wedding ahead of you, and it's to be Clute & Pettie's show next year, with our own electric light plant."

Clute hustled away to look for the ambulance, and Jim turned to his partner. He was too happy to realize how his burns hurt. He thought only of the fact that he had won Daisy.

"Ben," he said, with a grin, "we always told 'em we did the 'hottest act in the business,' but that's the hottest finish we ever did. It's a pity we can't keep it in."

Why We Wear Glasses.

Man's eyes at rest are far focused—will make no effort when seeing the moon or earthly horizons. Birds' and fishes' eyes at rest are near focused—will make no effort when looking at nearby worms and minnows. Man's elastic lenses are under constant flattening compression. Imagine a rubber ball of flattened convex lenslike shape laid in between two disks of canvas and the uniting edges of these cloths stretched to a ring. They would flatten the rubber, and if relaxed it would thicken by its own elasticity. The thicker the lens the shorter its focus. For reading or threading a needle we relax the tension on the lens by contracting a ring of muscle surrounding each lens and then wait for the lenses to thicken through their elasticity. In fish the lens is set against the cornea (approximately), short focus, and when it wants to see whether the shadowy object some feet away is a shark or a log it pulls the entire round lens toward the retina and gets as clear a vision as possible. Now we see why so many human beings need "spectacles" as they grow old—the elasticity of the lenses is gradually lost, just as it is in rubber. —Harper's.

The Finger Nails.

In days when superstition was more prevalent than it is now the shape and appearance of the finger nails were considered to have reference to one's destiny. To learn the message of the finger nails it was necessary to rub them over with a compound of wax and soot and then to hold them so that the sunlight fell fully on them. Then on the horny, transparent substance certain signs and characters were supposed to appear, from which the future could be interpreted. Persons, too, having certain kinds of nails were credited with the possession of certain characteristics. Thus a man with red and spotted nails was supposed to have a hot temper, while pale, lead colored nails were considered to denote a melancholy temperament. Narrow nails were supposed to betray ambition and a quarrelsome nature, while round shaped nails were the distinguishing marks of lovers of knowledge and people of liberal sentiment. Conceited, narrow minded and obstinate folk were supposed to have small nails, indolent people fleshy nails and those of a gentle, retiring nature broad nails.

SOME TIMELY HINTS.

For the Girl Who Starts Her Christmas Work Early.

The girl who believes in starting Christmas gifts early should make a shirt waist case to protect blouses that cannot be washed.

These are made like a large envelope with the flap at the end. They should be of white Persian lawn or striped dimity that is easily laundered.

Cut the material in a long strip, allowing for a deep flap. It should be large enough to hold a waist without crushing even when the sleeves are stuffed with tissue paper. French seam the sides and finish the end of the flap with a scallop embroidered in white cotton.

The only decoration is put on the flap, which buttons over on the case. It may have just a monogram or three initials or can have an elaborate design in satin stitch and eyelet work. Another gift that is new and dainty is a collar that comes straight from Paris called "the Priscilla." It is very simple to make, consisting as it does of a tucked, boned and well shaped collar of net or mull. A full frill of the material used is placed at the top of the collar, and a bibilike plaiting is arranged at the base.

TRAYS MADE AT HOME.

They Are Covered With Oriental Embroidery and Framed.

Fascinating trays that the ingenious girl can make herself, either for the bedroom or library, are popular just now.

A smooth piece of whitewood is chosen for the bottom of the tray. This can be square, oblong or oval, if you know where you can buy cheap an oval frame the same size.

Cover this board smoothly with a bit of oriental embroidery, canvas worked in odd conventional designs in cross stitch or art reps embroidered in conventional designs in rich colors. For bedrooms gay cretonnes or linen taffeta may be substituted.

On top of the embroidery put a piece of clear glass the same size as the bottom. Have the two framed with a narrow border of wood, just as you would frame a picture, and into each end screw small brass handles.

On the back paste felt to harmonize with the colors of the embroidery and to prevent the tray from scratching the table.

Select picture molding about an inch or an inch and a half wide and of a color to blend well with the embroidery. The dark woods usually give the best effects. The frame makes ledge enough to prevent a glass or candle from slipping from the tray.

If you are not skillful enough with tools to put the frame together it can be done quite cheaply at a picture store. Do not trust them, however, to paste the embroidery to the bottom, as you can do it much more neatly yourself. It will also be quite easy to add the felt at home.

"And brighten every spot!"
But with the summer heat so strong

The Value of Money.

"Oh, yes," replied the millioned matron, "we make a point of allowing our boy pocket money regularly. Every week his papa hands Bobby $1,000 in small change—fifties and twenties. It's only a trifle; but, do you know, it teaches him the value of money? He isn't quite ten years old, yet he manages his little revenue with a great deal of foresight. It would amuse you to hear him try to beat down a justice of the peace who is fining him for having killed somebody with his automobile. Yes, we insist on his paying for luxuries out of his allowance. We buy his automobiles, but the fines he has to take care of himself."—Puck.

THE UNEXPECTED HAPPENED

And They Did Not Get So Far Ahead of Their Wives After All.

During the Exhibition in Toronto, a certain Presbyterian minister and his wife, from a staid Scotch settlement in Western Ontario, came to visit friends on Bloor street for the fortnight. The days were well filled with shopping and "exhibitioning," but one evening—a Wednesday evening, too—there arose the question of where to go.

"We've been to an organ recital, an illustrated lecture and a talk on China," said the hostess thoughtfully. "See here!" she ejaculated, lowering her voice significantly, "let's go to Shea's—there's no harm in it—and when you're going back to that dead-and-alive place for the rest of the year, I think you need a little diversion."

"But what would I say to John?" said the minister's wife, after a few half-hearted protests.

"John—bless me—I don't know," said Mrs. A——. "I believe he's taken my husband to prayer-meeting. We'll go, anyway." The women had been chums at boarding-school, and the prospect of Shea's seemed like an old-time escapade. Therefore, to Shea's they went, and were enjoying the fourth number on the program when Mrs. A—— frantically clutched her guest's arm.

"Will you look at those two men—there? It's your John and my Henry—and I believe your husband is wearing one of Henry's coats."

Just at this moment the smiling husbands caught sight of the two women and bowed their heads in confusion. The rest of that program was as a painful dream to John, who had been a firm disciplinarian, and had more than once expressed disapproval of certain frivolous tastes displayed by his wife. And it was all in vain afterwards for John to assert quaveringly that he thought a minister should see those things in order to be able to warn others.

DISTINCTION FOR CANADIAN.

Sydney, N.S., Girl is First to Win Oxford Musical Degree.

Miss Burchell, of Sydney, Nova Scotia, is the first colonial girl to win the distinction of having passed the final examination for the Degree of Bachelor of Music, Oxford University. In 1903 she passed at Oxford the "Preliminary (Arts) Examination for Students of Music," and the First Examination for the Degree of Mus. Bac. For the Second Mus. Bac. examination candidates are not obliged to go to Oxford. They are required to submit for examination a musical exercise of their own composition. This must be a vocal work with accompaniment for a string band. The following movements are expected: a five-part chorus, a song or duet, an unaccompanied vocal quartette, and a five-part fugue. The work may be either sacred or secular. Miss Burchell chose a sacred subject, giving it the title, "The Light of Men." She had the good fortune to have her first work accepted by the examiners.

The Third (Final) Examination was successfully passed in May of this year.

In April Miss Burchell passed the examination for Associateship of the Royal College of Music, at that institution in London. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is president of the Royal College.

Miss Burchell studied under Mr. Peter LeSueur, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., formerly music master of the Methodist College, St. John's, Nfld.; and under Dr. C. W. Pearce, Mus. Doc., Cantab., F.R.C.O., of Trinity College of Music, London.

She is the daughter of Mr. H. C. Burchell, C.E., of Sydney, N.S., formerly Government engineer of Newfoundland, and afterwards director of public works, British Honduras.

To Look For Castaways.

H. M. S. Algerine, now at Esquimalt, is preparing for a cruise to Christmas Island, scene of the Aeon wreck, and other islands of the South Pacific. Until a few years ago a cruise was made annually to the islands of South Pacific to investigate the possibilities of castaways being found on an unhabited islands and to renovate graves, etc.

With the addition of Algerine at the Esquimalt station, the practice is being revived.

Enquiries by salvage companies regarding the possibility of solving the steamer Aeon, wrecked on Christmas Island, have disclosed the fact that the engines have broken away and the hull is breaking. No hope of salvage is entertained. The Canadian-Australian line agents say the steamer Manuka will undoubtedly call at Christmas Island, as instructions to that effect will be cable from Sydney, to which port the survivors of the Aeon will be taken.

Room For Settlers.

Reports received from British Columbia land surveyors sent out to examine and survey land along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway represent that the area fit for settlement is very much larger than was generally supposed. From present indications, all the land along that railway in this province, with a few isolated exceptions, will be taken up by actual settlers within a short time after the road is built. When the enterprise was projected it was thought that the British Columbia section would not be traffic-producing. There is, however, as a matter of fact, every reason to believe that it will be the seat of many and varied industries.

Kitten Came to Life.

A Toronto resident recently immersed three young kittens in a barrel of water, with the intention of drowning them. They were taken out after some time, apparently dead, and were buried. Next day one of the kittens was found lying comfortably beside her mother, alive and well. The old cat, it was ascertained, had scratched up the grave and secured the only kitten which had any life in it and had brought it back to health and strength.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Gray hairs will have their way when they get a good start, and nothing will stop them except sometimes scalp massage.

An important beauty consideration is the poise of the head. It should be tipped slightly backward so as to make the eyes seem larger. Lowering the chin causes wrinkles and also has a tendency to form a double chin, which is a special bugbear of every woman, thin or fat.

The virtues of a few drops of essence of peppermint are well known, and one writer even asserts that it will gradually cure stomach troubles. It is a most harmless remedy to give to children who do not seem to assimilate their food. A few drops on sugar is the easiest way to give it to children unless you can make the large white mint drops.

Glossy hair generally indicates that it has been well and carefully kept—that is, shampooed every few weeks, thoroughly brushed with the usual fifty strokes every day and the scalp massaged regularly. Brilliantine is not used so much to impart a gloss to the hair as to keep short hairs from blowing about the face.

For burns and scalds there is nothing more soothing than the white of an egg, which should be poured over the wound. It is softer than collodion as a varnish for a burn and, being always at hand, can be applied immediately. It is the contact with the air which gives the extreme pain. White of egg excludes the air and prevents inflammation.

If a double chin has made its appearance, one of the best exercises for remedying it is to lift the head as high as possible, then from the point of the chin with open hand press firmly down, keeping the head thrown backward at the same time. Bathe the chin and throat frequently with cold water. Another method is to apply some good skin food, pick up the flesh in tiny folds and roll it firmly between the thumb and forefinger, this having a tendency to dissolve the excessive fat cells.

Meteorological.

Little Carleton was a child of the south, having been born in Mexico, and lived there until he came to "the States" with his parents when four or five years of age. But, though unacquainted with the American climate, he had been brought up on good American customs and foodstuffs. The first sight of snow excited him greatly. After looking out of the window earnestly he turned and exclaimed:

"Oh, Aent Betty, see the popped raindrops!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Reassured.

"G-g-good evening," said the young man, who had come to speak to the girl's father.

"Good evening," replied the old gentleman. "You look a little nervous. How do you feel?"

"Flattered," replied the young man. "I was afraid I looked scared to death."—Minneapolis Journal.

Real Danger.

"There is the danger signal out on those ropes," warned the life guard.

"And is it really dangerous out there?" asked the bashful youth in the eriole bathing suit.

"Well, I should say so! Sixteen summer girls have proposed to young men out there during the past month. It is leap year, you know."

In the Future.

"Don't be foolish about it," exclaimed the young bride. "He's merely an old flame of mine."

"Indeed?" cried her aged but wealthy husband. "I suppose you dream of his tender advances yet?"

"No," she replied, with a far away look, "not yet." — Catholic Standard and Times.

The String to It.

"Why did you refuse me just now dear?" said he.

"I wanted to see how your would act," said she.

"But I might have gone without waiting for an explanation," said he.

"I had locked the door," said she.—Harper's Weekly.

Would Be an Objection.

"Does your wife play bridge whist?"

"I don't know," answered Mr. Meekton. "But I don't think so. I understand there are times in the game when you have to keep quiet and let your partner play your hand. I'm sure that wouldn't suit Henrietta."—Washington Star.

Only a Would Be.

Penelope—Prominent? Pooh! Why, she cannot boast of even one camera being smashed when she appears in public.—Houston Post.

Possibilities of the Game.

"Does it require much physical courage to play baseball?" asked the English visitor.

"That depends," answered Miss Cayenne, "on how big a man the umpire happens to be."—Washington Star.

Economy.

"What's the matter with the manager?"

"Another one of his fits of economy. Two flakes of paper snow blew off into the orchestra, and he's roasting the property man."—Boston Globe.

Why She Did It.

A St. Louis woman who has recently become the proprietor of a second fashionable hotel was asked why she added this responsibility to her already great amount of work. "Well, I just did it," she said, "because four men had failed and I wanted to show that a woman could make that hotel pay."

A NEW FLATIRON.

It Prevents the Heat From Coming Near the Hand.

There is always something new, whether it is Paris hats or just plain flatirons. This time it is flatirons. The old iron was made of solid metal, handle and all. But somebody said: "What's the use to heat the handle as well as the iron? Why not have one handle for half a dozen irons and keep it away from the fire?" The handle cool and the iron hot seemed to be the most desirable state of affairs. This arrangement has been successfully used in the irons with separate patent handles, but some ingenious inventor has devised a still more successful scheme. In the new iron there is a detachable hood which covers the entire iron and which is lined with asbestus. This serves two purposes. It keeps the heat from coming up to the hand or from coming in contact with the handle and thus makes ironing a comparatively cool process. It also keeps the heat in the iron from escaping except as brought in contact with the damp clothes. This makes it necessary to change irons less frequently than usual and thus saves fuel.

These new irons come in a number of varieties which are designed for different uses. There are ordinary irons for ironing flat articles and plain clothing. Besides these there are very heavy irons made especially for pressing. One of these should be owned by the home dressmaker. For soft little baby clothes and other small fine articles there are small irons only four or five inches in length, and for ironing sleeves and ruffles there is a specially shaped iron which is long and narrow. The irons ought to be much more satisfactory than the old fashioned kind.

RAILWAY WORK ON COAST.

Transportation Work In Canadian Mountains Is Booming.

There is considerable activity in railway building in the lower Fraser valley at the present time. The line of the Vancouver, Victoria and Eastern from New Westminster to Blaine, in the State of Washington, is about completed, as are also one or two short branches. The B.C. Electric Railway Co., which has decided to expend $4,000,000 in extensions of its system, is busily engaged in building an electric railway from New Westminster to Chilliwack, and the Canadian Pacific is improving its connection between Vancouver and New Westminster.

The Provincial Government recently despatched a special commissioner to ascertain if there was much agricultural land in the Skeena Valley, which will be opened by the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. He has returned, and his report is highly favorable. The areas are extensive and easily cleared, and the soil and climate are admirably adapted to fruit-growing.

It is reported that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, which is extending its line to Seattle, Washington, will seek an entrance into Vancouver. The same railway is surveying a line to Port Angeles, opposite Victoria, and it is said that a connection will be made with the latter city by means of car ferry. The distance is nineteen miles.

Blacksmith Spends Forty-Seven Years In The North; Makes Visit To Edmonton

James Wylie, Who Worked For Hudson Bay Company, Had Not Been Away From Fort Chippewyan For That Length of Time.

ASTOUNDED AT PROGRESS

Edmonton, Oct 30. — Special. — Far north from civilization upon the rugged banks of Athabasca lake, in the land of the midnight sun, hundreds of miles from the centres of population there has lived for almost half a century a man who now is visiting Edmonton for the first time in his life .Now he is seeing, when past the three score years and fast approaching the allotted span of human existence, some of the sights which he has many times heard of but never witnessed before. To him for a generation the progressive march of civilization has been a closed book and in his declining years he longs again for the freedom of the wild. The life of the city with its bustle and its noise has no charms for him and to the north he will turn this way in a short time.

In the latter part of July, 1862, Wm. Wylie, now of Fort Chipeweyan, then a land of sixteen years of age, stood down the little pier in one of the Orkney Islands, north of Scotland, to meet a ship that had just come into port. It was the full rigged three-master, Prince of Wales, one of the merchant ships of the Hudson's Bay Company, then en route to that far distant fur fields of Canada. The young lad was fired with a desire to see the world and he was not slow to seize the opportunity to cross the ocean. Timidly he approached the captain and asked permission to enlist in the service of the Hudson's Bay Company, the great controlling corporation of North-western Canada.

Leaves for the Northwest

"You look a little too young but you are strong and husky and I'll take you,' young Wylie was told and his heart throbbed with suppressed emotion as he hurried home to tell of his good luck. Soon his belongings were packed together and he set sail for the little known land as an employee of the Hudson's Bay Co., in whose service he has been ever since.

The trip across the Atlantic was an uneventful one, said Mr. Wylie yesterday afternoon, when telling of his life in the north, but it brought him new joys as the great wide world unfolded to his view. For five weeks the ship ploughed through the green waters of the Atlantic with prow ever turned towards the setting sun till in the closing days of August the rocky shores of northern Labrador rose up from out the horizon and gradually became more distinct to the eye. For some days, however, the ship was compelled to lay to because of ice at the mouth of the straits into which it was not thought wise to run. Eventually a clear passage was found and under full sail the Prince of Wales bore down upon York factory on the western side of Hudson's Bay.

Set Foot on New Land

What emotion filled the breast of the young man as for the first time he placed foot upon a new continent and gazed upon a new breed of beings, the Indians, who then were practically the sole inhabitants of the Northwest, it would be difficult to imagine, and certainly impossible of description.

In the winter of 1862-1863 William Wylie gained his first experiences of life in the American continent by his residence at Fort York. Little he thought when feelings of homesickness occasionally overshadowed him, that almost half a century should pass over his head and never again should he see his home land.

"Fort York was a new world to me," he said, "but it was only a foretaste of the pleasure that I experienced in the spring when we left for the interior posts of the Hudson's Bay Co." The barronness of the Orkneys was replaced by the timbered and prairie country of what is now Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and life in the great lone land soon became surrounded by a fascination that has every since been dispelled.

Leaves for Fort Chineweyan

In the spring time Wylie left with the Hudson's Bay packets for the interior, their destination being Fort Chipeweyan, on the western end of Lake Athabasca, near the inflow of the Peace. The trip of over a thousand miles occupied the entire summer and when the York boats at last pulled up to Fort Chipeweyan the short days and long nights of fall had arrived and long dreary winter was beginning to settle down over the land. The trip from York factory was made by Norway House, on the north of Lake Winnipeg, then down the lake to Grand rapids, the emptying point of the Saskatchewan, up the Saskatchewan and Cumberland rivers past the present city of Prince Albert and on to Isle la Crosse. Then the trip led down the Clearwater to Portage la Loche, where a twelve-mile overland tramp brought them to the Chipeweyan river and down to the lake upon which the palisaded Hudson's Bay fort then stood. Now the palisades have passed away and little remains of the protection needed in early times against the Indians.

Many Incidents of Life

On the incidents of the forty-five years spent by Mr. Wylie at Fort Chipeweyan many a book might be written. But while there is much that is romantic in a lifetime spent far away from civilization among the Indians there is also much that would seem prosaic to the dwellers of the plain. To the old Hudson's Bay employee, however, there is only one life.

"I'm going down to Fort Chipeweyan where I'm free," he said. "Here I'm a prisoner; when I'm home I can shoot, fish and cut wood to my hearts content."

Thus the lure of the wild attracts him and life in Edmonton is but an impatient wait for the more alluring life of the lonely country of the north.

First Visit to Edmonton

Mr. Wylie came down to Edmonton in the early part of September, having left the fort on the 7th of August. It was his intention to go on a visit to his old home in the Orkneys, where two brothers and two sisters still live, and he had been given a free trip by the Hudson Bay Company. But modern life was too much for the old man and when he reached Winnipeg he would proceed no further and after a short visit he came back to Edmonton. Now he is staying with his son-in-law, James Fraser, of 287 ceeEdmison street.

To the old northerner Edmonton is a strange land. Never till his visit to Winnipeg had he seen a street car or a railway train. An automobile was a phantom machine and a phonograph was beyond the power of understanding. Eleven years ago, while on a trip down to Fort Smith, which by the way, was one of the few occasions on which he left Fort Chipewyan, he saw an electric light on the steamer Grahame. Neither did telephones possess such strangeness for there are many instruments now in use in the north.

No Trouble From Indians

During Mr. Wylie's long residence at Fort Chipewyan, where he plies the trade of a blacksmith and gunsmith, there has never been any trouble from the Indians. During the Riel rebellion the crew of the steamer at Fort Murray feared an attack from the red men and so she was kept in mid stream by hawsers stretched from either bank, with steam ready to leave at a moment's notice in the event of an attack.

"Did you never want to go back to your old home?" was asked.

"No; I never wanted much to leave the fort, for I feel all at home there. I don't like this part of the country for I am not used to it," was the reply.

"Do you read the papers up north?"

"I used to read them for a spell, but I soon lost my interest and now I understand so little of the things outside that I do not bother."

A Pension Next Year

On May 3rd he will be entitled to a pension from the Hudson Bay Co. At the coming election for the first time he will exercise his franchise and poll a vote in the Edmonton district.

In all of Northwest Canada there is only one older white resident than Wm. Wylie. He is Timothy Gaudette, of Fort Good Hope, also an employee of the company. Gaudette has been 56 years a resident of the north. Forty-six years ago he made a short trip to Moutreal, and upon his return he has made his headquarters ever since at Fort Hope. Much of his time in recent years was taken up in selling meat in different parts of the Yukon. He too, is fast growing old and in a short time will pass from the country where for over half a century he has made his home. With his demise there will be removed the oldest living resident of the far Northwest Canada.

INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS

FULTON'S RENAL COMPOUND

"Kidney trouble" is inflammation of the kidneys without albumen.
"Bright's Disease" is inflammation of the kidneys with albumen.
In each the real trouble is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, hence a cure for one must be a cure for the other. There has been no cure for either.
But many kidney troubled people get well.
True—because inflammation of the kidneys unless severe commonly gets well at first. But if it does not yield early and the inflammation persists, the real trouble begins.
You can see why kidney disease has been incurable and why the deaths have risen to over 170 per day up to the discovery of Fulton's Renal Compound there was nothing known that would reduce inflammation in the kidney tissues.
The old kidney medicines were a misconception irritating the inflamed kidneys to renewed efforts instead of allaying the inflammation, some of them being actually harmful. Result—physicians have abandoned them.
No matter whether you call it "kidney trouble," "Nephritis," or "Bright's Disease," if it has been hanging on a few months, recovery can be only hoped for through this specific. It has a proven efficiency in nearly 87 per cent. of all cases. It is the only thing known that controls inflammation in the kidneys, which is the real difficulty with kidney troubled people.

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. D.

During the lifetime of Sir John De Mandeville several noted men, whose writings have come down to us, flourished in England. Chief amongst these may be mentioned, John Wycliffe, Geoffrey Chaucer and John Gower.

John Wycliffe

Wycliffe's is, of course, a name inseparably associated with the great cleavage in the Christian Church, for he was the forerunner of those who were instrumental in bringing on what is known in history as the Reformation. Into this phase of Wycliffe's life it is not necessary to enter. But he is known also as the first translator of the whole Bible into English, and as such is entitled to a place in the foremost ranks of literature.

Before Wycliffe's time a few fragments of the Scriptures had been translated, notably some Psalms, portions of the Gospels of Mark and Luke, and a few of the Epistles. In his great work he was certainly helped to some extent by his friend, Nicholas Hereford, who translated for him a portion of the Old Testament, and the whole work was finally revised by his assistant at Lutterworth, John Purvey.

John Wycliffe was born about the year 1324 in Yorkshire, and after a life full of religious disputation with the Roman Church, died at Lutterworth, of which place he had long been priest-in-charge, on Dec. 31, 1384.

Geoffrey Chaucer

Geoffrey Chaucer's name occupies one of the most honoured niches in the temple of literary fame. Owing to the fact that he was the holder of many public offices, diligent enquirers have been enabled to glean from government records of the past many details of his life. It is known that he fought for Edward III. in France, in 1359, that he was taken prisoner, and that in 1360 the King himself paid a ransom of £16 for his release. Chaucer and his wife were decidedly in what Thackeray would have called the "upper suckles" of the day, as he himself was in close attendance on the King, whilst his wife was one of Queen Philippa's maids of honour.

Flight From England and Return

Chaucer's life during the lifetime of Edward seems to have been a happy one. He was always in high favour with the King, and received from him various marks of his confidence and friendship. But when Richard II. came to the throne matters were considerably altered, for his sympathies with the house of Lancaster caused his speedy exit from court. Chaucer fled with his wife and family to France, where they managed to exist wretchedly enough for nearly two years.

At the end of that time the couple returned to England and Chaucer was promptly flung into the Tower, but obtained his release after a short imprisonment. When his friend Lancaster came into power fortune again smiled on him, and he was made Clerk of Works at Westminster.

Although Chaucer had dabbled more or less in literary work throughout his career, it was not until the year 1391 that he settled down to the production of the Canterbury Tales; the great poem by which he is known to fame. Some claim that Chaucer borrowed his ideas from Boccaccio's Decameron, whilst a certain French critic, M. Sandras, affirms that they were largely taken from the songs of the French troueres or troubadours. Perhaps there is an element of truth in both these contentions, but Chaucer, nevertheless, presents us with a poem which both in phraseology and imagery was far the superior of anything that had been produced before.

The Canterbury Tales

The poem purports to be a collection of tales told by some 29 or 30 pilgrims who have gathered together at the Tabard inn in Southwark on their way to the shrine of St. Thomas a Becket at Canterbury. Gatheredin that crowd we see a type of almost every class then in England. It is curious to note that throughout the whole poem Chaucer's courtly upbringing comes clearly into view, for although he does not separate his pilgrims according to their several stations in life, he manages to make a clear line of demarcation in their conduct. Thus the Knight tells his tale and the "gentles" applaud decorously while the vulgar element does so uproariously. The Miller, however, who is indecorously drunk, desires to shine with the best and tell his tale also and Chaucer apologizes to his readers for being obliged to introduce so ungenteel a character in the poem.

His Character

Although perhaps Chaucer could not quite lay claim to the noble character that he has portrayed of the Knight in the Prologue to the Canterbury Tales, who "was a veray parfit gentil knight". He nevertheless, seems to have been a man of a kindly, jovial disposition, eager to help those in adversity, and as far as lay in his power to do his duty as a loyal soldier and citizen of his country. It is a pleasure to note that the "father of English Poetry" did not die in want or neglect, and that his bones repose in that great fane of England's immortals, Westminster Abbey.

Extract From "The Knight and The Squier"

The following extract, from the prologue to his great poem is worthy of perusal as showing Chaucer's idea of what constituted a true English gentleman.—

"A knight there was and that a worthy man,
That fro the time that he first began
To riden out, he loved chivalrie,
Trouthe and honour, fredom and curtesie
Full worthy was he in his lorde's werre (war)
And therto had he ridden no man ferre (further)
As well in Christendom as in Hetheneese,
And ever honoured for his worthinesse.
This ilke (same) worthy knight hadde been also Sometimes with the lord of Palatie,
Agen another hethen in Turkie:
And evermore he hadde a sovereign pris (praise)
And though that he was worthy he was wise
And of his port as meke as is a maide
He never yet no vilanie ne saydo
In alle his life unto no manere wight.
(kind of person)
He was a veray parfit gentil knight."

John Gowver

John Gower was a friend of Chaucer, but little is known of his personal history. Like Chaucer, he was a man of quiet birth, and is supposed to have studied law and risen to the rank of a judge of the common pleas. He wrote three works, one of which, Speculum Meditantis is lost. The second book Vox Clamantis although preserved in manuscript, has never been printed. The third, Confessio Amantis, although bearing a Latin title is nearly all in English, and is the one by which he has attained his place in literature.

The plot of the poem is that the Lover holds a dialogue with Genius, a priest of Venus. The priest ere granting absolution steeps him in the philosophy of Aristotle gives him lectures in chemistry and plies him with moral tales. When at last the Lover is fully armed in purity he finds himself grown too old to care for the triumph for which he had laboured so long. John Gower was blind for the last nine or ten years of his life. He died in 1408.

Mob Raids County Jail.

Kingston, Tenn., Oct. 31.—A mob of thirty men attacked the Roane County jail early yesterday and killed George Cook, held on the charge of murdering John King, a ferry man at South West Point a few weeks ago. All but two of the mob were masked.

It is presumed the men intended to hang Cook, as they had a rope. Cook offered resistance and drew a razor and cut one of the men in the mob. Four bullets then entered his body.

Hemmed In by the Flames.

New York, Oct. 31.—Hemmed in by flames, and unable to escape from the basement of a business house in Duane street, Henry Jones and David Mahoney were burned to death Thursday night, and William Settgast will probably die.

The men were at work when a barrel of celluloid caught fire. The poisonous fumes soon overcame Jones and Mahoney.

Brief History Of Career Of Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King

Something About the New Member Who Carried North Waterloo for the Government and Who May Soon Enter the Cabinet.

A GRATIFYING RESULT

One of the most gratifying results of Monday's election from a Liberal standpoint was the victory of Mr. W. L. MacKenzie King in North Waterloo, Ont., over the united opposition of Mr. R. Reid, the Conservative candidate, and Mr. A. Huber, Independent. Mr. King's call to the Cabinet as Minister of Labour has been foreshadowed for some time. A recent biographer of the new member for North Waterloo, writing in the Toronto News, says:

William Lyon Mackenzie King comes of hereditary right by his mouth-filling praenomen. He is the grandson of the fiery little Scot in whom centres so much of the personal interest of the Rebellion of '37; and while life has gone more prosperously for the grandson than for the grandfather, there flows in his veins a share of the sympathetic quality which was the secret at least of some portion of the sway wielded by the tireless agitator. William Lyon Mackenzie King has succeeded in life with almost magical rapidity. He is not yet thirty and is a Deputy Minister. You must live in Ottawa to appreciate the meaning of that title — it is a word to be breathed with bated breath. But he earned his rise. When the position came to be filled he was the one man whom the Minister knew about suitable for the place. That is an excellent method of securing advancement, to be recommended to all young men. Cause and effect work in visible unison in the story of his appointment. Executive power and trained enthusiasm brought to bear on each other — there is another formula in which to express the singular story of the organization of the Canadian Department of Labour.

His Early Days

In 1896, Mackenzie King, a youth of twenty, faced the world with the B.A. of the University of Toronto as his principal apparent asset. To Toronto he had come from the Berlin High School, but in the meantime his father, John King, K.C., had removed to Toronto and he was a resident of this city. He had another asset. He had turned his attention to economic studies, and had grown deeply interested in sociology. He had taken first class honours, he had led his class, he had carried off one of the Blake Scholarships in Arts and Law, and he had acquired a permanent interest in his subject. A period of newspaper work followed, on the reportorial staff first of the News then of the Globe. In 1896 the degree of LL.B. followed. Then he reverted to academic life. He obtained a fellowship in Chicago University in Political Science.

The work involved the study of the labour problem, and soon the young man migrated to Hull House, most famous of American Social Settlements. Under the influence of Jane Addams and her band of laborers the student of one and twenty took fire with zeal for the work. In 1897 he obtained a fellowship in Harvard. He spent two years there with great success, still following up the labour question, and then, in 1899-1900, was given a travelling fellowship with the object of studying labour conditions abroad. By this time he was marked for a place on the permanent staff of the oldest university of the continent, and his life work seemed to be thrown into academic paths.

In the summer of 1897 Mackenzie King when home for his holidays found temporary employment on the Mail and Empire. He conducted some of the sociological investigations to which he had been trained in Chicago, and not only discovered that overcrowding prevailed in Toronto to an extent which was altogether unsuspected, but also found proofs of the prevalence of the sweating system.

The Man With the Power

At this juncture enters into the story the man with the Power. We have traced the development of the youth with special information on the labour problem, special training in investigation, and uncommon zeal and interest. The new Postmaster General of the Dominion was a friend of the young student. Sir William Mulock's early years were marked by stern toil and unbending endurance of hardship. He was attracted by Mackenzie King's information and zeal, and the two had many conversations on the subject of labour.

One Sunday King told Sir William Mulock that he had found evidence that the sweating system prevailed on Government contracts. Large sums of money were most unjustly made out of poor work people in connection with the contracts for militia clothing, but the Post Office also was an offender to some extent in connection with uniforms, to some extent in connection with supplies such as mail bags. Sir William Mulock was a Cabinet Minister, and his informant was a youth of twenty one. But the Postmaster-General was struck with the facts brought to his attention. He asked King to look into the matter. The investigation was made in the Christmas holidays.

The Sweating System

Most of us know in a general way, what the sweating system is, but it is well to bear the details in mind, unpleasant as they are. It was the custom for some man to obtain a contract say for uniforms for the militia, and immediately to sub-let it to others. Mr. King's investigations showed that the sub-contractors expected to make a profit as great as — sometimes greater than — the total sum they paid out in wages.

One typical method may be described somewhat fully. A sub-contractor would secure an order for a 1,000 militia garments. He would rent a cheap room, paying no heed to its sanitary conditions, would engage as many women as it would hold, would assign to each a particular piece of work on the garment. He would stand in the middle of the room and would keep every woman busy plying her needle for hours — sometimes from five o'clock in the morning until 8 or 9 o'clock at night. The moment a woman finished one piece the inexorable sub-contractor would hand her another of the same kind, feeding out the material like a never ceasing machine.

In other cases women took work to their homes and toiled from before daylight till midnight. And the wages paid these slaves of the needle in some instances did not exceed a cent and a half an hour.

In addition to the excessive profits of the sub-contractors, wrung in these ways from the poor, the main contractor also had his profit, often larger still, although he did nothing but secure the contract from the government and sublet it to the middleman.

The Government Moves

Mackenzie King's report set these facts forth. Sir William Mulock moved. He began in his own department. Then it was extended to the Department of Public Works and to other departments. Then in 1900 Sir William Mulock brought the policy prominently to the attention of Parliament, and obtained legislative sanction for it by carrying the Fair Wages Resolution. It bound the government in giving all contracts to prevent sub-letting, to require the payment of fair wages; it further extended this condition to all works aided by grants of Dominion public funds.

The Department of Labor

It was in January, 1898, that Mr. King made his report. During 1898 and 1899 Sir William Mulock drove on his fair wages movement, constituting himself the champion of the working classes in this respect. During these years Mackenzie King was at Harvard. When in 1900 he went abroad in pursuance of the terms of his fellowship, the Postmaster General commissioned him to report upon European methods of letting contracts. Then, in July of 1900, Sir William Mulock had secured the assent of government to his further plan of establishing a Department of Labor. He needed a man to organize that department. He turned to the man with whom he had worked, whose suggestion had set him on the course. Special knowledge, energy, and organizing ability appealed to him. He cabled an offer — Mackenzie King intent on academic life and bound to Harvard, refused. The Minister repeated the offer, friends urged his acceptance, the Harvard authorities were generous, and the young man of twenty-five accepted.

Mr. King's success as Deputy Minister of Labour in the handling of industrial disputes, is of too recent history to need re-telling.

Prominent Canadian Poetess And Authoress In Recital

Large Number Hear Mrs. Jean Blewett at the Charlotte Street Church Last Night—Gave Her Own Productions.

FINE MUSICAL PROGRAMME

It is on few occasions that Peterborough lovers of art have such a splendid opportunity of hearing such a distinguished person in elocution as Mrs. Jean Blewett — the well known Canadian authoress and poetess. Last night she was heard in recital in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church Sunday School room by a large number, despite numerous other attractions. Jean Blewett's name is familiar to everybody who has made a study of the works of Canadian authors, and she ranks among the best of them. By the warm reception accorded her last night she is certainly a favourite with a Peterborough audience, and deserved the hearty applause tendered her with every number. The ladies of the church deserve credit for their enterprise in bringing Mrs. Blewett to Peterborough.

The entertainment was begun by a piano duet, splendidly rendered, by the Misses Gumpricht. Mrs. Blewett's first reading was "The Ploughman," and in this she displayed her ability as an elocutionist, which at once gained for her the admiration of the audience. Her presentations were all the more appreciated since they were the productions of her own hand and mind. "She Just Keeps House For Me," was an appreciated number on the programme, but the piece de resistance of the evening was a pretty tale of a dream, entitled "Forgive and Forget." Her hearty rendering of "Native Born" roused the patriotic blood of her listeners, and on this number she was most heartily applauded.

Among her more humorous numbers were "By Arbitration," "The Irish Beggar," and "A Spinster's Love Affair," all of which were enthusiastically received and encored. At the conclusion of the programme she was recalled thrice and finished with "For He Was Scotch, and So Was She," which formed a splendid close to a splendid recital.

Interspersed with the readings of Mrs. Blewett were a number of vocal and violin solos which also formed pleasing portions of the programme. Mrs. S. Dickson Hall sang a delightful solo and gracefully responded to an encore. Mr. James Browne, the popular Peterborough tenor soloist, was heard to much advantage in a solo, "My Kingdom." He also was recalled. A violin solo by Miss Edwina Palmer, a clever young artiste, was one of the delightful numbers. Miss Palmer plays exceptionally well for one so young, and she also had to respond to the plaudits of the audience. The other vocal soloist was Miss Pearl Lundy, who, as usual, was given a warm reception. She, too, was recalled for an encore. The duties of accompanists were fulfilled delightfully by Miss Clarry.

Altogether the recital and musical entertainment were pleasing events and, no doubt, if Mrs. Jean Blewett should return to Peterborough she will be given even a more hearty reception.

At the close of the programme cake and coffee were served by the young ladies of the church, who acted acceptably as the hostesses for the occasion.

BABYS' OWN TABLETS A BOON TO CHILDREN

A medicine that will keep babies and young children plump and good natured, with a clear eye and rosy skin is a blessing, not only to the little ones, but the mothers as well. Baby's Own Tablets is just such a medicine. They cure all the minor ailments of children and make them eat well, sleep well and play well. They are used exclusively in thousands of homes when a child medicine is needed. Mrs. G. Collins, Kirkella, Man, says: "Baby's Own Tablets are the most satisfactory medicine I have ever used for ills of young children. They are as good as a doctor in the home." HOW MRS. CLARK FOUND RELIEF

After Years of Suffering Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Her.

Pleasant Point Matron Tells Her Suffering Sisters How to be Free From the Terrible Pains That Make Life a Burden:

Pleasant Point, Ont., Oct. 30.—Special.—That most of the ills that the suffering women of Canada have to bear are due to disordered kidneys, and that the natural cure for them is Dodd's Kidney Pills, is once more shown in the case of Mrs. Merril O Clarke, a well known resident of this place and a prominent member of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Clarke is always ready to give her experience for the benefit of her suffering sisters.

"My sickness commenced twenty years ago with the change of life," says Mrs. Clarke. "My health was in a bad state. Water would run from my head which would make me faint. When I came out of the faint-spells I took fits. I was bloated till I was clumsy. The pain I suffered was awful. It would go to my feet and then to my head. Many doctors attended me, and I tried many medicines, but nothing gave me relief till I used Dodd's Kidney Pills. The first box stopped the fits and seven boxes cured me completely."

Every suffering woman should use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They make strong healthy kidneys, and the woman who has good kidneys is safeguarded against those terrible pains that make miserable the lives of so many women.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IN THE FIGHT

Standard Oil Magnate Says He Will Vote For Taft.

NO WONDER, SAYS BRYAN

Democratic Candidate Declares That He Is Not Surprised to See Most Notorious Law-Breaker In U. S. Lining Up With Party That Will Not Hurt Him — Taft Makes For Law and Order.

New York, Oct. 31.—A statement from John D. Rockefeller announcing that he intends to vote for William H. Taft for president next Tuesday and telling why he will do so and why he thinks Mr. Taft should be elected, was given out from the Standard Oil Co. at 26 Broadway on Thursday night.

The statement as given out by the Standard Oil officials reads as follows:

"Mr. John D. Rockefeller was found this afternoon at this office on the fourteenth floor of No. 26 Broadway, which he was visiting after a long absence, and consented to talk upon the presidential situation. He seemed in good health and condition and spoke as follows:

"It seems to me at this time when the question is put directly to any American citizen which candidate he will support by his vote for the presidency, he should be manly enough to answer it just as directly. I therefore say that I expect to vote for William H. Taft.

"If for no other reason I support Mr. Taft because on comparing him personally with Mr. Bryan, his chief opponent, I find the balance of fitness and temperament entirely on his side. The election of Mr. Taft will, I believe, make for law and order and stability of business. He is not a man, I judge, to adventure with rash experiments to impede a return to prosperity by advocating measures subversive of industrial progress.

"The question of candidates seems to me peculiarly a personal one in this campaign, as the leading orators on both sides have not succeeded in drawing party lines, as based on the platforms, with any great clearness. I do, however, support the general Republican position on the tariff and the currency. I have always been a Republican.

"I feel the more impelled to answer this question because it cannot be said that the great administration has in any way whatever favored the special interest to which my life has been devoted. That, however, does not excuse me from publishing my opinion and doing what I consider my duty as a citizen."

Napoleon, Oct. 31.—William J. Bryan, who [illegible] Regan [illegible] tour of Ohio, the Standard Oil state, said he was not surprised at the declarations of Mr. Rockefeller, as the Standard Oil Co. and the Republican party have been so closely related that many of their interests are identical. In his statement Mr. Bryan said:

"Mr. Taft has been making speeches for many weeks and he has not yet dwelt upon the iniquities of the trusts or pointed out the injustice done to the American people by them. No wonder Mr. Rockefeller is for Mr. Taft.

"Again, Mr. Rockefeller says Mr. Taft's election will make for law and order. This is false. Mr. Rockefeller's corporation is the most notorious law-breaker in the United States and he is for Mr. Taft because he does not want the law enforced. Mr. Rockefeller also says that Mr. Taft's election will make for stability of business. What kind of business? Stability in the trust business is what he means. He thinks that Mr. Taft's election will enable the trusts to get a tighter strangle grasp upon the American people and put their extortion upon a more permanent foundation. He says that Mr. Taft is not a man inclined to rash experiments. He might have omitted the word 'rash,' for Mr. Taft is not in favor of any kind of experiment in the way of remedial legislation."

Suffragist Amaze Iowa.

Boone, Iowa, Oct. 31.—Six hundred women suffragists paraded the streets of Boone. Rev. Anna Shaw, head of the National Order of Suffragists, headed the parade. With her were Miss Randell and Miss Costello of London, famous for their participation in the attacks made by Parliament by the women suffragists of England.

The spectacle of six hundred women marching through the streets caused the whole town to turn out to witness it.

OLDEST "BEAK" TO RESIGN.

Alex. Bartlet of Windsor Has Been Magistrate for 31 Years.

Windsor, Oct. 31.—Alex. Bartlet, Windsor's "Grand Old Man," and magistrate of the Windsor Police Court for nearly 31 years, announced yesterday that on the occasion of his 86th birthday anniversary, Dec. 31 of this year, he will retire to private life. He has definitely decided to send in his resignation to the Department of Justice.

Magistrate Bartlet is the oldest police court justice in Canada, so far as can be learned. Previous to going on the bench he was town clerk, to which position he was appointed in 1854. His appointment as police court magistrate came 20 years later from the Mowat administration. He is certainly the oldest public servant in the Dominion in point of service, Mr. Bartlet is the only living charter member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, which celebrated its 60th anniversary only last year.

To-day Mr. Bartlet is hale and hearty and is possessed of a keen memory, which he attributes to his abstinence from liquor and tobacco.

SHOT WHILE HUNTING.

Guelph Youth Is Victim of Accidental Discharge of Gun.

Guelph, Oct. 31.—Trainer's Cut, on the G.T.R., two miles from the city, where so many accidents have happened on the railway in the past few years, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a shooting accident which caused the death of James Connolly, a young man whose parents are retired farmers and live on Grove street in this city. Accompanied by Harry Scarlett, a youth of fifteen years, he was out shooting with a twenty-two calibre rifle. While in the cut a freight train came along and the hunters, accompanied by another boy named Dennis, climbed up the bank. Connolly got nearly to the top when he sat down. Scarlett was following him up, but slipped and fell, and the bullet from the rifle entered the left eye of Connolly. He fell over and never spoke a word. About an hour later a doctor, arriving with the ambulance, found the two boys standing on the hillside with their dead companion. No inquest will be held.

Lawyer Goes to Cell.

New York, Oct. 31.—William Flyaner, a lawyer with offices in Wall street, was sentenced yesterday to one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary for grand larceny. Flyaner is 66 years old, and has been prominent as a churchman. Hundreds of letters asking for clemency were submitted on his behalf. Despite these the court said:

"As a warning to others I will sentence him to one year. Lawyers who take their clients' money have no right to expect mercy."

Flyaner was convicted of diverting to risky speculations, $18,000 entrusted to him by two women for safe investment.

Gets Fifteen Years.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Fifteen years for an unmentionable offence was the sentence imposed yesterday on Dr. J. W. Geoffrion, once a prominent physician, in this city.

He was at the head of an organization known as the "Mange Le Ligne" Club, probably one of the most infamous organisations that this continent ever saw. There were all told upward of thirty men members, while young boys were constantly falling into their clutches. When exposure came members of the club fled the country, but five have been tried and convicted. The others will receive their sentence to-day.

THE PASSING OF HON. THOS. GREENWAY

Famous Manitoba Premier Succumbs to Heart Failure.

WAS SEVENTY YEARS OLD

Former Pillar of Manitoba Liberalism Who Had Been Ill For Some Days Dies Suddenly at Montreal —Was Through School Fight In West and Had Busy Career— Thirty Years In Politics.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—Hon. Thomas Greenway, member of the Railway Commission, former Premier of Manitoba, and M.P. for Lisgar in the last Parliament, died rather unexpectedly at the Windsor Hotel at 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Greenway caught cold on his way to Ottawa to begin his duties as Railway Commissioner, and asthma developed, for several days his condition being considered serious. On Friday last he was pronounced out of danger, but Thursday morning serious symptoms again developed. In the evening he was better again, but early yesterday morning he took a turn for the worse, and while the nurse was out of the room he passed away, death being due to heart failure.

Hon. Thomas Greenway was a leader of Manitoba Liberalism ever since his entrance into the political life of that province in 1878. He went in that year to Manitoba from Huron County, Ontario, and in the following year he was elected to the Legislature for the constituency of Mountain. In 1882 he became leader of the Opposition in the Assembly, and and in 1888 became Premier. He was leader of the Government till its defeat in 1900.

It was when Greenway was Premier that the Legislature abolished the system of separate schools in Manitoba, to restore which the Federal Conservative Government introduced the remedial bill in 1896.

During the earlier years of his administration there was a good deal of important legislation, including the abolition of the railway monopoly, the abolition of the use of the French language in Parliament and in the courts, the new Judicature Act, the act establishing a bureau of crop statistics, and the National Schools Act. There were battles over all of these except those relating to law procedure and agriculture, which will be recalled by all Canadians.

Mr. Greenway was elected to the House of Commons for the constituency of Lisgar in 1904, and sat through the late Parliament. A month ago he was appointed a member of the Railway Commission, along with Mayor D'Arcy Scott and Prof. McLean of Toronto. His death, therefore, creates a vacancy on the board.

The late Thomas Greenway was born March 25, 1838, in Cornwall, Eng., and came to Canada when a boy, first settling near Bowmanville, and afterwards in Huron County.

Runaway Girls Caught.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—Detective Twigg yesterday secured Emily Saint, 18 years, and Myrtle Mary Muirhead, 16 years, who, with a third girl, Elizabeth Brennan, 17 years, escaped from the Alexandra Industrial School at East Toronto a week ago. He found them in a lodging-house on East Queen street, and upon the Saint girl he got one of the two watches stolen from officials of the school at the time of the escape.

The two taken say that the Brennan girl, who is believed to be in Buffalo, has the other watch.

They are charged with theft of the watch, as well as with escaping.

Chinese Don't Enthuse.

Amoy, Oct. 31.—The Chinese people are apathetic regarding the arrival here of the second squadron of the United States Atlantic fleet. Only a few natives turned out to witness the arrival of the battleships yesterday.

Resentment at the severe measures taken to exclude the Chinese from participation in the celebration is the chief cause of the apathy.

Kaiser May Come to Canada.

London, Oct. 31.—(C. A. P.)—The Railway Magazine states that when at Kiel in 1904 the Kaiser told Archer Baker, M.P., he would visit Canada when steamers could do the trip in four days. Mr. Baker remarks that as these are now possible, we may yet see the Emperor a passenger on the all-red route.

Death Penalty For Assault.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 31.—Winston Green, a negro youth, was electrocuted in the state penitentiary yesterday for attempted criminal assault on a young white girl.

John Finney, a negro, for a similar crime, having been found feebleminded, the governor a few days ago commuted his sentence to imprisonment for life.

Farman's Rapid Flight.

Mourmelon, France, Oct. 31.—Henry Farman yesterday for the first time gave a practical demonstration of the possibilities of the aeroplane by flying direct from this place to Rheims, a distance of 20 miles, without mishap.

The time of flight was 20 minutes, and the height reached was between 120 and 150 feet. The course was literally as the crow flies, over trees, fields and streams.

The aeroplane ascended at 4 p. m. and an hour later a telegram was received from Farman announcing his safe arrival at Rheims.

There were several charges brought against him and he is considered an old offender. He was sentenced to Kingston Penitentiary for seven years.

WOMEN WANT RIGHT TO VOTE

But Canadians Will Not Commend British Sisters.

TWO OFFER TO GO TO JAIL

Pair of Delegates to National Council of Women Say They Would Follow English Methods If It Would Do Any Good—Clause In Resolution Approving of Londen Riots is Stricken Out.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—During the discussion on woman's suffrage by the National Council of Women yesterday afternoon, Dr. Margaret Gordon of Toronto and Miss Peters of St. John, both declared their willingness to go to jail if it would help the women of Canada to get the right to vote.

The resolution on woman's suffrage was ruled out by the president, Lady Edgar, as unnecessary. She disposed of it on the ground that full arrangements had been made to discuss the question of voter for women at the international conference to be held in Toronto next June.

Dr. Stowe-Gullen of Toronto expressed her opinion that the women suffrage question should be given a dignified place on the program of the National Council, as well as the International Congress. She thought it was an awfully innocent resolution, and at first had thought that every member would heartily support it. Later she had learned that it had caused a great deal of worry. In Colorado, where women had votes, the protection of women was well provided for. The thought was awful that women were ranked as minors, lunatics and animals, when they were not given the right to vote.

"No, no, we are not," exclaimed Lady Taylor of Hamilton.

"Yes we are," reiterated Dr. Stowe-Gullen. She thought no one was better able to deal with women's questions than women themselves, and it was time for the women of Canada to realize their responsibility.

Another animated discussion arose on the suffragette question when Dr. Stowe-Gullen presented a report on the citizenship of women. The report contained a paragraph approving the recent actions of the British suffragettes.

Miss M. Peters of St. John, in seconding the motion, declared in favor of the ballot for the women of Canada. If the women had votes, she declared, we would have prohibition in Canada.

Lady Taylor of Hamilton took the opposite view, "If we carry this resolution," she said, "we shall be commending the action of the suffragettes in England. They may be some women in Canada who approve of the conduct of the British women, but I do not. I ask that the eulogies of the British suffragettes be stricken from the report."

In the end Dr. Gullen agreed to strike out of the report references to the British suffragists and the report as amended was received.

THREE MORE YEARS.

President C. M. Hays Promises G.T.P. In 1911.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Chas. H. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Railway Co., who returned yesterday from Prince Rupert and intervening points on the system, stated that after being over all of the sections under contract. Both on the prairie and the coast, he felt quite safe in declaring that he did not apprehend any conditions would arise, engineering, financial or otherwise, that would prevent the Grand Trunk Pacific from being completed from end to end by the month of December, 1911.

One, he added, has only to read the report of the Government engineer to realize what a magnificent roadbed they had secured, and how favorable the grades and curvatures were all along the line.

He stated that regular trains will be running from Port Arthur to Edmonton next spring, that another 100 miles will be out east of the coast section of 110 miles, and 200 more west of Wolf Creek, leaving a gap of 400 miles yet to be placed under contract.

BISHOPRIC STILL VACANT.

Bishop of Stepney Declines Diocese of Montreal.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—According to a cablegram received yesterday afternoon from the Bishop of Stepney, Rev. Cormo Gordon Lang, that dignitary of the Anglican Church cannot accept the offer of the Montreal See. The message said: "Deeply appreciate honor; regret cannot accept."

When the cable was read to the synod no surprise was expressed as it was generally felt that the work of Bishop Lang at Stepney was of too important a character to be dropped in order to assume charge of this diocese. Correspondence is pending, however, between the synod and the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of London.

The synod has adjourned until Nov. 24, when it will again take up the question of the election of a new bishop.

Strange Fire.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 31.—Two men went to Mrs. Gaynor's boarding-house on Pond street, late Thursday night, and applied for a room. Mrs. Gaynor assigned one to them and gave them a lamp. Shortly afterwards the inmates of the house awoke to find the building in flames. The men were missing.

Not Due to Protection.

London, Oct. 31.—(C. A. P.)—The Morning Post points out that the modern Canadian artist in campaign literature would have little difficulty in basing upon discreetly worded evidence of the great Lord Durham charges of graft and boodle not less lurid than those which characterized the recent elections. This is in answer to the charge that protection has bred corruption in the Dominion.

Yankee Rogers Wins Fast Two Falls From Young Hack; A Few Splendid Preliminaries Fairly Large Crowd Witness The Bouts — Hackenschmidt Gets First Fall in Eighteen Minutes.

THE STRUGGLE IN DETAIL

After giving one of the prettiest and cleverest exhibitions of wrestling ever seen in Peterborough, and after taking the first fall in eighteen minutes, Young Hackenschmidt, of New York, had finally to yield the victory to Yankee Rogers in the big bout at the Brock Street Rink last night. Only Yank's size and strength won for him, at least, that is the way it looked to the spectators. Hack had it on Rogers in speed and apparently possessed an even greater knowledge of the science of the game. It was, however, his speed that most favourably impressed the crowd. He moved like a flash of lightning, working around Yankee and slipping away from his holds in a manner that seemed to bewilder Rogers, who, at unexpected moments, found himself on the defensive as a result of a quick move on the part of the elusive Hack, who was all over him during the first bout. It is doubtful if the Peterborough fans have seen a man with such speed as the cousin of the Russian lion displayed last night. His work was a revelation to the crowd. Those who had seen Rogers in action against Mohl regarded him as exceptionally speedy, but his movements seemed slow as compared with those of Hack, who was enthusiastically cheered as he broke away from dangerous holds.

Hack was a prime favourite with the crowd from the beginning, and they enthusiastically implored him to touch the big Yank. He did not succeed in doing so, but he gave him an awful argument, and certainly showed Rogers that he could not teach him any of the fine points of the game.

When the men were introduced by Announcer Gor. Lynch, it was not a difficult matter to see that the advantage in weight belonged to Manager Naylor's protege. Rogers weighed 210 pounds and while it was stated that Hackenschmidt tipped the scales at 190, he looked fifteen pounds lighter than that. It was Yank's strength more than anything else that gave him the victory, as he was not by any means Hack's superior at the wrestling game.

Little time was lost in beginning hostilities, and it was seen at once that Hack had no idea of remaining on the defensive. He went right at his adversary and the two sparred, looking for an opening. Finally they went down on the mat, with Hack on the aggressive. He worked on Rogers' neck for a few moments in a manner that the Yank did not relish, and at last the men got onto their feet again. Then Hack succeeded in grabbing Rogers' leg and hurled him back on the mat. The wrestling that followed was beautiful to watch. Rogers' strength stood him in good stead, but Hack kept him on the defensive by his lightning methods, changing his mode of attack so quickly that for some time Yank had no opportunity of doing anything else but keeping his shoulders from the mat. Finally Rogers succeeded in assuming the aggressive with a quick roll but his advantage was short lived. He tried a leg nelson on Hack, but the hold that proved the undoing of Mohl had little terror for the New Yorker, who broke it easily and assumed the aggressive again, once more going after the Yank. The latter got out of several dangerous holds, and then Hack showed his cleverness by breaking half a dozen holds. Finally Rogers clapped on a leg nelson, but Hack broke it and doubled with a scissors and arm hold that put Rogers' shoulders to the mat, while the crowd wheered frantically, for Hack had the crowd won over by his clever exhibition.

When the men came back after the rest there was a determined look on Yank's face that promised trouble for his opponent, and it was not long coming. After the preliminary sparring the men went to the mat, Rogers on the aggressive. In three and a half minutes he succeeded in turning Hack over with a waist lock. Hack protested that his left shoulder was not down, but Referee Taylor decided otherwise.

The third fall came in eight minutes, after some lively wrestling, in which Hack had Rogers on the defensive for part of the time, and once nearly securing a fall. Rogers' strength was, however, too much for him and he succeeded in winning the match with a leg and arm hold, after a desperate struggle on the part of Hackenschmidt to break away. He did succeed in twisting out of the hold once, but Rogers slammed him back before he could recover and it was all over.

Assistant Fire Chief Taylor refereed the bout most satisfactorily.

The preliminaries were decidedly interesting. A C Yokome and Bill Landry came together in the first bout and it was lively all the way. Landry had the advantage of twenty pounds in weight but in spite of that Yokome was on the aggressive the greater part of the time. Landry showed a good defence but was thrown twice inside the ten minutes, the first in 5 minutes with a trill Nelson and the second in 11-2 minutes with a waist lock.

Ned Fitzpatrick and Jack Wilson mixed it up lively in their bout in which Fitz successfully undertook to throw Wilson twice in fifteen minutes. Fitz gave a clever exhibition of wrestling and although Wilson proved himself remarkably slippery he succeeded in getting the first fall by a quick roll in 3 1-2 minutes. The second bout took eleven minutes and it was lively throughout. Fitz finally secured a scissors and full Nelson on Wilson and the latter had to give it up so severe was the hold.

Assistant Fire Chief Taylor refereed the main bout and young Hackenschmidt the preliminaries.

It was a great night's sport and a big house should have been on hand. The people of Peterborough evidently do not appreciate a good thing when they get it.

BEELE WANTS CHANCE TO MEET YANKEE ROGERS

Fred Beele, one of the greatest wrestlers the world has ever produced and who is reported to have thrown Frank Gotch in a private match, sent a challenge to the winner of last night's bout which turned out to be Yankee Rogers, for a match in Peterborough or elsewhere provided a guarantee of $400 was put up. The Crescent Athletic Club is dubious about accepting the offer in view of the attendance last night and unless the greater part of the guarantee is forthcoming in advance, there is not likely to be a match between the two. It would certainly prove a corker.

A PROVINCIAL BOWLING LEAGUE IS NOW PROBABLE

A movement is on foot to organize a Provincial Bowling League, to roll a series of home and away games. The Canadian Bowlers' Association is fostering the idea, and it is proposed to ask Hamilton, Peterborough, London, St. Catharines, Galt, Berlin, Guelph, and other places to fall in line. The winners of this league will in this manner qualify as the representative Canadian team for the next annual American Bowling Congress at Pittsburg, next February. Secretary H. T. Jenkins of the Canadian Bowlers' Association, 12 Shuter street, Toronto, will furnish all particulars regarding the organization of this league.—Toronto Star.

Sporting Comment

Fred Simpson informed the Examiner that a young Akdervills Indian, named Smoke, would like to start in the Examiner road race. As he is living outside of the county he will not be eligible to enter.

SOME BIG GAMES ARE BEING PLAYED TO-DAY

The Rugby program to-day contains many interesting matches. In the Inter-Collegiate 'Varsity plays at Ottawa College, and the Toronto collegians will have to do their best to win. Ottawa is game and resourceful, and on the home grounds will be a different proposition than on 'Varsity field. However, the class is there, and 'Varsity should win. McGill is to play Queen's in Kingston, and the Calvinists should repeat their Montreal victory with a little more emphasis.

In the Inter-Provincial the Ottawas are a bit frightened at the outcome of the game in Montreal to-day, and Chaucer Elliott's men will do their utmost to beat the Rough Riders, though the chances are greatly against them on form. The Argos have the advantage of home grounds for their game with the Tigers, but it is hardly likely that this will enable the oarsmen to beat the all-conquering Jungle Terrors, as they are pleased to call themselves. However, the Argonaut cricular letter (for members only) insists that the team will give the Tigers "the game of the season," despite a hostile press, which has failed to see through the same spectacles as the bitter partisans who were responsible for the aforesaid letter.

The senior game in the O. R. F. U. series will be at Peterborough, and Toronto A. C. will be stacked up against a different proposition to what they met here. However, with Pete Flett and Austin Clarkson added to the line-up, the Toronto team should give a satisfactory account of itself.

That there will be at least two games for the Dominion rugby championship is evidenced by the fact that two challenges were mailed last night to the Canadian Rugby Union, viz., from the Intercollegiate Union and the Ontario Union. The challenge of the Inter-Provincial Union will follow as a matter of course.

This year the games will be played on the grounds of the Inter-Provincial and Inter-Collegiate Unions, which will probably mean Hamilton (if Tigers win), and Kingston (if Queen's win).

HOCKEY.

Varsity will only have two of last year's great team this winter. Tony Evans and Hal Clarke. However, Roy Thomas will more than fill the vacancy between the posts, and McCloy of the intermediates and Tom and "Bat" Hanley, the latter the star forward of the Midland junior O. H. A. team, will help some, too, in other positions.

Stratford, Oct. 30.—The annual meeting of the Stratford Hockey Club will be held within the next ten days. There is little prospect of a professional team here, and prospects are that Stratford will be represented in the O. H. A. with senior and junior teams.

There was a rumour that some of the Stratford players might be induced to join the professional ranks, but these have been only rumours.

Two of last year's speedy juniors, Richards, point man, and "Reg" Rankin, the invulnerable goal, will be advanced to senior standing owing to the age limit, but the other speedy five, F. Rankin, Bradshaw, McCallum, F. and J. Simpson, and Dorland, and almost innumerable dark horses from the various city clubs, will be candidates for the junior teams. Roberts, the speedy senior, will be out of town, and it is not sure that MacLaren will be here, but the entire forward line of last year, Killer, Edmunds, Hern, and Easson, are here, and will likely be in the game.

Fred Whitcroft, who is in town today, predicts that his Edmonton hockey team will have more than a snowball's chance for the Stanley Cup. —Toronto Star.

RUGBY

Jack Corkery, son of Mr. John Corkery, of the post office staff is in the limelight as a rugby star with Ottawa College. A despatch from the capital says. A college find has been made in young Corkery, who has been tried at left half for the past few days, and who will occupy the position on Saturday. The youngster is going great guns, and can run, punt and tackle like a veteran.

• • • •

The Toronto A. A. C. seniors will go to Peterborough to-morrow morning by C. P. R. to play a game in the senior series of the O. R. F. U. The probable line-up: Full-back, Morrison; halves, Clarke, Flett, Jones; quarter, Campbell; scrimmage, Mack, Nasmith, Robertson; inside wings, McLennan, Holden, Crooks; middle Austin, Clarkson, Mara; outside, Sheriff, Sale, or Hugh Clarkson.—Toronto Star.

FIELD-CROP COMPETITION PRIZES

From The Canadian Dairyman.

The judges who awarded the prizes in the standing field crops competition conducted during the past summer in Ontario, Quebec and Prince Edward Island report that the weed problem is becoming most serious. The weed that is spreading most rapidly and that threatens to do the most damage is the perennial sow thistle. This weed is now reported from a great many districts in Ontario, Quebec and Prince Edward Island, and wherever noticed, it is spreading rapidly. The annual sow thistle is also becoming common. Quack grass is on the increase in Ontario and is reported in a large number of districts in Quebec. Rag-weed is making rapid headway in Ontario and Quebec. Bladder Campion is reported to be spreading rapidly in some districts of Ontario and in the same province, wild oats are also becoming quite general, particularly in the north-western districts.

While, as a general thing, weeds are becoming more numerous, encouraging reports are received from some individual sections to the effect that more extensive clover growing, combined with larger areas devoted to hoed crops, followed on a definite system of crop rotation, is resulting in the suppression of weeds. It is a matter of common observation that where two or more crops of grain are taken from the land in succession, weeds invariably get a strong hold and eventually almost crowd out the crop. This system of farming is responsible for the rapid spread of the perennial sow thistle as well as other weeds in some districts and until the methods of farming are changed, little progress will be made in the fight against weeds.

FOWL APLENTY AT THE MARKET

Prices Were Fairly Easy—Potatoes a Little Cheaper.

Poultry was the whole show at the market this morning and in the hall there was the largest attendance so far this season. Looking along the tables it was difficult to pick out the butter and eggs from among the mounds of chickens, ducks and geese. NEW TELEPHONE CONNECTION

The private telephone line extending to Dundford, Downeyville, King's Wharf, Pleasant Point, Ancona, Red Rock, Bury's Green, Fairbairn and Nozzle Creek has been connected with the lines of the Bell Telephone Company at Bobcaygeon. It is interesting to note that these points can now be reached over the Bell lines.

ASSERTED HERSELF.

The Young Woman Also Had a Few Questions to Ask.

The young woman was being interviewed by her prospective employer. The man bit off his words and hurled them at her in a way to frighten an ordinary girl out of her wits.

"Chew gum?" he asked.

"No, sir."

"Talk slang?"

"No, sir."

"Know how to spell correctly?"

"Yes, sir."

"Use the telephone every other minute?"

"No, sir."

"Usually tell the office force how much the firm owes and all the rest of the private business you learn?"

"No, sir."

He was thinking of something else to ask her when she took a hand in the matter and put a few questions.

"Smoke cigars when you're dictating?"

"Why—er—no!" he gasped in astonishment.

"Slam things around when business is bad?"

"No."

"Lay for your employees when they get caught in a block some morning?"

"No, indeed."

"Think you know enough about grammar and punctuation to appreciate a good stenographer when you get one?"

"I—I think so."

"Want me to go to work, or is your time worth so little that"—

He interrupted her enthusiastically:

"Kindly hang up your things and let's get at these letters."

Dyeing Feathers.

It is said that the best way to dye feathers is first to wash them in soapsuds and gasoline, then dip them in the solution made from squeezing a tube of paint into a bowl and adding enough gasoline to get the right tone.

After the feathers have taken on the desired color they are hung out to dry. If a woman has not tried this method she should not go into it wholesale with a lot of handsome feathers.

It would be wise for her to try it first on a small white feather, which, if ruined, will not be much loss.

FASCINATED BY THE STARS.

Astronomers Never Weary of Studying the Heavens.

Few problems which the astronomer has undertaken to solve possess such a fascination as ascertaining the extent of stellar space. Newcomb estimates the number of stars visible in the most powerful telescopes as more than a hundred millions. They are most abundant near the Milky way and least numerous at the points most remote from that amazing girdle, at what are called the "galactic poles." It is now known that the enormous differences in the brightness of the stars do not furnish a key to their distances from the earth. Big ones—a few many thousand times more brilliant than the sun—and little ones are mixed in fairly definite proportions. At least those of the six largest magnitudes are thus distributed. Further investigation is needed to determine whether the rule holds good for the stars which are apparently smaller.

Professor J. C. Kapteyn, a leading English astronomer, lectured a week or two ago in London on the progress made with the study of the distance of the stars. A limit beyond which it will eventually be impossible to go, he believes, has not been reached, but he thinks that their arrangement has been approximately determined for an imaginary sphere having a radius of 2,000 "light years." For various reasons it is considered undesirable to employ "miles" in indicating celestial distances. A more convenient term is a phrase representing the length of the journey taken by a ray of light in a year. This is about 65,000 times 93,000,000 miles, or upward of 6,000,000,000,000 miles. The nearest of the fixed stars is three and a half light years away from the sun. If the boundaries of the universe were 2,000 light years distant they would be almost inconceivably remote, but these figures are not accepted by experts as final. Professor Newcomb has expressed the opinion that "nearly all the stars" are within the limit of 3,300 light years. Professor Kapteyn, basing a calculation on the rate at which the fainter stars seem to diminish in number with distance, deems it possible that the universe may have a radius of 30,000 light years! To express this distance in miles one needs to write "18" and add sixteen ciphers.—New York Tribune.

Standing Armies.

The most unmilitary nation of the world is the most backward—China.

The nations that most neglect their military forces today are those that suffer most from militarism, tyranny and revolutions—the Latin-Americas.

The nation that has most astonished the world by its enormous progress along all lines has been the one that has in recent years turned most of all to military life—Japan.

The European nation that today is making far the greatest strides in industries and the world's progress and commerce is the one that keeps the greatest standing army of the world—Germany.

The nation that through distrust refused to keep a standing army has been wiped out—Poland.—Army and Navy Life.

Pretty German Custom.

The reopening of school recalls a pretty German custom on the first day of the school year, the keeping of cornucopia day.

When walking through the streets of Berlin, Stuttgart or Leipsic at 8 o'clock on that day it is a pretty sight to see the smallest among the school goers each tightly clasping to his or her heart a huge, gayly colored, much begilt cornucopia filled with lollypops, which has been supplied by the respective mothers as a sort of duty sweetener. When school is reached, these several cornucopias, each one inscribed in large and legible characters with the little owner's name, are put in a large basket until the older pupils have been properly placed and the new ones enrolled. Then there is a recess, the cornucopias are distributed among their owners, and the feast begins. The new scholars are proud and happy to share their goodies with the second and third year little ones, thus introducing themselves and promoting general good fellowship.

The Mistletoe.

The practice of kissing under the mistletoe is of very ancient origin, as it dates from the days of the Druids, when no doubt it had a religious meaning.

Oysters.

Every oyster has a mouth, a heart, a liver, a stomach, besides many curiously devised intestines and other necessary organs such as would be handy to a living, moving, intelligent creature. The mouth is at the end of the shell, near the hinge and adjoining the toothed portion of the oyster's pearly covering.

Sunshine as a Hair Bleach.

In the days of Queen Elizabeth women of fashion suffered the most violent headaches because they stood in the sunshine day after day to bleach their hair yellow, in imitation of her majesty's chrome locks.

Not Always Infallible.

"This hotel has been running for more than twenty years," answered the clerk of a hostelry in reply to a query of a new patron.

"Well, well!" mused the latter. "Circumstantial evidence certainly is deceptive. A moment ago I'd have been willing to wager that the hairbrush out there in the lavatory was not a day over fourteen years old."—Harper's Weekly.

Young Folks

ABOUT GRASSHOPPERS.

A Menace to Crops When They Appear in Great Numbers.

The boys who walk through the fields and see a few grasshoppers jumping about little think perhaps that creatures apparently so harmless actually eat people out of house and home sometimes in the west. They come in great droves and multiply into greater droves and then overrun the country and eat the crops.

They were so bad in a certain county of Utah a few years ago that they defied all the efforts of the farmers to get rid of them, and the result was that all the crops were destroyed. The following year the farmers adopted a novel means of fighting the pests. They arranged a series of entertainments to be given in the several towns of the county, admission to which might be had on presentation at the door of a half bushel of grasshoppers as a "ticket"—dead grasshoppers, of course.

The notion caught and spread like a prairie fire, and at the first entertainment 150 people appeared, each with a half bushel of the pests. That county saved its crops.

THROWING STONES.

Why Girls Are Unable to Compete With Boys in This Pastime.

It is hardly worth while to tell you that girls cannot throw stones like boys. You have all seen them try it and perhaps have laughed at their efforts, which was wrong, of course, but natural, for it really is a funny sight. But it is likely that you did not attribute their failure to the right cause. You thought perhaps—that is, you boys thought—that it was merely a girl's awkward attempt to imitate a boy, but in that you were wrong, for it is a physical impossibility for a girl to throw with the free movement of the arm that a boy has because her collar bone is larger than a boy's and is set lower.

This comes from a physician in a girls' college who has made a careful study of the matter, impelled thereto it may be, by the importunity of the girls, who were ambitious to equal or excel the boys in this physical accomplishment, as they have done in many others. In any sport where this free use of the arm and shoulder is not required a girl may excel, but she may as well give up all hope of ever throwing stones the same way as boys do, in spite of all this we find a girl now and then who can throw almost as far. —Chicago News.

"Mr. Funny Looking."

This queer looking man can be made the cause of lots of fun if he is put together correctly. To make him get a piece of cardboard 10 by 7 inches. Fasten the outer edges together with mucilage. Then make two holes in the sides wherein to stick two cardboard arms, with hands on the ends. These arms and hands are first drawn on the cardboard and then cut out. Now draw a comical face on the cylindrical part and cover the bottom of the cardboard cylinder with a round piece of muslin, gluing it on securely. Drop a big marble or small ball into the inside and place the funny manikin on a slightly slanting table. The marble rolling about will make "Mr. Funny Looking" a ridiculous object.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Kitchener's Retort.

Lord Kitchener, who is stated to have refused the offer of the Governorship of New South Wales, preferring an office of a purely military character, will most probably have an extension of his command in India. His directness of speech is often mistaken for abruptness; but the only times he can be accused of anything like rudeness are when strangers force themselves on his company. As an instance of this, it is related that on one occasion an effusive individual met him out-of-doors, and immediately started, "Hallos, Lord Kitchener! I bet you don't know me." The general gazed at him unmoved. "You win," he remarked laconically, and walked on.

A Village of Twins.

The village of High Halden, near Ashford, England, undoubtedly holds the record for the number of twins born there. Ten children, all of whom are twins, attend the village school regularly. Every morning two older twins can be seen carrying two younger twins to school, all being members of one family.

CHRISTMAS PHOTOGRAPHS AT THE ROY STUDIO

An Urgent Call for Early Appointments in the Interest of Sitters Who Admire Good Work.

Many people find it quite a problem once a year to decide "What to give for Christmas."

Why not let the Roy Studio help you in the solution of the problem?

Can you think of anything at the price that could be more appreciated than a dozen photographs?

But to be of any value as a gift the pictures must be good ones.

In the past twelve years the Roy Studio has delivered in the neighbourhood of 500,000 satisfactory photographs. It may be more, it certainly is not less.

Could a more effective guarantee be given of the quality of work produced by this well known and reliable firm.

The Christmas season is almost upon us—it is less than two months till Christmas.

Thanksgiving Day opens up the really busy season at the Roy Studio. Sittings for Christmas work can be made on that day or at any time appointed later on, but the earlier the better.

The newest and daintiest of exclusive finishes and mountings are now ready for inspection.

To avoid delays and confusion make appointments if possible a day ahead.

It is unnecessary to add that the Roy Studio is in the front rank with the best appointed studios in Canada. In fact, it is an art gallery in Peterborough. 1diw

The Last Of The White Tops; Circus Life Closes This Week

To-day Sees The Finish Of The Tenting Season Of All The Large Circuses—Performers Leave to Visit Their Old Homes and Loved Ones—Drivers' Last Haul To The "Runs."

CURTAIN IS RUNG DOWN

There is no need to mend the rent in the tights or the dresses, nor is there further need for the powder puff or the rouge rag, for the foot lights are out, the curtain is rung down, the call bell is ancient history. The torches are all loaded, the last stake is pulled, the mud bespattered tent is rolled into a great big bundle of bulkiness. But long before these crises, there is that something within you that echoes and re-echoes: "Going home. Going home to mother; going home to baby; going home, down on the farm." You're going home to something or SOMEBODY who waits for you day by day, and who is nearest and dearest of all things else in the wide, wide world! Even the thud of the cumbersome waggon wheels, as they roll carwards for the last time, seem to say: "My last pull. My work is done. I'm going home." Yet that hard, harsh thud, from those same old wheels silently and soothingly penetrates the softest and most susceptible spot within your whole make-up, and envelopes you with a sense of home-sickness; not for your distant home, but for the white canvas and the wide country that has been your home for the show season of 1908.

The diggers and getters of the nuggets of gold, like Mariowe, Manteil, Nazimova, Sothern, etc. — the Big Stars: I wonder if they too, like we lesser lights, feel this way — this wavering of love between the Parental and the Portable home, at the great finale, when we must choose the genesis of the one and the exodus of the other!

Why is it: That at this great finale, this last night, you feel so kindly toward everybody? That you do not think of being disgruntled even though the October breezes are an unwelcome guest within the dressing room while you are en deshabille? That you do not care whether those teeny weeny drops of eye-moist trickle over and mar your manufactured complexion? That just at this psychological moment — this "last night"— sniffling becomes so popular and the 'kerchief gets so intimate with your eyes and nose? Is it all because on this particular occasion, everything you hear, taste, feel and see spells something like H-O-M-E?

Domesticity is all right, boys. It's the seat of comfort. It's there that the brightest sparkling halo hangs over your head. It's the panacea for the weary and worn out. There is nothing comparable to the height, length, depth, thickness and circumference of home ties — the kind for which you long — where the soul kiss silently seals your loved and loving lips, and every breath of atmosphere is redolent of life and lingering love! But, conversely, and you know it as well as I, there are volumes and volumes of all this, and then some, in the mere glimpse of the tiniest spangle or the simple toot of a horn,—trivialities, yet so symbolical of this good old Bohemian life of ours.

This old ship we sail in, and that we call "Show," is a grand old bark that starts us on our voyage from the port of home and happiness, and lands us in the harbour of the heart — home. And whether that harbour be a white marble mansion or a cot of lathe and leaves, it makes no difference, for in either case a beckoning light is in the topmost window and the latch string on the outside of the door, and you know intuitively that within that abode SOMEONE waits — anxiously and ardently awaits your coming.

No matter how rough or calm, how much tempest or sunshine, or how long or short a journey this old ship may have; how heavy or light the cargo; whether the tide ebbs or flows; whether the rigging be taut or lax; whether starboard shines red, and larboard, green or vice versa; whether the bow or stern points north or south, east or west; what encouragements or discouragements the histrionic crew may encounter, or how congenial or conflicting their meeting with the peripatetic landsmen at the different points of anchorage; this old ship of state rides proudly on and her white wings seem never to grow weary until the approach of the season of cider, pumpkins and flannel. Then the order comes: "About face!" The captain touches the button, and "she" is under two bells. In a twinkling of an eye the engineer reverses his motive power; the mate gives a Herculean jerk at the wheel slapping the rudder sidewise; and the ship is running at the gigantic rate of about twenty or thirty knots an hour in the opposite direction — to the sheltering port of Home, Sweet Home.

In your mind's eye you can see the back log all aglow in colours of red, brown and yellow, to bid you welcome. You see yourself ensconced in a big arm chair, in front of this back log, whose tiny pores exhale little whiffs of curling, gray smoke. Here you are to sit and ponder, sit and think of the startling things with which you are to set the world afire "next season," when there are to be no shinwracks — when everything is to go ship shape. In fact, everything you touch is to be a headliner. You will show your co-workers that you can do great things, antipodal to the greatest you have ever done. Possibly you will do as Arliss does — play The Devil!

Finally the gang plank is thrown out and you are but fifty yards from your haven of rest — your front door. But my, my, isn't it the longest path you have ever had to tread? The thousands and thousands of non-sensical things that pass through your mind! How will they greet you? How will they look? What will they say? But your reverie is cut in twain by the whimpering, barking and yelping of your little dog whose joyous antics retard your progress down the path, and whose lambent eyes tell you a tale that you like. Just as you lift your hand from patting him, it remains in mid air — you forget to drop it, for through the keyhole of the door comes the last notes of a familiar air: "There is no place like ——" But it stops abruptly. The singer, whoever she may be, hears and recognizes your footsteps. The door is flung wide open; and then — oh, well, we won't trespass on the other side of that door.

Well, you don't think that you would but night after night you lie and dream — dream of ropes and rigging, of songs and salaries, of gold and glitter, of bands and banners, of tinsel and tights of animals and antics — one great big conglomeration. You can't tell why; you just dream and dream for months and months, until some sweet spring song awakens you to the fact that the topsails of heaven are all of blue, and the deck of earth is all of green, and the dear old ship "Show" again awaits your coming! — Mack Reiche, in the Billboard.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club for November 1st, 1908, are:

Absalom rebels against David. — II. Sam. xv.

Golden Text — Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land that the Lord thy God giveth thee. Ex. xx: 12.

Verse 1 — Is it ever right for a man, in any station, to put on style, or to display his wealth?

Verses 2-6 — What bad qualities did Absalom show, in trying to dethrone his father and to capture the throne for himself?

Is it always wrong to desire, or to court popularity?

Should we consciously strive to secure the goodwill of people, or should we be regardless concerning it, and depend wholly upon our right conduct?

Is it ever right for a man to seek to obtain a position occupied by another?

In our ordinary greeting of our friends, should we ever affect an interest in them which we do not feel?

What can you say, for or against, the man who, when running for office, is very cordial to every person, and to those whom he rarely speaks to at other times?

Should we ever attempt to capture the love of any person, at the expense of turning him against some other person?

Which is the more contemptible, to "steal the hearts" of men, or to steal their money?

What is the difference between the sin of Absalom, and that of the men, and the newspapers, that are constantly speaking evil of those in authority, so that they may be turned out, and that the grumblers and their friends may occupy their positions?

Verses 7-9 — Can a cause which requires cunning and duplicity for its success, ever be a good one?

If a man uses pious phrases and the name of God, and professes to be religious, to cover up his crime, is he worse or better than an ordinary criminal?

Verses 10-12 — What qualities did Absalom have, to so successfully organise such a revolt?

Is rebellion against properly constituted authority ever justifiable, and if so, under what circumstances? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verses 13-18 — To what extent was David responsible for the character of Absalom?

When our interests, or our family, or our character is attacked, should we ignore the enemy, or run from him, or face him in the open?

Did David show wisdom or courage in fleeing from Jerusalem, and is it likely he would have acted in this way if the revolt had been headed by a stranger?

Verses 19-22 — David's favourite son was in rebellion against him, and this stranger, Ittai, was David's true friend; is or is not this a suggestion of a fact, that parents generally get more real help from strangers than from their grown-up children?

Verse 23 — What lesson may we learn from the fact that David lost his courage and the people went?

May we ever expect to win in any battle when our hearts are filled with fear?

Lesson for Sunday, November 8, 1908 — David grieves for Absalom. II. Sam. xviii.

There being "Cash" in the House you may go to the "Barr" and order "Champagne" at any "Price" that is, if you are not "Owen" anything.

The delightful programme was presented, consisting of piano solos, readings and essays, the following contributing, Miss Bauer, Miss A. Watt, Miss McCaw, Miss Foy, Rev. ALL INDIGESTION WILL VANISH PROMPTLY

Five Minutes After Taking Diapepsin You Are Relieved of Misery.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to stomachic trouble knew the tremendous digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the acidest, acid stomach in five minutes besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on each 50 cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures indigestion, and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headaches, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach and intestines clean and fresh.

If your stomach is sour or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't tempt you, why not get a 50 cent case to-day from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one case is often sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

ROOT CROP FROZEN IN THE GROUND

Smith Farmer Neglected to Pull Them— Frost Got Them Saturday Night.

Root crops that have been left in the fields were certainly frozen hard on Saturday night. A gentleman driving in from Bridgenorth yesterday stated that he passed one field of several acres in which the mangolds and turnips had not been taken in and as a result they were frozen in the ground.

THE MASQUERADE OF THE Y.W.C.A. LADIES

To be Held To-morrow Night—Some Novel Costumes.

The young ladies of the Y.W.C.A. are making especial preparations for their masquerade to-morrow night. The event promises to eclipse in merriment the masquerade of last year. Some of the costumes are said to be novel in the extreme, the young ladies spending the spare moments of their time during the past few weeks in arranging them.

OWNER OF BURNING BARN IN EAST CITY BURNED WHILE GETTING OUT HIS HORSES

Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock a fire occurred in the barn of Mr. J P. Francis, 223 Euclid avenue, said to have been caused by children playing with matches.

The structure was a frame one and contained two loads of straw, half a bale of hay, and a pig, and once the flames got a start they made a great headway. The brigade made a rapid run over to Ashburnham, but the barn was over 2,000 feet from the nearest hydrant, and consequently the waterworks could not be used. The barn was practically ruined before the firemen arrived on the scene as that the water would have been of little use anyway. The brigade therefore directed all its attention to preventing the flames spreading to the two houses close by, which they did with the chemicals.

Damage to the extent of $25 to contents and $100 to building, was done and there was no insurance. Mr. Francis however, was successful in saving his team of horses and harness but he received some burns about the face and right arm.

After the brigade had left the wind fanned the fire up again and sent sparks flying to such an extent that the neighbours were afraid of their property and notified the chief who loaded a bunch of buckets onto the old waggon and went out again. A bucket brigade was formed, and after emptying two wells and drawing a lot of water from the creek, the fire was extinguished entirely.

BOYS WERE FINED FOR INDULGING IN DAMAGING HALLOWE'EN PRANKS

Hallow e'en pranks were the means of bringing Percy Holland, Laverne Killingbeck, Wesley Crouter, Arthur Condin and Gordon Holland into the police court this morning. There were two charges against each of the five boys, of having injured the property of D. H. Burnett, by carrying off the gate and tearing down part of the fence, and of injuring the property of the city by tearing up and carrying away part of a crossing at the corner of Murray and Aylmer streets.

All pleaded guilty to one charge or the other and the magistrate, after hearing the evidence of Percy Holland, who said they were together, decided that the boys formed one gang and were guilty of both charges. He accordingly inflicted a fine of $1 in each case, making a $2 fine for each of the boys, warning them that there was no night in the year on which they could commit damage to property.

YOUNG MAN FINED $10 AS RESULT OF MIX-UP IN LOCAL BUSINESS PLACE

As a result of a mix-up in a George street place of business on Thursday night last, a young man who pleaded guilty to being disorderly was fined $10 by Magistrate Dumble at police court this morning. The proprietor of the establishment was also charged with being disorderly, but charge was dismissed.

One witness stated that he had seen the proprietor strike the young man with his left hand, but the defendant denied the statement. He testified that the young man had come into his place, under the influence of liquor and had used bad language. He had fallen on the floor, he stated, and when the witness went to telephone for the police, had seized him by the coat. The torn garment was produced in court.

Several other witnesses gave evidence and at the conclusion of the case, the business man was acquitted and young man fined $10 with the option of 15 days in gaol.

A young man who pleaded guilty to being drunk was fined $5, the extra $3 being added on account of the fact that he was intoxicated on Sunday. The magistrate always inflicts an extra fine for being drunk on the Sabbath day.

Another young man who pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly on Saturday and was assessed $2 and $3.85 costs.

A south end resident was charged with allowing a cow to run at large, but was allowed to go with a warning.

The South African Veterans Have Formed An Association

Examiner Special

Toronto, Nov. 2.—During the past week two enthusiastic and largely attended meetings have been held of men who took part in the South African War, and who are not entitled to participate in the land grant under the Volunteer Bounty Act of 1908. An Association has been formed to be called the Imperial South African Veterans' Association." The object of the Association is to seek to have the above Act extended so that all men of the Anglo-Saxon race who took part in the South African war, and who are not already entitled to participate in the land grant, and who were residing in Canada at the time the said Act came into force, shall be included in its provisions. Lord Milner and Lord Northcliffe, who have been staying here, and the newly elected members of the Dominion Government for this city, have expressed their sympathy with the proposed amendment. Mr. Shelford Grimwood, 3 Metcalfe street, Toronto, has been appointed President of the above Association, and is also acting as Organizing Secretary for the Dominion, and as soon as all the names of the men living in Canada are to hand, a deputation will wait on the Government at Ottawa.

AN INCH OF ICE IN THE CREEK

Outside the City One Could Walk On It With Safety.

Ice an inch thick in a creek outside the city is sufficient guarantee of the swoop the thermometer took Saturday night. The mercury sank out of sight and so rapidly that it almost seemed as if a hole had been made in the bottom of the bulb. Should the weather not take the expected relapse to sunshine, one may expect to soon see placed out in the same old places "Saws filed here."

A HEALTHY SEASON THIS AUTUMN

Medical Health Officer Says Disease is Scarce.

Dr. Bingham, Medical Health Officer of the city, remarked this morning that a very pleasant season has been enjoyed this fall and that Peterborough was in a healthy condition. The absence of disease is one of the things from which it is said this city is particularly free and the actual condition is not as bad as what some maintain, the doctor concluded.

The J. C. Turnbull Co announce that Miss McClelland an expert Corset Fitter from Bias Corsets Limited, will be with them all this week and extend an invitation to the ladies of Peterborough to call and consult her when she will be pleased to demonstrate the advantages of the Bias Fitted Corset. 14—78

UNITED STATES ELECTION.

To-morrow, November 3rd, the presidental election fight will be decided by the ultimate ratrees, the people. We are not in one sense vitally concerned, but in view of our proximity to our neighbours, from whom we are separated by about four thousand miles of boundary, we are indirectly largely concerned. Our trade relations are a matter of importance, and there is more or less social interchange, which gives many Canadians a personla interest in the government of our neighbours. There seems to be little doubt that the Republican nominee will win. Mr. Bryan, the Democratic candidate, with the persistence of a Sexsmith, is making his third shy at the soft seat in the "White House," but the best authorities are of the opinion that he will fail. The New York Herald, a pretty good guesser in previous presidential contests, says tha Ttaft, the Republican nominee, will have an electoral college majority of 64. It is worth while taking note of these figures to see how they correspond with the actual outcome.

PREMIER'S PERSONAL INFLUENCE.

The Toronto World, Conservative, has the following to say of the personal influence and the influence as an orator and statesman, of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Prime Minister of Canada, and the effects of his Ontario tour—

"He spoke at Niagara Falls, where German was elected, and at Tilbury where McCoig was returned. His speech at Berlin doubtless helped Mackenzie King to victory, and his Clinton and Strathroy speeches won North Perth, West Middlesex and South Huron. The Prime Minister spoke in Cornwall and Stormont returned Mayor Smith. At Russell he spoke on behalf of the new secretary of state, Hon. Charles Murphy, who was elected. In Nipissing, where McCool was defeated, the circumstances were exceptional, for McCool was not a resident of the riding and had but little personal communication with his constituents. The Prime Minister's North Bay speech, therefore, was about the only set-back to a triumphal Ontario tour."

It is to be noted that the World broke the continuity of the record by placing Nipissing in the Opposition column. Later returns show that Mr. McCool, the Liberal candidate, was elected by a majority of 200 thus making the Ontario tour an unbroken triumph so far as election results are concerned.

RECEPROCITY.

The advantages to both Canada and the United States from the adoption of reciprocal trade relations are admitted, but the United States has shown so much indifference, not to say, arrogance, in dealing with the matter in the past—Canada has made generous overtures which have been ignored—that out of self-respect this country has ceased to agitate the question, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier has declared that if reciprocity ever becomes a subject of negotiation between the two countries, the overtures must come from the United States. This is a proper and independent spirit to adopt and it seems to have had a better effect than a supplant attitude on the part of Canada. The New York Sun, on of the most potent journalistic influences in the United States, recognizing the folly of Uncle Sam's past attitude on the subject, speaks of Canada's independent attitude as not one of commercial hostility to the United States, but the legitimate fruit of the folly of our neighbours, and admits that the effect of the present arrangement between Canada and Great Britain is to injure United States trade with Canada. It will be of interest to reproduce in the main what the Sun has to say on the subject. Commenting on the result of the recent elections in Canada and commending the sagacity and political wisdom of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. W. S. Fielding, the Sun, editorially reverts to the advantages Great Britain is afforded by the preferential tariff relations between Canada and the Mother Country, which it says incidentally is a detriment to United States interests. The Sun blames American statesmen of the past for letting slip the chance to obtain a reciprocity agreement with Canada, and asserts that there is a good opportunity for the incoming American administration to make good the oversight. The Sun says:

"One phase of the Liberal administration, Reciprocity with the United States was strongly urged by the Liberals until 1891. The obstacles encountered caused a loss of interest and a lessened activity. The combined indifference and opposition on the American side resulted in a material change in the Liberal attitude. Soon after the election of 1896 Sir Wilfrid and his associates took up the question of a preferential tariff rate on certain specified imports from Great Britain and from British colonies, and a tariff preference of 12 1-2 per cent. was given to Great Britain in 1897. This was increased to twenty-five per cent. in 1898 and to 33 1-3 per cent. in 1900. Later legislation has granted increased advantages. The so-called British preferential is distinctly a Liberal policy, and its successful operation is largely due to the stubborn and short-sighted indifference of the United States.

"The matter has recently been made the subject of controversy. The July number of the Edinburgh Review contained an article disputing an assertion made by Lord Milner, who holds that the Canadian preference has been of value to Great Britain and to Canada, Lord Milner replies in the Nineteenth Century for October. Notwithstanding the fact that Canadian imports from the United States are very much larger than imports from Great Britain, it is beyond question that without the preferential imports from this country would be larger than they are and imports from Great Britain would be materially decreased. Lord Milner is unquestionably right.

"This attitude of the Canadian Liberal party is not to be construed as one of commercial unfriendliness toward the United States. It is merely the legitimate fruit of our own folly. There is no question of Sir Wilfrid's absolute sincerity in his recent assertion of his readiness at any time to enter into reciprocal relations with the United States "on a reasonable basis," nor is there room to doubt the correctness of his statement that the failure of all reciprocity proposals is due to the fact that this country has sought to drive too hard a bargain. Therefore, while Canada stands third on our list of customers, it buys from England under a preferential tariff millions of dollars worth of merchandise that it would but here under a fair exchange of tariff opportunities.

"The next president of the United States can do much for this country by taking a broad and liberal view of our relations with the Dominion."

EDITORIAL NOTES

November 1st was the last day on which the filing of a petition can compel a municipal council to submit a Local Option bylaw to the electors at the January Municipal Elections.

Mr. W F McLean is counted in the Conservative column in noting the political complexion of the parliamentary delegation from Ontario. Mr. McLean is, however, not a Conservative, but a radical, as radical as "they "make 'em."

President Hayes of the Grand Trunk Railway says the Grand Trunk Pacific will be completed and under operation within three years—at the end of December, 1911. Mr. Hayes should know what he is talking about and his position protects him for talking buncombe for publication.

Judge Winchester opened his inquiry into the management of the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, on Saturday. There are many charges of "graft" in this connection, but these must be malicious. It can't be possible that virtuous "Tory" Toronto, the "centre of intelligence" can be guilty of such a thing as "graft." We shall see.

The standing of the parties in Ontario in Federal representation since Confederation may be of interest at the present time. It is:

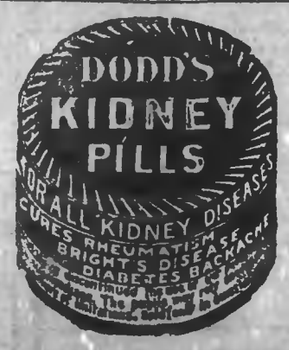
The Galt Reporter, (Conservative) advocates "a national convention of the Conservative party." Looking on from the outside, the suggestion seems to be a timely one. Mr. Borden's Halifax platform, is badly in need of patching, and it seems that the Conservative party needs to adjust its leadership. Mr. Borden is the titular leader, but he seems to have too many deputies. In this respect he appears to be handicapped and a national convention might settle the question of supremacy and gave him a fair chance to show what he can do as a leader, something which he can hardly be said to have had in the past. A good strong coherent Opposition will be in the interests of the country. Governments are not infallible and a live, alert and patriotic Opposition can give valuable aids in the matters of administration and legislation.



SPLENDID REMEDY FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

Will Regulate Digestion and Strengthen the Stomach So You Can Eat Any Food.

Miserable is the man or woman who suffers from dread indigestion or dyspepsia. There are few diseases which create such misery, long drawn out suffering, as indigestion. It pursues them before meals, after meals and between meals; they take it to bed with them. It is with them wherever they go, though indigestion is the simplest disease of all to cure.

Tell such afflicted ones, dear reader, of Pape's Diapepsin; urge the sufferer to go to any pharmacy here and give 50 cents for a case. Such a sufferer would ever bless you, because five minutes after taking there would be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, or heartburn, or fullness and discomfort, no belching of gas or eructations of sour food, debilitating headache, nausea, water brash and other symptoms of a sour, disordered stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat without the aid of the stomach.

Diapepsin is a wonderful stomach purifier and splendid to keep the intestines clean and fresh; then your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Diapepsin will rest the stomach and increase the gastric juices; this is what is mostly needed—more and better digestive juices—and no gas—then indigestion and all stomach trouble will go.

Each 50-cent case contains sufficient to usually thoroughly cure the most chronic dyspeptic.

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardstown, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

POOR IN IRELAND REACH RIPE AGE

Pension Claimants There Total 131,619 Out of British Enrolment of 478,164.

ARE NOT MEAT EATERS

London, Nov. 2 — The longevity of the Irish poor is strikingly illustrated in the claims filed under the Asquith Budget for the old age pension of five shillings a week. There were 478,164 claims put in from all parts of the United Kingdom. Of these 278,963 came from England, with a population of 30,000,000; 131,619 from Ireland, with a population of 4,450,000, and 49,077 from Scotland, with a population of 4,400,000.

The qualifying age for pension claimants is seventy years. Most of those who have availed themselves of the right to the pension are from the country districts, and this reveals a most interesting dietary situation. The country folk in the United Kingdom eat meat only on rare occasions. The Irish poor in the country live upon bread, Indian meal, potatoes, salted fish, tea and staple foods. Physicians who hold that meat is essential to building up the muscular tissue are thus put to some extremity to explain the ripe old age of those pension claimants.

The excessive preponderance of the aged in Ireland is partly explained by the emigration of the young to the United States, but the fact remains that Ireland produces a vastly greater comparative showing of old people than any other part of the kingdom.

This is the first time since the Asquith Budget was put into operation that Ireland was not discriminated against in the restriction of its claimants. The framer of the Budget probably had no idea that Ireland would benefit so largely, or it is safe to assume that the British Treasury would have taken effectual measures to restrict Ireland's advantages under it.

MEETING OF THE INTHON BIBLE CLASS

Assistant Teacher Occupies the Chair—A Trip to Toronto.

The Inthons gathered in the classroom yesterday afternoon to the number of 47 members and three visitors. Mr. F. C. Moore, the able assistant teacher, took Mr. Pearson's place and covered the lesson pretty well.

The Inthons and friends of Mr. George Rose will be sorry to learn of his illness. A bouquet was sent to him during the week by the class.

An inquiry committee are going to Toronto on Tuesday to attend the Thousand Men banquet to be held in the Excelsior Rink by the Toronto Sunday School Association.

A social evening is scheduled for Friday. A splendid progamme is being prepared. Mr. Switzer's class are invited to attend as are also the wives and lady friends of the Inthons, and any of the fellows in Peterborough who wish to go.

We wonder how Mr. R. J. Soden is getting along on his annual deer hunt. Perhaps we'll have a venison supper when he gets back.

There's lots of space in the classroom yet, fellows, come on in next Sunday and fill it up. The room's nice and cosy too, and it's away ahead of walking around in the cold.—Com.

Stop that Scratching!

Just as long as you have dandruff your head will itch. It's the little microbes that are gnawing down into the hair roots. It may take a long time for these persistent pests to get down to the vital part but when they do, they will destroy the life of the hair in a very short time.

"My hair was falling out rapidly and becoming gray when I heard of your guaranteed Hair Restorer, and, after using one bottle my hair stopped turning gray. The first application removed the itching, my hair stopped falling out and I now have a new growth of hair, and it is soft, glossy and pliable." Carrie Williams, 844 Clinton Ave. South, Rochester, New York.

Parisian Sage, the delightful Hair Restorer is guaranteed by Wm. Madill to stop falling hair, to cure dandruff and all diseases of the scalp or money back. It is the most refreshing hair dressing in the world. Ladies use it extensively because it makes the hair beautiful, soft and luxuriant—50 cents a bottle at Wm. Madill's or by express from Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

A REST CURE

In giving due credit to the wonderful remedial Springs of Europe we are apt to lose sight of the value of the ones nearer home. About one thousand springs of various medicinal virtues exist in America. Of one of them Hare's System of Therapeutics (1891,) page 523, thus speaks:—"A number of Saline Springs exist in America and Europe, very strong water of this kind being the St. Catharines Well in Canada, which contains about 275 grains sodium chloride to the pint, as well as 135 grains calcium chloride. Its prototype in Europe is the celebrated Kreutznach Spring in Prussia, which contains about 110 grains sodium chloride (Kurbrunnen)." Other references are Encyclopaedia Britannica, Appleton's American Encyclopaedia. The Allbutts System of Medicine etc. The Grand Trunk Railway System's trains run direct to St. Catharines and further information can be obtained from their representatives. 1d-78

ADVANCING PRICES AT WALL STREET

Good Railway Reports Last Week—Wall Street Elects a President.

STEEL CORPORATION REPORT

Examiner Special

New York, November 2 — Last week was one of advancing prices on the New York Stock Exchange and the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Prices advanced almost without a set back. This was due to the fact that Wall Street has elected a President. There was a steady improvement in the copper metal market during the week and on Friday the New York Metal Exchange advanced all grades of copper 1-8 of a cent a pound. John R. Stanton, head of the Stanton Copper properties, gave out a very optimistic interview, in which he predicted 15 cents copper, and this was followed by an interview with John D. Ryan of the Amalgamated, which was also optimistic. Mr. Ryan predicts a steady improvement in copper business and stated that the Amalgamated properties were now operating at between 75 and 80 per cent of their normal capacity. This means that with a slight increase in business, the properties will be on a normal basis before the end of the year.

Early in the week the United States Steel Corporation made its quarterly report. This showed an increase of $1,000,000 in earnings over the last quarter and reported the first increase in unfilled orders since the depression started. The report was an excellent one and gives promise of better times for the steel and iron trades. This gave some courage to foreign buyers and after the publication of that report London, Paris, Berlin and Amsterdam again entered this market in a queen way. From 5,000 to 10,000 shares were bought each day on balance, and on Friday the buying for this account had increased to more than 30,000 shares.

Wall Street was surprised on Friday by the reports of the Union Pacific railroads. These reports in the natural order of events were not due until at least two weeks later, but they were good, and would be put out earlier for what ever effect they might have upon the political situation. While E. H. Harriman has no love for Theodore Roosevelt, he is still enamoured of the Republican party and is willing to help towards the election of Mr. Taft.

There is a quiet dispute going on in cotton circles over the size of the next cotton crop. One set of operators and cotton experts declare that the crop will not exceed 11,000,000 bales, while still another clique insist that it will exceed 13,000,000 bales. The curious thing about this is that both sides take the same figures, and reasoning from these figures reach different conclusions.

There was an advance to-day in the rates for money in London. There has been a gradual hardening of rates for the last three or four days. This is due to the demands for the end of the month, and in no way reflects an increase in business in England. The feeling there, like the feeling here, is better, and this always precedes a revival of business.

A THANKSGIVING DAY SOCIAL

T. A. S. Social Club are Preparing for Next Monday Night.

A Thanksgiving day social will be held at St. Peter's T. A. S. rooms on Monday night next under the auspices of the society's Social Club. The committee are preparing an evening's entertainment that should result in a large attendance. The programme will include progressive euchre, refreshments and vocal and instrumental music. A meeting of the committee is called for Wednesday evening next at 8:30 o'clock.

EXTRA--Great News from the Carpet Department

AN ELEVEN DAYS SALE OF SHORT ENDS

Commencing Tuesday, Nov. 3rd, Closing Saturday, Nov. 14th, at 9:30 p.m.

"Coming Events cast their Shadow before." We have been asked many times recently, "Why don't you have a sale in Carpets?" But sales cannot materialize simply on request. There must be a stronger reason than that. But now the Golden Opportunity is here, and great will be the Savings of those who take advantage of it.

The Carpet Department has informed us that it is impossible to secure duplicates of many lots now in stock. Manufacturers seem to like to change patterns and colorings simply for the sake of having something new. We have to keep step, so the remaining odd lots of Carpets must go, and a very vigorous reduction in the price is the motive power. So we put these patterns into a special sale, because it is expected that special prices encourage special buying and we are quite sure that those who have single rooms or even an occasional suite to carpet, can find ample selection in this showing.

Will You be a Bargain Buyer at this Sale?

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE MEETING AT CRYSTAL

The Gospel Temperance meeting at the Crystal last night was addressed by Mr. Mulligan, who also conducted the singing and rendered a solo. He based his address on the words of Solomon "Strong Drink is Raging," pointing out very graphically the evils it brings and the strength of the chains with which its victims are bound, and concluded by pointing to the power of the blood of Christ, as the only means effecacious to break such bonds. The address which was given with great force, was listened to with the closest attention by the audience.

"PETE" CAMPBELL'S FINE GAME

Got T. C. S. Two Tries in Toronto When They Won the League Championship

Gordon Campbell, Captain and quarterback of the Trinity College School Rugby team of Port Hope, was in the city over Sunday, visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. Peter Campbell, on his way back from Toronto where T. C. S. defeated Upper Canada College team by 14 to 4, thereby winning the Interscholastic football championship, bringing it back to T C S for the first time in nine years. They have played eight games this year and have never been defeated, having a clean showing in the league. The Peterborough boy, according to the Toronto press, played a grand game on the Toronto field and gave his team material assistance. In fact he scored 10 of the 14 points, by getting over the line for two tries.

"THE HOME OF THE OVERCOAT"

What They Are

They are not new faddy coats — just the common sense coats that have been known by us since we were boys as the warm kind—changes of course have been made in the style details such as fuller skirts, different collar and lapel, but withal they amount to just this; neat warm top coats to turn zero frosts and freezing winds, the most comfort-giving of any coat on the market to-day. The business man may wear them, the professional man wishes nothing better, in fact you may see them in all walks of life.

The New Features

The skirt has the loose drapery effect, the lapels are large and when open from a nice double breasted effect or they can be turned over and buttoned accross the chest under the collar giving the real Prussian Style and doing away with the use of the muffler to a large degree.

The Cloth

The cloths used in the make up of these coats are of the substantial wearing order in fashionable tweeds in dark tone mixtures, including bronze, green and grey effects. The prices we quote here are of two special season 1908-9 values viz.

$20.00 and $25.00

If you want the other sort we have them too.

CAMERA CLUB TO HOLD AN OUTING

Going to Springville on Thanksgiving Day—Decide on Place of Meeting.

The Camera Club met on Friday night in the Y.M.C.A. parlours and transacted considerable business. The The Club has decided to make the Tate-Taylor Optical parlours their headquarters in future. They also made the preliminary arrangements for their first outing to the home of Dr. Marsh, at Springville, on Thanksgiving Day.

Music and Drama

Without any doubt the most successful American musical comedy is Pixley and Luder's "The Prince of Pilsen." For six years it has enjoyed wide popularity in the United States, has been played by two companies for three years in England, where it starred Camille Clifford and won her a position in the English nobility. It was played with success in Paris last winter and will probably have another run there this winter. It achieved success in South Africa and Australia and is booked for China and Japan. Among the musical numbers which are still great favourites are "The Message of the Violets" and "Heidelberg."

She had just finished one of those moonlight sonatas incidental to the honeymoon. "Before we were married," she said softly, "you told me that you were wall eyed."

"Yes, darling," he answered, "I was, but I didn't know it."

NEW SONGS

"Just to Remind You" is a new song by Nat D Mann. Its sentiment is above the ordinary and there is none of the borrowed melody of the so-called popular song. It is gaining wide success owing to the originality and beauty of its lyric and melody.

Among the new music that is finding popular favour a few may be mentioned for those interested, as follows:—"In Grandma's Day," by Jean Lennox; "Here's to the Girls" and "I'll Be Waiting for You," from "The Girls of Gottenberg." "Here's to the Girls" is a toast song, sung by Overton Moyle, English baritone, with a chorus of twenty male voices and is pronounced as the biggest hit of any similar number since the famous "Heidelberg" was first offered. "If You'll Remember Me" is one of the best songs which Chauncey Olcott is singing in his new musical comedy "Ragged Robin," "Meet Me in Rose Time, Rose" is a tuneful song from Cohan and Harris minstrel show. It is of the kind that is bound to be remembered and whistled.

NATURE A VERY SKILFUL PHYSICIAN

Puts Up Her Medicines in Most Tempting Form.

Have you ever tasted anything more delicious than the fresh, ripe, luscious fruits? These are Nature's medicines.

A regular diet without fruit is positively dangerous, for the system soon gets clogged with waste matter and the blood poisoned. Fruit Juices stir up Bowels, Kidneys and Skin, making them work vigorously to throw off the dead tissue and indigestible food which, if retained, soon poison the blood and cause Indigestion, Headaches, Rheumatism, Neuralgia and a host of other distressing troubles.

But there is a quicker way to stimulate the organs to do their work properly. Take one or two "Fruit-a-tives" tablets every night, besides eating some fresh fruit every day. "Fruit-a-tives" combine the medicinal properties—many times intensified — of oranges, apples, prunes and figs, with the best tonics and internal disinfectants added.

Their action on Bowels, Liver, Kidneys and Skin is as natural as Nature's own, but quicker and more effective. Sold by all dealers—25c. for trial box—50c. for regular size — 6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

INGERSOL ITALIAN THE VICTIM OF CRIME

Railroad Navvy Kills Compatriot in Quarrel at Ingersoll.

STRUCK DOWN WITH STONE

As Result of Difference of Opinion in Game of "Duck on the Rock," M. Ponzi Kills Pardi Constantine With a Boulder—Murderer Escapes During Excitement Following the Awful Crime.

outcome of a dispute yesterday afternoon between two Italians, members of a party of navvies in the employ of the G.P.R., who for the past few days have been occupying cars here. The immediate cause of the fatal quarrel is not definitely known, but it is supposed to have been due to a difference of opinion as to a game which they had been playing. In a fit of rage M. Ponzi, a man of powerful physique, standing nearly six feet in height, is said to have seized a large stone, weighing probably two pounds, and hurled it at his fellow-countryman, Pardi Constantine. The missile struck Constantine over the left temple with such force that he dropped in his tracks and expired before the doctor arrived.

Intense excitement followed the crime, during which Ponzi made his escape, and although a search was at once made for him his whereabouts are still unknown. His description has been wired to many neighboring points.

The tragedy occurred shortly after 4 o'clock and the police had very little time to follow the trail.

After Constantine received the death blow, Ponzi hurried to the car he had been occupying and grabbed his coat. He started in a westerly direction and is supposed to have followed the C.P.R. in the direction of St. Thomas.

The fact that the Italians in the party have very little knowledge of the English language and that they make no apparent efforts to render assistance have placed the police at a disadvantage in getting at the details in connection with the killing. A twin brother of the dead man was an eye-witness of the affair and he was almost frantic from grief.

It appears that the quarrel was precipitated by a game which resembles "Duck on the rock." This, it is said, was being played for money. In pitching a stone, the one who knocked the coin out of a ring, kept it. The ownership of a coin was probably the root of the quarrel.

The scene of the murder is a point about 250 yards west of the C.P.R. depot. The murdered man was 28 years of age and married. His family are in Italy and he had intended leaving in a week's time to join them. Ponzi is escribed as being 28 or 30 years of age, 5 feet 11 inches or 6 feet in height. He wore a dark brown or black coat, blue overalls, faded, and a soft felt hat.

China Ignores Fleet.

Pekin, Nov. 2—The presence of the second squadron of the United States battleship fleet at Amoy, where the vessels arrived Friday, and where the men are now being entertained by the Chinese Government, is hardly known in Pekin.

The Chinese papers have said nothing at all about the visit, and the presence is being completely ignored, both officially and otherwise, that is, so far as Pekin is concerned.

This probably is because the festivities in connection with the birthday of the empress dowager are coincident with the entertainment of the visiting Americans.

Relief For G.T.P.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—Some people who are well posted as to the relations between the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Government expect some kind of a relief bill at the early part of the coming session.

The form of the measure is unknown, but the general impression is that it lessens the rental very considerably, which the Grand Trunk Pacific is held to pay the Government for the section between Winnipeg and Moncton.

To Buy Out Cables.

London, Nov. 2.—(C.A.P.)—Henniker Heaton announces a meeting in support of penny a word cables to urge the Government to hold a conference with the Postmaster-General with a view to buying out existing cables. If the latter refuses, the object can be attained by extending the land systems in conjunction with Marconi.

Wilson Declines.

Denver, Col., Nov. 2.—Secretary Jas. Wilson of President Roosevelt's Cabinet, is reported to have declined the offer of the presidency of the Colorado Agricultural College at Fort Collins. It is stated that Rev. F. W. Gunsaulus of Chicago, one of the most noted clergymen in the United States, is being considered for the place.

Queen's Book Popular.

London, Nov. 2.—Only 60,000 out of 500,000 copies of Queen Alexandra's Christmas book which is being sold for charity's sake are now available for sale, all the remainder being already subscribed for, so that there is every likelihood of the whole lot being disposed of before they are all out of the press.

Glencoe, Nov. 2.—The returning officer, W. D. Moss, gave out the official count for West Middlesex Saturday morning, showing a majority for Calvert of 15 with 9 rejected ballots. There may be a recount before a judge.

London, Ont., Nov. 2.—William McCormick, the young man who was convicted last week of stealing a quantity of brass from the Canadian Packing Co., was Saturday sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary.

LOOKS LIKE TAFT AS THE WINNER

Republican Candidate Has Best of It Say the Experts.

ROCKEFELLER AN ENIGMA

Calculators Do Not Know Just How to Estimate Effect of His Recent Announcement—306 to 177 is New York Herald's Forecast of Electoral College Vote — Bryan Says He'll Have a Surplus.

New York, Nov. 2.—The Herald thus sums up its final forecast:

Reasonably sure Republican: California 10, Colorado 5, Connecticut 7, Delaware 3, Idaho 3, Illinois 27, Indiana 15, Iowa 13, Kansas 10, Maine 6, Massachusetts 16, Michigan 14, Minnesota 11, Montana 3, New Hampshire 4, New Jersey 12, New York 39, North Dakota 4, Ohio 23, Oregon 4, Pennsylvania 34, Rhode Island 4, South Dakota 4, Utah 3, Vermont 4, Washington 5, West Virginia 7, Wisconsin 13, Wyoming 3. Total 306.

Reasonably sure Democratic: Alabama 11 Arkansas 9, Florida 5, Georgia 13, Kentucky 13, Louisiana 9, Maryland 8, Mississippi 10, Missouri 18, Nebraska 8, Nevada 3, North Carolina 12 Oklahoma 7, South Carolina 9. Total 177.

Basing the forecast of to-day still on surface indications and on reports made by disinterested correspondents in various doubtful states, The Herald gives Mr. Taft 306 electoral votes and Mr. Bryan 177.

"The states changed from the table of last Sunday are six. No state that Mr. Taft seemed then to have with reasonable surety has been lost to him during the last week of the campaign. No state that Mr. Bryan was credited with last week has gone from his column.

"It yet remains to be seen, however, whether the peculiar announcement by John D. Rockefeller that he would support Taft can be turned by the Democrats into an argument which may swing some close states back to Bryan. The Democratic campaigners are making use of the incident with all the avidity with which a last card is seized upon in the closing hours of the campaign.

The following are the statements given out by the party chairman and the candidates themselves:

Chairman Mack (Dem.)—"A landslide for Bryan. The party is reunited and victory is in the air. He will have 333 votes, made up of the solid south with 169 votes, including Maryland and Delaware, Colorado 5, Connecticut 7, New York 39, Kansas 10, New Jersey 12, North Dakota 4, Oregon 4, Rhode Island 4, West Virginia 7, Wisconsin 13, Wyoming 3, Indiana 15, Idaho 3, Montana 3, Ohio 26, Nebraska 8, South Dakota 4 Total 154. California and Illinois I place in the doubtful column but the chances are extremely in favor of their being won."

Chairman Hitchcock (Rep.)—"We will have 325 electoral votes."

Candidate Taft—"The State of New York is the most Republican part of the United States. There is every indication, through that part of the state above the Bronx, that there will be a majority of the Republican ticket, nearly equal to that of Mr. Roosevelt four years ago. The Democratic majority in the City of New York will probably not exceed 70,000 votes. This will be overcome by the Republican vote above the Bronx with such overwhelming force as to give the Republican ticket in the Empire State a clear majority of from 100,000 and upward."

Candidate Bryan—"While I think that the result is more certain in some states than in others, I do not want to discourage those in less certain states by making discriminations. I believe that we shall have votes to spare in the electoral college and in a considerable majority of the popular vote."

Walter Wellman of The Chicago Record-Herald gives Taft 260 sure and Bryan 172 sure, doubtful but probably Republican 8, doubtful but probably Democratic 48. He differs from The New York Herald in that he gives Montana to Byran; gives Ohio doubtful, but probably Democrat, and Indiana doubtful, but probably Democratic.

Saloons Target For Bombs.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—The twenty-fourth bomb in the series which has been directed against alleged gambling resorts, was exploded in the rear of a saloon owned by F. F. Brennan in Cottage Grove avenue. Windows shattered and the whole neighborhood was startled by the explosion, but no one was hurt.

For months the police and public have been mystified by the bomb hurler, who in spite of all sorts of ruses and traps laid to catch him, has invariably escaped.

The bomb-throwing is supposed to be an expression of displeasure manifested by gamblers who have been suppressed, against resorts that are allowed to run.

Catholics In Parade.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 2.—What was probably the greatest parade of a religious character in the history of New England, brought to a close yesterday, the centennary celebration of the founding of the Roman Catholic diocese of Boston, which began last Wednesday. It is estimated that fully 40,000 men, representing the Holy Name societies of the Roman Catholic Church in the five counties, which constitute the diocese, Suffolk, Middlesex, Essex, Norfolk and Plymouth, with over 150 priests and 100 bands.

Invalids Have Narrow Escape.

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 2.—News is received here that a narrow escape from death by burning occurred at Shrewsbury, 18 miles south. Mrs. Ezekiel Feld is an invalid, and her son, Charles, is blind, so that when their house caught on fire in the dead of night they were in dire straits. They were nearly overcome by smoke when rescued. The house and contents were destroyed.

Totals—T.A.S., 6; T.A.A.C., 7.

After outplaying and outscoring the Toronto Athletic Club all the way until four minutes from the final whistle, in the senior O.R.F.U. game here Saturday the T.A.S. Athletic Club's team allowed one of the visitor's wings to get away for a 50-yard run for a touch down that gave them the victory by one point, after one of the most interesting games ever seen at Riverside Park. The score at the finish was 7—6 in favour of the visitors, who ought to be congratulated upon the brand of horse shoes they have attached to themselves. Their victory was certainly a lucky one. Up to the moment when Mara broke away for his sensational dash the visitors had apparently no chance to win, and had apparently given up all hope of pulling out ahead. They had been swept off their feet and fought with their backs against the wall all the way, with Peterborough always nearly within scoring range and piling up the score, single by single, until it stood 6—2, with four minutes to play. Then came the play that revolutionized the situation and changed a well merited victory into a most unlucky and undeserved defeat.

The local team and those who saw the game are still trying to figure out just how the contest was lost, and so far they have been unable to explain matters. The play that gave T.A.A.C. the victory occurred in this wise. McPherson punted to Flett, the ball bounding to T.A.A.C. half back at Peterborough's 50-yard line. A Peterborough wing man failed to give Flett "yards," and the visitors were given the ball. The T.A.S. halves backed up, expecting a kick, when Mara, the left middle wing of the visitors, was sent around the right end. The suddenness of the play surprised the locals, or else they grew careless with victory in their grasp. At any event Mara was enabled to get clear around the end and galloped towards the Peterborough line. Between him and the line were Quinlan, McPherson and Crough, but he slipped through the trio and was over for a try before anyone could realize what had happened. The try was not converted but it gave the visitors a lead of one point, which proved enough to win.

The T.A.A.C. team came down here expecting the easiest kind of a victory. They thought of that 30—0 win at Rosedale two weeks ago, and with the great and only Pete Flett on their back division and the strongest line up they could secure, they smiled at the thought of the light lunch they were going to have. It was funny to see the smile disappear when the first quarter came without a score, and then when Peterborough commenced tallying in the second period, the visitors donned a worried look that did not leave them until Mara's stunt gave them a victory that they had ceased to expect.

They admitted they were out played throughout. "We are ahead, boys," said Captain Roy Clarke, as he carried the ball out for Morrison's kick on goal, after Mara had scored the winning points, "but we don't deserve to be." "Billy" Hewitt, sporting editor of the Toronto Star, who is a member of the T.A.A.C., and who saw the game in the interests of his paper, reiterated that opinion after the game, remarking that it was the hardest luck he had ever seen, and that Peterborough had earned a victory.

The work of the local team was a revelation, not only to the visitors but to the crowd. It was thought that they would be badly beaten, and no such football was looked for as was handed out Saturday. The team had had really no practice to speak of since the Toronto game, but in the two workouts last week Dr. McPherson had accomplished wonders with the squad. They played grand Rugby throughout, and surprised everybody by their showing.

Dr. McPherson was at centre half and played a magnificent game, his work being marvellous when it is considered that he had little or no practice. He had a fine pair of hands and handled the ball superbly, while he seldom failed to gain when in possession of the ball. When on the defensive he relieved brilliantly on many occasions and was always in the thick of the play. Not only did he do grand work himself, but he threw ginger into his club mates, inspired them to do the best and steadied them at critical moments.

Crough, at full back, was reliable and effective at all stages and Quinlan at left half played a fine game, hitting the line hard and gaining ground on many pretty runs. Lundy at quarter was in the game all the way, his bucking being a feature.

The work of the entire wing line was magnificent. They gave their backs the best of protection, with the result that not a kick was blocked during the game. They followed up speedily, tackled well and had it on opposing line all the way. When it is considered that the T.A.A.C. line was made up of old Argonaut, Varsity and other senior players, and that they have had the advantage of constant practising and coaching, some idea of the good work of the local wings may be had. It is hard to particularize where every man played a fine game. Capt. O'Connor did some grand work at outside wing, and Fitzpatrick and Davidson were of yeoman service at middle wing. Fits had to look after Mara, the pick of the visitor's line, and he gave the ex-Argonaut man a busy afternoon. Dickson took care of Holden to perfection at inside wing, while on the other side of the scrimmage Deanard had the best of the argument with Grant. Jimmy Doris played his first O.R.F.U. game, and gave a good account of himself. The scrimmage, consisting of O'Brien, Clarke and Grady did splendid work, getting the ball out cleanly every time.

As has been said Pete Flett, gravely claimed by the Toronto press to be the greatest of all Canadian half backs, was on the visitors' line up. Where the merit of the title comes in is hard to see, for the only things conspicuous about him Saturday were his head gear and his pugilistic tendencies. It is stated that he is just back from the wilds of New Brunswick and he certainly acted like it. Every time he was tackled he wanted to scrap and he was generall accommodated. Flett served ten minutes on the penalty bench and did some fair punting and that let him out. Len Morrison and Roy Clarke both played nice rugby on the back division, and Allen Campbell, who by the way is a Peterborough boy did fine work at quarter. On the wing line Mara and Holden were the most prominent.

It was a grand exhibition of rugby with plenty of kicking and open playing and the crowd enjoyed it immensely with the exception of that "last awful" try. There were few fumbles on either side and the play was fast and hard throughout. The weather conditions were perfect being bright and sunshine with a fairly strong breeze from the north west.

The teams and officials were as follows—

The T. A. A. C. won the toss and McPherson kicked off at 2.35 against the wind. Clarke and McPherson exchanged punts with honours even. Flett broke away for a short gain and Morrison kicked over Peterborough's line. Crough however saved in brilliant fashion, his kick going into touch at centre. McPherson tore a nice dodging run but play continued around mid field. Fitzpatrick and Flett mixed it up and were given five minutes on the side lines. Peterborough got close on several occasions but there was no scoring. McPherson saved on one occasion when Morrison kicked over the line. Score at quarter time 0-0.

At the commencement of the 2nd quarter play hovered around centre for a while but the locals soon commenced to free matters. Short dashes into the line by Quinlan and McPherson advanced the ball to Toronto's 25 yard line from which point McPherson kicked over the dead line for a point, the first score of the match Score T. A. S. 1 T. A. A. C 0

Peterborough kept the play in Toronto's territory and had the visitors on the run McPherson kicked over the line and Flett had to rouge. Score T. A S 2, T A A C 0.

The visitors fought desperately but could not punt the ball even as far as centre. The locals ploughed ahead with bucks and short runs to their 25 yard line from whence McPherson tried to drop a goal. The ball went wide but rolled to the dead line for a point. Score T A S 3, T A A C 0.

There was no further scoring before half time, the feature of the remaining few minutes playing being a brilliant run of McPherson's on a punt from Morrison. Flett and O'Connor were benched for scrapping.

Kicking with the wind in the third quarter T A A C began to have a little more of the play. Good work however by McPherson and Crough relieved matters several times when the situation was dangerous. Once McPherson just managed to get outside before being nailed and Mara stole the ball and went over for a try which was not allowed. Finally Flett in attempting a drop goal from the thirty yard line kicked to the dead line for a point the visitors' first score. T A S 3, T A A C 1.

A moment after Flett kicked over again and Crough was forced to rouge after making a big effort to get out. Score T A S 3, T A A C 2.

Roy Clarke got away for a nice run and play was in Peterborough's territory again, but the T A A C wings got off side and the ball went back. There was however no further scoring uptil three quarter time.

At the beginning of the last quarter Peterborough forced matters. The quarter had hardly opened when McPherson kicked over the line to Morrison who was downed before he could get out. Score T A S 4, T A A C 2.

Flett got away for a good run but a pretty run by Quinlan followed by a nice dash by Lundy carried the ball back into Toronto's territory. McPherson added another to the total by kicking to the dead line. T A S 5, T A A C 2.

A moment latter he repeated the feat and the score was T A S 6, T A A C 2.

Flett made a long drop kick on the kick out and play was in centre field

McPherson punted to Flett and some of the Peterborough wings were offside. The penalty gave T A A C an opportunity and then followed Mara's sensational run which broke up the game Morrison failed to convert but the damage had been done. Score T. A. A. C. 7, T. A. S. 6

With four minutes to play the locals worked like demons to win back the lead they had held throughout. Crough kicked off well into T A A C territory and the play continued there. Morrison in relieving on a punt from McPherson kicked from behind his line and the T A A C wings failed to give "yards" when followed up. The locals claimed a scrimmage five yards out, but Referee McWilliams gave them a free kick from the point where the offside was committed at the 35 yard line. McPherson tried to drop a goal but the attempt fell short and the last chance was gone as time was called a moment later. Final score T A A C 7, T A S 6.

The result put Peterborough out of the running for the championship.

LONGBOAT BENNETT AND HANLAN HOWARD IN EXAMINER ROAD RACE

The Examiner road races take place one week from to-day, and judging by the way the entries are coming in, all previous successes will be surpassed this year. Great interest is being taken in the event, not only among the long distance runners of the county, but among the general public as well.

Among the senior entries which came in on Saturday were those of Hanlon Howard of Hiawatha, who is in grand shape and confident of making a good showing, and W. J. Bennett, the English lad who made such a good showing last year and who is at present living in Otonabee. He states that he has been training faithfully and feels in fine shape. Bennett finished fifth last year and counts on being closer to the tap next Monday. An entry from a dark horse in the person of M. Montgomery was included in Saturday's mail.

The Junior entries are also coming in well, the latest being from H. Patterson and V. Runnells. Competitors are asked to get their entries in at once. No entries will be accepted after noon on Saturday next and intending contestants are asked to bear that fact in bind.

AN ATHLETIC ORGANIZATION TO BE FORMED IN PETERBOROUGH

An athletic association to promote all branches of amateur sport in Peterborough is being discussed among several prominent local gentlemen interested in athletics, and the formation of such an organization is more than a probability. A local gentleman, who has played a prominent part in athletics here and elsewhere, has promised to do all he can for ther scheme, and the work of organization will be gone ahead with at once. It is proposed to form a Rugby club and elect officers at immediately, in order to have things in good shape for next season.

The new association will go in for hockey this winter, and junior and intermediate O.H.A. teams are being talked of and will, no doubt, be gone ahead with.

Such an association should be able to do grand work for sport in Peterborough. To have the different branches under one control would ensure more interest, more systematic management and produce better results. The matter of financing would be a much more simple matter. Some sports pay better than others, and if the same club controlled them all there would be less trouble looking after the financing.

President J. L. Mowat Expresses His "Utter Contempt" at the Manner in Which the Midland League Was Run—Makes Announcement "Once And Forever."

HIS TEAM RETAINS HONOUR

To the Sporting Editor of the Examiner.

In a recent issue of your valuable paper I noticed that the "Executive of the Midland Football League," had awarded the Examiner trophy to the Warsaw club. Their reasons for doing so was, "that Warsaw had won their protest against Warkworth, and that Warkworth had been written to repeatedly in an effort to arrange a final game, but had paid no attention whatever to the matter."

Nothing could be farther from the truth. What are the real facts of the case? They are these: "In the first place it was not the Midland League Executive that awarded the cup to Warsaw, but the Peterborough members of the executive. The other members had no say in the matter whatever." There we have error number one.

In the second place, Warsaw did not win their protest against the Warkworth Club. At a regularly called meeting of the executive, held in the Y.M.C.A., Peterborough, on Friday evening, August 14th, it was decided to throw out Warsaw's protest; and this is borne out by the fact that the Warkworth Club was handed back its five dollars, necessary to defend the protest. This constitutes error number two.

And thirdly, the Warkworth Club was not written to repeatedly in an effort to arrange a final game. There was only one letter written after the so-called executive meeting, at which it was decided to allow Warsaw's protest. That letter was written on September 9th and pointed out that Warsaw's protest had been allowed, and that the final game had to be played. We were asked to make arrangement with Warsaw. This comprises error number three. Instead of being written to repeatedly, as claimed, the Warkworth Club was only written to once.

Now, Mr. Editor, the above are the true facts and cannot be successfully denied. Seeing that Warsaw now has the cup, it is to be hoped that they are contented, although there cannot be much honour in a thing that was not won fairly and squarely. What they could not win in the field they have gained in the committee room.

With regard to re-playing the final game I would like to know why the Warkworth Club should be called upon to write to the Warsaw Club any more than should be Warsaw Club be compelled to write to the Warkworth Club.

I was not aware that that was one of the rules of the Midland League constitution. It may have been added since the annual meeting, as the executive have the power to add to or alter any rule they wish.

Now, sir, as first vice-president of the Midland Football League, I wish to express my utter contempt at the way in which the League has been carried on during the season of 1908, and as president of the Warkworth Football Club, let me announce once and forever that although Warsaw has the cup the Warkworth Club has the Midland League Football championship, and all the honour that goes with the same.

(Sgd.) J. L. MOWAT,
Pres. Warkworth Football Club.
Warkworth, Oct. 31st, 1908.

PETE FLEET GREATEST HALF-BACK IN GAME? NOT YET

Just how the Toronto journals justify their claim that Pete Flett is the greatest Canadian half-back is to say the least, somewhat hard to understand. Where do Ben Simpson, Art Moore, Ken Williams, Murray Kennedy, etc., come in? Flett can punt some, but so can half a dozen others, including Simpson, who can get a kick away with either foot in corners where Flett would be unable to beat the oval at all. In running and dodging ability the T.A.A.U. halfs must take second place to at least six others. And to end up with Flett hasn't the head or the control of himself to make a really great half-back. Any player that would make an exhibition of himself as Flett did here on Saturday has not much chance of being "the greatest of all Canadian half-backs."

BOWLING GAMES ARE ON TO-NIGHT

Munro's Colts Play Against Each Other at P. B. C. Alleys.

The first of a series of match games between two three man teams picked from Munro's Colts will be played this night at the P. B. C. alleys. Herb Martin, Ernie Bruce and Pete Lang will comprise one team, while their opponents will be Messrs. Huston, Dela Fosse and McRae. The series will consist of nine games, the first three of which will be played this evening, starting at 7.30. An oyster supper will be purchased by the losers.

The postponed game between the National team and the Munro Colts will probably be played some evening this week.

The games for this week at the P. B. C. alleys will consist of Thanksgiving turkeys, one each for the high score and the novice class.

Billy Wareham is in Hamilton this week and his work on the alleys should open the eyes of the natives there. Before leaving for Tiger Town he hung up three consecutive scores over the 200 mark.

The bowlers are beginning to worry over the question as to who is really the best trundler in Peterborough. The problem will be solved shortly, when another tournament will be held in which the singles will be made a feature.

There are said to be five thousand bowlers in Toronto, and something like twenty leagues are in existence.

Tommy Boyd hung up the high score for the week in Sudbury a short time ago and he received his prize by mail this morning.

A team comprising among others Geo. Lasthear, Hempstead and Geo. Cairns will go to Toronto on Thanksgiving Day for a match game with one of the leading teams there.

RUGBY

It seems that the questions as to who should reign as champions of the Senior Town League, cannot be settled on the baseball diamond, and the matter must be threshed out at a private meeting of the league. The last game, owing to a little disagreement which broke up the exhibition at the sixth innings, has been declared void, and President Watson has ruled that a meeting be called. Both sides, it is believed, will make a hard fight for honours, and the meeting promises to be more exciting than any game witnessed this season.—Lindsay Free Press.

INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS

FULTON'S RENAL COMPOUND

"Kidney trouble" is inflammation of the kidneys without albumen.

"Bright's Disease" is inflammation of the kidneys with albumen.

In each the real trouble is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, hence a cure for one must be a cure for the other. There has been no cure for either.

But many kidney troubled people get well.

True—because inflammation of the kidneys unless severe commonly gets well at first. But if it does not yield early and the inflammation persists, the real trouble begins.

You can see why kidney disease has been incurable and why the deaths have risen to over 170 per day—up to the discovery of Fulton's Renal Compound there was nothing known that would reduce inflammation in the kidney tissues.

The old kidney medicines were a misconception, irritating the inflamed kidneys to renewed efforts instead of allaying the inflammation, some of them being actually harmful. Result—physicians have abandoned them.

No matter whether you call it "kidney trouble," "Nephritis," or "Bright's Disease," if it has been hanging on a few months, recovery can be only hoped for through this specific. It has proven efficiency in nearly 97 per cent. of all cases. It is the only thing known that controls inflammation in the kidneys, which is the real difficulty with kidney troubled people.

DEER WERE ONCE AS PLENTIFUL IN THIS COUNTY AS ARE THE DOMESTICATED ANIMALS—STORY OF SIXTY YEARS AGO WHEN OUR FOREFATHERS HUNTED

Not as Much Interest in the Sport Then as Now—Thirty Years Ago They Were No More Numerous Than They Are Now—In The Days of Old.

"WHAT HAPPENED THEN"

Conversation at the market clerk's office changes as suddenly and as frequently as a gilded weathervane in an April breeze. Always interesting, always general and everybody getting in a word in turn it has become a regularity now for the same old crowd to gather around now and then to discuss the important questions of the day.

This morning someone introduced the subject of deer hunting and in the narratives that were related of bygone days there was more than one interesting bit brought forward. Mr. Ed. Bowie who lived in Otonabee Township 65 years ago casually remarked that in his boyhood, when all this country between the Kawartha Lakes and Rice Lake was overgrown with forests in their primeval state, still unravaged by the woodman's axe, at that time when the settlers were sparsely scattered here and there on newly broken ground the deer were as plentiful as cattle are to-day. They were to be seen at all times of the year and particularly in the autumn when the fields of wheat were taking on a golden tinge, they would be seen eating the ripened grain to which they showed decided partiality. Strange as it may seem, although the deer were exceedingly plentiful venison was not generally eaten. Now and then the people would make a meal of it, but only on rare occasions.

As time passed and the country was opened up by the increased population the deer fled within the boundaries of the receding woods, and 30 years ago they were hunted in practically the same places as now, and they did not appear to be more numerous.

Another of the market men said that 30 years ago the deer were more plentiful around Burleigh and Buckhorn and even farther south, this being the only difference from the present day.

EXAMINER WILL RECEIVE ELECTION RETURNS OVER MR. J. N. BARBER'S NEW YORK WIRE TO-NIGHT

The Examiner has made arrangements with Mr. J N Barber stock broker, to procure to-night the results of the elections in the United States. Mr. Barber has a direct line through to New York and will thus be able to obtain the correct results as soon as they are available. These will be bulletined at the Examiner office, beginning shortly after five o'clock at which time the polls close. Those who watch the bulletin boards at the Examiner will be assured of the best possible service which the public knows is always given them on similar occasions at the Examiner office. Whether it will be Taft or Bryan will be known very few seconds after it is made public in New York City. The results from New York State will likely be learned first.

MOTHER OF MRS. JOS. MAHER DIES SUDDENLY IN DAUGHTER'S ARMS

Word was received last night from Mr. Jos. Maher, who is in charge of the Lindsay branch of the firm of Lang & Maher to the effect that his wife's mother, Mrs. B Gilloghly, had died suddenly of heart disease just before the family were about to retire. Yesterday Mrs. Gilloghly was feeling as well as usual and had been enjoying good health. The members of the family were assembled in the sitting room when suddenly Mrs. Gilloghly halt raised herself from her chair and fell into her daughter's arms, dying almost instantly.

The deceased was 68 years of age and was born in Ireland, coming to Canada when a child. She was predeceased by her husband some years ago. The surviving children are Sister Ethelreda of Loretta Convent, Hamilton; Mrs. Jos. Maher, Lindsay; Mrs. Green, of Owasso, Mich, and Mr. Joseph Gilloghly. No funeral arrangements had been made last night.

Fair Directors Ask City Fathers To Purchase Exhibition Grounds

Messrs. Robt. Leary, H. C. Garbutt, Jas. R. Bell, J. J. Turner, Sr., and F. J. Hall composing a deputation representing the West Peterborough Agricultural Society, waited on the council, requesting the city to purchase the fair grounds. Mr. Leary, who introduced the subject, stated that this year the exhibition had been a success and as a result there is $600 in the treasury after all expenses had been met. The grounds are held under a lease of three years and as the owner may sell them at any time it would not be wise on the part of the directors to erect the buildings they require to bring the fair up to the standard desired. Mr. Leary stated that the society felt confident that they could continue the success of the exhibition in the future, but they must have proper equipment. He suggested that the city purchase the fair grounds and own them, allowing the society to use them at fair time. The directors would expend about $5,000 on stock and exhibit buildings and by other events during the year, Mr. Leary said, would soon get back the money expended. He presented a petition with some four hundred names attached, asking the city to buy the grounds for fair purposes. Many prominent business men were represented in the list and the merchants had assured Mr. Leary that they would make exhibits if a new building were erected, but would not trust their goods in the present "shack."

Mr. H. C. Garbutt pointed out that if the society ceases to exist another cannot be formed within twenty miles of the city.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Morrow the question was referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.

LITERARY EVENING AT KNOX CHURCH

Sketch of Life and Works of the Immortal Bobby Burns.

The Young Peoples' Society of Knox Church met last night. It was literary evening and Mr. Enos Maybee occupied the chair. Mr. John Barr, jr., gave a short sketch of the life and works of Robert Burns. The poems written by this well-known writer, were very well put forth by Mr. Barr, and one of Burn's songs was also sung by him. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Barr for his good and interesting readings. Next Sunday evening after the usual service the devotional meeting will be held as Monday is a public holiday.

Fox Makes Its Appearance On Queen Street This Morning

A fox in the back yard of a city residence is a visitor rarely met within the limits of Peterborough. Yet this morning a representative of the Reynard family strolled into the yard of Dr. Blanchard's residence, 380 Queen street much to the surprise and terror of several of the gentler sex to whom it first made its presence known. It had a collar and string attached to its neck and when the alarm was sounded very soon women and children were in hot pursuit of the uninvited stranger. Whenever, however, they closed in on the cunning animal it showed its teeth and easily put the ladies to rout. Finally it succeeded in eluding its numerous pursuers and made good its escape. It evidently has been tamed by someone and had been making a dash for liberty.

Celebrate Completion Of Half Century Of Married Life

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Reid, of 566 Smith street, celebrated their silver wedding last night, Monday, November 2nd. About fifty guests were present. Supper was served from one large table and several small ones. The drawing and dining rooms were beautifully decorated with palms and white chrysanthemums. The large table was centred by a basket of the same flowers, swathed in white chiffon and smilax. White ribbon streamers were taken from the centre of the room to the corners of the tables and fastened with bows and ferns. Among the out-of-town guests were:

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Welch and Miss Lula Welch, Mrs. Love, Mrs. Baldwin, Miss Winnifred Reid, all of Toronto; Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Clark, of Millbrook; Miss Ethel Farrow, of Goderich; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Reid, Mrs. Chas. Reid, Miss Gladys Reid, Mr. Bert Reid, of Newtonville; Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Manning were present. Miss Francis Manning and Miss Olive Howe gave several vocal selections, which were greatly appreciated by the guests present.

WEDDING BELLS

DISETTE—RISHEA

A quiet wedding was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning when Miss Leda Rishea daughter of Mr. Michael Rishea, was united in marriage to Mr. Frank Disette. They were attended by Miss Mulvena Rishea, sister of the bride, and Mr. Jos. Laplante. Wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents.

THE WEATHER

This fall has been a particularly dry one. The month of September had a rainfall locally of only 1 inch and 1-8. This small amount, however, is much greater that that of October. During the month just passed there were but three slight showers, the total amount on the level being only about 1-4 of an inch—to be exact 27-100 of an inch.

NEWFOUNDLAND ELECTIONS.

Newfoundland general elections reached the final stage yesterday —the stage of voting. We think in Canada that we have vigorous election campaign methods. We deplore the campaign of dirt throwing which we have just passed, but it was milk and wahter compared with the bitterness of the fight in Newfoundland. Nowhere else in civilization is a campaign conducted with the bitter ferocity which has marked the contest in Newfoundland. The politicians assail each other in the most extravagant and straight-flung terms of reprobation and the newspapers call a spade a spade with a vicious unction and voilence of vituperation beyond imagination in this country. What adds to the tension is the circumstance that, unlike ourselves the battle is not over when it is over. With us the battle is over the night of the polling. In Newfoundland the results are not known for days, and the excitement and bitterness continue unabated in the interval. Manhood suffrage is the base of qualification, and the ballot is secret, but with the object of preventing interference with the verdict of the election the counting of the ballots is not done at the booths where they are deposited, but the boxes of a district are taken to a central point and the counting is done there, in the presence of the candidates or their accredited agents. The general result is given out and there is no means of discussing how this or that polling subdivision voted—whether it came up to expectations or disappointed one or both parties. The Island is divided into 18 districts, with 36 seats, of which St. John's East, St. John's West, Placentia Bay, Harbor Grace, Trinity Bay, and Notre Dame Bay return three members each. Ferryland, Harbor Main, Bayde-Verde and Burin return two members each; and Port-de-Grave, Carbonear, Fogo, St. Barbe, St. George's, Burgeo and Fortune Bay return one member each.

The electorate is broadly divided into the people's party and the government party. The people's party in the present contest is composed of the regular Opposition and the followers of Sir Edwin Morris, who was chosen leader to fight the government forces. As a rule the campaign begins about August, but this time the battle has been in progress in full ferocity since last March. "Ferocity" is not too strong a word to characterize the desperate struggle that has been carried on for the seats of the mighty. Sir Robert Bond's basis of appeal consists of the claim that "he has saved the country from Reoid," and that during his eight years term of office, he has reduced expenditure some $170,000 per year, in spite of large expenditure for improved public service, with a cash reserve of half a million dollars. He also charges his opponents with plotting to bring the province into the Canadian Confederation. Sir Edwin Morris, the leader of the Opposition, claims the merit of a policy designed to improve the condition of the farmer, the miner, the fisherman and the mechanic, and sets his face as strongly as his opponent against the heresy of Confederation. It will be two or three days before the results of the election will be made known, but judged by the utterances of the leaders there will be no popular desire expressed for the addition of Newfoundland to the Dominion of Canada.

SOUTH AFRICA; FUSION OR FEDERATION?

Canadians will watch with sympathie interest the proceedings of the Durban convention, which has set itself to the task of realising the ideal of a united South Africa.

The federal system was the only possible means of uniting the Canadian provinces. Sir John Macdonald, with the American civil war in mind, favoured a legislative union, but he saw that conditions forbade it. In Australia, also, a federation was the only alternative, because of the refusal of the various colonies to surrender all their self-governing powers to a central authority. In South Africa, however, a different solution is probable.

It has been argued that South Africa is not rich enough to support four state parliaments in addition to the central parliament, and that the task of distinguishing between state and federal duties would be exceptionally difficult in such a country. The idea is that the provincial governments should be, not parliaments, but more like county councils, whose duty it would be to relieve the central government of detailed work which it could not perform, and also to provide the machinery for the execution of general acts. This was the plan which Sir John Macdonald personally favoured for Canada. It is understood that in Cape Colony, the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony, most active politicians of both white races favour fusion rather than federation. Neither natural, racial, nor economic differences divide these states from one another. Natal alone, with her mountain frontier, her more tropical climate her British supremacy and her particularist native policy, prefers federation.

One issue, which is bound to cause more trouble than any other, is the agreement upon any common policy regarding the natives, who number more than 5,000,000, as against a white population of a little over 1,100,000. In Cape Colony, and Cape Colony alone, are the blacks given a liberal measure of civil and political rights. At present 390,000 square miles of the 830,000 square miles, or more than a third of the whole of British South Africa south of the Zambesi are reserved for natives, and this raises another problem. A well-informed South African correspondent says that three native policies will be propounded at the convention:

1.—The policy of the smallest group, of whom Mr. Fisher, the prime minister of Orangia, and Mr. Wyburgh, M. L.A., of the Transvaal, are outstanding members, who would respect the reserves, while denying political rights to the natives in white areas.

2.—The policy of the Cape, which might or might not keep the reserves closed, but which would give the natives political rights on the same terms as the white colonists.

3—The policy of the great majority, who believe in both breaking down the reserves and denying natives anywhere in South Africa the right either to have a vote or to own fixed property. This, the largest class, would go even further, and bring all natives, with the possible exception of a few of their clergy, under the pass law and the poll tax. The former law includes a curfew act, and forbids any native to travel out of the farm, or the town, or the location in which he happens to reside, unless by the special permission of a white man.

He predicts that there will be immediate and universal rebellion on the part of the natives if the liberal policy of the Cape is abandoned under any scheme of union, and he says the Imperial Government should intervene to protect the natives against a sacrifice of their political rights by threatening to withdraw the protection of the British Navy.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Two-thirds of the area of the United States is under prohibition.

It should be a matter of interest to our authorities to take cognisance of the fact that in the recent widespread forest fires the damage to timber was greater in Canada than in the United States.

Rt. Hon. Sidney Buxton, the British Postmaster-General, offers a prize for a design of a most atristic telegraph or telephone pole. Here we would rather see a prize offered for a design to provide for the disappearance of all poles from the streets. The hostility to telephone, telegraph and electric wires should be carried to the extent of burying them out of sight for ever.

The Ottawa Journal during the election contest could give the Government no credit for its promise to place ernment for its promise to place the the Department of Labour in charge of a Minister of the Crown. The success of the Government in the general elections changes its point of view and we now have the Journal stating: "By all means let us have a Minister of Labour, in recognition of the dignity of labour and its cardinal importance in the scheme of things Canadian. But there is no reason for a numerical increase in the membership of the Cabinet. Some Ministers have much less than enough to do. The duties of one of them might very easily be tacked to those of the Labour Department, as the Labour Department to-day is tacked on to the Post Office Department." But the Journal surrenders, with ill grace. Instead of having a Labour Department independent it hints at placing the interests of labour in a subordinate position.

KEEP THE HEAD UNCOVERED

The Constant Wearing of a Hat ProPogates Dandruff Germs

There are many men who wear their hats practically all the time when awake, and are blessed with a heavy shock of hair; yet, if the scalps of these same men once became infested with dandruff germs, the parasites would multiply all the quicker for lack of hair. Baldness would ensue as the final result. Newbro's Herpicide kills these germs and stimulates unhealthy hair to abundant growth. Herpicide is a pleasant hair dressing, as well as a dandruff cure, and contains not an atom of injurious substance. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes — 50c and $1. McDonald & Jury and Payne's Drug Store, special agents.

THE FISHING TRIP WAS CONCLUDED

Mr. Chas. Butcher Did Not Remain for Shooting at Eagle Lake.

Mr. Chas Butcher has returned from Eagle Lake where with Mr. S. Mitchell he has spent the last three weeks fishing. They had great success, particularly at trout fishing, and Mr. Butcher brought down a fine lot smoked and prepared at their camp. Mr. Mitchell lost a bamboo pole while the trout splintered before he had handled it long.

LABOUR CONDITIONS IN THE CITY

Monthly Report of Ald. J. W. Johnston in the Labour Gazette—September More Active Than Usual.

BRICKLAYERS ARE ACTIVE

The report on labour conditions during the month of September as reported by Ald. W. J. Johnston, in the Labour Gazette:

September has been an active month for the outside building trades. Progress on the new Roman Catholic Church, on the new drill hall and skating rink was rapid. Two other churches, to cost respectively $10,000 and $7,000, were started, and a number of new dwellings and considerable repair work were under way. The construction of new sidewalks and the laying of new waterworks mains gave employment to a large number. Cordage, canoe and woollen factories, flour mills and saw mills were fairly active, but the iron trades were dull. Transportation was active. Banks reported a good local trade. The Industrial Fair was one of the most successful held, a surplus being declared for the first time in many years.

Local Industries

Agriculture — Harvesting was completed and threshing was in progress. The crop has been up to expectation. The long-continued dry weather has caused difficulty in raising the root and potato crop. Rain is badly needed.

Lumbering — Operations in the camps will not be as extensive this winter, as stocks in the yards are large.

Mining—Dullness prevailed.

Railway construction, etc.—A large number of men were employed on the several canal sections.

Particular Trades

Bricklayers and masons were busy. Other branches of the building trades were active, though plasterers were becoming slack. The iron trades were quiet, though employees in the lockworks were active. Other metal trades were active. Car workers and pattern makers were dull; the other branches in the woodworking trades were active, with carriage makers busy. The printing trades, especially during the latter half of the month, were active, as were also the clothing, food and tobacco preparation, leather and miscellaneous trades. Railway workers were exceptionally active and steamboat employees were busy on freight traffic. Cab drivers, teamsters, etc., were busy. Unskilled labour was active.

District Notes

General.—The annual fall fairs have been a pronounced success, exhibits being numerous and of exceptionally good quality. Some large sales of cheese were made at prices as high as 2 9-16 cents per pound. Country stores, sawmills and grist mills reported a good business.

Lindsay.—Carew's sawmill has been rebuilt.

Whitby.—Tenders for the new postoffice have been invited.

Council's Regular Session Saw Much Civic Business Finished

Routine Business Besides Special Deputations—New Style of Snow Plough Submitted—Local Firm Wants Better Fire Protection—Mr. M. Carton's Request.

The Council in their regular session last night dispatched considerable business and are paving the way to concluding the season's work and the present term. There were present Mayor Rush, Ald. Phelan, Morrow, McIntyre, Gillespie, Bradburn, Buller, Morgan, Elliott and Johnston.

Communications

The following communications were dealt with:

From the Preston Car and Coach Company, Limited, of Preston, Ont., submitting blue print of new design of snow plough, asking the council to consider its acceptability for use in Peterborough.—Referred to Board of Works.

From E H Mann, of the Mann Lumber Company, asking for the approval of plan No. 128, which has been recently improved. Its lots are being sold, hence the necessity for immediate action.—Received.

From T F Matthews, asking the city to place a four way hydrant in front of their factory on George street as required by the recent examination made by the Fire Underwriters' Association.—Referred to Fire Water and Light Committee.

From the Superintendent of the C.P.R. at Havelock, asking for hydrant south of the tracks at the local station and west of George street.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From Allan McCarthy, asking that the city remit the sum of four dollars which was lost by him in the delay of the work of moving a house on Water street last August, caused by the street inspector and Mr. Elliott. The money is to cover last time and increased expense for bars he had to purchase. — Board of Works.

From T Kinnear & Co., asking that a drain be laid on Dalhousie street to carry off the surplus water that collects around the warehouse in spring and flows into the cellar. The Company sustained a loss last year but asked for no damages, but if it should happen in the future they will present a claim.—Board of Works.

From the Board of Health recommending the construction of a sewer on Dublin street from Water street to a point 120 feet east of Water street, for the purpose of draining that locality.

From Osias de Laplante, asking on behalf of Mrs. E Ward and Mr. N T Laplante for permission to construct a sewer from the street to the rear of lot 4, south of Murray street and west of George street, along the lane situated there.—Received.

A petition signed by residents of Smith and George streets was presented, asking for an arc lamp at the intersection of these streets.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Bylaws

The following bylaws received their necessary readings:—

Bylaw 1417, to approve the registration of the improved plan, No. 128.

Bylaw 1418, a bylaw authorizing construction of sewers on certain streets and parts of streets.

Bylaw 1419, a bylaw authorizing the construction of sewer on Water street as petitioned.

Bylaw No. 1420, a bylaw authorizing the Commissioners of the City Trust to grant the leases of certain land between the rear of the buildings east of market and the sidewalk on that side.

Statement of Roll

Tax Collector W J Green presented the following statement of roll ending 31st Oct., 1908:

To total amount on roll	$159,356.66
By amount deposited	116,644.62
Balance	$43,712.04
Less disc't on 1st payment	2,290.45
Balance	$41,421.59

Total amount collected and deposited during month of October, $2,136.57.

That Sherbrooke St. Lamp

A petition from Mr. Herb T. Stillespie and eighteen other residents of Sherbrooke street was read, asking the council not to move the arc lamp at present situated in front of Dr. Gray's residence. Mayor Rush remarked that the council wished to acquiesce in all the desires of the people, and if the majority desired no change in the lighting of the street it were best to arrange it in that manner. He suggested that some of the Fire, Water and Light Committee see the residents of that neighbourhood and settle the question favourably for all parties concerned.

Fire Hall Matters

A motion introduced by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Buller, was carried, giving Chief Howard authority to engage a call boy at $10 a month. He will have to be at the fire hall whenever an alarm has been sent in to answer the telephone, look after the electric alarm system and take care of the hall in the absence of the firemen. Ald. Buller said that when two alarms were sent in within a short time of each other someone was needed at the hall to direct the men on their return from the first. Moreover, in their absence, the small boys made themselves at home, and turned the place upside down.

Ald. Morgan wanted to know who was going to be appointed and stated that he wanted to see the son of a ratepayer of the town get it. Ald. Buller informed him that three or four had been asked to take it, but refused. Chief Howard's son will likely receive it temporarily.

Mr Carton's Request

Mr. M. Carton wanted the council to extend Aylmer and Princess streets, in order to have a house he recently erected near a street. Access to it at present is over private property. He has lost about $40 in rent so far, and would like to have the streets extended for his own benefit and the opening up of the property would mean increased building.

Horses—not yet but Soon

A new team of horses for the fire hall is asked for to replace a team now in use. The transaction will not likely take place until after Christmas, Ald. Morrow being cautious on behalf of the Financial Committee, and Ald. Morgan suggesting that the team be bought by a man knowing good horseflesh and not have the city held up again.

Reports of Committies

The report of the Committee of the Whole Council was presented as follows:—

In view of the reports received from the City Engineer regarding the Smith street bridge, we gave instructions that the bridge be placarded giving notice that heavy loads must not be taken over it, and also gave instructions that frequent inspections be made of it, and recommend that a bylaw be submitted to the electors at the time of the January elections authorising the erection of a new bridge.

We instructed the Street Commissioner to have the poplar tree on the south-west corner of Sheridan and Brock streets cut down.

We instructed the City Engineer to have the owners of a pole on George street, south of Charlotte street, on which there was no wire, to remove it or to have it removed on the consent of the owners.

We instructed the City Solicitor that if the Railway Commission would not issue the order in regard to the Grand Trunk Railway sidings on Bethune street, as at first agreed upon, to say that the city preferred the second order submitted, which seemed to be most in the interests of the city.

We recommend that a granolithic sidewalk be built on the east side of Rogers street in front of the House of Providence and St. Joseph's Hospital if a petition authorizingly signed is presented.

Finance Committees

Ald Morrow presented the report of the Finance Committee as follows:

We recommend that the City Solicitor be instructed to take action against Conrad Schwardt for the cost of the maintenance of his son in the Victoria Industrial School.

We recommend that a grant of $50 be made to the Peterborough Poultry Association towards the expenses of an exhibition to be held by the Association.

We recommend that $30 be paid to the selectors of Jurors in accordance with the certificate of the Clerk of the Peace.

We recommend that the City Treasurer be authorized to issue a cheque to Mrs. D McMahon for $6.44 for taxes paid in error by her on pt. blk. w., east Concession street, and that the City Treasurer be instructed to charge the taxes against the property that was assessed for it, if that can be now done.

We recommend that no action be taken on the matter of the Chief Constable regarding an extension telephone in his residence.

Your Committe have received an offer from the Bank of Toronto to carry the city accounts for the year 1909, and they will allow us on all credit balances 3 3-4 per cent. on debit balance up to the amount of the combined credit balances 4 3-4 per cent. to be charged and for all amounts in excess the rate to be 5 per cent. We consider this a highly satisfactory offer, and recommend that it be accepted by the council.

Stanfield's Underwear

(Chapter 1)

A Talk by the Maker to the Wearer.

The Wool

Stanfield's Underwear is made of the best wool that grows on the best wool-bearing sheep in the world—the long, silky-fibred Nova Scotia wool.

The founder of the Stanfield mills did more than anyone else to develop the wool industry throughout the Maritime Provinces. For half a century, the farmers of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island have saved their best wool for the Stanfields—first for C. E. Stanfield—and now for his sons, John and Frank, the President and Treasurer of Stanfields Limited.

The wear of a garment depends on the quality of wool from which it is made. Underwear may be PURE WOOL, and ALL WOOL—and still shrink, ravel and wear out in a single season. Because the underwear is not made of good wool in the first place.

There are seven grades of wool in the fleece when clipped from Nova Scotia sheep. Only the first three grades of this best wool are used in making Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear for men and women.

There are no weak spots in the fibre to break in the garments.

There can be no unraveling, because every stitch is locked.

Garments can't shrink, because of our perfected process of treating the wool BEFORE garments are woven, thus insuring absolutely Unshrinkable Underwear.

In all sizes from 32 to 70 inch chest measure. In three winter weights—RED label for light weight—BLUE label for medium weight—BLACK label for heavy weight.

Your dealer probably has all sizes and weights in stock. If not, he can easily get whatever you wish.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE CONFERENCE

Some of the Best Y. M. C. A. Boys in Ontario to be Here This Week.

The Boys' Conference which will be held next Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the Y.M.C.A. has something of an educational character for the boys of Peterborough who attend. Mr. Evans, the Boys' Secretary here, is in receipt of communications from some of the cities from which representatives will come and he expects more to-day. Arrangements have been made with the local churches to billet the visiting young men in private houses while they are here.

The conference gives the boys in the city a splendid opportunity to meet and associate with Y.M.C.A. boys from various parts of Ontario. Among those who will be here are Mr. Frank Ritchie, Toronto, Canadian Boys Secretary who will arrive on Friday. He was formerly State Secretary for New York State, with headquarters in Harlem, N. Y. Mr. C. M. Copeland, Provincial Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and Mr. C. C. Robinson, State Secretary of Boy's Work in Maine, will also attend. On Sunday afternoon the meeting will be held in the Conservatory of Music Hall, and judging from the manner in which the boys are working this will be filled to the doors. There will be three or four speakers including Mr. Robinson and the music will be given by the George Street Church orchestra.

YOU NEED FEAR IT NO LONGER

Gravel Warded Off and Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Manitoba Man Tells How His Urinary Troubles Vanished Before the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

Hamelik, Man., Nov. 2.—Special.—Probably there is no disease to which man is heir that causes such a general dread as gravel, or stone in the bladder. The frightful pains it brings and the terrible operations it necessitates cause a shudder of apprehension whenever it is mentioned. But there is really no reason why any man or woman should fear gravel. It is purely and simply a kidney disease, and as such can be either cured or guarded against by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Take the case of Mr. Calvin R. Snyder, well known here. He says:

"In the spring of 1907 I was almost laid up from a lame back and was also troubled with excessive urination. I got a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and used them with satisfactory results. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best kidney medicine I ever heard of."

If you follow Mr. Snyder's example and use Dodd's Kidney Pills for slight urinary disorders, you will never be troubled with gravel. If you have gravel, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure you.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITIONS

—All cities over the Province are preparing for their exhibition, and Peterborough is no exception to the rule. It is the time we meet our old and new friends, and those who are not our friends. It is also the best time for the introduction of the newest and smartest outs in fall suits and where they can be shown to the greatest advantage. The New York Ladies' Tailoring establishment have removed their parlours and workshop from 658 George street to 387 Reid street, opposite St. Peter's Cathedral, for the better accommodation of their patrons, and are prepared to take orders in any line of ladies garments. INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS

FULTON'S RENAL COMPOUND

"Kidney trouble" is inflammation of the kidneys without albumen.

"Bright's Disease" is inflammation of the kidneys with albumen.

In each the real trouble is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, hence a cure for one must be a cure for the other. There has been no cure for either.

But many kidney troubled people get well.

True—because inflammation of the kidneys unless severe commonly gets well at first. But if it does not yield early and the inflammation persists, the real trouble begins.

You can see why kidney disease has been incurable and why the deaths have risen to over 170 per day up to the discovery of Fulton's Renal Compound there was nothing known that would reduce inflammation in the kidney tissues.

The old kidney medicines were a misconception, irritating the inflamed kidneys to renewed efforts instead of allaying the inflammation, some of them being actually harmful. Result—physicians have abandoned them.

No matter whether you call it "kidney trouble," "Nephritis," or "Bright's Disease," if it has been hanging on a few months, recovery can be only hoped for through this specific. It has a proven efficiency in nearly 87 per cent. of all cases. It is the only thing known that controls inflammation in the kidneys, which is the real difficulty with kidney troubled people.

"The Council To Finish Its Work"—The Public Library Is Now Assured After Last Night

Mr. Richard Hall and Members of Council Agree on First Steps—Monument of Late Mrs. Nicholls To Be Placed in Central Park

MOST SATISFATORY MEETING

As the present civic term nears its completion there is one question which the council has long been considering but has not as yet been able to act upon namely, the provision of a public library. From what transpired at the regular meeting last night it looks as if this will be their grand swan song for the year which is fast drawing to a close and they will "finish their work" by inaugurating the actual preparation for the securing of a desirable location, plans and other details.

Mr. Richard Hall waited on the council last night regarding the matter and was heard before the Committe of the Whole.

In company with Ald. Bradburn Mr. Hall visited Galt, Brantford and St. Catharines on a recent trip and the building in the latter town appealed most to them. It had cost $25,000 but now is proving too small, especially the stock room, which is not large enough to accommodate the increasing number of books. Mr. Hall stated that a location which has won his favour for a new library is the lot on the south-east corner of George and McDonel streets. Another feature is that it could be a two storey building with the library on the ground floor, the second being utilized for a museum instead of a lecture hall.

"It is a pity that our museum is not in the centre of the town," Mr. Hall said. "We have more curios in one room than in the entire museum of Brantford. Ours is too complete and fine a museum to be kept from the public and is an educational institution that should be shared in by all the citizens and this would be better accomplished were the building centrally located."

Carnegie Grant

Then followed a general discussion in which it was brought out that by accepting Carnegie's grant nothing was stipulated by the latter excepting the town's share towards the cost of erection and the endowment. Mr. Hall considered that the library should bear Mrs. Nicholls' name. The discussion turned to the erection of a monument and Mr. Hall stated that if one were secured it would meet with his approval if sufficiently large. Mr. Hall remarked that a most desirable location would be in Central Park, and placed in a prominent position in the park. The model of Mrs. Nicholls, prepared by Miss Wallis, seems to meet with general satisfaction, and if the monument be made one-third larger than life size and placed on a sufficiently high pedestal it would be most acceptable. Mr. Hall expressed his approval of the idea, and the members of the committee were much pleased with it.

Important Motion

The question was decided by the following motion by Messrs. Johnston and Elliott, "That Mr. Rich. Hall, having expressed his acquiescence in the arrangement, we recommend that the building on Simcoe street be given by the executors of the Nicholls estate, be sold and the proceeds used for purchasing a site for, equipping and adding to the endowment for a public library and for the purpose of erecting a monument; that the offer of Mr. Andrew Carnegie to furnish sufficient money to erect a building for a public library be accepted, and that a monument to the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls be erected in such place as Mr. Hall will choose, with an inscription on the base setting out what has been given to the city by Mrs. Nicholls and the executors of her estate.

Also that the Property Committee be instructed to have plans for a public library building prepared and an estimate of the cost, and also to procure options on sites and to report at an early date."

The motion was carried unanimously.

Ald. Morgan said that several months ago the council had secured an option on the lot mentioned.

Ald. Morrow and Phelan emphasized the desirability of dealing with the matter at once and the council will likely have favourable reports at an early meeting.

FOR TEN DOLLARS HE GIVES AWAY A PINT OF HIS BLOOD

Needy Man From Mills Hotel Comes to the Rescue of a Dying Boy in Bellevue Hospital, and Success of Operation Seems Assured.

MOST REMARKABLE EVENT

Examiner Special

New York, Nov. 2.—Sixteen ounces of blood were transfused yesterday from the arteries of Mark Owen, 32 years old, a resident of the Mills Hotel, into the veins of John Dennison, 16 years old, a patient in Bellevue Hospital, suffering from a bone tumour in the left shin bone. The operation was performed by Prof. Hartwell and Dr. M. J. Johnson, with cocaine as a local anaesthetic, and the flow from the arterial system of the giver to the venious system of the receiver was continued from 11 o'clock in the morning until 1.30 in the afternoon.

Notwithstanding the loss of such a quantity of blood, Owen was able to rise unassisted, and after he had partaken of two raw eggs and an ounce of brandy, he walked out of the hospital as vigorously as when he entered. A ten dollar bill in his pocket was the reward for his sacrifice. He experienced a sensation of languor, and was not quite as ruddy as he was before the operation, but otherwise his physical condition was normal.

Owen was selected from among half a dozen candidates in the hotel willing to yield up their blood for a consideration. A physical examination proved him to be sound in all the vital organs, and the character of his pulse indicated that he was what is popularly known as "full blooded." He was directed to go to Bellevue on Friday night. There he underwent a second examination. His blood was tested and found to contain the full percentage of hemaglobin and healthy red corpuscles.

Owen not Distressed

At 11 o'clock he was taken to the operating theatre and placed alongside the body whose life depended on his assistance. Prof. Hartwell, Dr. Brown, two assistants and a nurse were in readiness. Cocaine was injected into the forearm of Owen, and when sensation had been deadened, an incision was made in the radial artery, and the fine pointed nozzle of a cannula,—a pipe-like device used in such operations—was inserted. The other end was introduced into one of the large veins in the arm of the boy. The anaesthetic had been applied previously, so the boy did not experience any more sensation than he would feel in the cutting of a finger nail.

As soon as the connection between the two bodies was made the pressure on the supply pipe was released and Owen's heart began to pump the blood into the veins of the boy. There was a slight paling of Owen's face and a corresponding flush in the face of the boy. When first placed on the operating table the latter was almost moribund. His pulse was barely perceptible. Respiration was irregular and weak. Within an hour after the vital fluid from the arteries of the strong man began to course through his veins his pulse became stronger, his eyes brighter and he breathed more naturally. The flushing of his face indicated that a perfect circulation had been established.

The flow was shut off at intervals so that the boy's heart might accommodate itself to the new conditions it was called upon to perform. At 1.30 o'clock Prof. Hartwell gave the signal to "cease pumping."

Effect was Magical

"You had better lie still for a couple of hours," said one of the assistants to Owen. "You are likely to feel weak for a little while."

"Oh, I'm all right," said Owen, putting his feet to the floor and getting up. "I guess I don't want to lie down. I think I'll be getting across town," and with that he dressed himself and walked out.

At 10 o'clock last night Dennison was in tip top condition and announced his intention of leaving the hospital within twenty four hours. This will not be permitted, because of the serious nature of his disease, which is cancerous.

REV. POGUE PREACHES IN OTONABEE

Delivers Two Impressive Addresses in the Presbyterian Church.

Examiner Special

Omemee, Nov. 2.—Rev. Mr. Pogue, of St. Paul's church, Peterborough, conducted the anniversary services at Omemee in a most impressive manner. The two stirring addresses caused the large audiences to join in the services heartily. The solos sung by Miss Robinson, of Norwood, pupil of Miss Davies, of Peterborough, was much appreciated, her clear voice and clear enunciation being excellent. Miss Parsons, solo contrito, of Omemee, was also well received.

Emily township gave a majority of 12 against Col. Sam Hughes.

HOME-MADE BLOOD REMEDY

Cures the Kidneys and Makes Them Filter Poisons From the Blood.

YOU MIX THIS YOURSELF

You will look a long time before you find a more effective blood medicine than the following recipe: Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

It cleans the blood of all impurities and nourishes the blood. In just a few days the skin begins to clear of sores, boils and pimples. It puts vigor and energy into run-down, debilitated men and women. For many years Sarsaparilla alone has been considered a good blood medicine. But while it built up and made new blood, the impurities remained within and the good accomplished was only temporary. Sarsaparilla, however, when used in combination with Compound Kargon and Extract Dandelion, works wonders. This combination puts the kidneys to work to filter and sift out the waste matter, uric acid and other impurities that cause disease. It makes new blood and relieves rheumatism and lame back and bladder trouble.

The ingredients cost but little and are easily mixed at home. Every man and woman here should make some up and try it if they feel their system requires a good blood medicine and tonic.

Everything is Running Smoothly—Production Bound to be a Hit.

Great interest is being taken in the production of "All the Comforts of Home," under the auspices of the Peterborough Hockey Club, at the Grand Opera House to-night and to-morrow night, and there promises to be two bumper houses. The final rehearsal was held at the Grand last night, and the production was most smoothly staged. It is bound to make a hit to-night, as the play is a most clever bit of nonsense and the parts are in the hands of clever local people, who are making the most of them. Many choice musical numbers will be interpolated and the whole performance will be well worth seeing. It will be put on under the direction of Mr. Irving Beers, and the stage management of Mr. Geo. Lynch.

ONE BAD MISTAKE

It's a serious mistake to neglect backache. Backache is the first symptom of kidney ills. Fatal complications may follow. Booth's Kidney Pills act quickly to overcome kidney ills, do not delay until too late, it may mean Diabetes, Bright's Disease. Read what a Peterborough resident says.

Mrs. R. Duncan, of No. 115 McDonel street, Peterborough, Ont., says: "Some thirteen years ago I suffered with a severe attack of la grippe that had until this spring left me in a weakened and miserable condition. The kidneys had been disordered through this and became so inactive that doctors had pronounced it Bright's Disease, and termed my case incurable. My back was very weak and the pains across the kidneys were most excruciating. The urine was highly coloured and contained a quantity of whitish sediment. I had become so discouraged through my years of suffering that I had no care for anything. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at the Market Drug Store and I tried them. The first box convinced me of their merits. I used five boxes of the remedy and I have been entirely cured. I am like a new person, well and strong and can sleep through the night and awake refreshed and ready for the day."

Music and Drama

THE SHEFFIELD CHOIR

Little has been said about the soloists who accompany the Sheffield Choir on their notable journey across the Atlantic, and who will be here in a few days' time. Dr. Coward, in his great potentiality has a force of soloists regularly attached to his chorus, and they are artists who have been practically trained by him, and who are inspired with his spirit, and are, therefore, looked upon as among the most accomplished interpreters of part songs and the higher examples of oratorio in Great Britain. This force is one of the great assets of the Sheffield Choir. While an Albani at her best, or a Clara Butt might bring the lustre of a great name, it is safe to say that for the especial effects obtained by Dr. Coward his soloists are equally as fine, and this fact is now recognized in England, where the Sheffield solo artists are in great demand. Among them may be mentioned Miss Emily Breare, soprano, who has been the solo artist during the past season in no less than sixteen notable oratorios. Of her singing at Queen's Hall the London referee said: "Her finished singing came as the visit of an angel of light. She has a beautiful perfectly produced voice that is evidently dominated by artistic intuition and fostered by judicious training."

The principal tenor, Mr. Henry Brearley, now divides with Ben Davis the leading oratorio engagements in England, and there is hardly any work of note in which he has not sung.

Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, principal contralto, is a splendidly equipped artist, who is the granddaughter of the celebrated Hungarian prima donna, Madame Peschka-Leutner. Though of foreign extraction she was born in England, but educated both in France and Germany. Her voice is frequently compared to that of Madame Patey.

Miss Eleanor Coward, soprano, is a daughter of the conductor, and is herself a choral conductor. She has a fine flexible absolutely trained voice.

Miss Kathleen Frankish, soprano; Miss Clara North, soprano; Mr. Robert Charlesworth, baritone, who refused the principal engagement of the Norwich Festival to come to Canada; Mr. William Racock, baritone, and Mr. H. Furth, tenor, are all well known artists.

The Sheffield Choir comes to Peterborough on Thursday, of next week.

Candidates Wind Up Fight and Balloting Is On.

RETURNS WILL BE EARLY

Heavy Vote Will Be Polled Throughout the States—Bryan Gives His Last Message at Marysville, Kansas, and Taft at Youngstown, Ohio—"Beaten to a Frazzle," Says President Roosevelt.

New York, Nov. 3.—With election day at hand, with fair weather and a heavy vote indicated throughout the United States, the rival managers of the Republican and Democratic national campaign closed their desks at headquarters last night, declared respectively that Taft and Bryan would win, and then hurried away on late trains to cast their ballots, Mr. Hitchcock at West Newton, Mass., and Mr Mack at Buffalo. Both will return here to receive the returns.

The polls in New York city opened at six o'clock this morning and will close at six to-night. The same rule holds out in practically every part of the state, and the indications are that the New York State vote will be he first to be flashed over the wires to-night as giving an indication of how the election is to go. This at least will be true of the counties and cities outside of greater New York. Voting machines are extenaively used up the state and the results will be known almost as soon as the polls close.

Marysville, Ks., Nov. 3.—W. J. Bryan concluded his campaign of the State of Kansas and of the United States before an enthusiastic audience here last night. It was the last political speech, his address at Lincoln being non-partisan.

Mr. Bryan realized it was the concluding political speech of the campaign, and his peroration was delivered with all the earnestness at his command, and as he declared that he had given an impulse to honest politics and helped to create a sentiment in favor of reform, he was wildly applauded by the large audience.

The following is the conclusion of the last campaign speech of 1908 made by Mr. Bryan:

"If I enter the White House, I shall enter it free to keep the pledges I have made, free to serve with singleness of purpose.

"If I am elected I shall for four years devote whatever energy I have and whatever ability I possess to the one object of making this Government again a Government in which the people rule, and under which every citizen shall draw from society a reward proportionate to the service which he renders to his fellow men."

Youngstown, Ohio, Nov. 3.—The last word of his campaign has been spoken by William Howard Taft, and he left last night for Cincinnati to cast his vote.

"Vote the Republican ticket and preserve prosperity, protection to American industries, business integrity and the rights of labor."

This was the message with which Mr. Taft finished his fight.

The six and one-half hour's Judge Taft spent in Youngstown were crowded with political events, resplendent with the pomp and show of party organizations and a carnival of hilarity, noise and abandon by the populace to the occasion.

Oyster Bay, Nov. 3.—His own feeling of extreme confidence was thus expressed yesterday by President Roosevelt when in speaking of the campaign he declared, "We've got them beaten to a frazzle."

Martyrs of Free Trade.

London, Nov. 3.—The Daily Express deals with the problem of the unemployed and denies that protected countries suffer as badly as free trade Britain suffers when times are hard. "The pitiful unemployed processions in our streets are," it argues, "the condemnation of Cobdenism. Men who might be useful and happy mechanics are demoralized into hopeless casual laborers, each month less capable of any real work. They are the victims of an antediluvian theory —the martyrs of free trade."

Elections in Newfoundland.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 3.—General elections were held throughout the colony yesterday, following a bitter campaign.

The Government of Sir Robert Bond is opposed by the People's party, led by Sir Edward Morris, formerly a member of Premier Bond's Cabinet. As the ballots in all the polling places are not counted where they are cast the result of the elections will not be known before to-night.

Blenheim Boy Drowns.

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 3.—Sidney Burke of Blenheim was drowned yesterday afternoon while boating on Rond Eau Bay, 18 miles south of here. His boat was upset by a gust of wind.

IRREGULARITIES DISCOVERED

Impersonation, Bribery and Use of Whisky Are Said to Have Taken Place In All Parts of the Riding —Case of a Chabot Exhibits Signs of Crookedness — Recount Has Been Ordered.

North Bay, Nov. 3.—The declaration of Returning Officer Browning yesterday gave Mr Gordon, Conservative, twenty-one majority over Mr. McCool, Liberal, in Nipissing. Mr. McCool has, through his solicitors, McGaughey & McCurry, ordered a recount to take place at once, because of alleged irregularities at numerous polls, including impersonation, bribery and the use of whisky in all quarters. At Markstay the Liberals claim that A. Chabot came into the polling place to vote, and was followed by Angus McMaster. McMaster told the deputy returning officer he wanted Chabot sworn, so that he could have him arrested afterwards. This in the presence of Chabot. The deputy returning officer objected to giving a ballot to Chabot because his name was spelt with a "O" on the list, claiming it should be spelled with an "8." After considerable persuasion the oath was finally read to Chabot, but Chabot was urged by the deputy returning officer not to take the oath on the ground that he could not truthfully do so. Chabot finally became intimidated and left without voting. Several parties who were not on the authorized lists were allowed to vote. Up north at one poll it is reported the deputy returning officer allowed anybody presenting himself to vote, whether on the list or not.

C. A. M'COOL,
Who Will Seek a Recount in Nipissing.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Nov. 3.—C. A. Hengerer, son of the late William Hengerer, and former vice-president of the William Hengerer Co., one of the largest department stores in Buffalo, committed suicide here yesterday afternoon by jumping into the river and going over the Falls.

Hengerer was seen wading into the river at a point about 75 feet above the brink of the Falls by Edwrad King of Walden, Mass. King rushed to the place where Hengerer went into the river and tried to save him. Hengerer threw himself forward into the swift current and was swept over the Falls.

Italian at Minto, N. B., in Frenzy Stabs Two Men.

BOTH VICTIMS MAY DIE

After Visiting at House of Russian Miner One of the Injured Men Begins to Dance With Wife of His Host, Whereupon Italian Flies Into a Rage and Attacks the Visiter With His Knife.

Fredericton, N.B., Nov. 3.—A serious stabbing affray occurred at Minto, Sunbury County, Sunday night, in which an Italian miner named John Endine was the assailant and John McKay and Ghristopher Pettley the victims. McKay was stabbed fifteen times and Pettley seven, and at last accounts both were lying at the point of death. The fracas took place at the home of a Russian miner. McKay and Pettley, who were on friendly terms with the Russian, called at his home during the evening, and while preparing to depart McKay caught hold of the Russian's wife and began whirling her around the room. Endine, who was a boarder at the house, became incensed at McKay's conduct, and, seizing a shotgun which was standing in the corner, made for him. At this stage Pettley interfered and took the gun away from the Italian, who by this time had his anger thoroughly aroused, and, whipping out a knife, he stabbed Pettley seven times in the body and legs. McKay went to the assistance of his friend, and was stabbed fifteen times in the region of the abdomen by the infuriated Italian. After he had done the stabbing Endine made his escape, but was captured later.

McKay is a native of Scotland, and is between sixty and seventy years of age. He had been at Minto mine nine years. His wife and two children reside in Nova Scotia. Pettley belongs to Norton, and is about thirty-five years of age. Endine, who is about forty years of age, has been at Minto only a short time. He is unable to speak English.

He had been attending a meeting at Threeboro, and was returning home on foot when he was struck in the back of the head by the pole of a carriage. The impact fractured the base of the skull, and Morris was carried over thirty feet on the end of the pole before he fell to the ground. He died the next morning.

A SENSATIONAL CASE OF "RINGING" ALLEGED TO HAVE TAKEN PLACE AT QUEBEC

W. Beland, Who Won The Telegraph Road Race, Said To Be Fred Meadows of West End Y.M.C.A. Toronto.

A "SNAPSHOT" WAS TAKEN

A serious accusation is made against Fred Meadows of Guelph, the well-known five-mile runner.

On Saturday at Quebec an unknown man, running under the name of W Beland and in the colours of the Zouaves of Quebec, won the Daily Telegraph road race of 5 1-2 miles in 32.50. A despatch from Quebec says that it is rumoured that the unknown was Meadows. The despatch also says that Paddy Royal, the Montreal crack who was fourth, was so sore at the unknown that he tried to punch him. This was a Federation race. A wire to Guelph to Meadows enquiring as to the truth or falsity of the rumour, did not reach the runner in time for an answer for to-day's paper.

His West End Y.M.C.A. friends ridicule the idea that it was Meadows. If it is Meadows, the break will remove from C.A.A.U. competition one of the best five-milers Canada ever had.

A protest has been lodged against the unknown winner. The Daily Telegraph race is a big betting event, adn this year it was known in Ontario that an effort would be made to shunt in a well-known Ontario runner and win it out.

"BILLY" HEWITT'S IMPRESSIONS OF SATURDAY'S RUGBY GAME WITH T.A.A.C.

Billy Hewitt, sporting editor of the Toronto Star, saw Saturday's game here and gives his impression of the struggle as follows:

Toronto A. A. C. defeated Peterborough at Peterborough on Saturday for the O. R. F. U. senior championship by the smallest possible margin, the final score being 7 to 6 in favour of the visitors, though the locals were in the lead until the last few minutes of play, when a sensational 60-yard run by Mara from a scrimmage gave Toronto five points and the game.

The game was played in quarters with a strong wind that blew fitfully from the northwest. Toronto had the wind in the first and third quarters, while the locals had the advantage in the other two periods. The score by quarters was 0-0, 2-0, 3-2, and 7-6, Peterborough always being in the lead until two minutes before time was called.

The star of the game was undoubtedly Dr. A. W. McPherson, of the champion Varsity team of 1905, who played centre half and captained the locals. He not only played one of the best games of his career, but also directed the play in a masterly manner. He played practically the whole whole game for Peterborough behind the line, never made a muff, ran and dodged in his best style, and outkicked even such a good punt as Pete Flett. The bulk of the work fell on the doctor's shoulders, and he surpassed himself by the excellence of his playing. He was especially strong on the defence, some of his catches behind his own line and punts with tacklers on top of him bordering on the phenomenal. Dr. McPherson received excellent support from the deaf mute, Crough, whose long distance kicks into touch were especially valuable to his team when playing against the wind.

The Peterborough team as a whole played an entirely different game to their exhibition in Toronto They showed evidences of good coaching and were in much better shape than their opponents. Some of their wings were needlessly rough, and made a dead set on Flett, who retaliated in kind, with the result that he was sent to the penalty bench several times.

Grant, Clarke, Holden, Campbell, and Mara played the best game for the winners, and the scrimmage also worked in good form. Flett was in no shape for football, and Len Morrison had an off-day. The tackling of the visitors was away below the mark.

All of Peterborough's points were the result of kicks to the short dead line at the south end of the field, while Toronto scored on two rouges and Mara's try.

TOM LONGBOAT TURNS "PRO" AT LAST; WILL MEET DORANDO THE ITALIAN

Toronto, Nov. 2.—The die is cast! Tom Longboat, the Indian running sensation of the past two years, has become a professional.

That this was the ultimate windup of the Onondaga's career no one doubted, but beyond fruitless negotiations, nothing was done until Saturday.

On Saturday, Tom C. Flanagan, manager of the Irish-Canadians, and the Indian's mentor, was interviewed by Controller John J. Ward, a C.A.A.U. governor, Rev. J. D. Morrow, the well-known athletic meet official and ex-quarter-mile champion of Canada, and P. J. Mulqueen, the president of the Irish-Canadians, on the matter These three gentlemen, backed up by another prominent C.A.A.U. officer, pointed out that as Longboat would not work the same as other athletes did, and his status was continually being questioned for this reason, and and that his legs were his fortune, and professionalism his final goal, it would be better if he took the jump now when the running game was good and he could get the money.

What They Told Flanagan

"The boy's future depends on what is done now," they told Flanagan. "His fortune will be made or marred this winter. This is the crisis."

They proposed that the Indian should be transferred to the "pro" ranks under Flanagan's management and tha tthe money he earned be turned over to a committee, composed of W J Little, general manager of the Montreal Star, John J Ward, and Rev J D Morrow, these three to unvest the money for Longboat's future use.

Will Run Dorando

This idea appealed to Flanagan and to-day the I.C.A.C. manager will enter into negotiations for a race with Pietro Dorando, the Italian at Madison Square Garden, on the U. S Thanksgiving.

"He will get $2,000 out of this race alone," said Flanagan. After Dorando we will meet J J Hayes, the winner of the Olympic Marathon, and then we will be ready to meet Alf Shrubb. I hate like blazes to have to give Shrubb a race, but we'll have to do it. I'll match him to meet Shrubb at 15 miles, 20 miles, and 25 miles."

Longboat's first professional exhibition will be at Kingston Roller Rink next week. He will run an unknown five miles at Buffalo wihtin 10 days

Longboat has a $20,000 pair of legs.

His withdrawal from the ranks of Canadian amateurs removes the most-talked-of amateur athlete Canada ever had

NUMEROUS JUNIORS TO TAKE PART; MANY ENTRIES FOR EXAMINER RACE

It begins to look as if there will be a record crowd in the Examiner junior road race on Thanksgiving Day, judging by the way in which entries are coming in. Already half a dozen youngsters have signified their intention of taking part and over a score will face the starter next Monday morning. Those who have entered so far are:

H. Patterson.
V. Runnels.
Eddie Hanrahan.
Max Sloan.
Edgar Lebar.
Harry Nellist.
Jimmy McMartin.

Among the other entries expected is that of B. Cross, who won the All Saints'-Knox Church Boys' Club three mile road race on Saturday afternoon, over a hilly course in the remarkably good time of 17 minutes 4 seconds. Cross will undoubtedly take a lot of beating, but he will be up against a hard field and it will be a battle all the way. The Otonabees A. C. and Chieftain A. C. will no doubt be represented.

Four entries have been received so far for the senior race, as follows:

Wm. John Bennett, Otonabee.
Hanlon Howard, Hiawatha.
Morris Montgomery, city.
Herbert Cooney, city.

Bennett and Cooney both ran last year, the former getting fifth, and the latter eighth place. They promise to do better this year, and may give all cracks a race. The Y. M. C. A. Harriers have a number of men working hard, and although their entries are not yet in, they will be on hand all right. Ernie Wilson, Charlie Thorpe and Geo. Fowler will be among the "Y." men who will enter

The entry list closes on Saturday at noon, and no entries will be accepted after that time.

ART ROSS HAS TURNED DOWN BIG OFFERS FROM OTTAWA

Ottawa, Nov. 2—If the report that Arthur Ross has affixed his signature to a Montreal contract is correct, the chagrin of the Ottawa Hockey Club will be very keen, as Ross was fully counted upon to occupy the place left vacant by Harvey Pulford on the local team this winter. The Ottawa management has not been in communication with Ross for ten days or more knowing negotiations had reached a point where the only thing that remained for Ross to do was to make up his mind whether he would accept Ottawa's proposition.

It is not generally known but the local club has been hot foot after Ross since the close of the hockey season last March. Overtures were made the big fellow at that time, and he expressed a desire to come here. During the summer months he intimated he would give a definite answer when he returned from his holidays in September. He was still undecided, however, when that period hove around, and finally Manager Jack Dickson, of the Ottawas, made him a final offer

This offer consisted of a straight salary of $1,600 for playing hockey and in conjunction a good position would be given him in a well-known sporting goods house of this city. After a year's experience he was to receive a substantial interest in the firm and continue to play hockey with the Ottawa club at the same salary.

THE CLOSEST GAME OF PRESENT SEASON SAYS NEWS

The Toronto News refers to Saturday's game as follows—

It was a tight squeeze at Peterboro' In one of the closest games played in Canada this year the Toronto Athletic Club proved victors, and are now O. R. F. U. senior champions.

Mara was the hero. With but two minutes left to play, Peterboro' was leading 6—2. Then Mara got clean away, made a brilliant 55-yard run and scored a try. That won the game

During the past fortnight the Electric City boys have improved a thousand per cent. Dr. A. W. McPherson's expert coaching made a new team out of the one which was so badly trimmed here two weeks ago. Moreover, his own playing at centre half was high class.

Pete Flett the well-known half was at right for the Athletics, and though a little lacking in condition, showed much of his old time skill. Leslie Crooks, the strong T. A. A. C. inside wing, was unable to accompany his team, having been bitten in the face by a bull pup recently

Peterboro' led all the way by a small margin, the play being close and even Crough and Quinlan for the Peterboro team, shared the honours with Dr. McPherson; Campbell, Grant, McLennan and the scrimmage were good for T A A C. The score by quarters was—0—0, 3—0, 3—2, and 7—6.

JACK CORKERY'S CLASSY SHOWING WITH OTTAWA

His Debut In Intercollegiate Rugby Marked by Sensational Playing.

The latest Peterborough boy to make good in Rugby is Jack Corkery, son of Mr. John Corkery of the post office staff. He played on the back division of Ottawa College on Saturday in Ottawa, when the college was defeated by Toronto Varsity, in Intercollegiate series. The Ottawa citizen refers to his playing as follows:

"Although placed on the team at the last moment, young Corkery, a recruit from the seconds, made good from the start. He was fast, has a good pair of hands, and was not afraid to hit the line hard. Corkery was not used much in the first half but in the second played a wonderful game. He was easily the star of the college half line, his 50 yards dash in the last half bringing the crowd to its feet. In this run the "sub" flung off fully half the Varsity team, before being grassed a few feet from the Varsity line. He gave the team the needed brace, and a few plunges put Dean over for a try."

Jack's many friends are pleased with his showing, and predict a bright future if he stays with the game.

Two more games were played last night in the Y.M.C.A. Basketball League the Chieftains defeating the Maple Leafs by 30 to 21, and the Brownies putting it over the Turners by 39 to 21. Both were good fast games, exciting to watch and cleanly played. The Chieftains put up a good article of basketball surprising their friends by their showing. Much interest is being taken in the league which is proving most successful. The teams lined up as follows:

Chieftains — Munro, Milburn, A Hall, Wallis and Kirn.

Maple Leafs—J Downing, S Laing, S Wade, G Martin, R Best.

Brownies—Crossman, Fitzpatrick, Hall and Miller.

Turners—Elliott, Turner, McLarroll and B Miller.

RUGBY

Jack Corkery, on the half line for Ottawa College, Ben Simpson, on the back division of the Hamilton Tigers, Murray and Hal Kennedy, half backs for Ottawa Rough Riders, Allan Campbell, playing quarter for T.A.A.C., Ross Craig, at inside wing for the Dundas Interprovincial team, Gordon Campbell, starring on the back division of the Trinity College School team, and Ross Dobbin, on the wing line of Varsity III., are all Peterborough boys. No other town in Canada can make anything like that showing.

Jack Corkery had the feature play of Saturday's Inter-Collegiate game at Ottawa, getting away for a sensational sixty yard run that resulted in College's only try.

Dr. McPherson is the hero of the hour in Peterborough, and he deserves all the honours. — Toronto Star.

• • • •

Peterborough promises next year to put out one of the strongest senior teams in the country. There is no dearth of first class material.—Toronto Star.

• • • •

The result of Saturday's football games provided no surprise except probably in the fine showing made by Peterborough in the return engagement with the Toronto A. A. C. The visitors just managed to win by the skin of their teeth in the last few minutes of play, and the senior championship of the O.R.F.U. was not settled until the whistle blew for full time.

This victory gives the T.A.A.C. the privilege of challenging for the Canadian championship, and they will likely take advantage of the opportunity. This club has been handicapped this season by lack of games, and the narrow escape from defeat at Peterborough was probably due to over-confidence. However, their next engagement will be with the Argonaut team on Thanksgiving Day at Rosedale, when it will be seen just how strong a team they really are in comparison with the Interprovincial teams.—Toronto Star.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—Special. — Although Ottawa defeated Montreal Saturday, it was at a very damaging price, for Murray Kennedy, captain and centre half of the team, on whom devolves all the punting, had the ligaments of one of his legs so badly torn it is doubtful if he will be able to play again this season.

The injury came towards the close of the game, but he kept pluckily going till the contest was over. On the way home Saturday night he almost collapsed with pain on the train and had to be carried from the car and removed home in a carriage.

Should Kennedy be unable to play against Tigers here next Saturday Ottawa's chances will greatly depreciate, as he is undoubtedly the fulcrum of the whole team.

HARRISON IS TRAINING HARD TO MEET HOAGLAND

Jim Harrison is in active training at the Brock Street Rink in preparation for his handicap walking match with World's Champion Hoagland, on Monday next, and promises to give the elongated Auburn crack the race of his life. The "walking machine," as Hoagland has been aptly termed, is giving the local "ped" a handicap of one mile in nine hours and judging by Harrison's training stunts the visitor will have to extend himself more than he did on his last appearance here, if he hopes to take home the bacon. Harrison has greatly improved since the big match here this spring and has altered his style to an action that gives him greater speed with less effort. It will be a great race and no doubt a big crowd will be on hand.

Aeronaut In Spill.

New York, Nov. 3.—While experimenting with his "wind wagon," Dr. Julian J. Thomas, the aeronaut, met with an accident at the Morris Park experiment grounds of the Aeronautic Society and is suffering from severe nervous shock and probable injury to the spine.

When going at a high rate of speed, Dr. Thomas saw immediately in his path, a motor cycle which its owner had left lying on its side. In attempting to swerve quickly the forepart of the wind wagon collapsed beneath Dr. Thomas, who was pinned to the earth under the rear portion of the apparatus and the heavy machinery.

Reform In Russia.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 3.—It is understood in well-informed naval circles that Admiral Wierenius, president of the technical commission of the Admiralty, will shortly retire from his post. The commission has been under fire of late for tardiness in the designing of warships.

It is stated also that several other admirals are soon to be placed on the retired list.

This is the first important step in the reform of the Ministry demanded by the Douma as a condition of passing adequate appropriations for naval purposes.

Socialists and Police Clash.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—A mass meeting of Social Democrats held last night to protest against the treatment of the Socialist minority in the Prussian Diet, resulted in numerous conflicts with the police, who forcibly dispersed 10,000 Socialists who had been unable to gain admission to the meeting.

A large number of arrests were made, and fearing that the demonstrators would march on the Royal Castle, the police cut off the streets and bridges leading thither.

Chinese Shops Looted.

Hong Kong, Nov. 3.—Twenty-six shops were looted Sunday night. The looting grew out of a Japanese boycott. Some Chinese merchants have expressed a desire to abandon the boycott, while others have protested against its discontinuance, and Sunday night's attack on the shops was for the purpose of emphasizing the need of keeping up the boycott. Further trouble is expected to-day. More than 200 arrests have already been made amid scenes of great excitement.

A Murder Deep Down.

New York, Nov. 3.—Eighty-five feet below the surface of the street, in a dimly-lighted shaft adjoining the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.'s tunnel in Thirty-Second street, between Park and Madison avenues, a laborer who was on duty as a watchman, was murdered Sunday morning. Seized from behind, his throat was cut with a stiletto.

Mrs. Astor Buried.

New York, Nov. 3.—The funeral of Mrs. William Astor, New York's social leader for 20 years, took place yesterday from her late residence in Fifth avenue. In accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Astor, the ceremony was of the simplest nature.

The funeral cortege proceeded to Trinity Cemetery for the interment.

SLAMES GRAND TRUNK

Mount Vernon Wreck Inquest Says It Was Fault of Company.

Brantford, Nov. 3—Joseph Maguire, Grand Trunk yardman, was arrested last night prior to the inquest into the Mt. Vernon wreck, on a charge of manslaughter, and later released on $2,000 bail.

The verdict was very long and placed responsibility for the disaster on the Grand Trunk. It declared the practice of the yard engine, which collided with the special work train, in leaving the yards to push trains up the five-mile grade to Mount Vernon, and then returning without instructions, was dangerous in the absence of telegraphic connections along the line.

It was held that Maguire had double duties to perform as yardman and flagman, and that the former telegraph operator and a second yard engine had shortly before been taken off this particular service.

The telegraph operator who reshaped was a boy of only 19 years and had been on duty for 12½ hours alone.

EPOCH MARKING MESSAGE.

King Celebrates Jubilee by Letter to India.

London, Nov. 3.—On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of Great Britain's control of the direct Government of India, Queen Victoria having been proclaimed Empress throughout India on Nov. 1, 1858, King Edward Sunday issued a long message to the princes and people of India, which the Viceroy, the Earl of Minto, read at the durbar at Jodhpur yesterday.

The message dwells upon the peaceful progress of the Empire under a beneficent administration, pays warm tribute to the loyalty of the Indian subjects and troops, announces amnesty for prisoners and a further gradual extension of the principle of representative institutions in the direction of equality in citizenship, and a greater share by the Indians in legislation and the Government.

KINGSTON HAS EPIDEMIC.

Fifteen Cases of Smallpox Are Now Under Care of Physicians.

Kingston, Nov. 3.—Kingston now has 15 cases of smallpox. Two new cases were reported yesterday afternoon. The cases were traced to two hotels and several stores, and these will probably be closed up. The board has a big problem on its hands and realizes its responsibility. So far this year smallpox has cost the city $2,500. Four more rooms have been fitted up at Fort Henry to cope with the disease.

Mayor Ross will call a special meeting of the council to consider the question of compulsory vaccination. Dr. Fred. Etherington has addressed a letter to the council tendering his resignation as a member of the City Board of Health, because of inactivity in face of smallpox.

Gale Sweeps Lower St. Lawrence.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Considerable damage is reported from the lower St. Lawrence as the result of the great gale which has been sweeping over land and sea for the past couple of days.

The barge Mercure has been wrecked at Rousseau Anne, and the schooner Voltigeurs at Tadousac. The outward bound Allan Liner could not land her pilot at Father Point, owing to heavy sea, and he had to go to England in consequence, while the inward bound Kensington failed to get a pilot for the same reason.

Jacktars Go to Esquimalt.

Quebec, Nov. 3.—The C.P.R. steamship Lake Manitoba, from Liverpool, which arrived here yesterday, had on board a detachment of the imperial navy, consisting of 100 seamen, with eight petty officers and eight commissioned officers, who go through to Esquimalt to undergo a course of training at the naval station there. They will travel to Esquimalt by a special train on the C.P.R.

Japan and Germany.

Tokio, Nov. 3.—The Kaiser's yellow peril talk is causing great uneasiness in German official and commercial circles. A feeling prevails that the strenuous efforts of the last decade to rehabilitate German interests have been nullified, if not destroyed, while the Japanese press vigorously criticizes the imperial utterances.

HAVE YOU EVER FIGURED

What an immense amount of work your eyes have to do?

Every moment you are awake you use them steadily and those who read much or sew a great deal or whose duties require close application of the eyes are almost sure to stand in need of an Optician's services sooner or later. To wait until a more convenient time is an injustice, as the trouble is being increased every day. Decide right now to see us about the matter. We tell many persons that they need not wear glasses and will tell you if we find your eyes not under strain. Even if you need glasses you may get them where you like and when you like.

TRAGEDY RE-ENACTED.

Police Use Unique Method of Solving Murder Case.

Detroit, Nov. 3.—John Kurka, a teamster, yesterday made a dramatic confession of how he killed his half-brother, Anthony Schultze, a week ago and then hauled the body in his dump wagon across the city to the spot in the western outskirts where it was found.

The police had dressed Kurka in the clothes he wore on the morning of the murder, mounted him on his wagon and had him drive across the city from the Schultze home to the woods, to permit several persons to identify him, if possible, as the teamster they had seen in the neighborhood last Sunday. After he had been identified by several people Kurka admitted the crime. He said that Schultze and his wife were quarreling, and when he interfered Schultze attacked him.

"Then I let him have it with the hatchet," said Kurka. "His wife and I loved each other and we wanted him out of the way. I feel better now. I was haunted by Schultze's face ever since I killed him."

MEANS ILL-FEELING.

Kaiser's Interview Will Cause British-German Breach Say Papers.

London, Nov. 3.—The London morning papers comment ironically upon what they describe as "ingenious semi-official explanations" from Berlin concerning the Emperor's published interview, and consider that the effect of these will be greatly to increase distrust of the German Foreign Office and its methods and probably lead to still greater ill-feeling between Great Britain and Germany.

The Daily Telegraph gives no further explanation of the affair, which its Berlin correspondent declares involves Germany in the gravest democratic crisis she has experienced since the dismissal of Bismarck.

Sidney Whitman, the well-known English publicist, who, it has been believed in certain quarters, was the author of the article, denies any connection with it.

Lake Steamer Burned.

Owen Sound, Nov. 3.—The steamer Telegram, a small ship engaged principally in fishing traffic on Georgian Bay and Lake Huron, caught fire and burned to the water's edge, one mile off Rattle Snake Harbor yesterday. The crew of 12, and one passenger,

INTERESTING ADDRESS BY REV. POGUE LAST NIGHT

Spoke to Local Orangemen on the Subject of the "Gunpowder Plot."

A very interesting time was spent in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street, last night, when Rev. Robt. Pogue, of St. Paul's Church, delivered an impressive address to the members of the Orange Order. There was a large attendance and the evening passed most enjoyably. Col. J. W. Miller was in the chair and Rev. H. R. Trumpour, of All Saints' Church, opened the meeting. Rev. Mr. Pogue's address was on the subject of the "Gunpowder Plot," and as to-morrow is the anniversary of Guy Fawkes' day, it proved most interesting. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker at the conclusion of his remarks.

WHEELED OVER FLOATING BRIDGE THROUGH FOUR INCHES OF WATER

With the water of Chemong Lake washing over the floating bridge, driven before a strong west wind, a young man and woman wheeled through the water, which in some parts must have been four or five inches deep. The waves would break on the west side and wash across the bridge completely submerging it. The cyclists kept to the east side of the bridge and held their course through the water, despite the fact that their pedals often touched water. The wind and semi-darkness also added to the difficulty of crossing. They finally succeeded, without faltering.

BRANDISHES A REVOLVER ON STREET? LOCAL MAN GETS TEN DAYS IN JAIL

Thomas Halpin, a man well advanced in years, got intoxicated yesterday and his actions resulted in leading him into the police station. Halpin had a seven chambered revolver with him which he brandished in the face of several passers by demanding money. Fortunately the revolver was not loaded but he succeeded in frightening a number of people before being curtailed by the police.

This morning in the police court he pleaded guilty to carrying a weapon and to being drunk and was given ten days in goal on the first charge, the second being dropped. The revolver was destroyed by order of the court.

Fire Drill Efficient In Public Schools Of The City

Fire Chief Howard Makes Report—Advises That Doors be Opened Outwards—Absence of Combustible Rubbish.

ALTERATIONS SUGGESTED

Last night at the Board of Education meeting the report of Chief Howard of the Fire Department, was read and on motion of Messrs. Hill and Crane was referred to the Property Committee. It was as follows—

To the Chairmen and Members of the Board of Education—

Gentlemen—I beg leave to advise your honourable bodythat on the 20th inst. I made a careful inspection of the Public Schools of this city, accompanied by His Worship Mayor Rush, Ald. W J Johnston, Mr A Mowat, Inspector of Public Schools, Mr. Robt. Fair, Chairman of the Board of Education, and Mr. Van Winkle of the Fire Underwriters Association, and submitt herewith a report of the Inspection.

At each of the schools an alarm of fire was sent in, the children marched out in a remarkably short time and I consider that the principals and teachers of the Public Schools should be commended for the efficient way in which the fire drill is conducted.

The respective schools were cleared to the following—

Central School with 400 scholars—48 seconds

Old Collegiate School with 130 scholars—45 seconds.

East City School 225 scholars— 35 seconds.

Queen Alexandra School with 250—38 seconds.

Park street School 180 scholars — 45 seconds.

South Central School with 450 — 57 seconds.

King Edward School 325 scholars — 52 seconds.

The records in the three other cities where I have been employed, show the best time made to be 51 seconds for 300 scholars. I am credibly informed that each of the schools have fire drill once a week. This accounts for a saving of from ten to twenty seconds, in time, over other cities.

In some of our schools we notice that the doors open inwards. This is contrary to law, and in many instances has proved dangerous; and therefore I would respectfully request the gentlemen of the Board to take immediate action, and have the doors altered so that in all cases they will open outward.

In two of the schools we found the fastenings on the outer doors did not work properly. This should also be attended to at once.

I find the smoke pipes leading from the furnaces, in all the schools have been constructed the regiation distance from the joists, thereby lessening the danger of fire.

We also observed the absence of combustable rubish in the basements of the buildings, showing the precaution the janitors have taken in this matter.

The alterations I have suggested in this report will not entail the expenditure of large sums of money, but on the contrary can be made with very little expense.

I trust the gentlemen of the Boartd will accept the suggestions I have offered, in the spirit in which they are given, and that you with me, will realize the responsibility that we are compelled to assume; and do everything in your power to safeguard the lives of the children entrusted to your care.

Mr. Van Winkle will submitt his report of the electric wiring.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

I have the honour to be
Your obedient servant
W. A. HOWARD.

MANY WATCH ELECTION RETURNS AT EXAMINER

Most Popular Bulletin Service in the City Last Night—Mr. Barber's Special Wire.

The Examiner's bulletin service on the United States elections last night was, as usual, patronized by more people than any other in the city. Mr. J. N. Barber, stock broker, received the returns direct from New York and a few seconds after they arrived were on the Examiner bulletin. From 9.30 o'clock until eleven an interested crowd watched the returns and either were pleased with the election of Taft or took Mr. Bryan's defeat philosophically.

IMPERIALISM IN MUSIC

The success of the Sheffield Choir's visit to Canada was a foregone conclusion, not merely because of the great merit and world wide fame of the organization, nor on account of the great magnitude of the undertaking, involving the largest singing party that has ever crossed the Atlantic on a visit to Canada, but because it represents another great heart-beat in the Imperial impulse and signifies how art and commerce, sentiment and business join in achieving something that is not along aesthetic delectation but a material assured and the largest auditoriums benefit to the prestige of Canada. Crowded houses are now everywhere will be overcrowded in the eleven cities which are visited to accommodate the throngs in Massey Hall, where the preliminary subscribers' list closed on Oct. 29th, the amount represented was nearly $10,000, although this is only a small fraction of the expense of the undertaking. Special trains from outside points are being arranged for for every concert. The single fare rates on the railways will bring a large number here on Thursday, Nov. 12th, when the concert will be held in the opera house.

It is expected that the Sheffield Choir will dine here before the concert on the 12th inst. Every city to be visited by the choir will accord them a grand reception. What will Peterborough do?

FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

British females discuss female suffrage in a bellicose way. Canadian women discuss it in an academic way. In England the kingdom of the ballot suffereth violence and violence would take it by force. British women are jailed, not for asking for votes, but for the same vulgar offence, which a drunk would be guilty of—disorderly conduct. The question is, is the course adopted by the British suffragette the best way to get what they claim they want? If women show so much intemperate violence in simply asking for the privilege or right of voting, what would be their attitude if they got what they wanted? Would they use the ballot wisely? Would they vote on the result of reasoning or on the impulse of emotion? The opponents of female suffrage as a rule oppose it on the ground of precedent. If precedent ruled the great reforms of history would never have been accomplished. The women of Canada are not yet clamorous for the right to vote in parliamentary elections. The matter was brought up at the meeting of the National Council of Women held at Ottawa recently without, however a definite stand being taken on the subject. The subject will be sure, however, to be brought to the front at the annual meeting of the International Council of Women next June. While the matter is, as it were, sub judice, it might seem improper to deal with it. But it might be inquired why women should not have the right to vote granted? There is little doubt of the existent right; the question of expedience is the chief debatable point. The power given to women to vote in municipal elections amounts to a precedent. If they are qualified to vote in this arena why should they be debarred from voting for a member of Parliament? If allowed to vote in such an election, why should they not be eligible for election as members of Parliament? Here again precedent comes to the aid of the advocates of equality of rights for women. Women are eligible for election to school boards—this is a concession of the principle—then why should they not logically be eligible for election to municipal councils and to parliament? In the matters of intelligence, and interest in the national welfare the average woman is the equal of the average male voter. If women had an inclusive franchise—ranging from the right to vote for a school trustee to the right to vote for a member of parliament, would they appreciate the privilege and make use of it? Would they be a refining and purifying influence in politics as they are in the other domains where their influence is now operative? Would they be responsive to the same influence which male voters yield to, to the alleged corrupt operations of our political activities? All these questions are quite apart. The real question is the right of women to vote, and there seems, looked at in this limited and direct way, to be only one answer. Why not give women the right to vote if they demand it, and place upon them the responsibility of using the franchise in a proper and effective manner? They could certainly not abuse it any worse than do some male voters, especially those who vote for the other party. With female suffrage granted there would be added to the national electorate an element of respectability and refinement now somewhat conspicuously absent, and also an element of honesty introduced; at least a moral view point which would necessitate a readjustment of the occult influences that avail in the modern way of swaying male electoral opinion. It would not be possible to influence a lady's vote by appeals in the form of "choice tomatoes" or election cigars, but it is barely possible that in a country where polygamy is a criminal offance an election with female suffrage in force and bachelor candidates in the field, would be followed by a plentiful crop of suits for damages for breach of promise of marriage. Seriously, however, judging from the force and ferocity of the female suffrage crusade in England, it will not be long before the question in Canada will advance beyond the academic stage of discussion, and become a live factor in our national politics, in spite of what John Stuart Mill says to the effect that giving women the franchise would put back the world's progress a hundred years. He holds that women are so Conservative as to be positively reactionary. Mill is a great political economist; but perhaps he forgets that women are addicted to following the fashions in dress. Why would they not be as anxious to follow the fashion in reform?

THE U. S. ELECTIONS.

Canadians for some reason, not, perhaps, explainable, took a deep interest in the elections in the United States—possibly the reason is not unassociated with the still lingering interest in our own recent elections—the habit of politics cannot be overcome at once. We are not directly interested in the result, though most Canadians would probably have preferred to see Bryan succeed. He paid a visit to Canada last winter and created a favourable impression. His fluent oratory and his robust character won him admiration and respect. Taft also comes to Canada, but only to fish. Canada might have hoped for a more facile and satisfactory adjustment of trade relations from the Bryan party than from the party of the Dingley tariff. The election of Mr. Hughes as Governor of New York State, our nearest neighbour, is a bright spot in the contest. It is an illustration that fearless discharge of official duty has little to fear from the sound hearted electorate.

HASTENING GENTLY.

This seems to be the age of temperance reform; a wave is sweeping over the country that recognizes no resistance. In the United States the local prohibition movement is gaining ground, a very large extent of the country now being under prohibitory enactment. In Canada, especially Ontario, local option bylaws are in force over large areas Generally as regards total restriction, the movement is advancing and as Mrs. Clennam, in the final chapters of "Little Dorrit," says, "it is closing in." The Presbyterian church has taken a decided, it somewhat qualified, stand upon the question. A resolution adopted at the General Assembly in Winnipeg this year involves the slogan that "nothing short of the prohibition of the traffic in intoxicants for beverage purposes can satisfy as the goal in intemperance reform," and the Board of Moral and Social Reform is urging the propaganda, with energy. It has issued a leaflet setting forth the policy of the Presbyterian Church on Temperance Reform. This document is likely to meet popular favour because it is moderate in its demand. While still recognizing total prohibition as the ultimate goal, it proposes, under certain specified conditions, advancing by degrees—a limitation of the traffic leading up to the desired end. While the abolition of the bar and the suppression of retail shops is strongly demanded as a sine qua non, provision is made by which with the concurrence of a majority of the qualified electors a limited number of shops may be allowed to sell liquor for consumption off the premises, provided the sale is conducted "under such conditions as will eliminate the element of private gain." This is not regarded as public ownership of the traffic as against prohibition, but "a temporary expedient to meet a practical difficulty, namely the making of prohibition effective in a large centre if the law is forced upon it by an outside vote, a majority of its own electors being opposed to such a measure." The leaflet sets forth the advantages of such a plan—it provides for the serious practical difficulty of making prohibition effective in a large city where a large majority is opposed to the law, forced upon it by a rural vote; it will secure the largest measure of strict observance of the law; it minimises the danger of reaction against prohibitory law through ineffective enforcement; it will separate the trade from politics and reduce its influence to the smallest dimensions; and, finally, it is claimed that a large section of the public not at present identified with temperance reform will support such a policy and give added strength to the prohibition movement. Evidently the advocates of temperance reform are becoming themselves, temperate, not from any temporising spirit, or spirit of compromise of principle, but on plain business grounds. It is inevitable that a question involving both great moral and economic interests will force itself to the front with increasing energy as public sentiment swings into line with the movement as it is very evidently doing at the present and as it has done in the recent past.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Taft's majority seems to correspond to his bulk.

Taft's election is regarded as a triumph of the capitalistic interests.

Several million United States Democrats are weeping Bryany tears to-day.

The voting in the Newfoundland elections took place on Monday, and so far only two results are known—one government and one opposition out of 34 seats.

By the latest election news from Newfoundland, it looks like a defeat for the Bond Government. The Opposition so far as the count has proceeded, have seven seats to their credit and the Government two.

Prosperity seems to be coming back. Building operations are active in Peterborough at present, and in Toronto 200 more buildings were constructed in October of this year than in the same months of last year.

The United States for the next four years will be under an autocracy as absolute as that of Russia. When Taft selects his Cabinet all-Tophet could not displace them from office unless they stole the silverware or committed an impeachable offense. It is not responsible government as we know it in Canada.

WOMEN AGAINST WINE IN CHURCHES

W.C.T.U. Says Alcohol Should Be Eliminated From Communion.

GIVES BAR THIRTY YEARS

Speakers at Barrie Convention Condemn Use of Intoxicating Liquor in Holy Sacrament—President Mrs. McKee Says Bar Will Be a Thing of the Past In Three Decades—Full Attendance.

Barrie, Nov. 4.—The thirty-first convention of the Ontario W.C.T.U. was opened in the Collier street Methodist Church here yesterday morning. The convention was called to order by Mrs. S. G. E. McKee, Barrie, president of the local and provincial unions. Nearly the full quota from each union was present, there being 150 delegates in all.

In connection with the use of unfermented wines, Mrs. Hagar of Welland emphasized the great danger of allowing the use of fermented wines in the sacrament to those who have an appetancy for liquor. Cases have been known of children who showed great eagerness to partake of the sacrament, and gave as a reason their intense love of the fermented wine used. Some men refrained from partaking of the sacrament because of the fear that they might acquire the habit of drinking.

Mrs. Barney of Rhode Island, the world evangelist, and superintendent of prison visitation of the W.C.T.U. for the world, spoke of the utter folly of using fermented wines in the sacrament because men who had freshly signed the pledge frequently took the sacrament, and the very smell of the liquor was like the waves of hell fire to them, and undid all the work of his conversion.

Mrs. S. G. E. McKee, gave an epitome of the prohibition situation throughout the civilized world, showing the large decrease in the number of licenses in Ontario and the number of municipalities that have adopted local prohibition. She predicted that in 30 years the bar would be a thing of the past in Ontario. She emphasized the wisdom of educating the children in the schools to the danger of the liquor habit.

MORRIS IS LEADING.

Opposition Chieftain In Newfoundland Is Ahead So Far.

Halifax, Nov. 4.—Returns received up to midnight from St. John's, Nfld., indicate that the Opposition are making gains in the colonial elections. The counting is proceeding slowly and nothing definite as to the final result is yet known, although the Opposition appear to have elected seven members to two of the Government, as follows:

Bay Severd—Crosbie and Whitway, Opposition, elected.

Southern Shore or Ferryland—Cashin, Opposition, and Ellis, Government, elected.

Harbor Main—Woodford and Murphy, Opposition, elected.

Harbor Grace—Picott and Parsons, Opposition, and Dawe, Government, elected.

The latter has only one of majority over the third Opposition man.

In St. John's West Sir Edward Morris, Bennett and Kennedy, all Opposition, are leading. In St. John's East, Kent, Shear and Dwyer, Government, are leading with small majorities.

Recount In Nipissing.

North Bay, Nov. 4.—There will be a recount before Judge Valin of the Nipissing election ballots on Friday. Of 28,000 possible voter, 8,000 voted and there are 46 rejected ballots.

Many of the polls, being remote from railways, made returns slow in coming in. Two polls were canceled for some reason and not more than half the total number have sent the statutory report of the poll to the candidates.

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures female ills and carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Mrs. Letitia Blair, Cannifton, Ont., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was sick for five years. One doctor told me it was ulceration, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor, and advised an operation. No one knows what I suffered, and the bearing down pains were terrible.

"I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"It has cured me of all my troubles, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me to pass safely through Change of Life."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Government To Assist In Domestic Science Equipment

Cost Greater Than at First Anticipated---Routine Business of Board of Education---Address by Principal H. R. H. Kenner---Attendance for Month of October.

The Board of Education met last night in its regular monthly session and dealt with several routine business matters with dispatch, the most important being the reports of various committees. The communications including one from Fire Chief Howard, pointing out the necessity of having the doors in the various schools opening outwards.

Those present were Chairman Robt. Farr, Messrs. Robinson, Hill, Nelson, Crane, Dumble, Ackerman, Principal H. R. H. Kenner, and Inspector A. Mowat.

The board discussed at length changes and improvements for the new Collegiate Institute. Some are already underway and others will be attended to. Mr. Hill pointed out the onerous duties of the janitor of the Institute who is now receiving a salary of $650 and on motion of Messrs. Hill and Crane it was decided that the salary of the janitor be fixed on the basis of fifteen occupied rooms as per schedule dating from Nov. 1st 1908, this to include the care of lawn and school grounds.

Mr. Dumble called attention to the inconveniences with which the janitor of the South Ward school had to contend and moved, seconded by Mr. Nelson that the Property Committee be authorized to have an entrance made direct to the basement in the South Central School. Carried.

The Secretary was instructed to see that the lights were installed in the Institute building. Mr. Dumble referred to the necessity of keeping the building as clean as possible and considered that it should be frequently scrubbed. He also considered that the large cold air pipe in the basement should be covered to prevent frost in the winter.

Supervision Committee

The report of the Supervision Committee was read by the chairman, Mr. Crane, who moved its adoption.

Your committee beg to report that on going into the cost of furnishing and equipping the Domestic Science room with Miss Steinhoff they found that it would require a much larger expenditure than they anticipated. In view of this fact your committee communicated with the Department, and they sent Inspector Leake here on the 15th ultimo.

Your committee passed the following resolution, and forwarded the same to the Department:

"That in view of the misunderstanding that has arisen in reference to the cost of Domestic Science equipment, and taking into consideration the amount the Board has already spent in connection with Observation schools, be it resolved that this Board ask the Department to pay 20 per cent. of the cost each year for five years, such equipment not to cost any more than the equipment placed in the Normal School."

Your Committee have had an answer from the Honourable, the Minister of Education, stating that the Department would agree to this proposition and pay 20 per cent. of the cost each year for five years.

Your committee consider this a satisfactory arrangement, and have much pleasure in recommending its adoption.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. CRANE, Chairman.

Fire drill has been held regularly in all of the schools, the time for drill ranging from 40 seconds to 1 minute.

Prior to the conclusion of the meeting Mr. H R H Kenner who was present, was asked to address the Board. It was his first opportunity since becoming principal of the new Collegiate Institute and he thanked the members for the honour conferred on him. There had been two additions to the staff both of whom were doing good work as well as the other assistants. The new building was an excellent one although the needs were many. The lawn around the front of the school was not observed as such by everyone and there were too many trespassers. The fact that there were no lights installed was somewhat of a handicap to the janitor during the evenings of the short days. Mr. Kenner referred to the fact that the inspection of the Cadet Corps would take place on Friday afternoon at Riverside Park and invited the members of the Board to be present. The Corps has received special training this year under the tutorship of Messrs. Hodgson, Merritt and Adams. It consisted of four companies and is the largest Cadet Corps in the Province. There was a lack of music noticeable at their drills and he advised the purchasing of bugles and drums with the Government grant.

SENTENCE SERMONS

Love disarms death.

No truth is learned until it is lived.

Uprightness is mostly a matter of backbone.

The heart of any reform lies in the reform of the heart.

The religion that goes farthest begins with those nearest.

Lazy people are always loyal to the letter of the Sabbath law.

It is hard raising fruit in the heart that is filled with fright.

Half of a new truth is better than the whole of an outgrown one.

Every day's chances to serve are opportunities to offer sacrifice.

Some men have faith in God only as a refuge from the fear of men.

Many a man keeps his hands white at the expense of his heart.

The hardest test of love is what it does with the unlovely and unloving.

Folks who are most hungry for fame often give others nothing but blame.

If you cannot carry heaven into your business, you may find you have no business in heaven.

When a man gets excited over his ignorance, he is likely to think he is enthusiastic for some truth.

A good many in religion are like people who feel that they own an automobile when they have bought a horn.

There's no certainty that the man who knows all about the schedules to heaven will get there either on time or any time.

HEARTY APPETITE BUT AFRAID TO EAT

Why Not Put an End to Your Stomach Trouble Forever?

Some people think they have indigestion, others Catarrh of the Stomach, others Nervousness, Cancer or Dyspepsia, etc. Call it this if you will, but the real name for your trouble is Food Fermentation, with only partial digestion. Everything you eat turns to either Acid, Stomach gas or Stomach poison, which weaken the digestive organs, causing a lack of gastric juice. Your food sours, is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, burning sensation, a feeling of vomiting, heartburn, water brash and tenderness in the pit of the stomach, slimy tongue, bad taste in the mouth, constipation, nausea, belching of gas, dizziness, sick headaches, mental depression and many other common symptoms.

You can cure all this by not eating, by not putting any food in your stomach to ferment; but how about the nourishment needed to sustain your bodily strength? If you are a stomach sufferer, either man or woman, young or old, whether you call it indigestion or any other name, go now to your druggist and give 50 cents for a case of Pape's Diapepsin.

Every possible kind of Stomach trouble is readily cured by Diapepsin, which takes right hold of the food in your stomach and digests it alone, without the help of the stomach, just as if your stomach wasn't there.

After a few day's use of Diapepsin your Stomach will again be in good working order, your meals will thoroughly digest and your intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will have no use for laxatives or liver regulators.

CANADA-WEST MAGAZINE FOR NOVEMBER MONTH

The November number of the Canada West leads off with an article by William Hard. "Interviewing Canada" Mr. Hard was one of a party of magazine writers and journalists from the States who made a trip through the prairie provinces last August as the guests of Canada-West, and this series of "interviews" tells how they were impressed. It is a frank and somewhat surprised but graceful appreciation of the country and people the "Letters of a Remittance Man to his Mother," by W. H. P. Jarvis beginning in this number has not been very widely heralded, but is bound to attract unusual attention. It shows a familiar line of character in a new peculiarly candid light. "The Sowing" Emerson Hough's serial on Canadian colonization is continued with a liberal instalment. Paul Crissey furnishes "The Rivals" a story of love and rough life in the great north woods. Agnes Deans Cameron, who has but recently returned from an expedition to the mouth of the Mackenzie, contributes an interesting paper on "Placer Mining on Northern Rivers". W. J Healy has an excellent paper on "The St. Lawrence Grain Outlet" and Dr. Shailer Mathews concludes his series of essays on "Modern Man and the Gospel". There are poems by Cy Warman, Preston M. Willis, and others, an allegory by Samuel E Kiser, and a variety of other readable things, with many photographs and illustrations throughout. The pictures for the "Remittance Man" are by A. M. Wickson, of Toronto, and cover design features that story with a striking picture in colours by C. E. Chambers.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITIONS

—All cities over the Province are preparing for their exhibition, and Peterborough is no exception to the rule. It is the time we meet our old and new friends, and those who are not our friends. It is also the best time for the introduction of the newest and smartest cuts in fall suits and where they can be shown to the greatest advantage. The New York Ladies' Tailoring establishment have removed their parlours and workshop from 658 George street to 387 Reid street, opposite St. Peter's Cathedral, for the better accommodation of their patrons and are prepared to take orders in any line of ladies' garments. INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS

FULTON'S RENAL COMPOUND

"Kidney trouble" is inflammation of the kidneys without albumen.

"Bright's Disease" is inflammation of the kidneys with albumen.

In each the real trouble is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, hence a cure for one must be a cure for the other. There has been no cure for either.

But many kidney troubled people get well.

True—because inflammation of the kidneys unless severe commonly gets well at first. But if it does not yield early and the inflammation persists, the real trouble begins.

You can see why kidney disease has been incurable and why the deaths have risen to over 170 per day up to the discovery of Fulton's Renal Compound there was nothing known that would reduce inflammation in the kidney tissues.

The old kidney medicines were a misconception, irritating the inflamed kidneys to renewed efforts instead of allaying the inflammation, some of them being actually harmful. Result—physicians have abandoned them.

No matter whether you call it "Kidney trouble," "Nephritis," or "Bright's Disease," if it has been hanging on a few months, recovery can be only hoped for through this specific. It has a proven efficiency in nearly 87 per cent. of all cases. It is the only thing known that controls inflammation in the kidneys, which is the real difficulty with kidney troubled people,

Local Amateurs Give Grand Presentation Of Gillette's Funny Comedy, "All The Comforts of Home"

Production at the Grand Opera House Last Night Made a Big Hit and the Cast Covered Themselves With Glory—A Splendid Achievement.

TO BE REPEATED TO-NIGHT

No amateur production in Peterborough has made such an instantaneous hit or been received with such unqualified approval as the presentation of the comedy "All the Comforts of Home," at the Grand Opera House last night, under the auspices of the Peterborough Hockey Club. Although produced by amateurs some of whom have never before faced an audience, it was a grand success, earning the enthusiastic applause of the large attendance, and reflecting the greatest credit upon the management and the local young people who took part. "Astonishing," "grand," were the words flying throughout the house, and the adjectives were rightly used. The play was indeed a revelation to the theatregoers, who were astonished to see it staged in such a clever and finished manner. No opportunities were lost and the cast took full advantage of the splendid vehicle to give a performance that was indeed surprising in point of smoothness and excellence. One gentleman was heard to remark that it was the finest amateur performance ever given in Peterborough, and would make the professionals look to their laurels, and this statement was but an echo of the unanimous verdict of the audience, who showed by their almost continuous laughter and applause how much they appreciated the efforts of the company.

"All the Comforts of Home" is from the gifted pen of Wm. Gillette, the well known actor-playwright, and is pronounced by the critics of two continents as one of the finest comedies of modern times. It has enjoyed long runs by professional companies in London and New York.

The Story of the Play

The play is written for fun purposes only, being a series of laughs from beginning to end. The dialogue is bright and sparkling, and the climaxes and situations so ridiculously funny and involved that the audience is kept in a fit of laughter from start to finish, at least that was the case last night. There is not a dull moment in the action, and the climaxes are well worked out.

The comedy is in four acts and four scenes, the action being laid in the drawing room of a London, England, mansion. Pettibone, the irascible owner of the establishment, becomes violently jealous of his second wife, believing her to be in love with a certain Victor Smyth, who, on the contrary, is infatuated with his daughter. In a fit of rage he determines to take his family away on a three months' visit to Europe, and does so suddenly.

On leaving he summons his nephew, Alfred Hastings, a penniless young doctor, and leaves the house in his charge. Alfred's principal property is a collection of pawn tickets and on the departure of the Pettibone family he sets about to discover some method of raising money. He takes Tom MacDow, an amusing Irishman, into partnership and the two hit upon the ingenious plan of renting rooms to lodgers. A big sign is hung out announcing "Lodgings to Let," and a glaring footnote supplies the information that lodgers will have "All the Comforts of Home."

The sign is scarcely up before lodgers commence to arrive, and the new comers are certainly a weird lot, The first is Dabner, an extremely nervous musician, who is driven insane by the slightest noise; then Langhorne, an English "dead beat," with plenty of assurance but no money. Fifi Oritanski, a somewhat lively young actress from the Opera Comique; Mr. Bender, a retired business man, his wife, who rules the household with a hand of iron, and their pretty daughter, Evangeline. Other eccentric characters make their appearance. With such a collection there is bound to be something doing and the fun is fast and furious. Neither Alfred nor his servant know anything about running a lodging house and they have troubles of their own.

Old Bender strikes up a flirtation with Fifi, the opera singer; Alfred falls in love with Evangeline; Langhorne is pursued by his old landlady and finally has his effects seized. McDow has his hands full looking after the eccentric lodgers and to cap the climax the Pettibones return unexpectedly. Everything is smoothed out in the end, but for a time there are breakers ahead of Alfred.

The work of the entire cast was a big surprise to local theatregoers and would have done credit to professionals. The whole performance went without a hitch. There were no signs of stage fright or of that gaucherie which so often marks the stage work of amateurs. The parts were played with a spirit that showed proper appreciation of the lines, and the humour of the many funny situations was taken full advantage of. No better amateur production has been seen in Peterborough, and Mr. Irving Beers, as director, and the local amateurs who took part are to be congratulated upon the great success which attended their efforts and upon the magnificent treat which they provided for the people of Peterborough. Mr. Beers, who has staged "All the Comforts of Home" in many Pacific Coast cities, has worked energetically in producing it here, and the performers responded nobly with the result that it was in every way a grand success.

The Players

Mr. Chas. Barber, as Dr. Hastings, had the longest role in the production, and his work in the part last night could not have been improved upon. His interpretation of the part of the penniless but resourceful young doctor, was natural and unaffected, and he threw life and vigour into to part, his work being much appreciated. Mr. Geo. Lynch, always a favourite, was cast as Tom MacDow, the Irish servant, who shares with Dr. Hastings the destinies of the lodging house, and the role fitted him like a glove. His lines are among the funniest in the play, and needless to say he gets the most out of them. He is funny all the way and kept the audience in fits of laughter whenever he was on the stage.

Mr. Beers takes the part of Bender, the retired business man, with a tendency towards flirtation when possible, gives a capital interpretation of the role, making the character of the hen-pecked husband stand out prominently.

Mr. C. G. Graham, President of the Peterborough Hockey Club and one of the Principals in "All the Comforts of Home".

Mr. Mortimer Johnston makes a very irascible and jealous Pettibone playing his part with a spirit and vim that is refreshing, and adding a splendid voice to a good stage presence.

Mrs. J. N. Barber plays the part of Mrs. Bender to perfection, throwing life into the part and giving her lines with a zest that makes her work most enjoyable. Miss Lavina Halliban makes a very natural and charming Evangeline, her work leaving nothing to be desired, while her attractive stage presence adds to the effect. Miss Pearl Morgan has a difficult role, that of the opera singer, and she succeeds in making it highly successful, her work being most creditable throughout.

Mr. C. G. Graham is decidedly funny as Dabney, the mad musician, The part is laughable in itself, and Mr. Graham makes the most of it, his work bringing down the house.

The other parts were in good hands and were well looked after. Mr. Graham Ferguson as Victor Smyth, Miss Agnes Pentland as Mrs. Pettibone, Miss Nellie Graham as Emily Pettibone, Mr. D. B. MacRae as McSnath. Mr. Claude Brady as the policeman, Miss Nellie Halliban as a maid, and Mr. F. D. Craig as Langhorne, all gave capital interpretations of their parts, and gave the principals excellent support, with the result that the whole production went harmoniously and without the slightest mishap.

Following was the cast:

Dr. Hastings—"penniless but resourceful"—Mr. Chas. Barber.

Tom McDow—"who gets half"—Mr. Geo. Lynch.

Mr. Pettibone—"who is very jealous"—Mr. Mortimer Johnston.

Dabney—"the mad musician"—Mr. C. G. Graham.

Langhorne—"no money but lots of nerve"—Mr. Fred D. Craig.

McSnath—"Scotch and suspicious"—Mr. D. B. MacRae.

Smythe—"who falls under suspicion"—Mr. W. G. Ferguson, Jr.

Thomp on—"a limb of the law"—Mr. Claude Brady.

Bender—"hen-pecked but ready to take a chance"—Mr. Irving Beers.

Struthers—"who wants to set his watch"—Mr. Mortimer Johnston.

Mrs. Bender—"who rules her household"—Mrs. J. N. Barber.

Evangeline—her charming daughter—Miss L. Halliban.

Fifi Oritanski—"from the Opera Comique"—Miss Pearl Morgan.

Mrs. Pettibone—"wrongly suspected"—Miss Agnes Pentland.

Emily—her daughter—Miss Nellie Graham.

Katy—a maid—Miss Nellie Halliban.

The musical numbers interpolated into the play were by no means the least enjoyable features of the programme and added variety and interest. Miss Lavina Halliban made a big hit in her solo "To-night," in which her resonant and clear soprano was magnificently displayed, the freshness of tone, and intonation throughout clear and beautiful, making her number most enjoyable. In response to the hearty applause she sang "The Last Rose of Summer," and the old favourite lost none of its charm at her hands. Miss Pearl Morgan gave a most praiseworthy rendition of the pretty little song, "The Carnaval," her fresh young soprano making her performance a great success, and she had to respond to an enthusiastic encore. Messrs. Mortimer Johnston and A. B. Cutting were heard to great advantage in the spirited duet, "The Fishermen," the two fine voices blending most acceptably. The applause with which the number was greeted was merited.

Miss Katie Graham greatly assisted in the musical numbers by her sympathetic accompaniment, and her work at the piano left nothing to be desired.

To Mr. Beers, the director, who has done such fine work in training the members of the company, a vast amount of credit for the great success of the undertaking is due. He has spared no pains in his preparatory work, and the result is seen in the finished work of the company. Mr. Geo. Lynch, who had the somewhat ungrateful task of stage manager, is also to be congratulated upon the smoothness of the performance, for which he is in no small way responsible. Thanks is also due to the stage staff of the Grand, who assisted the company in every way possible, and who succeeded in making the stage investures most effective.

"All the Comforts of Home" might well be sacrificed by local people in order to see this sparkling comedy which will be repeated to-night. In addition a very clever sketch from the pen of Richard Harding Davis, entitled "The Littlest Girl" will be given. It is styles a social problem play and has been used with great success by Richard Mansfield, E S Willard and other profesionals. The cast consists of Messrs. Beers, Barber and Johnston, and little Miss Garden.

HOW TO CURE A HEADACHE

To attempt to cure a headache by taking a "headache powder," is like trying to stop a leak in the roof by putting a pan under the dripping water. Chronic headaches are caused by poisoned blood. The blood is poisoned by tissue waste, undigested food and other impurities remaining too long in the system. These poisons are not promptly eliminated because of sick liver, bowels, skin or kidneys.

If the bowels do not move regularly—if there is pain in the back showing kidney trouble—if the skin is sallow or disfigured with pimples—it shows clearly what is causing the headache.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure headaches because they cure the cause of headaches. "Fruit-a-tives" act directly on the three great eliminating organs—bowels, kidneys and skin. "Fruit-a-tives" keep the system free of poisons.

"Fruit-a-tives" come in two sizes—25c and 50c. If your dealer does not have them write to Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Peterborough Man Becomes Chicago Plumbing Inspector

(Peterborough boys are coming to the front in various portions of the United States as well as in Canada. Another evidence of this is given in The Plumbers Trade Journal for November published in New York. It refers to the appointment of J. C. Alford as supervising plumbing inspector of Chicago. Mr. Alford is a son of Mrs. Alford, 301 Reid street, and is known to many in Peterborough. The Journal says—

John C. Alford, one of the most prominent plumbers in Chicago and one of the widest known men in Illinois, has been appointed to the responsible position of Sanitary Inspector Mr. Alford will have charge of all the plumbing inspections of the city.

DO YOU UNDERSTAND WOMEN CORRECTLY?

Why Did One of Them Ask Strange Man to Pay Her Fare?

This morning a gentleman stopped an Examiner reporter to relate an experience he had on a street car a day or two ago, the circumstances of which are still puzzling him. Needless to say, from this last fact, i.e., that something occurred which he could not satisfactorily explain, there was a woman in the case. She was sitting alone in one of the rear seats, he occupied the one opposite and was likewise "by his lonesome." As the conductor approached the man was tearing off a ticket from his half dozen, when the woman with a dollar in one hand leaned over and speaking his name asked him to pay her fare as she did not wish to break the dollar bill for her fare. The question perplexing the man is what feelings prompted the woman to make the strange request. They were unacquainted although she knew his name. Those answering this question most reasonably will earn the gratitude of the gentleman who paid the fare. He was married too.

Strong Appeal For Broader Spirit Of Tolerance Made By The Rev. Father Fitzpatrick

Splendid Concert Given at Ennismore Town Hall Last Night—Arranged by Telford Brothers—A Fine Programme.

VERY ENJOYABLE EVENING

The Ennismore Town Hall last night was crowded with an appreciative audience, attending a concert given by the Telford Bros.—Messrs. Ernest and Clayton Telford, of Ennismore, sons of Mr. J. N. Telford, of Bridgenorth.

The success of the evening was a decided tribute to these young men, who, by their willingness to lend their talents in the musical affairs of the township, have won a large number of friends who attended last night, thereby showing their appreciation of their gracious efforts in the past.

Although the programme was rather lengthy, it was commenced early and was concluded at a seasonable hour. In fact, the whole affair was conducted in a splendid manner, not a hitch occurring and many encores being handed out by the audience. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick acted as chairman in a satisfactory manner, and to him is due in a large measure the general success of the affair.

The programme was as follows:

Part I.

Selection by Mandolin Club.
Chairman's address.
Vocal duet—Mrs. Young and Mr. Campbell.
Vocal solo—Miss Celia Twomey.
Vocal quartette — Orpheus Male Quartette.
Vocal solo—Mr. Wm. McLaren.
Vocal solo—Miss Loretta Kennedy.
Duet—Misses Scollard.
Vocal solo—Miss Leon.
Selection by Mandolin Club.
Violin solo—Miss Agnes Scollard.

Part II.

Orpheus Quartette.
Vocal duet—Telford Bros.
Vocal solo—Mrs. Young.
Humourous selection—Mr. Wm. McLaren.
Vocal solo—Mr. Campbell.
Cornet solo—Mr. J. Miller.
Vocal solo—Miss Leon.
Humourous sketch—Mr. Wm. McLaren and Mr. Percy Redgrave.
Orpheus Quartette.
God Save the King.

The accompanists were Miss Agnes Scollard, Mr. Geo. Schneider and Harry Theobald.

Of the various performances Mr. McLaren scored the biggest success with his humorous songs, monologues and his sketch with Mr. Redgrave. He was called back several times, and at the conclusion of the programme gave another number by request, and had to respond to it. The Orpheus Quartette, composed of Messrs. Thornton, Pratt, Miller and Lillie, also pleased the audience. The other numbers were thoroughly enjoyed.

Chairman's Address

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, in his opening address, made a very appropriate speech, in which he set forth the benefits derived by a community in which the people lived in harmony with each other and where differences of religion did not interfere with their social life. He paid the Telford brothers a nice compliment upon the gentlemanly bearing they have always shown and their willingness to assist in concerts given by the young people of St. Martin's parish. It had been a pleasure to him to throw open the hall for the concert they had arranged, and was further pleased to have been asked to act as chairman. The sentiments expressed by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick had the full sympathy of the audience.

At the intermission Mr. J. N. Telford was called upon for a speech, and in the course of his remarks he stated that if there was one thing more than another about the programme which he enjoyed it was to hear the broad minded sentiments which Rev. Father Fitzpatrick had expressed, sentiments which, he said, would engender a feeling of respect for one another among the people of the township, regardless of creed, and would lend a material influence in advancing the general welfare of the community in every line.

A pleasant time was spent after the concert at the home of Mr. John Flood, where luncheon was served for all those who assisted in the programme and also Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, who, with the Telford brothers, made things lively for everyone.

Cheese Sells At Splendid Figure At Final Meeting Of The Board This Morning

Highest Prices is 12 3-8 Cents—Distinguished Dairymen Present—2601 Boxes Boarded.

SOME VOTES OF THANKS

The final meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board, held this morning, and it was indeed a gratifying one to the salesmen. The highest price was 12 3-8 cents, which was an eighth better than two weeks ago, when many factories refused 12 3-16 cents. To-day only 135 boxes were left unsold. The factories were Lang and Killarney, who refused 12 1-4 cents. Altogether 2,601 boxes were boarded, but about 1,000 of these were boarded at the last sale and left unsold. At the final meeting last year 2,840 boxes were boarded, the price being 12 3-16 cents.

The president, Mr. Coughlin, referred to the presence of Senator Daniel Derbyshire and Mr. Murphy, of Brockville, who would address the dairy meeting in the Court House this afternoon. He also thanked the Bank of Montreal for the use of the room during the summer, and also the newspapermen who had reported the meetings.

Senator Derbyshire requested the presence of all at the meeting this afternoon, and Mr. Murphy, in a short address, referred to the advantages of the Peterborough Board and promised to tell those who attended the meeting this afternoon something about the Brockville Board.

Secretary Ed. Hawthorne opened a discussion on whether the buyers should be allowed a pound per box for shrinkage or not, on the last sale. Some were in favour of not allowing it, but it was finally decided that the cheese should be sold with the understanding that a pound per box would be given for shrinkage.

The buyers present were Fitzgerald, Gillespie, Whitton, Cook, Weir, Morton, Watkin, Riddell, Gunn and Langlois.

Thanks to PSYCHINE this has disappeared and he is now quite well."

Writing to the Dr. T. A. Slocum, Limited, four years after, (August 11th, 1908), Mrs. Graves says; "I am confident PSYCHINE saved my son's life, for the doctors did not think he would live the summer out, in fact he was a walking skeleton. It was your medicine that cured him, for to-day he is as well as ever."

TAFT IS ELECTED TO THE PRESIDENCY

Defeats Bryan With a Big Vote in Electoral College.

GOVERNOR HUGHES WINS

Anti-Racing Head of New York State Sweeps the Polls—Congress Will Be Strongly Republican With Cannon Still Speaker—Taft Breaks Record by Getting Plurality in N. Y. City—Senate the Same.

New York City, Nov. 4.—The outstanding features of the Presidential election are:

William H. Taft is elected President with approximately 296 votes.

Practically no change is indicated in the complexion of the National House of Representatives.

The United States Senate will retain its present Republican majority.

Governor Chas. E. Hughes has been re-elected in New York State by about 54,000 plurality.

Indiana has gone for Taft.

Bryan has apparently carried Nebraska.

Ohio returns are very slow owing to immense ballot, but Taft has carried it by a large plurality.

Judge Taft probably will receive a greater plurality in New York State than President Roosevelt did four years ago. He has exceeded Mr. Roosevelt's plurality in New Jersey and had a surprisingly big vote in Massachusetts.

The Republican pluralities fell off heavily in the middle west in a manner thoroughly surprising to the Republican managers.

Speaker Cannon has been re-elected by his usual majority.

Representative Payne of New York and Dalzell of Pennsylvania have been re-elected and the House of Representatives probably will continue under its old regime. Mr. Payne will have charge of the new tariff bill in the extra session which Mr. Taft will call immediately after March 4 next.

Missouri has returned to the "solid south" on the Presidential ticket and elected Cowherd as its governor.

The first returns received came from scattering districts in Massachusetts. The heavy pluralities indicated there for Taft seemed at once to dissipate any probability of a "landslide" for Bryan, as many Democrats had claimed, and the Republican managers at once began to put out claims of victory.

Returns from the up-country districts of New York State, where voting machines are largely used, were the next to arrive. It had been predicted for days that Erie County, including the heavy vote of Buffalo, might be taken as an index to the drift throughout the country. This proved to be the case, so far as the national ticket was concerned, Mr. Taft having a plurality of something more than 4,000 votes. Erie County surprisingly, however, gave Lieutenant-Governor Chanler a plurality of more than 3,000. The opponents of Governor Hughes were quick to claim a sweeping victory, but returns from the other large counties and cities soon changed the complexion of the returns completely.

The vote in Greater New York for Chanler was deeply disappointing to his friends, while the heavy vote for Taft, especially in the Borough of Brooklyn, completely eclipsed the most sanguine hopes of the Republicans. Governor Hughes was cut heavily up the state, but not so deeply as to imperil his election, once the drift in his favor "below the Bronx" had begun to make itself felt.

To Governor Hughes, Judge Taft said: "I thank you warmly for your congratulations and reciprocate by extending congratulations to you on carrying New York State against tremendous odds and by the wonderful campaign which you carried on. We are all indebted to you also for your aid in the national campaign."

To Representative Wm. B. McKinley, the candidate wired: "I am delighted to know that we shall have a Republican House, for that is absolutely necessary for future work."

Timothy L. Woodruff was sent an expression of gratitude, "for the great campaign which was carried on." He also expressed especial gratification at the election of Governor Hughes.

The following is the latest returns with the plurality wherever it can be estimated, and the vote which the state carries in the electoral college:

Republican—California (10); Colorado (5); Connecticut (7); Delaware (3) 1,500; Idaho (3) 20,000; Illinois (27) 70,000; Indiana (15) 13,000; Iowa (13) 30,000; Kansas (10) 20,000; Maine (6) 31,000; Maryland (8) 6,600; Massachusetts (16); Michigan (14) 100,000; Minnesota (11) 20,000; Montana (3); Nevada (3); New Hampshire (4); New Jersey (12) 80,000; New York (39) North Dakota (4) 30,000; Ohio (23); Oregon (4); Pennsylvania (24) 300,000; Rhode Island (4); South Dakota (4) 10,000; Utah (3); Vermont (4) 27,904; Washington (5); West Virginia (7) 25,000; Wisconsin (13) 75,000; Wyoming (3).

Democrat—Alabama (11); Arkansas (7); Georgia (13); Florida (5); Kentucky (13) 15,000; Louisiana (9); Missouri (18) 35,000; Mississippi (10); Nebraska (8) gain 9 to 14,000; North Carolina (12); Oklahoma (7) 40,000; South Carolina (9); Tennessee (12) normal; Texas (18); Virginia (12).

The following is a summary of the career of Judge Taft:

Born at Mount Auburn, Ohio, Sept. 15, 1857.

Graduated from Yale, 1878.

Studied law in his father's office.

In 1885 appointed judge of Ohio Supreme Court, succeeding Judson Harmon, who entered Cleveland's Cabinet.

In 1886, married the daughter of Hon. John Herron of Cincinnati. He has now three children.

In 1887, appointed Solicitor-General of the United States by President Harrison.

In 1890, returned to Ohio as judge of federal circuit, a step to the Supreme Court.

In 1900, appointed chairman of the Philippine commission, refusing coveted appointment to Supreme Court to continue his services there.

Returned to the United States to become Secretary of War and of the Colonies in 1904.

Japanese Boycott Is Bitterly Waged In Hong Kong.

Hong Kong, Nov. 4.—The rioting which resulted here Monday from the attempt of those involved to force the local merchants to continue the boycott against Japanese goods, has been suppressed by the soldiers who were called out to patrol the business districts. One Chinese who offered armed resistance, was shot.

The riots were organized primarily by the students of this city and the disturbance is evidently widespread.

At Singapore similar riots have occurred and a number of merchants said to have shown a desire to discontinue the boycott and otherwise favor Japan have been branded as traitors and in several instances marked by having their ears slitted. It is alleged that a league has been formed secretly and has pledged itself to give any man who slits the ears of a so-called "traitor" $15 and should he be thrown in jail, to see that he is held up to the public as a martyr and to pay him a dollar a day while in prison. Should one of the traitor merchants be killed it is alleged the league agrees to pay his slayer $200.

At Canton there have been hints of the same trouble and a number of ruffians have been hired to attack merchants. Vigorous measures to suppress the rioting have been taken.

Teddy Leaves In March.

New York, N.Y., Nov. 4.—The Times yesterday has learned that President Roosevelt plans to leave New York on March 13, nine days after the inauguration by the North German liner Koenig Albert, for Naples, via Gibraltar, where the liner is due on March 25.

Besides his son, Kermit, who will take photographs of the big game in Africa, he will be accompanied by a professor from the Smithsonian Institute, and an official from the navy department.

So far no arrangements have been made for the six months the party will spend in Uganda Province.

Feud. Election and Whisky.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 4.—As a result of a feudal war at Campon Junction, about 20 miles west of Jackson, Onslow Allen, aged 20 years, was shot and killed Monday night and Alvin Garver, aged 22, was badly injured. Clarence Sherman, who did the shooting, was shot in the head, but managed to escape to the mountains. Eight barrels of whisky, shipped into town for the election, brought about the trouble, although family troubles of long standing played a prominent part.

P. E. I. Elections.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Nov. 4.—The Prince Edward Island election will be held 15 days hence. Premier Hazard's platform includes the pressing of further claims against the Dominion, including a share of the fishery award, the restoration of Federal representation in the House of Commons.

THE VALUE OF COD LIVER OIL

No physician would dispute the value of COD LIVER OIL in nervous and pulmonary diseases, if the nauseous grease did not so derange digestion as to more than counteract the good done by the therapeutic principles of the oil.

In "BRICK'S TASTELESS" there is no grease. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, invigorates the nerves by nourishing them, and CURES Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis. Its timely use is an insurance against serious consequences, as the weakened system is a prey to germ diseases, such as Tuberculosis, Typhoid and Typhus Fevers, and Diphtheria.

Brick's guarantee with every bottle is an evidence of our faith in this matchless Preparation.

"BRICK'S TASTELESS" is put up in eight (8) ounce bottles, retail price fifty (50) cents, and in twenty (20) ounce bottles, retail price one (1) dollar.

BANK TELLER SAID TO BE SHORT

D. C. McCallum of Farmers' Said to Have Been Speculating.

DEFICIT MAY BE $17,000

Officials at Toronto Head Office Are Hard at Work Examining Into the Books of Employe Who Is Said to Have Been Involved In Unfortunate Stock Manipulations—Action Not Decided Upon.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—The rather startling discovery of a shortage of from $12,000 to $17,000 in the accounts of the head office of the Farmers' Bank in this city has been made, and the cause is said to be unfortunate stock speculation with the bank's funds by D. Cameron McCallum, who has been with the financial institution, since its formation some few years ago. What the actual shortage is has not yet been made known, as the officials of the bank's head office are busy at work going over the teller's books and cash. So far there are discrepancies in the cash of some $12,000, and it is thought it may be some days before the management is aware of the real shortage. While the books of this bank are under inspection, the teller is still there helping the officials to straighten out the accounts which are now somewhat muddled.

That the teller has admitted speculating with the funds of the bank is evident from the fact that he has turned over to the city manager a number of stock certificates which have a market value of thousands of dollars. Mr. C. R. Hill, the city manager of the Farmers' Bank, has been constantly in the company of the teller since Monday morning, when the shortage was discovered, and has obtained some valuable information which may help the bank management to recover some of the money lost in the unfortunate stock dealings on the local market. The teller is not trying to conceal anything; in fact, he has told the management that he feels greatly relieved that the shortage has been discovered.

What action the bank will take against the official will not be determined till the general manager, Mr. W. R. Travers, returns from New York, where he went on business towards the end of last week. Mr. Travers has been summoned to the city by telegraph, and in the meantime Mr. Hill, the manager, and Mr. James G. Fitzribbon, the chief inspector of the Farmers' Bank, are attending to the examination of the teller's cash and are expected to learn the true state of affairs before the end of the week.

Warehouses Fall Into River.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Nov. 4.—Two large brick cotton warehouses tumbled into the Arkansas river Monday following the contiguous caving in of the banks of the Arkansas river.

The Hotel Jefferson and the Jefferson County Court House are in danger of falling into the river within the next forty-eight hours. The river continues to eat its way into the heart of the business district and thousands of dollars worth of property are in danger.

Several small cottages have been carried down stream and a large plantation on the north side of the river is gradually disappearing.

Haven't Paid Yet.

London, Ont., Nov. 4.—The London Old Boys' Association is threatened with suit by the 91st Highlanders' Band of Hamilton, for non-payment for services during the old boys' celebration. It is claimed there was $1,057 left in the treasury and that officers of the association held a secret meeting and voted themselves rich presents. It is alleged that one man got a costly clock, another $500, and another a gold watch.

Farmer Badly Hurt.

Guelph, Nov. 4.—Daniel Carter, a Guelph farmer, was driving under an archway at Stewart's lumber yard, yesterday, seated on top of a high load of lumber, when his head struck. His scalp was partially torn off and the vertebra in the back of the neck dislocated. His body is entirely paralyzed.

Must Repair at Collingwood.

Detroit, Nov. 4.—Under a ruling made by the Minister of Marine regarding Canadian bottoms, the steamer Canadian, which went on the rocks at Detour about a week ago, could not be taken to Duluth for repairs. She will go to the yard at Collingwood.

Asks No Favors.

London, Nov. 4.—The Colonial Office recently offered President Roosevelt the freedom of the Government shooting preserves in Africa. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he wished to be treated only as a private citizen and that he did not desire special privileges.

Five Months In Mercer.

Brantford, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Winters, on a charge of conspiring to defraud Mr. Gillighan of Cainsville, was sentenced yesterday morning to five months in the Mercer Reformatory, without the option of a fine. She has already served a month in jail.

WORKER'S HAND SAVED

Mr. Wm. Burdett, of 198 Simcoe St., East, Hamilton, Ont., is employed at the works of the Canadian Westinghouse Co. He says:—"A heavy mould was being rolled over when it caught my hand. The result was a terrible crush, and by next morning my hand was black, and so stiffened, swollen and painful I could not use it. We applied liniment, and bandaged it, thinking it would soon be all right again—but it wasn't! For some time it showed no sign of getting better but on the contrary looked like turning to a very ugly injury.

"My wife persuaded me that Zam-Buk would do me more good than anything else, and I began to try it. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate to the very core of the injured muscles and ligaments, taking healing and ease with it. It soothed the pain, reduced the swelling, and removed the discoloration. In a week's time it had so acted on the injury that the hand was nearly normal again and I could go to work once more. It is now quite cured."

HIS WIFE CURED OF DISFIGURING ECZEMA!

The above case is only one instance of the benefit which the Burdett family has reaped from Zam-Buk. Mr. Burdett's wife owes her cure of eczema to the same healing balm. She says: "The disease broke out on my face in the form of red pimples and blotches which itched terribly, and when rubbed, burned and smarted very much. The pustules then spread and formed sores. These were at times very painful, they itched until I could hardly bear, and when touched turned sore. I tried various things, one after another, as they were recommended to me, but seemed unable to get any relief. Ordinary ointments and salves were quite unequal to my case.

Then I tried Zam-Buk although at the time I hardly thought it could cure me. I thought it was just an ordinary balm. To my delight I was soon convinced otherwise. A few applications gave me considerable ease, and the burning, smarting pains grew less acute. As I persevered with the treatment the patches grew less in extent and the sores ceased to be so painful. In a week's time the eczema was well under control and healing splendidly, and to-day I am free from it entirely. Zam-Buk has effected a permanent cure, I feel sure, and I am very grateful for it."

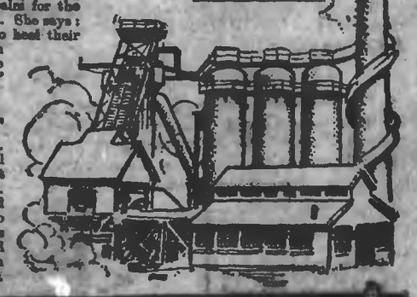
ZAM-BUK FOR CHILDREN'S HURTS.

Mrs. Burdett has a word to say on the value of Zam-Buk as a balm for the delicate and tender skin of children. Every mother should note this. She says: "Zam-Buk is especially useful where there are children. It seems to heal their cuts and wounds and scratches in wonderful form. Almost as soon as applied, it ends the pain and smarting and gives the little ones ease. I would not like to be without it in the house."



WHAT ZAM-BUK IS AND WHAT IT CURES.

Zam-Buk is a balm composed entirely of healing herbal essences. It is free from the rancid animal fats and poisonous mineral substances found in ordinary salves and ointments. Unlike these it never goes rancid, never stains, but is always sweet, pure and fresh. It cures cuts, burns and scalds; heals ulcers, abscesses, poisoned wounds, [illegible] heads, frost bite, cold sores, etc. Rubbed on to the chest in cases of cold it ends the feeling of tightness and aching. It is also a cure for piles. All stores and druggists sell at 50c a box or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 for $1.25.

Petition For Local Option Will Be Presented To Havelock Council

Signed by 170 Residents—Masquerade Calico Ball Was a Great Success.

SEVERAL DEATHS OCCUR

Examiner Special

Havelock, Nov. 4.—Miss Annie Barris and Miss Cleo Fowler left on Thursday to visit with friends at Peterborough.

Mrs. Harry Falkner and Master Tommy were in Peterborough on Friday, attending the funeral of Master Lorne Hilliar.

Mr. Andy Armston was in Peterborough Thursday on business.

Mr. Jas. E. Fowler spent Tuesday in Toronto on business.

Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Walker, of Chebance, Ill., were the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Bennington for a few days last week.

Dr. Middleton, dentist, of Peterborough, has decided to open up a branch office in town, and next week and after will be at the Dineen House every Thursday.

On Monday of this week Rev. D. Balfour and Rev. J. A. G. Stirling filed the petition for local option with the town clerk, which contains the names of 170 citizens entitled to vote on the measure. It will be presented to the council on Monday evening of next week, the regular monthly meeting.

The death of Mrs. Margaret Duck, of Belmont, occurred on Thursday last, Oct. 22nd, at the advanced age of 72 years. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon to Norwood Cemetery, and was conducted by Rev. J. A. G. Stirling.

Rev. P. B. Thornton, of Colborne, and Rev. H. J. Keith, of Peterborough, will be present at the annual dinner to be held in the Presbyterian Church, on Wednesday, November 11th and will deliver addresses.

Mrs. Bennington spent a few days in Kingston last week, the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. Cramer.

The sad news was received in town of the death of Mr. Alex. McAuley, of West Toronto, a former resident of Havelock, having resided here for some years, when he was road master of the C. P. R. He was the first reeve of our little town, always taking much interest in the municipal and social life of the village. His death was due to pneumonia. The many friends extend their sympathy to the bereaved widow.

The "Masquerade Calico Ball," given by a number of the young ladies of the town, which took place on Friday night, Oct. 30th, was in every way a grand success, and much credit is due those who so ably assisted. People from Toronto, Smith's Falls, Norwood, Campbellford, Hastings, Marmora and Delore were present, including a very large number of townspeople. The hall was most artistically decorated for the occasion with bunting, evergreen and palms, Japanese lanterns and pumpkins added much to the beauty of the hall. At twelve o'clock the electric lights were turned off, leaving only the candles burning in the lanterns and pumpkins, and the dances were danced, after which all masques were removed and all adjourned, with the partners last danced with, down to the cafe room where a most dainty fowl supper awaited the guests. The tables were very prettily arrayed with cut flowers and pumpkins filled with different fruits served as centre pieces. Maroicano's Orchestra, of Toronto, was highly appreciated by all, and added greatly to the evening's enjoyment. On the second half of the programme two leap year dances were called and ably responded to by the many bashful young ladies. After the farewell waltz all joined in singing the "National Anthem," which brought this most delightful event, long to be remembered, to a close.

Dr. Harry Andrew, of Toronto, is the guest of friends in town.

Mr. Reggie Barlow underwent an operation for appendicitis on Sunday morning at the Mrs. Campbell's residence. Dr. Hobderoft, assisted by Dr. Wade, of Hastings, performed it. He is doing as well as can be expected.

The death occurred on Friday of little Mary White, aged eight years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John White, of town, after an illness of only six days. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, services being held at their residence on Ottawa street and from thence to the Pine Grove Cemetery for interment. Rev. Mr. Stirling conducted the service. The sympathy of all goes out to the bereaved parents in the loss of their little one.

Miss Maud Wayer, of Toronto, visited Miss Lancaster last week.

Mr. A. Kuwasser was in town last week, arranging to move his household effects to Ottawa, where he and family will reside in future. Their many friends regret their departure but wish them success and prosperity in their new home.

Mr. Joseph Morrow, of Belmont, a young man of 28 years, passed away on Wednesday last after a lingering illness of two years. The funeral was held on Friday at twelve o'clock, the interment taking place at the Norwood Cemetery.

The annual meeting of the Belmont Sabbath School Association will be held in Havelock on the afternoon and evening of November 12th.

BASKETBALL GAMES AT THE "Y" LAST NIGHT

The Y.M.C.A. Business Boys played off two games of basketball last night both games being well contested. Halpany's team won from M. Laing's by a score of 6—2.

The second game between Hanwells and McWilliams' teams resulted in a score of 10—4 in favour of Hanwell.

A full turn out of the Rugby players of the T.A.S. Athletic Club will be held to-morrow night, in preparation for their game on Saturday with the Rough Riders.

Petition For Local Option.

Picton, Nov. 4.—A petition for a local option bylaw was presented to the Town Council Monday night, but E. M. Young, representing the liquor trade, questioned the genuineness of many signatures. Rev. Wm. Shearer suggested that the petition had been in Mr. Young's hands and the latter demanded a retraction of the statement. The Council will have the petition looked into.

Village Fire Swept.

Syracuse, N.Y., Nov. 4.—The village of Savannah, twenty-one miles west of here, was almost wiped off the map yesterday morning by a fire that swept through the business section of the city until twenty-two buildings had been consumed and $150,000 worth of property had been eaten up. The fire started in Millan's bakery on Main street.

Bell's New Airship.

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 4.—Dr. Alexander Graham Bell has completed a new aerodrome and a flight will be made with the machine about the middle of this month. The aerodrome is constructed on the tetrahedral principle and is twice the size of the Cygnet, which successfully flew in December of last year, having as navigator the late Lieut. Selfridge.

T. E. Kenny's Will.

Halifax, Nov. 4.—The will of T. E. Kenny, president of the Royal Bank, was probated yesterday. He left an estate valued at $350,000, and bequeaths $2,500 to a son, $1,000 to a servant, $3,000 to local charities. The income of the residue goes to Mrs. Kenny for life, and at her death the estate is to be divided among their children.

Another Election Slander Suit.

Montreal, Nov. 4.—A suit for $5,000, arising out of the late general election, has been taken by S. W. Jacobs, a lawyer, against A. Levitt.

The latter is said to have made a remark as chairman of an Ekers Conservative meeting about Jacobs, who was a supporter of Bickerdike, which he considered slanderous.

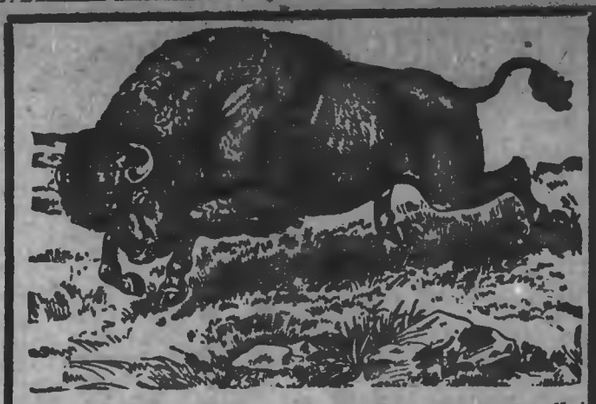
Lunatic Kills Police Chief.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Nov. 4.—A. L. Miller, chief of police of Fairbanks, was shot by Blanche Duval at the Pioneer Hotel yesterday and later died from his wounds. Chief Miller was breaking down the door of the woman's room in order to arrest her on a charge of insanity.

Girl Shoots Herself.

Lockport, N.S., Nov. 4.—Bertha Misenhauer, 28 years old, committed suicide yesterday. She had been despondent, and seeing her brother place a loaded gun in a corner, secured it, placing the muzzle against her left breast and discharged the weapon, causing death.

Fifty doses for a quarter! The best of all tonics. Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by J. D. Tully, druggist, Peterborough.



THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No! "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organized by Messrs. Windsor and held throughout the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

Mr. Waite, international secretary of religious work for boys will be present at the Y.M.C.A. conference opening next Saturday. He is an excellent speaker and one well acquainted with every detail of the Boys' work.

Communications have been received from Ottawa, Hamilton Central and East End Y.M.C.A.'s, Lindsay, Port Hope and Brantford and a large number is expected. The local boys are reminded that they must register with Mr. Geo. T Evans, Boys' secretary, before Friday and they should all wear the Peterborough colours.

As many boys as possible are asked to be present on Saturday morning at the Y.M.C.A. at 9 o'clock to assist in arrangement and to meet the visitors at the trains. Members of all Boys' Clubs in the city are invited to attend the conference and will be made welcome. This is a rare opportunity for Peterborough boys and one which they should take advantage of.

A PROCLAMATION

Whereas, the people of our city have been led to purchase so-called remedies from which they have received no benefit whatever, and having thus wasted so much hard-earned money, it has come to pass that they know not what to believe.

Inasmuch as this unsatisfactory state of affairs exists, KNOW, THEREFORE, ALL PERSONS who are in need of such a medicine that we will supply them with VINOL on a POSITIVE GUARANTEE that if it does not succeed in benefiting them we will refund the entire amount of money paid us for it.

There is no one medicine that will cure everything, but there are some we know to be honest, reliable, and of great curative value. Such is VINOL; it is not a secret medicine,—just peptonate of iron, wine, and all the curative extractives of cod liver oil, combined. We are familiar with every particle of it, and KNOW that it should benefit every one who uses it.

Could any offer be more fair than this? You are ill; we offer you medicine which we believe will help you, and if it does not we will return your money. Is there anyone foolish enough not to accept this offer? You owe it to your family, to your friends, and yourself to try this medicine which we give you our pledge is a genuine cod liver and iron preparation of great merit.

We unhesitatingly recommend Vinol as a Body Builder and Strength Creator for Feeble Old People, Delicate Children, Frail Women, All Run Down Persons, and Those Needing a Good Tonic after the Grippe or any Severe Illness, and for Chronic Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis.

Do you think we could afford to lend our name to its praises, as we have been doing in the newspapers, if we did not know VINOL to be an honest and unusually valuable remedy for the ills for which it is prescribed? We certainly could not; we therefore ask you, our neighbors, friends and acquaintances to accept our assurances that this is a genuine offer, and that any and all persons who need a medicine of this character should feel a sense of security in accepting it.

You will absolutely be under no obligation to us whatever, if after you have tried one bottle of VINOL, and have not received any benefit, you have only to tell us so, and we will return the entire amount of money you paid us for it.

VINOL is an old and valuable remedy improved by modern science—tastes good and agrees with every one.

Call and get a bottle to-day. You won't be sorry.

McDermid & Jury, Druggists, Peterboro

You can get Vinol at the Leading Drug Store in every Town and City in Ontario.

This is what Mrs. Ranton says of the proofs when they reached her:

"The proofs, we think, are grand. Mr. Ranton is just delighted with them, and so we're all. You might sit a hundred times and not get a better picture. These are only proofs, but when they are retouched and finished they will be almost perfect. We have ordered an extra dozen and a half. We think they are better than any we got in Boston."

REID DISCHARGED THIS MORNING

Man Charged With Stealing Valise Was Allowed To Go.

Jas. Reid, the peddler, who appeared before Magistrate Dumble a week ago on the charge of stealing a valise and bathing suit from his landlady, came up this morning for sentence . Reid had been remanded for a week until the police investigated his case, but as there was nothing more against him and he had had a week in gaol, the Magistrate allowed him to go. Reid was very penitent and pleaded intoxication as the cause of his action. He sobbed his thankfulness when the magistrate discharged him.

Turf Club Imposes Fines On T. Hodgins And Driver Of "Walter G" At Peterboro' Fair

The officers of the Peterborough Turf Club met last night and disposed of the "Walter G" affair that resulted from the Peterborough Fair races. No word had been received from T Hodgins, of Orillia, the man who brought the horse to this city, although he had been asked to identify the horse by Nov. 2nd. Not complying to this and as the protest of the owners of the other horses in the race had to be settled, Mr. Hodgins' case was dealt with last night when the Club met with Dr. Johnston, President, in the chair. Hodgins was fined $100 and Ed Passmore of Orillia, the driver, was fined $20. One hundred dollars was also placed against the horse which Mr. Hodgins must identify before he can ever again compete in any races held under National Trotting Association Rules.

It is very likely that there will be a court case over the handing of the prize money to Mr. Hodgins by the Fair people, when they were told not to do so by Dr .Johnston.

Local merchants will give their opinions and if an organization is decided upon, the officers will be elected.

Shot Thirty-eight Ducks On Monday Last At Rice Lake

Duck shooting at Rice Lake was never better according to a letter received from a Peterborough party who went down last Monday. Messrs. Ernie Mitchell, Jimmie Goselin and S Coon are having splendid sport, the weather being favourable on the lake. They are located at Pandash Point and up to the time of writing on Tuesday, had bagged 38 birds. This was accomplished in practically one day and is certainly going some.

Dismissed Peddler By Getting Revolver Instead Of Purse

A Sherbrooke street woman was annoyed the other day by an importunate peddler of toilet powder, laney soap and writing paper . She told the man she did not wish to buy anything but he would show her the goods, saying he had procured a license to peddle and he at least would have a hearing. The woman listened and noticed and then asked him to wait until she got her purse. Reappearing at the door she surprised the too business-like man by producing a 22 calibre revolver . Had he any hopes of a sale they soon vanished as the woman coolly ordered him away. It is not necessary to add that he went away more quickly than he at first intended.

DUST DESTROYS THE GOODS OF THE MERCHANTS

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir—Notwithstanding the fact that the dust has been an abominable nuisance to merchants, pedestrians and drivers for the past three or four days nothing was done by the proper authorities to have hatt nuisance alleviated until this afternoon. Why is it that the city council does not pay more attention to this than they have been doing? Dust is dust in September as well as in August, and causes just as much damage now as then. It means pretty near destruction to goods on display, causes sore eyes and feelings. This is hoping, Mr. Editor that the council will not let it occur again.

Yours etc.
MERCHANT.

MR. BOURASSA'S WAIL.

Henri Bourassa's newspaper, the Nationaliste of Montreal, which made a vigorous campaign against Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the recent general election, taking the ground that the premier by his alliance with the English-speaking people of the Dominion, and especially by the popularity which his high personality had procured for him, was endangering the solidarity of the French-Canadian people, of which Mr. Bourassa posed as the especial champion, now takes the extraordinary ground that because what he predicted would happen, did happen, therefore the French race is still endangered. In a recent issue of the Nationaliste the claim is made that Premier Laurier's appeal to the higher sentiment of the nation, upon the ground of a patriotism that is superior to any trumpery prejudices of race or creed, gave him a great support among the English-speaking communities, while the French-Canadian element went solidly for Sir Wilfrid Laurier from no better motive than that he was of their race. The Nationaliste's estimate of the influence of the French-Canadian vote, per se, in many Ontario constituencies is so far fetched as in many instances to be absurd; but if even his claims were well founded, we need not fear that on that account the English-speaking communities will ever combine to ostracise the French-Canadians as a race, or even seek to render them the injustice of refusing the recognition to which their importance in numbers, in industry, and in the historic associations upon which Canadian patriotism is founded, justly entitle them.

The experience of Mr. Bourassa himself, who sought to lead away his compatriots from their support of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, upon the strictly "national" appeal, should show him that his French-Canadian fellow citizens are not to be deceived by any such clap-trap. As a matter of fact, they divide—and this is so, particularly in Ontario constituencies—upon the same lines of difference as separate their neighbours into opposing political camps, and as a people in whom sentiment is much stronger than among other elements of our population, they have always been found equipped with the courage of their convictions.

When some of the old-time apostles of liberty who founded the Reform party in this province, could not find the means of securing in Ontario the voice in Parliament that was necessary to their work, they were received with open arms by French-Canadian constituencies, and thus enabled to complete the great work to which we owe the large measure of liberty that Canada to-day enjoys.

If the French-Canadians were really as bigoted in their racial ideas as Mr. Bourassa expected to find them—though he was sadly disappointed—where in our political history would have been found a place for a Holton, a Huntington, an Irvine, a Church, a Wright, or a Fisher?

If Sir Wilfrid received the preponderance of the French-Canadian vote it was because he had deserved it, upon grounds of public policy and Canadian patriotism. In fact, upon the same grounds that gave him the support of the great majority of the intelligent men of other origin throughout the country.

What is more remarkable, however, than the position of the Nationaliste, which may be excused as the jeremiad of a disappointed politician who alone in the late campaign did make a real and direct appeal to the race prejudice which he has specially elected himself to represent, is the use made of this opinions by some of the less informed "Tory" papers in Ontario, as the principal asset which they have left after the wreck which involved them on October 26.

The implied threats of an English-speaking combination against the French-Canadian people, upon the ground of a domination that has no existence in reality, and has never had since the days of the late Sir George Cartier, will not either delude the English-speaking nor scare the French-speaking citizens of Canada.

Of this we have ample proof in the recent experience in this and other counties of Ontario, where the bogey of "French domination" was trotted out and used to the limit of the ingenuity of those who resorted to it, but without any perceptible influence upon the action of the intelligent voter.

IS THERE A SECOND COBALT COMING.

The Cobalt silver mines have made good. They easily increased in value $15,000,000 yesterday. Cobalt is, what they all say now, the greatest silver camp in the world. The six-dollar shares of Nipissing, the leading mine of the camp, went from $10 to $12.50 yesterday. No one doubts Cobalt now. But not only has it made good; more surprising is it that it is widening; the silver area steadily enlarges so as to include properties that were once thought of little value. Against the hitherto experience of mining in general, namely, that that where and when there were two or three big mines in the one spot nature had exhausted her stores in that quarter, that more was not to be expected—against this experience is the new experience of Cobalt, that there are fifty, probably one hundred shipping mines in a place two miles square! Never was such a thing seen before. Mining engineers of world-wide experience say that in this respect Cobalt is the marvel. So much for the greatness of Cobalt, the richness of Cobalt!

But is there another Cobalt in the Temiskaming country? It looks like it. That is the wonderful stimulus that has been animating prospectors and investors for a year back. They think they see it coming, and they are bent on being there when it comes if they can. Day by day a sort of magic thrill has been growing about the phrase "Up the Montreal River." Once it had a meaning, and that was limited to lumbering or hunting. Now, "up the Montreal River" is being associated with the idea of a new, or perhaps a greater Cobalt. But the Montreal River is long; you can go up a hundred miles and still be going. Yet sixty miles from Cobalt there are places on the Montreal River or in its district, teh names of which set men thinking of untold riches. James Township, Smythe Township, Elk Lake, Elk City, Gowganda Lake, Otisse, the White mine, the Mooseborn. Hundreds of prospectors are in this new country to-day. Undaunted by the approach of a rigorous winter, they are crowding the little river boats as long as they run, they are ready for snowshoes, or the sleigh over the trail that will form on the snow or ice in a day or two—all bent on getting a location, a piece of the new Cobalt. They think it is right within their grasp. If they get it the place of the new camp will be as swift as the amateur methods of the first day of Cobalt were slow and wobbling.

The new Cobalt game is the swiftest game in the world to-day.—Toronto World.

THE HOME MARKET.

President Hobson presented some figures at the annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association which were intended to show the magnitude of the home market that protection has created for the Canadian farmer. In doing this Mr. Hobson said that over half the wheat produced last year was consumed at home, and that of $27,000,000 worth of barley grown only 4 1-2 per cent. was exported. The same figures appear to have been used by the same gentleman in a few remarks offered by him at a luncheon at the O.A.C. on Saturday.

The president of the Manufacturers' Association is apparently under the impression that all of the barley and wheat retained at home is consumed in Canada urban centres. He forgets the farmers' own requirements in feed and seed. Fully one-third of the wheat crop of 1907 was used as bread by farmers or as seed for the crop of 1908. Of the barley grown it is safe to say that nearly 90 per cent. was retained as seed or to be used in the production of bacon and other finished products of the farm.

It is frankly admitted that a very considerable proportion of the food products of Canadian farms finds a market in Canadian towns, but the proportion is not nearly so great as the president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association would have us believe. Moreover, in almost every case, the price paid for these products in the home market is fixed by the price paid in the markets of Liverpool and London.—Farmer's Sun.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hon. Geo. E Foster must regard himself as good material for libel. He has three libel suits on his hands—against the Globe, the Ottawa Free Press and against Mr. W H Shaw, his recent opponent in North Toronto.

There seems to be something unpromising in United States conditions when individual influence of evil odour can excite so large an influence—when a journalistic brigand and a tariff protection robber can wield so large an influence in the choice of a ruler of the nation. Personally Hearst and Rockfeller may be fairly unobjectionable men, but they represent evil forces that bring peril to popular institutions.

Is there fatality in criminal bias in some persons? We cannot recall a case in which a bank official has seriously tampered with a banks books or funds who has escaped detection. Yet almost every day we find men acting on the fatuous impression that they are clever enough to succeed where there has been universal failure. Another bank teller in Toronto is in trouble and has admitted speculating with the funds of the bank, with, of course, the invariable and inevitable results. When a young bank official sees highly placed bank officials, made immune from punish for similar offences, he does not feel discouragement in imitating him. "Be sure your sin will find you out," is a saying that has had enough and confirmation to render it worth heeding. This applies to every walk in commercial life or position of responsibility, from an errand boy to a bank president.

WEDDING BELLS

NORISH—PRESTON

A very pretty and interesting wedding was solemnized on the evening of November 4th at Cedar Lodge, the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. William Norish, when her daughter, Mary, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Bruce Preston, Smith. The ceremony, which took place at 7 o'clock, was performed by the Rev. J Badford of Lakefild, beneath a bower of green and white.

The bride was dressed in a cream Liberty satin Sheath gown with a tucked net yoke and trimmed with Parisian silk lace and French knots, the whole dress being hand-made, and wore the conventional Brussels net veil with Bridal roses in her hair and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and smilax and was given away by her uncle, Mr. James Bickell. Little Miss Hertha Preston, niece of the groom, acted as maid of honour and looked charming in a white silk dress over blue, while Master Elwood Gorvan, cousin of the bride, acted as Page and carried the ring in a silver basket. Miss Roxie Bickell and Miss Eva Alford, Miss Freeda Preston and Miss Olove Jory made four pretty ribbon girls. The bridal party entered the parlour to the strains of Mendelssohn, played by Miss Lillian Montgomery. After the ceremony, Mr. Chas. Blyth, of London, sang "O Promise Me," after which the guest, numbering about seventy, repaired to the dining room and sat down to a sumptuous dejeuner. A few hours were then spent in social intercourse. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome set of furs; to the maid of honour, a gold ring, and to the Page a gold monogram stick pin. The popularity of the young couple was evidenced by the number of many costly gifts received, among which was a dinner set and an oak bedroom suite from the bride's mother, and a well-filled purse from groom's mother. Presents were sent from Winnipeg, Toronto, Woodstock, Whitby and other places. The bride's going-away suit was made of brown metena stripe, with a white net waist over white silk and a white chitton felt hat with plumes. The happy couple drove to Peterborough amid showers of rice, and left there on the first train for Woodstock and Whitby and other points west. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Preston will reside in Smith and have the best wishes of a large circle of friends for their future happiness and prosperity.

Mrs. Preston will receive at her home, "Maple Lane," in Smith on and after Dec. 1st.

DOCTORS ENDORSE HERPICIDE

Because Its Formula is Submitted to Them

Alexander McMillan, M.D., a prominent physician of Lansing, Michigan, writes: "On three cases I have tested Herpicide for dandruff, and the result has been all that could be desired." Herpicide is made upon an entirely new principle, that is, that dandruff and falling hair are caused from a microbe that infests the hair bulb, and by destroying the microbe, one's hair is bound to grow luxuriantly. Herpicide is the only hair remedy that claims to, and really does, destroy the dandruff germs. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes — 50c and $1. McDermid & Jury and Payne's Drug Store, special agents.

SITE SUGGESTED FOR NEW PUBLIC LIBRARY

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Now that the council has practically decided to go ahead with a public library for this city one of the first matters for consideration is the question of sites. Several places have been mentioned as suitable. There is one, however, that seems to me as eminently adapted to library purposes, and that is the residence of Mr. James Stevenson on Simcoe street. This centrally located place is for sale in fact a "for sale" card is on the premises. In my opinion this place, if it could be procured at a reasonable price, is the best for the purpose. The house is large and built when sound timber and first-class material was the rule and not the exception as at present. The location is central, near to George street, it is quiet and free from the dust of great summer traffic. The house is surrounded by enough land to have a fine lawn entirely round the building, which latter could probably be remodelled and made as artistic and comfortable as requisite with the city's needs. Why go to thousands of dollars of peerless expense or why go cap in hand to Mr. Carnegie? With the Simcoe street property recently given by the Nicholls Estate Executors and the other library money in hand, the Stevenson property could be made into a splendid library and our pockets saved from the expenditure of a vast sum of money annually.

Yours truly,
READER.

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visible pulsations of the arteries. The person may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief that no one need suffer.

Mr. Sylvester Smith, Hampton, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and tried doctor's medicines, but they only gave me temporary relief. I heard of your Heart and Nerve Pills and bought two boxes and before I had used them I was completely cured and would recommend them to all similarly affected."

Price, 60 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MEETINGS ARRANGED FOR FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Speakers Will be Mr. W. F. Kydd and Mrs. Campbell.

Mr. Wm. Collins, secretary of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute, has received notice of the dates of the regular meetings of the Institute this winter. The Ennismore meeting will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 9th, and the Lakefield meeting the following day. The speakers are Mr. W. F. Kydd, Simcoe, and Mrs. Campbell, Windsor.

Mr. Kydd's subjects will be chosen from the following:

"Am I raising the most profitable horse?" "The dairy cow—her summer feed and winter care"; "Small fruits and care of grape vines, peach and plumb trees"; "Cultivation and manures," and "A stitch in time."

Mr. Kydd talks on horses, dairy cattle and small fruits. He has had a large and practical experience in all these departments, and being an aggressive and forceful speaker, his words carry weight. He has also had a wide experience in fair matters, being the superintendent of the Horse Department of probably the largest agricultural show in the province. He is also a judge of light horses, and as such has been invited to place awards in many prats of Ontario. He is one of the most acceptable institute speakers.

TAFT'S TOTAL RECKONED AT 309

The Doubtful States Are All Swinging His Way.

BIG LEAD IN CONGRESS

Maryland Finally Proves to Have Given an Republican Candidate a Majority —Triumph Over Improper Radicalism, Declares Roosevelt— Senate Remains Same, But With Many New Faces.

New York, Nov. 5.—Practically complete returns received up to a late hour this morning indicate that W. H. Taft of Ohio as President-elect will have a vote of 309 in the electoral college. This is within sixteen votes of the forecast made by National Chairman Hitchcock, and 67 more than a majority out of the total electoral vote of 483.

The most important news of the late returns indicates that Maryland after vacillating during the day and apparently being safe for the Democracy has been swung into the Taft column. The figures gives Mr. Taft the state by 149 votes.

Maryland was the last of the doubtful states to be heard from. Indiana and West Virginia, as well as Montana, turned out to be safely Republican. Colorado went for Bryan.

Mr. Bryan has a total of 174 votes, two less than he received in 1896. In 1904 Mr. Parker received only 140 votes; in 1900 Mr. Bryan received 155 votes and in 1896 the Nebraskan received 176 votes. Mr. Taft's 309 electoral votes compared with 336 received by Roosevelt in 1904, 292 received by McKinley in 1900 and 271 received by McKinley in 1896.

No changes of material interest have been reported in the congressional returns. The Republicans will have about the same working majority in the 61st Congress as at present, and Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, undoubtedly will succeed himself as Speaker. Representatives Jesse Overstreet of Ohio, and Hepburn of Iowa, are the most conspicuous among those who have failed of re-election.

The Senate retains its Republican complexion, although there will be a material change in the personnel of the upper body of the National Legislature.

The states carried by Mr. Bryan are as follows: Alabama 11, Arkansas 5, Colorado 5, Florida 5, Georgia 13, Kentucky 13, Louisiana 9, Missouri 18, Mississippi 10, Nevada 3, Nebraska 8, North Carolina 9, Tennessee 12, Texas 18, and Virginia 12. Total 174.

All the rest of the states are safe for Taft, with the exception of Maryland, where the issue is so close that an official count may be necessary to finally determine the result.

National Chairman Norman E. Mack of the Democratic party issued a statement last night in which he declared that he did not believe Mr. Bryan would again be a candidate for the Presidency. He said he believed that the Nebraskan might be a candidate for the United States Senate in 1911, provided the Legislature of his state is Democratic in that year, when the first vacancy occurs.

Judge Taft's plurality in the State of New York, according to corrected returns late to-day, is 208,495, more than 28,000 in excess of President Roosevelt's plurality of four years ago.

Washington, Nov. 5.—President Roosevelt yesterday gave his interpretation of the victory of the Republican party at the polls when he said to the newspaper men whom he received in his office:

"This administration has made a steady effort, and progress should never be allowed to deviate into an unwise radicalism on the one hand, nor into an unwise conservatism on the other. The nomination of Mr. Taft was a triumph over reactionary conservatism, and his election was a triumph over unwise and improper radicalism."

London, Nov. 5.—The press of London regards the election of Wm. H. Taft as a matter for general and world-wide congratulation, as it "insures the continuance of a policy," which has been greatly approved in England.

"The policy which Mr. Taft has inherited," points out The Evening Standard, "is in a large measure accountable for the leap to the front made by America in recent years, and her present position as a power among the powers is due, to an unusual extent, to Mr. Taft's labors in close alliance with President Roosevelt.

"Englishmen must rejoice in the thought that the friendship between Great Britain and America, which President Roosevelt placed on a surer footing, gives promises of being increased and further assured under the new administration."

"Don't Neglect a Cough or Cold."

It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It is without an equal as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Pain in the Chest, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Quinsy and all affections of the Throat and Lungs.

A single dose of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will stop a cough, soothe the throat, and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs, the healing properties of the Norway Pine Tree will proclaim its great virtue by promptly eradicating the bad effects, and a persistent use of the remedy cannot fail to bring about a completed cure.

Do not be humbugged into buying so-called Norway Pine Syrups, but be sure and insist on having Dr. Wood's. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

Mrs. A. Elks, Innisfail, Alta., writes: "Last spring I had Typhoid fever and Bronchitis, which left me with a terrible cough. I tried doctor's medicine but got no relief until my husband got me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had finished it my cough was cured. My husband also uses it whenever he has a cough. I would not be without it."

FREIGHTAGE ON POLES.

Railroad Companies Say They Are Harder to Carry.

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—The Railway Commission yesterday heard the complaint of John McKenzie, Ormsby, Ont., the Rideau Lumber Co. and others, that the freight rates charged by railway companies on telegraph, telephone and trolley poles are unjustly discriminative as compared with the rates charged on lumber and other forest products.

The complaint was laid more especially against the C.P.R., G.T.R., and Central Ontario and their interests were watched by M. K. Cowan, Grand Trunk solicitor, and G. F. Macdonnel, Toronto, for the Canadian Northern. A. W. Greene appeared for the complainants.

The defence of the railways was that these poles are far more difficult to handle, cause more accidents and are harder on rolling stock than lumber. Judgment was reserved.

ENFORCED OCEAN TRIP.

Pilot on Steamship Ionian Couldn't Land Because of Rough Weather.

Montreal, Nov. 5.—For the first time in many years the weather has been so rough in the river below Quebec that vessels have not only been delayed for hours awaiting a chance to board their pilots, but at least one pilot has been carried over to the other side, being unable to land.

This happened to the pilot of the steamship Ionian, which left Montreal last Saturday. She took on her lower river pilot at Quebec, but when Father Point was reached it was found that the weather was so rough that he could not come near the boat.

The Ionian then proceeded to sea, with the pilot on board, in hope that he might be transferred to an incoming vessel down the gulf. This does not appear to have happened, and the pilot is now well on his way to Glasgow.

STERN JUSTICE.

British Columbia Criminals Given Heavy Sentences.

Vancouver, Nov. 5.—At the Assizes yesterday the following sentences were delivered:

Thomas Moore, 14 years, for the attempted murder of Edith Lamonde, who had forsaken him and married a Chinaman.

Lorenzo La Fortune, seven years for the abduction of his little niece, who was at the time in the legal custody of the Children's Aid Society.

Matiano Lison, a Filipino, five years, for wounding a Filipino woman with whose family he had been living.

Kalathbai, an Indian, seven years for attempted rape on a white woman.

Richard Hulbert, two months for shooting a neighbor's cattle; Hulbert made restitution, paying for the cattle he had killed.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, five years each.

To Favor British.

London, Nov. 5.—The medical officer of the London County Council proposed a scheme yesterday to the council, urging that all home-grown meat offered for sale in Smithfield market should be marked. The committees on agriculture and diseases of animals expressed approval of the project.

Regarding the criminal prosecution of sellers of unsound meat, the butchers are joining with the Meat Traders' Association in urging the Government to pay a compensation for all carcases seized by the authorities.

Thrown Into Quarry.

Owen Sound, Nov. 5.—Albert Porter, a mulatto, is in custody, charged with trying to murder Andrew Peterson. Tuesday night about 11 o'clock persons passing Checkley's Quarry, in the northeast section of the town, heard cries for help, and found Peterson lying at the bottom of the pit. He was suffering from a compound fracture of the thigh, and was cut and bruised from head to foot, but was able to say that Porter had thrown him there. The men had been drinking during the afternoon.

Kills Mother and Suicides.

New York, Nov. 5.—Mrs. F. Veit and her son, J. Nelson Veit, a Wall street broker, was found dead in their rooms in a large apartment hotel on upper Broadway yesterday. The mother had been shot in the head and her body was in her bedroom, while the son was lying suffocated by gas on the floor of the bathroom with a pillow under his head.

Cotton Workers Still Out.

London, Nov. 5.—The conference of cotton workers at Manchester ended without a settlement having been arrived at. It was, however, later decided by the spinners, carders and weavers that they would take a second ballot to decide whether they would accept the employers' terms. The decision is expected by Nov. 17.

NAVIGATION SAID TO BE IMPEDED

Shallow Parts in River Due to Low Water.

It was reported yesterday that navigation on the Otonabee between the the city and Rice Lake had been suspended owing to the water being at a low level, in consequence of which there were parts that were practically impassable. Inquiry from Mr. William Collins at the locks, however, shows that there have been six vessels and scows through this week, although on one day there were none, and it is not likely that any would have been able to come up as the water was very low. The steamers Rainbow, Monarch and Beaver are towing wood, logs and grain, and are fairly busy.

INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS

FULTON'S RENAL COMPOUND

"Kidney trouble" is inflammation of the kidneys without albumen.

"Bright's Disease" is inflammation of the kidneys with albumen.

In each the real trouble is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, hence a cure for one must be a cure for the other. There has been no cure for either.

But many kidney troubled people get well.

True—because inflammation of the kidneys unless severe commonly gets well at first. But if it does not yield early and the inflammation persists, the real trouble begins.

You can see why kidney disease has been incurable and why the deaths have risen to over 170 per day up to the discovery of Fulton's Renal Compound there was nothing known that would reduce inflammation in the kidneys.

The old kidney medicines were a misconception irritating the inflamed kidneys to renewed efforts instead of allaying the inflammation, some of them being actually harmful. Result—physicians have abandoned them.

No matter whether you call it "kidney trouble," "Nephritis," or "Bright's Disease," if it has been hanging on a few months, recovery can be only hoped for through this specific. It has a proven efficiency in nearly 87 per cent. of all cases. It is the only thing known that controls inflammation in the kidneys, which is the real difficulty with kidney troubled people.

DAIRYMEN OF THIS DISTRICT AGAIN CHOOSE ALD. GILLESPIE AS THEIR REPRESENTATIVE

Unanimously Chosen as Director on Board of Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association—Senator Derbyshire's Speech.

THE INSPECTOR'S REPORT

A large meeting of the dairymen of this district was held in the County Council Chambers yesterday afternoon for the purpose of considering the past season's work and the suggestions it has given rise to and also for the purpose of electing a representative to the Board of Directors of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association. Hon. Senator Derbyshire occupied the chair and Secretary Murphy was present as was also Mr. H Glendenning of Manilla who gave an interesting talk on the best milk-producing foods. Mr. Geo A Gillespie was re-elected by acclamation as director for Peterborough, on motion o Messrs. J J Hogan and G Ramsier. Both Mr. Derbyshire and Mr. Murphy congratulated Mr. Gillespie and also also assured the dairymen that their choice could scarcely have been improved upon, as Mr. Gillespie had rendered excellent service to his district and was considered a valuable acquisition to the Board.

Immediate Action

Mr. Derbyshire's statements boiled down were as follows: If there are any improvements to be made to the factories or farm equipments do it NOW. "Do not delay until next spring for then it will be too late," was another bit of advice. He also stated that many farmers were not getting the best results from their cows and hence their profits were not as large as they should be. Those cows that are not capable of giving a large flow of milk should be disposed of, and those that are retained should be so watched, cared for and fed that the best results could be obtained. Another point was that they must give more consideration to the cost of production, as it was from that end that most savings could be made.

Inspector's Report

Mr. R W Ward being called upon presented the following report:—

I herewith submit my report for the season of 1908, which is now about at a close for Peterborough section, as Dairy Instructor and Sanitary Inspector I had under my charge 34 cheese factories, 3 less than last season. One was burned and two suspended operations. I have made 376 visits to factories, 60 day visits and 316 call visits. I also visited, met and conversed with some 500 patrons.

I am pleased to be able to state that there have been a good many substantial improvements made to factories, but there are a few that should be replaced by new ones. I have also found a decided improvement in the condition of the milk and of the cans as they reach the factories. The rusty cans have about all been discarded and milk is cleaner, and pours out with less sediment in the bottom of the cans, and there is also less dirt on the strainers at the factories.

Need of Cleanliness

The result of this is very strongly in evidence from the fact that we do not get as many tainted and gassy cans of milk as in former years. The surroundings, stand and all utensils used in handling or caring for milk at the farm should be as perfect and as carefully kept and looked after as the can in which the milk is delivered to the factories.

The familiar "Postey," in "The Bonnie Brier Bush," at the Grand, Thanksgiving Day. Matinee and night. Monday, Nov. 9th. Plan opens to-morrow morning.

I had occasion to visit a farm this summer from which the delivery of milk at the factory was in a very respectable condition. On the stand at the farm were a number of tin pails, old and rusty, with from one to four rags drawn in holes in each pail to do the duty of solder. This I hope and trust is the exception, not the rule.

This season has been very warm with a large number of warm nights with a lot of humidity and moisture in the atmosphere.

The principle causes of complaint in this section has been milk reaching the factory at too high a temperature over ripe, or too much acidity, too high a temperature in curing rooms and in feeding of improper foods, turnips, and rape, by the patrons of some factories this fall.

Now the remedy for each of these troubles is simple and I believe all fully understand them without enumerating them here.

I will now give you the result of conditions of weather on the delivery of milk for four consecutive days at one factory when left to nature alone. Tuesday, July 7th milk received at 80 degrees. Wednesday, July 8th, 60 degrees. Thursday, July 9th, 68, and Friday July 10th 73.

It is said that a cheesemaker should be intelligent, careful, thoughtful, and observent and he certainly requires all the qualifications in the fullest degree to contend with the conditions I have just mentioned.

We have just passed through a very trying season and on the whole I am very well satisfied with results when everything is considered.

Makers in most cases have made an honest effort and I also believe the large majority of the patrons have done likewise to have our cheese of the best quality possible and also to comply with the new law the Milk, Cheese and Butter Act of Ontario.

I wish to acknowledge and thank officers, owners, makers and patrons for the courtesy, kindness and assistance that has been extended to me in performing my duty and carrying out my work.

Mr. Glendenning's Talk

Mr. Glendenning's remarks dealt with the food problem from an economic standpoint. He pointed out that the advantage of growing alfalfa hay and providing ensilage for the winter season.

HOW TO TAKE CARE OF THE DEER THAT ARE KEPT FOR MOUNTING

Mr. E. Elcome, the local taxidermist has supplied the Examiner with the following hints in regard to the care of deer heads and birds that are intended for mounting. His advice will no doubt be appreciated by Peterborough hunters.

"Proper care at first means much in the after appearance of the specimens."

Deer heads look best with long neck so that the neck should be cut off down to the brisket. Sometimes the neck is made unsightly by being cut up the middle of the neck. This can be avoided by cutting up the back of the neck until the ears are reached

After the neck is skinned, lots of salt should be used on the flesh side. If not and the flesh sides are placed together the flesh will soon fall off. Something should be placed between the flesh sides.

If the weather is warm it may be necessary to take the skin off entirely. In that case, a cut should be made across to each antler from the cut on the back of the neck. Then the ears should be cut off as the base close to the skull, and a cut made close around the base of the antler. Care should be taken around the eyes in order not to cut the lids. When the mouth is reached, the base part of the lips should be left on, at least half or three-quarters of an inch Lots of salt should be used. The flesh should be cut off the skull.

Birds should be hung with the head upwards. The mouth should be left open and salt put in it. The hunter should be careful to keep the bird as free from dust and blood as possible. As long as any specimen is frozen solid it will be in good condition.

RUDYARD KIPLING GIVES AN ADDRESS ON DOCTORS

Mr. Rudyard Kipling recently delivered — without notes — a brilliant speech to the Middlesex Hospital students, whose prizes he distributed.

"It may not have escaped your professional observation," he said, "that there are only two classes of mankind in the world—doctors and patients. I have had a delicacy in confessing to the patient class ever since a doctor told me that all patients were phenomenal liars where their symptoms are concerned. But, speaking as a patient, I should say that the average patient looks upon the average doctor very much as a non-combatant looks on the troops fighting on his behalf and thanks that the more trained men that are between him and the enemy the better.

"I have the pleasure of meeting a number of trained men, who, in due time, will be drafted into the permanent army which is always in action, always under fire, fighting against Death. It is unfortunate for the doctor that Death—the arch-practitioner—is bound to win in the long run. We patients must console ourselves with the idea that your business is to make the best terms you can with Death on our behalf, to see that his attacks are delayed as long as they may be, or diverted, and to see that, when he insists upon driving the attack home, that he does so according to the rules of civilized warfare.

"Every sane human being agrees that this long-drawn fight for time that we call life is one of the most important things in the world. It follows, therefore, that you, who control and oversee this fighting, must be among the most important people.

"The world decided long ago that doctors have no working hours that anybody is bound to respect. Nothing except your extreme bodily illness will excuse you, in the world's eyes, for refusing to help mankind at any hour of the day or night: in your bed, bath, or on your holiday—if any of the children of men have pain or hurt—you will be summoned; and what little vitality you have accumulated in leisure hours will be dragged out of you again. At all times—in flood, fire, famine, plague, battle, murder, and sudden death—it will be required of you that you should report for duty at once, to go out on duty at once, and to stay on duty till your strength fails you or your conscience releases you—whichever may be the longer period.

• • • •

"And I do not think your obligations will grow less. Nobody has heard of a bill to promote an eight-hour day for doctors. No change in public opinion will allow you not to attend a patient when you know the man never means to pay you, or protect you from the people who, although perfectly well able to pay, prefer to cadge round a free hospital for their glass eyes or cork legs. It seems to be required of you that you must save others; no one has laid down that you must save yourselves.

• • • •

"You belong to a privileged class, and some of your privileges are these:

"You and Kings, are about the only people whose explanation a policeman will accept if you exceed the legal limit in a motor-car.

"On presentation, your visiting card will pass you through turbulent and riotous crowds unmolested.

"If you fly a yellow flag over a dense centre of population, it will turn it into a desert.

"If you fly a Red Cross flag over a desert it will turn it into a centre of population. Men will crawl to it on their hands and knees, as I know.

"You may forbid a ship to enter a port, and if you think the exigences of an operation demand it, you can stop a 20,000-ton liner, with her mails, in mid-ocean.

"At your orders, houses, streets, whole quarters of a city will be pulled down or burned.

"And you can call upon the armed co-operation of the nearest troops to see that your prescriptions are efficiently carried out.

"To do patients justice, they do not often dispute their doctor's orders. You have been exposed, and you always will be, to the contempt of that gifted amateur—the gentleman who knows by intuition everything you have learned through long years of study. You have been exposed to the attacks of those persons who consider their own emotions more important than the world's most bitter agonies, and who would hamper and cripple research because they fear it may be accomplished by a little pain and suffering.

"Such people have been against you from the beginning—ever since the earliest Egyptians erected images of cats and oxen upon the banks of the Nile. But your work goes on and will go on. You remain the only class that dares tell the world that we can get no more out of a machine than is put into it, and that if fathers have eaten forbidden fruit, the children's teeth are very likely to be affected.

"At a time when few things are called by their right names, when it is against the spirit of the times to hint that an act may entail consequences, you are going to join a profession in which you will be paid to tell the truth, a profession which exacts from its followers the largest responsibility and the highest death rate—for its practitioners—of any profession in the world.

"I will wish you in the future what all men desire; enough work to do, and strength enough to do that work.

Just As Prophesied!

November Ushers In Cold Weather

THE crisp, winter weather is here at last and promises to stay, which will cause the winter preparations to rush forward at a rapid pace --- wardrobes will need replenishing with the warmer garments. Keep up the pace and be on hand to-morrow to lay in your supply of needfuls.

Thanksgiving Clothing
Notes from the Women's Ready-to-Wear Department

This is Thanksgiving Week and most seasonable temperature is the weather bulletin. Do you find that your clothes are not sufficiently weighty to protect you against the cold November winds? If so, let us urge you to an early inspection of our elegant stock of Women's Coats, Suits and Skirts. While the stock is complete with all the latest American ideas in Women's Tailoring, we have the staple conservative lines too, neatly tailored and distinctive, yet not extreme in cut and finish.

Think of a Coat

Stylish? Yes, the nobbiest creations that are shown anywhere are seen in our Mantle Department — lots of them. The new Directoire, that has been received enthusiastically by women of fashion, is seen here in various styles, in different popular shades. There are also the Loose, Semi-Fitting and Tight-Fitting Styles in Friezes, Kerseys and Beavers in the best shades of Blue, Green and Brown, also Black. Prices range $10.00 to $38.00. Evening Coats are now in season: Fine Broadcloths in every shade and elegantly trimmed. Prices $25.00 to $38.00. Commence the season right with one of these.

and the New Suits

The highest recommendation for our showing of Women's Costumes is the fact that our sales in these this season have far surpassed any previous season, and the best trades have received four styles on an even basis with those shown in the larger centres. We are constantly receiving shipments of later styles, thus keeping our stock up to the times. Everything is Directoire now-a-days. Of course we have the Directoire Suits, a number of very handsome effects in the popular shades and cloths, including Venetians, Chevron Twills, Broadcloths and Velvets. We also have other popular styles. Prices from $18.00 to $40.00.

Skirts, too

Blues and Greens are the leading shades; Browns, too, are shown as well as Black. "ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME" SCORES ANOTHER TRIUMPH LAST NIGHT

"All the Comforts of Home" was repeated at the Grand Opera House last night, and the laughable four-act comedy as presented by a cast of local amateurs, got another most enthusiastic welcome from the large audience present. The play was put on with even greater effectiveness than on Tuesday night. There was no dragging, lines were given with a vim and dash that showed that the spirit was understood, and the fun of the many amusing situations was effectively developed to such an extent that the audience was kept in a fit of laughter from curtain to curtain.

Individually and collectively the members of the cast did good work, and had no difficulty in winning over the audience. That their efforts were appreciated was shown by the applause and laughter which continuously rippled through the house.

Especial credit for last night's performance should be given Miss Lavina Hallihan, who, although very ill, pluckily went on and played her part successfully, earning the appreciation of the audience. She was too ill to give her solo in the second act, an omission that was much regretted.

Last night's performance, in addition "To All the Comforts of Home," included a one act sketch by Richard Harding Davis, entitled "The Littlest Girl," in which there are four characters: "Mr. Carruthers," Mr. Irving Beers; "Mr. Van Bibber," Mr. Chas. Barber; "Davenport," Mr. Mortimer Johnston; and the "Littlest Girl," Miss Eleanor Garden. The sketch which concluded the performance, is greatly different in character from the comedy which preceded it, and those taking part showed that they were as much at home in the pathetic as they were in the ridiculous. The sketch is styled a social problem play and deals with heredity influence. Messrs. Barber and Beers won fresh laurels for themselves in their decidedly clever acting as the two principals. Mr. Johnston made an acceptable servant, and Little Miss Garden, who had no lines, made a charming appearance in the title role.

The whole performance was a great success and earned the verdict, "the best amateur production of its kind ever given in Peterborough."

SHEFFIELD CHOIR'S CONCERT AT MONTREAL

The Herald Describes Its Appearance There in Glowing Terms.

The Montreal Herald has the following: "It would seem that one can by no means learn all the capabilities of the Sheffield Choir in one or two nights. Last evening, in the Arena, beefore an audience very little smaller than that on the occasion of their opening concert, this ramarkable aggregation of vocalists gave a programme which included two at least of the most difficult compositions in existence for choral singing; yet, when, at eleven o'clock, they concluded by the singing of the National Anthem, their voices were as fresh as powerful, as rich and true as when they began. Before training which can teach the perfect command of breathing essential to such a condition of things, one can but concede the master hand.

Bach's eight-part motet, "Sing Ye," with which the programme opened, is a choral work of stupendous proportions and difficulties, before which many a famous choir has quailed and over which not a few have come to grief. But for Dr. Coward and his singers, it might as well have been the simplest of part-songs, so easily and confidently did they overcome its intricacies. And it was not merely overcoming the difficulties of technique and vocalisation; there was, besides a profound reverence, delicacy and devotional spirit, beauty of phrasing, and beauty of tone. (At times the tonal volume was positively startling in its majesty and expressiveness. Dr. Coward took the chorus through the motet, which takes nearly twenty minutes to sing, with a skill nothing short of astounding."

The plan will open at the Opera House on Friday and Saturday at 10 o'clock. Subscribers will require to be on hand promptly.

"BONNIE BRIER BUSH"

The Examiner of October 26th, 1907, has the following to say in connection with the presentation of "The Bonnie Brier Bush" at the Grand last October. This company appears here Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night, Monday, Nov. 9th:

Ian MacLaren's famous play, "The Bonnie Brier Bush," in which the late John Stoddard won so much fame, was presented at the Grand last night to a large audience, which heartily enjoyed every moment of the production. The story of the play is too well known to need recounting here. It is conceded to be the best presentation of Scottish life ever given, and the company presenting it last night was capable of bringing out its best qualities. Mr. J Palmer Collins, Mr Stoddard's understudy for three years, was capital in the part of Lachlan Campbell, and Ward & Rensden made lots of fun in the role of "Posty." The production will be given again to-night and should be greeted by a large audience.

You can make richer, more fragrant, more delicious tea if you use "Salada." One teaspoonful makes two cups. Use absolutely boiling water. Steep five minutes. 80

MOOREHOUSE'S COMET VISIBLE TO NAKED EYE

Rev. Dr. Marsh has received a letter from Prof. Pickering, director of the Harvard Observatory, Cambridge, Mass., stating he has a letter from Prof. Frost, of the Yerke's Observatory drawing his attention to the fact that Moorehouse's Comet has become very bright recently. On Oct. 29th it was visible to the naked eye. Prof. Pickering photographed it on the 29th and found it had a tail 9 degrees in length. This can be seen in the northern sky by a small telid glass before midnight.

Murphy Gives Startling Evidence at Marine Inquiry.

GRAFT WENT TO GREGORY

Quebec Cement and Lumber Man Testifies Before Judge Cassels That Every Time He Sold Goods to Department He Had to Add Five Per Cent. to Price as Rake-Off For Agent—$640 on Foreman.

Quebec, Nov. 5.—Mr. Justice Cassels commenced his inquiry into the organization and management of the Quebec agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department yesterday forenoon, and the investigation was not long in progress when Mr. J. J. Murphy, cement and lumber dealer of this city, sprang a sensation. For years past Mr. Murphy has sold considerable quantities of cement and lumber, principally the latter, to the Quebec agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department while Mr. J. U. Gregory was the agent, and he deposed yesterday afternoon that in every case where he sold goods to the agency he paid Mr. Gregory a commission of five per cent. on the amount of the orders. He not only paid Mr. Gregory, who gave him the orders, but paid in the way of "sweetmeats" $640 to Louis Gagnon, a yard foreman, who received and inspected the goods; likewise other amounts to other important officials whose names he did not know, but he thought Turgeon was the name of one of them.

The investigation, which will occupy about one week, is being conducted in the criminal chamber of the Quebec Court House. The Government is represented by Messrs. Watson, K.C., Toronto, and Perron, Montreal, while Senator Choquette is appearing in the interests of Mr. J. U. Gregory, the former agent of the Department in this city.

HALIBUT POACHING.

Yankees Are Trespassing on Canadian West Coast Wealth.

Vancouver, Nov. 5.—The Board of Trade has addressed a strong resolution to Ottawa regarding the importance of conserving and protecting the halibut fisheries of the Pacific coast.

H. H. Watson declared the halibut was absolutely depleted, that single fish were being caught weighing only from ten to twelve pounds, whereas a few years ago they weighed fifty to sixty pounds.

This was due to the invasion of American poachers. He declared 130 vessels were now poaching in Canadian waters. Last year 39,000 tons of halibut caught in Canadian waters were shipped east from Seattle, as against 13,000 tons from Vancouver.

Broker's Help McCallum.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—The shortage in the accounts of D. Cameron McCallum, teller at the head office in this city of the Farmers' Bank, is now $8,000, having been reduced by thousands of dollars by city brokers who came to his assistance yesterday. Over $4,000 was turned into the bank in cash and scrip by certain brokers, who, when informed that McCallum had speculated with the bank's money, paid over the amounts invested through them. An inspection of his running accounts with the brokers indicates that the teller in many deals made considerable money and in one or two instances had sufficient to his credit to about clear off the amount of the shortage.

Full Dinner Pail Fee Them.

Newark, N.J., Nov. 5.—Upon the announcement of Taft's election yesterday the 5,000 representatives in two thread mills in this city were notified that full time would be resumed next Monday. Since last April the mills have been running on part time.

Hotelman Fined.

Deseronto, Nov. 5.—John Freeman, hotelkeeper, was charged with selling liquor to John McGeegon, who, it is said, was in a drunken condition and who afterwards died from the effects of exposure. The magistrate imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

Drowns at Intake Pipe.

Vancouver, Nov. 5.—Earl Matheson, employed in the city waterworks, was drowned by falling into the intake pool in the Capilan, where the city obtains its supply.

The Ministers present included Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Hon. S. A. Fisher, Sir Richard Cartwright, Sir Fred. Borden, Hon. Chas. Murphy, Hon. William Paterson, and Hon. L. P. Brodeur.

Hon. Mr. Fisher leaves to-day for Rome to attend the international congress on agriculture.

The Pope yesterday gave private audience to the Archbishop of Montreal.

Tomas Estrada Palma, the first President of the Cuban Republic, died last night.

John Carter, Guelph Township farmer, who Tuesday had his scalp partially torn off and the vertebrae of the neck dislocated, died yesterday.

The grand jury at Woodstock brought in "no bill" against Emil Rohe of Norwich, charged with perjury in connection with the recent election.

Hon. J. H. Agnew, Provincial Treasurer of Manitoba, is believed to have passed the crisis and doctors have some hope, although his condition is still precarious.

A large number of Hungarians employed at the Belleville Cement Works, near that city, have been laid off and left the city. It is said the works will soon close down, for the winter.

A recount of the votes balloted in West Middlesex will be held before Judge MacBeth in the town hall, Glencoe, on Saturday, W. S. Calvert's official majority over Robert McLaughlin is 15.

Three Killed.

Guelph, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Robt. Scott and two sons, Leonard and Murray, aged 11 and 13 years, of Hullet, were instantly killed yesterday morning on the Guelph and Goderich Railroad, two crossings east of Auburn and eleven miles from Goderich. They were driving to school and were struck by a light engine, running up from Guelph Junction. The horse escaped, but the buggy was struck, and all three occupants killed.

A heavy snowstorm contributed to the occurrence.

Natural Gas Explodes.

Chatham, Nov. 5.—The residence of Michael Egan, Raleigh street, was almost totally wrecked by an explosion of natural gas in the cellar yesterday afternoon.

The windows were shattered and the plaster shaken off the walls in nearly every room.

The gas was ignited by workmen looking for a leak. Foreman S. T. Copus of the Chatham Gas Co., was badly burned.

Many Millions Involved.

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—Upwards of fifteen million dollars are involved in judgments handed out by the Exchequer Court in a series of suits in connection with the Quebec Southern Railway. The judgments will probably be appealed to the Privy Council.

In his present judgments, Justice Cassells confirms the awards of Mr. Audette, who acted in the matter as a referee.

PEMBROKE STRICKEN BY A DISASTER

Town is Scourged by Half a Million Dollar Fire.

OTTAWA REFUSES TO HELP

Renfrew Sends Fire-Fighters But the Capital is Unwilling to Aid Burning Town—Four Business Blocks Are Wiped Out and Loss is Only Half Covered by Insurance—250 Men Out of Work.

Pembroke, Nov. 5.—Fire swept the heart of the business section here yesterday morning, and when it was subsided, after eight hours' work, it has done between $450,000 and $500,000 damage.

On the destroyed property there was $225,000 insurance, all in British and Canadian companies. The chief losers are:

National Manufacturing Co., $140,000; insurance $90,000.
Mrs. J. W. Munro, $75,000; fully insured.
J. B. Millar, $90,000; only partially insured.
A. Millar & Son, $25,000; partly insured.
Moffatt estate, $10,000.
Pembroke Milling Co., $40,000; insured.
Mrs. W. W. Dickson, $12,000.
Branch Bank of Ottawa.
Branch of Quebec Bank.
Bell Telephone Co.'s office.
Dominion Express Co.'s office.
Two hotels.
Public library.
Half a dozen private residences.

About 250 men will be out of work as a result and business and professional men will have difficulty in securing quarters.

The origin of the fire, which was discovered at 4 o'clock, is unknown. It started in the foundry of the National Manufacturing Co., and, fanned by high winds, soon spread.

A gale was blowing from the lake towards the town. The Pembroke firemen were practically powerless to check the flames, which at many places leaped from 30 to 50 feet into the air and crossed the main street a few minutes after the blaze broke out. It then spread along the banks of the Muskrat river, which runs through the town.

Four of the leading business blocks, the Freeman block, Dickson block, Foster block and Cunningham block, are destroyed, while the Munro block escaped by a miracle. These blocks had over 40 tenants. The Pembroke Milling Co.'s flour mills, also the Pembroke woollen mills, are wiped out. Two hotels, the Leland and the Owens, are burned, while the Copeland House, the leading hotel of the town, was saved only by the heroic efforts of the fire-fighters. The barber shop and residence adjoining this hotel are burned; Alex. Millar's large wholesale and retail flour and feed supply storerooms also a prey to the flames.

The Ottawa Bank had a narrow escape.

Mackie & Ryan's hardware store is in ashes and the residences of Thos. Delahanty and Harry Irwin are among the burned.

The Renfrew fire brigade arrived by special train to lend a helping hand, but Ottawa declined to send assistance, though requested.

President Elliott Resigns.

Boston, Nov. 5.—President W. Elliott of Harvard University, for more than 30 years the head of the Cambridge Institution, has tendered his resignation, to take effect May 19, 1909. The resignation has been accepted.

It has been known among those in close touch with the university that it has been President Elliott's desire for some time to relinquish the duties of his office. In fact, some of the more prominent alumni have already discussed the question of a successor. Among the alumni mention has been made of Prof. A. Lawrence Lowell, who occupies the chair of science of government, and is a brother of Percival Lowell, the astronomer.

Child Drank Poison.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—The three-year-old son of William Lang, 182 Wilton avenue, had a narrow escape from death yesterday.

The little chap found a flask containing a solution of sulphuric acid and swallowed a portion of the contents. He is now getting along well and should recover.

WHO IS TO MANAGE LONGBOAT? INDIAN HAS THEM IN TOW NOW

Toronto, Nov. 4.—Who will manage Tom Longboat?

It is by no means a certainty that Tom Flanagan will.

Tom Flanagan is looked upon as the Indian's natural manager, and has been so regarded by all those concerned, or who have concerned themselves in the matter, but there is just a chance that the genial Irishman may not handle the Onondaga's cash, and make his arrangements.

Tom Flanagan himself is willing, but things are shaping up in such a way that there may be an explosion at any stage of the game, and the result may be that the Indian will have a new manager.

Ever since the Indian won at Montreal and decided to turn professional he has been hard to manage. Then, when it was announced that he was to turn professional and the papers commenced to shout eulogies about his $20,000 legs, the Indian got a swelled head, and now he is boosting around with another Indian, Thomas Claus, a wide-awake Mohawk from Deseronto. Claus is a well, educated, lively young fellow, and he sees cash possibilities in Longboat, for Longboat and some easy money for himself. He has ambitions to travel with the Onondaga, and from the way he is sticking to the big Indian and the Indian talks—or rather does not talk, for when Tom is silent and enigmatical look out for something doing—it looks as if Mr. Claus had a hankering for managerial shoes. Just as a starter, Tom signalized his return to Toronto by a midnight jaunt around Toronto in an automobile with Claus and several other people last night.

"If Longboat wants Claus to manage him all he has got to do is to say so and he can go ahead," said Flanagan to-day. "I'll have an understanding to-night. I've taken every step possible to protect the Indian end, but if he does not stick to me I'll wash my hands of him and let him go it strictly alone. I'll handle him and handle him alone. I will not have anybody else butting in. Of course, if Longboat wants to have this and that Indian along, why, he is welcome, but he'll have to pay his expenses. I won't."

Claus' Influence

Longboat himself wouldn't discuss the question of a manager this morning.

"I have no more influence over Tom than Flanagan," said Claus this morning. "I'm going to stay with Tom, and I'll look after things for him. Tom wants me, too," and Tom grinned—"That's right."

"I'm a pro. now, and I guess it's up to me to train," said Longboat. "I'll have to train to meet Shrubb, but I can beat Dorando's and Hayes' heads off any time at any place. Why, I beat them both in England until I went down. I ran all over that Italian, and Hayes was away back. If Fred Meadows is thrown out I want to run him."

It was rumoured to-day that Acoos, the Western Indian, Tom Coley, the Englishman, who will likely win the Hamilton road race, and Hans Holmer, the Maritime champion, will all turn pro. to run Longboat. Coley said yesterday that the Herald race would be his last as an amateur. "I'll either turn pro. or quit," he said.

WATCH SIMPSON IN HAMILTON RACE, SAY TORONTO CRITICS

The Toronto Star, under the caption "Watch Simpson and Holmer," says:

A Toronto runner who was in Hamilton this week says that Tom Coley, winner of the last year's race, is the favourite for the Hamilton Herald race.

Coley is credited with a trial of 1.57 but the day he made his trial it was raining, and the course was very heavy. This does not signify much, the Toronto man says, as last year he made his run of 1.449 after a trial of 1.54. "Coley is in grand shape, and, barring accidents, he should win," says the Torontonian.

"Harold Parsons, the Western crack, seems to have left a good impression after his showing in the Herald race last year, and has a large following, who think he will make Coley hustle to win."

Fred Simpson, the Irish-Canadians' big Indian, will be on hand in good shape. Simpson has been off colour all summer, but the cold weather seems to suit him. He will bear watching.

Jack Roe, the West End Y.M.C.A. harrier, is too well known to need an introduction. Roe seems to be running better this year than he ever did, and should be in the first division.

Hans Holmer, the Halifax crack, who will arrive Saturday, is Tom Coley's chief opponent. He is a young fellow, 23 years of age, 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighs 145 lbs. He holds the Canadian record for a mile, of 4.27, and is long distance champion of the Maritime Provinces. He ran second to Longboat in Montreal, and was only beaten 75 yards. His main ambition is to win the Herald race.

Chude Pearce will not start and Harry Lawson, Percy Sellen, James Corkery and George Black are also doubtful. The rest are all good boys, who are liable to cut loose and surprise the talent. The Herald this year has installed granite mile posts, and as the course is in grand shape the record of 1.48.53, held by Sammy Mellor, of Yonkers, N. Y., should be broken.

THE MYSTERIOUS MR. BELAND CROSS-EXAMINED AT QUEBEC

Quebec, Nov. 4.—At the meeting Saturday evening, the officials made every effort to clear matters up, and during the evening called the mysterious Mr. Beland before them, and put questions to him. They also put questions to Dave Beland, and some of the answers of these two men will prove interesting reading. The Mystery was not present when Beland was questioned, and Beland was not present when the Mystery was questioned.

Here are some of the questions put by the officials and the answers given:

CHRISTMAS MATINEE OF THE TURF CLUB WILL BE HELD ON DEC. 24

The new officers of the Peterborough Turf Club are showing a progressive spirit by announcing a Christmas matinee to be held at the Driving Park on Thursday, Dec. 24th. It was decided at a meeting last night to have two named races for prizes of $50 and $100 The entries are large and as there is a keen but friendly rivalry getween the horsemen of this district, the different heats are bound to be fast.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE O.H.A. TO BE HELD NOV. 21

The big annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association is billed for the Temple building on Saturday, November 21, two weeks from next Saturday. The amendments must be all in by next Saturday, November 7, two weeks before the meeting.

One is already in process of making. It is to prevent any member of the Executive from taking any part in discussions in which their own town teams are in question. And it is one that should, and doubtless will, carry.

The nominations close Saturday week, November 14. Both these and the amendments close, of course, with Secretary W. A. Hewitt, of the Toronto Star.

HOCKEY PLAYERS ARE IN DEMAND JUST NOW

Montreal, Nov. 4.—Hemby Shore, the former Ottawa Hockey Club player, and last season a member of the Winnipeg Maple Leafs, was in Montreal Saturday night, and, it is believed, talked over prospects for the coming season with officials of the Wanderers. The Wanderers were rumored some time ago to be after the speedy forward, and, while they will not declare officially that they have obtained his services, neither will they deny.

Shore first broke into senior hockey with Ottawa three years ago, when he figured on the left wing. Last year for Maple Leafs he played at rover.

Negotiations between Arthur Ross and Montreal appear to be as far off as ever. Saturday afternoon it was stated positively in hockey circles that the great point had signed with Montreal in the morning at a salary of $2,500. This story on the face of it looked exaggerated and yesterday morning officials of the Montreal Club and Ross himself stated that there was nothing doing yet.

Not yet but soon seems to be the cry.

Montreal are after Pitre of last year's Shamrocks.

Perhaps this won't create any great sensation, but, nevertheless, it is a fact.

Pitre, after some seasons in the International League with the Pittsburg team, settled down with the Shamrocks last winter, and his play at coverpoint became one of the features of the season.

WESTERGARDT'S NEXT BIG BOUT

Montreal, Nov. 4.—Jim Parr, the famous English wrestler and Westergard, the Swiss, will furnish the headline attraction at the regular Friday night entertainment at Sohmer Park this week.

It had been intended that Eugene Tremblay should wrestle Mack, the Irishman, but Tremblay has developed blood poisoning and will probably be out of the game for a few days. He injured his knee during a recent bout, and through a lack of sufficient attention the injury has become serious, but the doctor says he will be in shape to meet Art Edmunds in Toronto, Friday, Nov. 20.

Parr has just returned from England, where he had gone to claim $12,000 which he inherited under the will of his father. While he was on the other side he took parts in many bouts and came out of them all with flying colours.

Westergard will be up against a wrestler of his own class in Jim Parr, and should be pressed to the limit.

TOMMY DALY KNOCKED DOWN THREE TIMES IN A BOUT

Brantford, Nov. 4th — At boxing bouts in Brantford Rink last night Tommy Daly, Toronto, fought ten roudns with Artie Simmons, Detroit Daly was floored three times and got the worst of it, but Referee Bonwell, Brantford, gave him the decision.

Some rounds were shortened to less than two minutes to help Daly. In the wrestling match Tommy Ferguson Peterborough, scored two out of three falls from Kid Sheridan. Hamilton. The latter challenged Ferguson for one hundred dollars side bet. Artie Fair, Hamilton, and Fred Knott, Brantford, end in a draw in a four round bout.

CHANCE HERE FOR JIM HARRISON

Montreal, Nov. 4.—A somewhat recent arrival in Montreal, and a man who follows the walking game, is now out with a challenge to Canada's best pedestrians. The challenger's name is Mr. F. Wolff, and only for a few months past has he been a resident of the metropolis. Wolff is anxious to meet all comers here in a contest here, not to be less than forty miles. He suggests Delorimier Park as a suitable place for the race and the walking to commence at six o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Wolff can be communicated with at 346 Lagauchetiere street west.

HOCKEY.

The Ottawa hockey club team is going to be so changed around this season, that old time rivals will hardly recognize it as the "Old Guard" that fought so many hard fights for the silverware known as the Stanley Cup. Alf. Smith, Harvey Pulford, "Rat" Westwick, and Percy Lesueur, will be among the missing, and it is hardly likely that Tom Philips will be on the job. The only two men whom the club figure on as sure are Marty Walsh and Fred Taylor. Strings are out for a number of players including Rankin who played with Stratford last season. He is said to be one of the fastest men in the game to-day. Vair, of Renfrew, will also be tried out.—Montreal Star.

teams. Sandy Bertrown, one of the old star intermediates, will manage the intermediate team. It is believed the group will be Peterborough, Cobourg, Port Hope and Belleville. The junior team will likely be strong, and the series will likely be Cobourg, Port Hope, Trenton Picton and Belleville. The Trenton team will be very strong and will play its home matches on the Belleville rink, as there is no covered rink in Trenton.

WRESTLING

Toronto, Nov. 4.—Artie Edmunds, the well known Toronto wrestler and boxer, is in line for a crack at Eugene Tremblay, of Montreal, the lightweight wrestling champion of the world. Edmunds has been after Tremblay off and on for a year, but never could get a chance at him because the Montrealer would not come down to the lightweight limit of 135 pounds for a bout. Edmunds challenged him again this fall, and the following reply from George Kennedy, the Montreal man who handles Tremblay, Westergaards, Maupas, Casgan, and other wrestlers, explains itself:

Montreal, Oct. 31, 1908.

Dear Sir,—In reference to your challenge to Eugene Tremblay, I must say that the dates here in Montreal are all filled up for some time to come, but as you say that you are lighter than Tremblay, and in order to even up the match with you, I would be willing to bet any part of five hundred dollars that Eugene Tremblay, champion lightweight of the world, and holder of the Police Gazette belt, would be willing to undertake to throw you two falls in one hour. If you could get some Toronto club to furnish a suitable purse, and for the winner to take all, I would bring Tremblay up to Toronto. Let me hear from you at your earliest. Yours truly. George Kennedy.

Edmunds has accepted the challenge and the Riverdale Athletic Club will pull the bout off in two weeks' time.

Edmunds has posted $200 as a side bet, and the purse offered by the club will be divided 75 and 25. The match looks like a good thing for Edmunds, for if Tremblay is anywhere under even the welterweight limit, the Toronto boy is a good defence wrestler, and is always pitted against heavier men than himself. He will make Tremblay step lively all the way, for he never contents himself with strictly defence work in a handicap bout.

A carload of special scenery and effects is used in the production of "The Wolf" to-night.

BOXING

With the battle between Tommy Burns and Jack Johnson on the bill for December 20th anything and everything pertaining to the big affair is readily eaten up by the tight fans.

Since the day James J Jeffries announced his retirement the heavyweight championship of the world has been in dispute and has never been rightfully settled.

Notwithstanding this fact Tommy Burns' claim to the premier honour, while not by any means clear stands out head and shoulders over that of any other fighter.

Burns has got Bill Squires to thank for his stellar position in the pugilistic world. He was fortunate in getting him the first time in a single punch, for after that Squires showed infinitely more class although hardly in this country. He gave Jack Twin Sullivan, a man who had drawn with Burns, an awful battle for twelve or thirteen rounds, but Sullivan eventually got him. Then he went down before Pueblo Jim Flynn in six rounds in easy fashion. Each of his last two battles with Burns in France and in Australia show marked improvement or demonstrate the fact that Burns is going back.

Jeffries will never fight again either in public or private. He decided this when Burns sought him after his first battle with O'Brien. Tommy almost cried for a match and almost insulted Jeff to draw him into a controversy. This was in Jeffries' cafe in Los Angeles, but the big fellow just turned his back on Tommy, went to his desk and wrote a note to the newspapers in which he declared that he would never fight again for he might lose his temper and kill somebody.

George Barber, of the Argos broke a small bone in his left shoulder Saturday before half time, and although it pained him considerably he finished the game.

• • • •

Dundas Club will protest their intermediate game in Hamilton on Saturday on the grounds that the union, after being asked to appoint two neutral officials, failed to do it, and one of the two Hamilton officials appointed was not conversant with the rules.

• • • •

The Capitals would like to arrange a game of rugby for Thanksgiving Day out of town, Lindsay, Peterborough, or Port Hope preferred.

• • • •

Arrangements are being made for the play-off with the Eastern winners in the intermediate and junior series of the I.R.F.U. If the games can be arranged, the winners of the two junior groups, east and west will meet this year. The western teams are willing, and if expenses can be satisfactorily arranged, the eastern teams will come in on the proposition.

• • • •

Hamilton Times—The Hamilton Tigers had a fairly good workout on Saturday afternoon for their game next Saturday with the Ottawa Rough Riders. If they win this game, and they no doubt will, they will meet the Toronto A.A.C., winners of the O. R. F. U. senior series, the following Saturday in the first of the games for the Dominion championship. As there is no doubt as to the result of that, —they will clash with the Queens' College team the following Saturday.

WILL CITY COUNCIL RECOGNIZE THE VISIT OF THE SHEFFIELD CHOIR?

They are Being Royally Entertained in all the Other Places They Visit—How About Peterborough?

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Has Peterborough any public spirit or its civic representatives a suitable sense of responsibility which representative office confers? The visit of the Sheffield Choir to Peterborough is a distinction denied to most of the newer cities of Ontario, and should be appreciated as a high honour. Yet we find the city council, as the representatives of the people, indifferent or hostile; which?

The Sheffield BChoirr epresents all that is highest, grandest and most artistically perfect in the realm of concerted music—magnificent representatives in this regard of our brethren beyond the seas, and Peterborough should feel honoured in showing the harmonious visitors becoming hospitality. It need not be elaborate, but it certainly should take some form to be representative of the city.

To this end the city council seems called upon. One would expect that body to take the lead. But there seems to be no prospect of this. I am told that they have coldly received the suggestion, and there seems to be no help in this quarter.

This is all the more to be regretted because all the Canadian cities the choir has visited or will visit, have or will formally entertain the choir.

In Montreal the choir was welcomed by the mayor and city council and will be entertained at the palatial homes of Sir Montagu Allan and Sir George Drummond. In Ottawa, the civic council gave a luncheon and His Excellency, the Governor-General, a reception at Rideau Hall. On the evening Dr. Charles E. Harris, who has arranged the Canadian visit, gave a supper at his house, "Farnscliffe," formerly the home of Sir John A. Macdonald. In Toronto the Mendelssohn Choir give a banquet to 500 people after the opening concert. The mayor and council will take the choir on an automobile drive around the city, and Mr. H. C. Cox, president of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra will give a reception at his home in Queen's Park. In Buffalo, a supper will be given in the choir's honour by leading citizens. In St. Catharines, the choir are practically the guests of the city, local committees having taken charge of all arrangements, and a luncheon is to be given by the Daughters of the Empire. In Hamilton the Board of Trade will entertain the male members of the organization, and the Conservatory of Music the ladies.

Unless the citizens usurp the functions of the city council and make some effect at entertaining the choir, Peterborough will be blacklisted in the records of the choir's visit to Canada as the only city in the Dominion that ignored the suggestions of hospitality. The city council of the day took steps to entertain the British Bowlers on their visit to this city, and they were a less representative body than the Sheffield Choir.

It seems to me, and I know I speak the sentiments of our best citizens, that the city council is ignoring the visit of the Sheffield Choir, is not only ignoring the claims of hospitality and showing an unpatriotic indifference to a visit of our British cousins—a visit quite unique—and at the same time discrediting the claims of a local charity, in whose interest the concert of the choir is given. The Children's Aid Society has the sentimental sympathy of all our citizens, irrespective of creed or class, and the financial sympathy of many others—in fact, of everybody except, apparently, our city council.

Will not the city council think the matter over? I hope so, for the credit of the city, and for that of themselves.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

Sporting Comment

Speaking of the affair at Quebec, the Toronto Star hands Peterborough this tribute:—"Those on the inside say the deal was practically framed up on the return voyage of the Olympic team, but the Toronto members of the team are loth to believe that it was Meadows. They would rather believe that it was Art Burn, of Calgary, who has been mixed up in queer races before. He and Dave Beland both are well known in Peterborough, which for crooked foot racing has Hamilton or Brantford chased back to the kindergarten. Beland, Meadows and Burn were cabin mates on the Victorian coming home."

HOAGLAND HERE READY FOR MATCH ON HOLIDAY

Mr Willard A Hoagland, world-s champion walker, arrived in the city at noon and is registered at the Orrental. He looks to be in fine shape for the walking match with Jim Harrison in Brock-street rink on Monday and is confident o fvictory, although he realizes that Harrison has greatly improved since the match here last spring and will probablyt ake a lot of beating. He considers a handicap of ¼ mile in nine hours against such a walker as Harrison is no easy task but the Auburn, N. Y., crack will do his best to accomplish the feat of beating the local man on the holiday.

Hoagland will walk two miles while Prof. Genno and three other skaters do a mile each at the roller rink to-night.

A DOUBLE SHOOTING AT HAMILTON

Hamilton Young Man Attempts Murder and Suicide.

GIRL VICTIM MAY RECOVER

Chester Johnston Is Found Unconscious In Room and Rose Ouimet Is Badly Wounded—Young Woman Declares He Tried to Kill Her, Then Sought Death Because He Couldn't Marry Her.

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 6.—A double tragedy was enacted last evening at 180 Rebecca street, the home of Mrs. Camille. It is believed that it will turn out to be a murder and suicide.

The police know very little about the affair, which occurred about 9.30. The first word the police got was when a man came around to say that there had been some shooting in a house on Rebecca street.

He was so excited the police could get little information out of him, and they spent an hour in locating the place.

When the police finally did reach Mrs. Camille's house they said it looked like a slaughter house.

They found Chester Johnston, a young Hamilton man, about 26 years of age, unconscious from bullet wounds, and a girl who was known as Rose, suffering from five or six bullet wounds. They were hurried off to the City Hospital.

The doctors said there was no hope of Johnston's recovery, and that he had but a short time to live. There appeared to be some chance of saving the girl's life, and she was promptly placed on the operating table.

At midnight the police had not been able to unravel the mystery, but they are working on the theory that Johnston shot the girl and then turned the revolver on himself.

The police believe that Johnson was employed at a rolling rink, and Mrs. Camille says he came to her house yesterday afternoon and engaged a room, returning in the evening with a pretty girl, Rose Ouimet.

They had hardly been in the room an hour before Mrs. Camille heard five or six shots in quick succession. She rushed to the room to find the door locked. She broke it open, and found Johnson lying stark naked on the floor, a revolver clutched in each hand. He was unconscious, but the girl, although she had five bullet wounds, was fully conscious. She said Johnson had shot her because he could not marry her.

She was shot in the head, in both breasts, and had two wounds on one arm. She was lying on the bed. She is described as a very pretty girl about 20 years of age.

The girl was positively identified as Rose Ouimet, 14 Windsor street, and Johnson is said to be a brother-in-law of Manager Thomas of the Alexandra Roller Rink.

Balloonist Is Killed.

Princeton, Ills., Nov. 6.—Prof. Peter Kramer of St. Louis, was dashed against the chimney of the Methodist Church and killed here while making a balloon ascension at the farmer's carnival. Glen Haden, a 7-year-old boy, who was standing near the church, was struck by a brick falling from the chimney, which was wrecked by the balloon, his skull being fractured, and he may die.

A strong wind was blowing and efforts were made to persuade the aeronaut not to attempt an ascension. In reply he said: "I will make the jump to-day if I break my neck doing it."

Arrested at Winnipeg.

Brockville, Nov. 6.—The police have received word of the arrest at Winnipeg of Roy Pemberton, wanted on a charge of stealing $150 from his employer, A. E. Foster, a farmer. Foster was a church treasurer.

Arrested at Ottawa.

Brockville, Nov. 6.—Chief Burke goes to Ottawa to bring back for trial the two men, Stewart and Kimball, arrested yesterday afternoon charged with burglaries committed here early Wednesday morning.

WERE FOUND GUILTY OF FRAUD

Broker Morse and Banker Curtis Must Go to Prison.

MISAPPLIED BANK FUNDS

Big American Stock Manipulator and Former President of Bank of North America Are Convicted by Jury After Twenty-Four Hours of Deliberation—Penitentiary Term Is Only Penalty Allowed.

New York, Nov. 6.—C. W. Morse, until a year ago a dominant figure in the world of finance, with millions of dollars at his control, and Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the National Bank of North America, were found guilty last night in the criminal branch of the United States Circuit Court of misapplication of funds and falsifying the books of the bank.

There was also the additional charge of conspiracy against the prisoners, but the jury acquitted the men on this count.

Within five minutes of the time the jury had rendered its verdict, Judge Hough had refused to entertain a motion for bail and had committed the two bankers to the Tombs.

The federal statutes provide a minimum penalty of five years' imprisonment for falsifying the books of a

CHARLES W. MORSE,
The Wall Street Operator Who Must Go to Prison.

bank and a penalty of two years' imprisonment for misapplication of funds. No alternative but imprisonment is provided for conviction on the charge of falsifying the books of a bank. The maximum penalty on this charge is ten years' imprisonment.

The jury recommended clemency for Curtis.

The scene in the court-room was a dramatic one. Morse and Curtis had remained in the court-room nearly the entire day awaiting the verdict. They stood while the foreman was reading the verdict and their wives sat near them, leaning forward in tense attitude to catch every word.

A stifled sob of relief escaped Mrs. Curtis as she heard the recommendation for mercy for her husband. Curtis took the verdict like a stoic, but Morse was unable to conceal the disappointment he felt, while his wife showed no sign of emotion. She kept her eyes on her husband.

There had been wide interest in the joint trials of Charles W. Morse and Alfred H. Curtis on charges growing out of the failure of the National Bank of North America. It was brought out in the testimony that Mr. Morse had made large loans from the bank through so-called "dummies," and that President Curtis had enabled him to do so. The money thus obtained was used to finance the Morse ice pools and steamship operations, which later failed.

Killed by Train.

Humber Bay, Nov. 6.—The dead body of Edward Johnston, 43 years of age, a market gardener, living near Mimico, was found shortly after six o'clock last night, lying beside the G.T.R. railway tracks. He is supposed to have met his death by being struck by a train while attempting to cross the tracks leading to the Lake Shore road, though nobody saw the accident.

Book Agents Win Out.

Galt, Ont., Nov. 6.—Itinerant book agents made a disturbance in one of the town banks yesterday on which they had secured several orders for delivery of sets on the instalment plan. The signers of the contracts repented and sought to recover the orders given, but the book peddlers held their ground and came off victorious, though the police were appealed to.

Safe Blowers at Waterloo.

Waterloo, Nov. 6.—The store of V. Heric, general merchants, St. Clemens, was entered Wednesday night by burglars and the safe blown open with nitro-glycerine.

No booty was secured, other than a small collection of odd coins.

Hotel in Quarantine.

Edmonton, Nov. 6.—The Windsor Hotel is quarantined, the proprietor's brother, James H. York, having developed the smallpox in a mild form. Between 40 and 50 guests are isolated.

PEACE IS THREATENED ONCE MORE

Germany and France Quarrel Over Constantinople Trouble.

FRANCE REFUSES APOLOGY

German Authorities Insist Upon Expression of Regret and Release of Deserters From Foreign Legion—Parisian Papers Say Apology Means Moral End of French Power—Seeks Arbitration.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—The relations between France and Germany are again disturbed through Germany's seeking from the French Government the release of the Germans who deserted from the foreign legion at Casablanca, and additional satisfaction for an alleged assault made upon a subordinate official of the German consulate at that place.

The French Foreign Office wishes to submit the matter to arbitration, and M. Jules Cambon, the French ambassador at Berlin, is endeavoring to reach an agreement with the German Foreign Office to this end, but so far without success.

Several of Wednesday evening's papers took up the subject and declared that it is now necessary for Germany to insist upon her rights. The German Government made serious representations to France early in October with reference to this affair, which was prior to the controversy which arose from the publication of the Emperor's interview, but the raising of the controversy in the newspapers is regarded by some of Chancellor Von Buelow's critics as a device to divert public attention from the Emperor and the chancellor to a foreign quarrel.

The viewpoint of Germany was explained officially by the Foreign Office yesterday.

"All we demand," said an official of the Foreign Office, "is a simple expression of regret from France for the violence against the German consular officials at Casablanca. Unless this is forthcoming there would be no object in conducting further negotiations.

"Concerning the other points of the difference we are prepared to arbitrate."

The German newspapers, which hitherto have been almost silent upon the recent phases of the Casablanca incident, have suddenly placed this question in the position of first importance. The controversy is treated as being extremely disquieting and as involving the national honor.

Public feeling is appealed to by various influential journals in the provinces, as well as by those in Berlin.

The summoning of the Foreign Affairs' sub-division of the Bundesrat, the Federal Council, which is of rare occurrence, is required under the constitution, the Government communicating the state of the negotiations between France and Germany is considered to indicate that the present situation is serious.

Paris, Nov. 6.—Paul Cambon, the French ambassador in Berlin, has been instructed to notify Germany that France maintains her view that the whole question should be arbitrated, and that in the meanwhile she declines to release the deserters, to reprimand the officers concerned, or to exchange regrets with Germany.

Premier Clemenceau declared yesterday that he was ready to go before the Chamber of Deputies on the issue and resign if he was not upheld. The press of every shade of opinion, with singular unanimity, voices approval of the Government's attitude and declares that a backdown would be equivalent to the moral end of France.

An extraordinary session of the Cabinet was held yesterday afternoon, and the decision not to accede to the German demands was unanimously ratified.

The Temps is of the opinion that the present situation in Europe makes it absolutely impossible for Germany to risk an armed conflict.

"It would be a crowning imprudence," this paper says, "for Prince von Buelow to risk a war when Austria-Hungary is absorbed in the near east, when the Balkan states are ready to close the German roads to the eastward, and when Russia, aroused by a wave of Slavism, is prepared to seek a national revenge. France, morally and from a military point of view, is capable of defending her dignity; Great Britain is indisputably supreme at sea, and Italy is less and less disposed to sacrifice herself in the cause of another state."

In conclusion, The Temps advises the Government to publish the French case to the world.

Rumpus In Ecuador.

Quito, Ecuador, Nov. 6.—The extraordinary session of the Ecuadorian Congress has just been concluded with riotous scenes that ended in a serious fight. A number of the Ministers, and particularly the Minister of Finance, were warmly attacked by the minority in the House, who accused them of being participants in extensive frauds. The supporters of the Government retaliated by assaulting the minority deputies, while they were leaving the Congress, many of whom were wounded by the assailants.

He'll Go Deported.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 6.—Judge Forbes yesterday refused to convict for theft an Englishman named Geo. Jones, who came to Canada in 1906. He declared the Dominion had no right to spend a hundred and fifty dollars annually keeping this man in the penitentiary. Jones will be detained in the county jail until the first sailing of a steamer for England, and will then be deported by order of the court.

Socialist Vote Decreases.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—The Socialist vote in Tuesday's election showed a great falling off from the record in 1904 in the three principal cities of the country in which the Socialism is strongest. The total vote for Mr. Debs, it is estimated, will not exceed 500,000, in place of 1,000,000, which was predicted by enthusiastic Socialists. Gompers influence is blamed for the result.

ANCIENT PICTURE THIEVES.

Some Who Were Caught and Executed—A Case of Substitution.

In olden days, indeed until the end of the Napoleonic era, art robberies on a grand scale were the privilege of the mighty of this earth and the adjunct of victorious warfare. This was so in the days of ancient Rome, when shiploadfuls of marble and bronzes were transplanted from Greek to Italian soil, and it was again when the first Napoleon pillaged the collections and churches of Italy and Spain. Such action, however, was considered the conqueror's right and does not come within the scope of this article, which is to deal with petty theft and criminal appropriation of works of art.

The first deed of this nature of which I have been able to trace the record occurred so far back as 1601, when two heads were cut out of Wenceslaus Koeberger's "Martyrdom of St. Sebastian" in Antwerp cathedral. The fragment is said to be even now in an English private collection. But the thieves were caught and speedily put to death.

Other cases are on record of art thefts committed in the dim past, but in most cases they amount to a bare statement that such and such a picture or object disappeared at such and such a date and has never been heard of since. These records lack the flavor of romance which clings to those other cases in which the peregrinations of the thieves and of the stolen property can be followed as in that of the famous Murillo at Seville cathedral, representing "The Appearance of the Infant Jesus to St. Anthony."

The Duke of Wellington is said to have been so struck by the beauty of this masterpiece—a canvas of imposing size—that he offered to cover the whole surface with gold pieces if the chapter would sell it to him. However, the chapter refused, and in November, 1874, the figure of St. Anthony was cut out of the picture by unknown hands, and the fragment found its way to America.

There is a distinct element of humor in the circumstances that attended the theft of a portrait by Paris Bordone a good many years ago from the house of a wealthy collector in Vienna, who generally allowed the public access to his gallery when he was away from town. The picture was one day cut out of its frame and carried off. A reward of £120 was immediately offered for its recovery, and descriptions of the stolen picture were sent to the diplomatic representatives of Austria abroad.

The result was that a stranger called at the collector's house and arranged to return the picture against payment of the promised reward if no further questions were asked. His terms were accepted, and on his producing the painting, which fitted exactly into the opening that had been cut out of the original canvas, the stranger was paid his promised reward. It was only some time afterward, when one of the collector's friends expressed doubt as to the authenticity of the Bordone, that the picture was found to be a copy of the stolen masterpiece.

Why He Attracted.

A broker who had the reputation of using strong language on the golf links started out on a sunny autumn afternoon to play nine holes. Looking back after he had driven off, he saw a great crowd following. There were young men and old, good players and bad, all trailing close behind with looks of interest and expectation.

The broker paused and turned. He smiled politely and nervously. "Really, gentlemen," he said, "this is very flattering. I hope I am in good form this afternoon. I trust I shall play well enough to reward all this kindly interest."

"Oh, it isn't that," replied an elderly lawyer, with a chuckle. "We came out to listen."

Not a Bit Proud.

The editor of an esteemed contemporary thus announces the acquisition in his domestic circle of two "fair, fat and flourishing" babies.

"Bring out the brass band and place its noisiest members on the highest pinnacle of the town. Sound the loud bass fiddle and let the nation rejoice, for one of the humblest citizens of the commonwealth hath been justly exalted over his compeers, and we have the honor to be that fortunate and meritorious individual. Still we are not proud; we yet speak to our neighbors, occasionally, but at the same time it must be admitted that we feel several inches taller than we did a week ago."

WOULDN'T BE BEATEN.

Edmonton Settler Defied Fate With a Piece of a Stove.

Not long ago a settler in the Edmonton district lost everything by prairie fire, says a writer in a western magazine. His grain and stock, his shack and stable, his fences and implements, all were wiped out. A prosperous farm was converted in a few hours into a Sahara of grey ashes, with nothing left but the ruins of a cook stove left on the flat prairie floor to show that it had once been a human habitation. This Edmonton settler didn't sit stunned and dazed over the ruins. He walked three miles to a neighbor and borrowed a team and wagon. Then he took a piece of his broken stove top for a spade, and driving to a neighboring coulee, where hundreds and hundreds of beautiful Alberta ferns grew wild he grubbed out a wagonload of these ferns and teamed them into Edmonton. The people of that opulent young northern city may or may not have had an inkling of what had befallen him. But at any rate, the homeless settler sold his whole wagon load of fern roots for a dollar apiece, and turned around and bought a tent and a tin stove for $5, from the grandson of an English earl who refused to live any longer in a country where he couldn't buy "Honey-Dew" tobacco, and the shooting was getting worse every season. The fern seller then drove home with a pocketful of money and a determination to start life over again. You feel that he ought to have a brass plate on his door when he dies—at least, you feel that way at first, when you think of him grubbing out those coulee ferns with a broken stove top. But Canada would run out of the supply if she gave every westerner of kindred spirit a monument, for there are thousands of them. They are the men who are making us a nation."

OLDEST PREACHER DIES.

Rev. Alex. Mans, of London Colored Baptists, Was 118 Years Old.

The oldest Canadian preacher passed quietly away at the Aged People's Home in London, Ont., recently, in the person of Rev. Alexander Mans, who had just attained the 118th year of his age, and who was for many years minister of the Horton Street Baptist Church.

The long years of Rev. Mr. Mans' life have been eventful ones indeed. He has seen the change of a great country once his own. He watched the uniting of the Confederate States of America with those of the North, and the freeing of the race to which he belonged.

Born in the southern states, of slave parents, Rev. Mr. Mans grew up in slavery. After attaining the age of manhood, Rev. Mr. Mans' masters had to sell their plantation, and he with the other slaves was auctioned off to the highest bidder. His new home turned out to be an unhappy one, and from that time Mr. Mans began to think about escaping to Canada, the land of promise for the slaves. At this time the underground railway was the means adopted to help these unfortunate beings and one night he stole from his cabin and, with the help of those freedom-loving and freedom-abetting citizens, reached Canada. This was some sixty years ago, and ever since this time Rev. Mr. Mans has resided in and about London.

Long Sealing Trips.

To hunt for new sealing grounds in "all the seven seas" is the mission on which A. J. Bechtel of Victoria, B. C., has just dispatched his schooner, the Beatrice L. Corkum, from Halifax. The cruise will last for the next two years.

Mr. Bechtel arrived on the coast recently from the east, where he fitted out and prepared the vessel for her long cruise. He has hitherto, in common with all the other sealing masters, confined his attention to the seals in the north Pacific Ocean and in Behring Sea, and his new move is a fresh indication that the days of the seal herds in that part of the world are numbered and new grounds must be found for the hunters if the very expensive equipment of the several companies is to be kept employed.

A similar trip to that outlined for the Corkum will be made by the Agnes G. Donahue, owned by Capt. Balcum, of Victoria. Mr. Bechtel says that the schooner will practically cruise around the world in search of new sealing grounds.

Pushing Northward.

The shack of the settler is appearing farther and farther north in Ontario, and the last townsite to be surveyed into lots is where the National Transcontinental Railway crosses the Abitibi river. It is seven miles east of Cochrane, the junction point of the T. & N. O. Railway and the Transcontinental. Mr. W. H. Whitson of the Ontario Survey Department has returned from planning out the townsite, and he believes that the settlement there, which will probably be called Abitibi, has great possibilities. For a hundred miles up the Abitibi and for some distance along the Black river there are valuable areas of pulp and timber, and in the immediate vicinity of the townsite there is good farming land. The Transcontinental bridge at the point is 840 feet long and 94 feet above the water. They expect to have trains running from Abitibi to Frederick House by Christmas.

Millais and Newman.

The author of the life of Millais tells the following anecdote: When Cardinal Newman came to sit to the artist for his portrait, he asked where he was to pose.

"Oh, your eminence, on that eminence, if you please," answered Sir John, pointing to the models' dais, and, seeing him hesitating, added, "Come, jump up, you dear old boy."

Little Danger of Earthquake.

Geologists say that New York city is as unlikely to be disturbed by an earthquake as any place on the globe. It is possible that the east end of Long Island or the sandy shore of New Jersey may some day slip into the Atlantic ocean, but the rock foundations of the city are likely to stand until the final "wreck of matter and the crash of worlds."

PILES

It is stated by prominent Medical men that 9 out of every 10 people you meet on the street are suffering from Piles. Rich and poor are alike afflicted with this torturing and aggravating complaint, and being a delicate subject they often suffer in silence. This applies more especially to women. Piles are of two kinds Blind and Bleeding. The pain is often so intense that the sufferer can neither walk or lie, and are utterly unable to work or think while the pain lasts. Why men and women should suffer is a mystery when Curol will relieve the pain immediately and effect a cure.

Curol is a pure Antiseptic Salve, with wonderful curative powers. Its penetrating and healing powers are simply wonderful.

We ask you to test our statement. We have proved that the people are the best judges as to the merits or otherwise of a preparation, and to this end we are asking every MAN, WOMAN and CHILD suffering from Piles or any skin disease to write us about it, and receive in return a sample of CUROL free of cost. All we ask you to do is to make your need known by sending us Free Trial Coupon.

In long standing cases Curol goes to the root of the difficulty with a determination which is simply marvellous. The healing done by Curol is permanent, for it positively will heal until the wound is clean and free from impurities. Not so with salves containing Zinc, Mercury, Lead, &c. These poisonous salves may heal quickly, but do a great deal of damage by driving the impurities into the body, often causing very serious consequences. You should shun such and use only a salve free from these harming minerals. Such a salve is Curol.

There is a total absence in CUROL of rancid, fatty substances, so often found in cheap ointments, and does not calm, clog, or become hard. It is immediately absorbed by the skin, and thus penetrates to the seat of the disease. This fact alone makes CUROL popular. It is pure, and we have no hesitation in saying the best 25 cent salve on the market. We ask you to prove this statement by sending coupon for a free sample. All druggists and stores sell at 25 cents a box, or postpaid from CUROL SALVE CO., Spadina Avenue, Toronto. 6 boxes $1.25.

HEALS

UNWILLING GUESTS.

A Turtle Feast With Indians on the Amazon River.

"One of the strangest situations I was ever in," said a man who has traveled much, "was down on an island in the Amazon river. I was looking up lumber for an English syndicate. I had another white man with me, and we went up the river 800 miles in a launch. The crew of the launch were half Indian and half negro. We had been caught by a swarm of Indians who swept us along with them up the river until we reached this island I speak of. There was nothing to do but go with them, as they were several hundred to one of us. They landed on the island, which was quite sizable and sloped to the river's edge, the shores being sandy. There we camped for the night. Next morning when we wanted to leave the natives would not let us go, insisting on our remaining. I did not like this, but there was nothing else to do, so we stayed. Well, that night we saw something moving all about the island and presently turtles began to crawl out of the water on to the shore. There were hundreds of them. They came there to lay their eggs. It was an annual visit, and the Indians knew and kept track of it. They were there to have a feast. As soon as the turtles were well on the island the fun began. With a big pole we would get after a turtle and upset him on his back, where he was helpless. Scores were caught in this manner. For those they did not want to eat at once the Indians scooped a hole in the sand and dropped the turtle down on his back, and there he remained until dragged out to be killed. The weird and fantastic performances we saw there beat anything I ever saw before or since. The Indians would eat and dance and dance and eat until they fell down, unable to move. As soon as they had rested they would get up and go at it again. They kept that up for nearly a week. Then we got away. How much longer they remained I cannot say, but suppose they remained as long as there was anything to eat."

Too Saving.

Prof. Charles Zueblin, the brilliant and original sociologist of the University of Chicago, enunciated before the League of Political Education in New York a superb epigram:

"He who begins with saving to protect his family may end with neglecting his family to save."

Discussing the dangers of immoderate saving, he said:

"It's by saving immoderately that we come to inserting want advertisements like one I saw recently: 'Wanted, capable office boy. Salary, $1 a week.'

"A young man of Seminary avenue, noticing this advertisement, couldn't resist replying to it. His reply ran: "'I beg to offer you my services. Should you require a premium I could furnish $500. You do not mention Sundays. Should I have to work on that day? Neither do you state whether the applicant must be clothed or not, but I have concluded that he must at least wear trousers or he would be unable to carry home his wages.'"

Poison Rings.

The origin of the pretty custom of placing the wedding ring upon the finger of the bride seems to have sprung from Egyptians, who presented the bridal ring as a token of intrusting the wife with all the husband's property. The custom was adopted by the early Christians, and thus it has reached us in the present day, when the ring is placed upon the bride's finger with the words, "With all my worldly goods I thee endow."

Rings, however, have had other associations besides those of marrying and giving in marriage. Some Roman rings were hollow and filled with poison, obviously for the purpose of suicide, a crime then considered a virtue. A modern instance of this carrying death upon the finger is that of Condorcet, who when arrested by the notorious convention tore the jewel from his ring and drank the poison which lay in the hollow.

What Troubled Pat.

An old Irish laborer walked into the luxurious studio of a New York artist and asked for money to obtain a meal, as he was too weak to work.

The artist gave him a quarter and then, seeing possibilities for a sketch in the queer old fellow, said, "I'll give you a dollar if you'll let me paint you."

"Sure," said the man, "it's an easy way to make a dollar, but—but I'm wonderin' how I'd get it off."

THE BIBLE.

Much Popular Misinformation About the Scriptures.

The notion loosely floating about the churches is that the Bible came down from heaven, cleanly printed, nicely bound in morocco and gilt-edged, with a bookmarker against that text which has been erroneously made to declare that every Scripture is inspired of God. This heaven-sent volume is incapable of error in the minutest detail. Every sentence, every word and letter and punctuation mark is infallibly guaranteed by the Holy Ghost! Nobody, to the knowledge of the present writer, has ever said that he holds quite that theory of inspiration. But if the popular idea of the Bible were analyzed it would warrant the inference. And this infallibility is in practice claimed for the Bible as printed in the English tongue and read in our churches! Yet all the world knows, or should know, that the revised version which we now possess is based on the authorized version, which is an improved edition of the bishops' Bible, which was a bad copy of Cranmer's Bible, which was based on Coverdale's translations of Dutch and Latin translations and Rogers' version of Tindall's Bible! And if we expect to find rigidly accurate messages from the very mind of God, conveyed in a version of a version which is a translation of a translation, we are demanding the most miraculous of all conceivable miracles.

Popular misinformation about the Bible seems to begin with the purchase of a copy in a bookstore. Yet the adventures of the Bible documents before the day of the printing press constitute one of the romances of history. The earliest Hebrew copy of the Old Testament of undisputed date goes back only to the tenth century A. D. For a period, therefore, of not less than 1,200 years and perhaps of 2,000 copy had been succeeding copy, generation following generation in the world of books even as in the human race. Twenty centuries of "editions" had gone the way of all papyri, even as twenty centuries of human beings had gone the way of all flesh, and this parchment was heir of all those ages in the foremost files of—books. Had no copyist made one mistake in the course of twice a thousand years? As compensation for the late date of our Hebrew authorities can be set, it is true, the scrupulous fidelity with which the Hebrew amanuensis did his work, his reverence for the letter of the document on which he was engaged and the consequent comparative purity and reliability of the text.

Couldn't Scare Them.

A Denver man who rents his motor car by the trip or hour was seated in the machine with a friend for business when a young couple from the country came up. It was plain to be seen they were bride and groom. The young man from the country said they wanted to see Denver. He arranged for the motor car man to take them for an hour's trip and paid the charges in advance. The country couple took the back seat. The driver's friend sat in the front seat with him.

"I'm going to have some fun," said the driver in a low tone to his friend. "I'm going to run fast and scare those hayseeds."

He ran to the east edge of town and then let the machine out to the limit. It rocked and jumped till the driver's friend became alarmed.

"Say," he said, "you'd better ease up on it or you'll kill us all."

"Look around and see if the bride and groom are scared," was the reply.

Before the other man could turn and look the farmer touched the driver on the shoulder.

"Hey, feller," he said, "here's another dollar. Make her run fast, will you?"

Maltese Muskrats.

One of the most objectionable of the pests that intrude into houses in Malta is the muskrat. Everything he touches is impregnated with the odor from which he derives his name. In a wine cellar he is worse than a dishonest butler. In a larder he is more destructive than a dozen cats. From pure wantonness he taints and renders uneatable everything within his reach. His odor is so powerful and at the same time so penetrating that dozens of bottles of beer may be ruined by his merely running over the bottles. The muskrat is a squeaking little animal who commits his enormities at night, and he adds insult to injury by disturbing the repose of the victims of his depredations.

OPPOSITE ST. JOHN'S CHURCH
CORNER QUEEN AND HUNTER STS.

Matchmaking Billy Judson.

By JENNIE LUDLUM LEE.

Copyrighted, 1903, by Associated Literary Press.

"You see, Cora, you're my sister, and I can confide in you," announced Edith Fitch as she nestled closer in the hollow of the armchair. "Then, too, you're married and you know the signs."

Mrs. Bennington smiled at her pretty sister and made no contradictory reply.

"I am sure he loves me—but, oh, dear, why doesn't he tell me so?" continued Edith petulantly. "But there's no use beating about the bush, Cora. What I want to know is how ever did you make Carl propose?"

"Make him!" echoed the justly indignant Mrs. Bennington. "My dear sis, I couldn't stop him. For two whole years when I would feel it in my bones that the proposal was on his lips I would change the subject, but finally he asked me and just kept on asking until I said, 'Yes'—well—well—oh, just to get rid of him." And Mrs. Bennington blushed at her own untruthfulness.

"I might have known that I could get no consolation from you, Cora," declared Edith. "You and Carl are so beastly happy that you don't bother about rank outsiders." And she gathered up her belongings and departed.

Alone in the privacy of her own room Edith sighed and sighed as only a girl very much in love can do. She grew restless and finally wandered downstairs into the library. Looking over the shelves, she finally discovered the book for which she was searching.

Once more she returned to her room and was soon lost in the leaves of "Love Affairs of Great Men." Yet when her mother called her to luncheon she had not yet solved the problem.

"WHY ARE YOU SO SNAPPY TONIGHT?"

"Mother," began Edith as the maid brought in the bouillon, "how did you make father propose to you?"

After all, mothers are the ones who always do solve our problems, and as Edith leaned back in her chair she somehow felt that help would be forthcoming.

Mrs. Fitch smiled softly.

"Your father first asked me to marry him when I was seven and he was nine," she replied. "Of course I accepted him then and there. The second time he asked me I was fifteen, but with age had come ambitions, and I laughed at him. And the rest of the times"—

"How many times were there?" cried Edith.

"Oh, innumerable," announced Mrs. Fitch, "and they just kept up until we were finally married."

Edith thought the lunch most unappetising and returned to finish her book after the meal was over. That evening the Wilsons were giving a large dance, and Edith took a beauty nap to prepare for the fun. Sharply at 9 o'clock Donald Lipton drove up to the house, and together he and Edith went to the dance.

It was a happy evening, for Donald was all devotion, and Edith was radiant in her excitement. At least if Donald did not want her for his wife he gave no outward and visible signs of wanting any other girl, and that was some comfort. Once or twice it seemed as if he surely would say the words the girl so longed to hear.

"Edith," Donald announced as they had just finished a waltz, "you're lovelier than ever tonight. No man could resist you."

"I know one who does," boldly announced Edith.

"Name him, and I'll have his life's blood," cried Donald, with mock severity.

"Oh, you wouldn't commit suicide, would you?" demurred Edith.

"Donald Lipton," interrupted his hostess, "what do you mean by forgetting your manners? Dolly Griggs is over there waiting for you." As Donald disappeared to keep his engagement she turned to Edith, "Really, Edith, that man is so in love with you that he forgets all his breeding up."

As Edith sat toasting her tired little feet before the radiator that night after the dance was over and she was preparing for bed she sighed again, but somehow it was a different sigh from those of the morning. It seemed to be a sigh of hope rather than despair.

Several evenings after the dance Jim Smith announced "Mr. Lipton," and Edith kept him waiting just a minute for discipline. When she entered the parlor she could see that Donald was plainly not in good humor. She merely held little of its customary exuberance.

"Good evening, Miss Fitch," he said rather curtly.

Edith's eyes danced. Whatever it meant to others, to her it seemed a good sign.

"Hello, Donald," Edith answered. "Do take the cozy chair that you like so well."

"I'm only going to stay a minute," announced Donald.

"You don't mean to say you came way uptown this rainy night just to stay a minute. Why didn't you telephone if you only wanted to give me a message?" answered Edith.

"I wanted to return something," answered Donald. "Did you happen to have missed anything lately?"

"Nothing except that locket I lost the night of the Wilson dance," Edith informed him. "And I've given up all hopes of ever seeing that again."

"Well, here is your locket," said Donald as he handed the trinket to her. "And I must tell you that when it was returned to me it was open, and I saw the picture inside."

Edith ignored this bit of information and seemed lost in the joy of having the locket back once more.

"Wherever did you find it?" she cried as she opened it and looked at the handsome youth inside.

"The cabman found it when he was brushing out his cab and was only able to trace me today. I must be going now. I have a date at the club."

"But, Donald," demurred Edith in a temptingly sweet tone, "why are you so snappy tonight?"

"Edith, do you know what the finding of that locket means to me?"

"Why, no, of course not," declared Edith. "Surely you have no sentiment for the locket."

"No, but I did have for you," murmured Donald, "and finding the locket that you wear about your neck with the face of another man in it means that every hope I ever had is blasted, every dream is false, every incentive in life is worthless, every"—

"Why, Don, you don't mean that"—

"That I love you," finished Lipton. "Why look surprised, Edith? You know it as well as I do. A man doesn't follow in a girl's trail as I have in yours for two years for nothing. You know that I love you better than anything—yes, everything in life."

"But you never told me so," whispered Edith.

Donald had her tightly in his arms.

"Never told you so!" he echoed. "Why, I thought the whole world knew it." Then, looking down at her closely, he asked, "Who's the man in the locket?"

"Let me go and I'll 'fess up," begged Edith; but, being a good business man, Lipton argued that possession was nine points of the law.

"Well, I was reading the 'Love Affairs of Great Men' the other day, and the Princess Something-or-other was in love with the king of some place, and she wanted to find out if he loved her. So she put the picture of the Prince of Some-other-place in her locket and dropped it where the king would find it. That made him jealous, and then she knew that he loved her. So I took a picture of my cousin, Billy Judson, out of the family album and cut it to fit my locket—and—and—that's all," finished Edith lamely.

"Well, Billy Judson should be rewarded," said Lipton between the hearty laughs that followed this explanation. "We'll have him for best man and give him a standing invitation for dinner every Saturday night."

Diplomacy.

The two were dining with an exquisite who was deep in the occult, according to his own idea. When he had discussed things past, present and future in the occult line he paused impressively and said with a frown:

"Now, think of a color, one of you, and I will call its name. I'm pretty good at that."

The first of the women thought deeply while he imbedded his finger in his brow and also thought. Presently he said aloud:

"Red!"

She shook her head.

"No," she said, "it wasn't. It was blue."

He appealed to the second, with a disappointed air, but not wholly crestfallen.

"You think of a color," said he.

Again he dug a hole in his forehead. She thought. Then he said forcibly so that all the other people could hear him:

"Green!"

She smiled and nodded so that all the other people could see her.

"That's right," said she quite loud, at which the occultist smiled, well pleased.

By and by he excused himself for a moment and went across the garden to speak with a friend.

"How strange it was," mused the first woman, "that he should have guessed your color and not mine."

The second quietly munched an olive. "He never guessed mine," said she, "but, my goodness, isn't he paying for our dinner?"—New York Press.

The Wrong Key.

Mrs. O'Rourke (at 4 a. m. out of window)—Shure, an' why don't yez come in? Haven't yez got a key? Mr. O'Rourke (loaded)—I know that, but it's a night key. Yez'll have to throw me down a day key.

Canada's Inland Sea.

People at home who have only seen Hudson bay on the map have mainly regarded it as a patch of polar desolation, forbidding and unexplored. In reality it is nothing of the kind. It is a large inland sea as large as the Mediterranean reaching down into the center of the Canadian continent.—Milling.

HOW OUR WEIGHT VARIES.

The Way a Person Will Gain and Lose in One Day.

Don't get worried every time you notice a slight decrease in your weight. Of course there may be something wrong, but don't jump to conclusions too quickly. Just take into consideration the fact that the weight varies throughout the day.

Scientific investigation shows that the average healthy man is always gaining or losing weight throughout the day.

At 9 a. m. before breakfast he weighs, say, 155 pounds 4 ounces. An hour later, after breakfast, he has gained one pound twelve ounces, but by noon he loses fourteen ounces of this, only immediately to make it up and to add two ounces to lunch, which brings his weight to 157 pounds 6 ounces. Then the fall begins again and slowly continues till dinner time, though the chief meal of the day puts on two pounds two ounces, fetching him up to his maximum weight.

He is at his lightest just before breakfast and at his heaviest immediately after dinner.

There is a big drop during the night. It amounts on the average to three pounds six ounces, but the loss varies from two pounds to four pounds, according to idiosyncrasy and the season of the year. In making deductions from the results of the experiments touching variations in weight allowance must be made for special exertion, whether bodily or mental.

That mental strain quickly tells on the frame has been established in connection with examinations. Comparative tests show that students in the high classes, where the effort is necessarily greatest, lose several pounds more than those in the lower classes.

The loss of weight due to physical exertion is sometimes a little surprising even to those who have devoted attention to the matter. For instance, Burgess, the swimmer, in trying to cross the English channel, notwithstanding the large amount of food he took while in the water, lost nearly one pound per hour.

Even a degree of exertion within the capacity of well nigh anybody is an important factor in reducing weight. It is easy to lose about two pounds by taking a turn at a home exercise, while a brisk walk may involve a loss of three pounds or four pounds.

Saluted a Drove of Pigs.

In the American Magazine a writer talks about courage. In the course of his story he tells about a certain respectable father he once knew. Here is what he says:

"Isn't it time we took off our hats and thanked this pleasant land for the good things it has done for us by going on patiently covering up our blunders, rectifying our mistakes and responding cheerfully to our every intelligent effort?

"I knew a man who had the right idea about it. His father had made a great fortune in the pork packing business. The heir was not puffed up by his millions. Long after he had grown accustomed to the money and might reasonably be expected to look down on butchers, if in walking in the country with his children they saw a drove of hogs on the road, he would make the little boys stand at attention and take off their hats. 'I want them to respect the sources of wealth,' he said."

Her Accomplishment.

In the Bohemian set of Chicago two of the popular members are a well known writer and his wife, who has also written several books. They have a daughter about four years old. Recently the little girl was visiting at the home of a friend, and her small playmate asked, "Can your mamma sew?"

The daughter of the literary pair evidently was a bit chagrined. She could not remember that she ever had seen her mamma sew. She is a truthful child and would not claim any advantage she was not sure of, yet she felt mamma's honor was at stake.

"I don't know if mamma can sew," she replied dubiously, "but she can smoke a cigarette."

His Stuff Called.

"My dear, you grow prettier every day."

"And shabbier, John. Compliments are all very well, but I'd like to see a little ready cash occasionally."

Confidence is a plant of slow growth in an aged bosom.—Chatham.

WHY AM I ILL?

HOW TO TELL.

Does every cold affect your back, and cause a feeling of chilliness, followed by disturbances of the kidney action.

Does the use of spirits, tea or beer excite the kidneys? Are you easily worried and annoyed over trifles? Are the feet and hands cold? Circulation bad? Do the feet and legs swell? Is there puffiness under the eyes? Do you have rheumatism, poor eyesight, headaches and backaches? Is there gravel or any unnatural action of the kidneys?

If you have any of the above symptoms your kidneys are either weak or diseased, and these symptoms are warnings of more serious troubles to follow; Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Dropsy.

Whatever you do, whatever you think your disease is, look well to your kidneys at the first sign of anything wrong. Give them just the aid they require in Doan's Kidney Pills, the Great Quaker Kidney Medicine, and see how well and fit you feel after even a few doses.

Mrs. O. Warren, Redberon, Sask., writes: "I was troubled with very severe pains in my back for years. I tried everything I could think of but they did me no good. A friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking two boxes, I have not been troubled since."

What Silas Saw in Slater Shoes

GOSH all hemlock! Why?
Should you or me, Son,—pay
Five good dollars, or even Four,
For them there "Slater Shoes"
When,—
We kin get these here good
Cowhide boots that last us
Just as long, for $2?
Now tell me, Silas—Why?

"Shoomed, by why, Dad?
Well,—these few remarks apply:

"I note you don't wear Wooden Shoes,
Like saving-folks in Holland.
They're cheaper far than Cowhide,
And they can't wear out.
Besides, they're easy to repair
With a piece of board, a saw,
A hammer and some nails,
Why don't you wear 'em, Dad?

"As for me, I can't afford to Ride in Benzine-Buggies much,
So I must walk a lot betimes.
And when I walk, I want to feel
My feet so free and comfortable
That I can just forget them
And think of something else,
That earns a dozen
Pairs of "Slater Shoes" meanwhile.

"I can wear your Cowhides
Coming, Pa,—when you are far away
And, strictly out-of-sight.
And, if they feel as badly as
They sound and look, why then,
I'm sorry for your feet.

"I wear my "Slater Shoes"
Some 14 hours per day, also
Some 365 days every year!
"And, when I figure out
The difference in comfort
That I get between such Cowhide boots as yours, at Two,

And "Slater Shoes" like mine, at Five per pair,
For an extra cost of Six Dollars more per year,
I'm apt to think that
Fifty Cents a Month
Is cheap enough for so much
Surplus Style and Satisfaction,
Even if I have to cut out
Two meals a month to save it."

"You smoke tobacco, Dad,
You take a drink bottled, I think,
And get some entertainment
Out of both, I guess,—
But—
Not so much as I get even
Out of wearing "Slater Shoes"
Some Sixty Minutes
Every hour, for
Fourteen hours every day
Add 365 days every year,—
At fifty cents a month.

"So, think it over, Dad,
And, ask your feet to-night
How they would like to live in Ease and comfort, luxury and
The Bang-up style of "Slater Shoes"
For the little difference of—
Fifty Cents a Month."

Clouds and the Weather.

When two weather prophets disagree does it argue error or incompetence in either? No, says the author of "Storms and Storm Signals" in Yachting. The data upon which they base their predictions do not always bear one interpretation. Thus:

Because the clouds indicate weather in a different manner according to the geographical location of the observer, and also because they are in themselves but byproducts of the weather and are not causes, weather predictions from clouds at sea should be taken with plenty of reservation of judgment. To say, for instance, that a "red sky at night sailors delight" is very tuneful and possibly truthful where knowledge is conspicuous by its absence, but a red sky at night may mean almost anything from a surplus of moisture in the air, meaning probably rains, to a volcanic eruption 2,000 miles away which has sent great clouds of dust into the air, causing the red color by reflection and refraction of the light rays.

The Eyes.

"Long, almond shaped eyes, with thick and creamy lids covering half the pupil and with a forehead that is full above the brows—these you have the eye of the man of genius." The speaker's own eyes answered that description strikingly, but he was far from being a man of genius, being, in fact, a magazine editor.

"Protruding eyes," he went on, "show mental and bodily weakness. Eyes close together denote cunning. Those far apart denote liberality. Thin lashes without any upward curve to them and thin brows poorly marked are signs of melancholy and indecision. The eyes of a voluptuary move slowly under heavy lids. Those of a miser are small, deep sunken and blue, set in a bony and perpendicular forehead. The most beautiful eyes—large, brilliant and clear, glancing and flashing with a rapid motion—the most beautiful eyes denote elegance of taste, gayety, some selfishness and a great interest in the opposite sex."—New York Press.

St. George and the Dragon.

According to Percy, St. George, the son of Lord Albert of Coventry, after fighting against the Saracens went to Sylane, a city of Libya, where there was a stagnant lake infested by a monster dragon "whose hide no spear could pierce." Every day a virgin was sacrificed to it, and at length it came to the lot of the king's daughter to become the victim. She was tied to the stake and left to be devoured when St. George came up and vowed to take her cause in hand. On came the dragon, when the saint, thrusting his lance into its mouth, killed it at once.

Her Blunder.

Him—And I'm the only man you ever loved?

Her—Yes, dearest.

Him—May I speak to your father?

Her—I suppose you'd better.

Him—I wonder how he'll take it.

Her—Oh, I never can tell about dad. He treats some of the boys very nicely, and at others he gets fearfully angry, and—why, what's the matter, George?

WORK OF THE BEAVER

Feats Performed by This Industrious Little Worker.

A CLEVER HOUSE BUILDER.

He Is Capable of Constructing a Dwelling as Large, Though Not So High, as a Small Haystack, and He Can Cut Down Big Trees With His Teeth.

Almost every one knows something about the beaver and that it builds dams and houses to dwell in, but very few people have seen beavers in their wild state. It is also a fact that the race of industrious little workers is rapidly disappearing. In the older districts beavers generally live in the banks of the streams they inhabit, and the sight of a beaver house is uncommon.

Where beavers do build houses, says Forest and Stream, the structures differ greatly in size, shape and location. Some are as large, though of course less high, than a small haystack; others are hardly more than six feet through at the base. They may stand either wholly on land or partly in the water and partly on the bank or wholly in the water.

They are never placed in very deep water, for a base must be built for the house to stand on reaching up to the surface, since the chamber inhabited by the occupants must be dry.

The shape of those houses on the shore approaches the conical. Those in the water are more irregular, sometimes only rounded, at others long and rather flat on top.

Within each house and connected with the water by a concealed passage through which the beavers pass to and fro is the chamber which is the animals' dwelling place.

It is large enough to contain seven or eight of them and high enough so that a beaver can conveniently sit up on his haunches. It is warm, dry and clean, for the beaver is extremely neat in all his habits.

The food of the beaver consists chiefly of the green bark of twigs and young limbs of various trees. Cottonwood bark is preferred; then comes willow, then alder, but the bark of almost any tree may be eaten.

I have known them to eat pine and white cedar. The beaver often cuts down trees of very considerable size to get at the smaller limbs, which they eat.

I have seen cottonwoods twenty inches in diameter so cut, and once on Vancouver island I found a cedar two and one-half feet through which they had gnawed down.

The work of cutting down a large tree is done by a single animal. I have seen the beaver engaged in the operation, which is as follows: The beaver sits up on his haunches facing the tree and with its fore paws resting against it. With its head turned on one side he cuts a groove above and then one below and bites out the chip, taking it off in almost the same way an axman would.

He thus saves himself the trouble of gnawing all the wood up into fine cuttings. When the tree is felled the whole community attack and cut up the tender limbs, carrying them away to the cache.

Unlike many of our gnawing animals, the beaver does not sleep through the winter. He remains active, often venturing abroad during the whole of the cold weather. He must, therefore, have food, and a large part of the summer and autumn is devoted to securing this food and depositing it in caches. This food consists of the limbs and twigs of the trees most preferred by the beaver.

They are cut from one and a half to three feet long, stripped of their leaves and smaller twigs, carried to the water and floated to the cache, where they are sunk. And here comes a very curious point.

These sticks are floated to the cache and are sunk by the beaver to the bottom of the water, where they remain without any apparent anchorage. They are not stuck in the mud of the bottom or held down by weights. If you lift one to the surface it will float, but you may move it about on the bottom without its rising.

I have myself tried this with sticks from which the bark has been eaten, but have never done so with the green, unpeeled limbs before the beavers had taken them into their houses. This matter to me is a very mysterious one, and I have never been able to get any hint as to how these sticks were sunk.

All through the winter the beavers visit these caches, carry the sticks to their houses, where they eat off the bark, returning the bare sticks to the water.

Sometimes it may happen that for some reason or other the cache may not contain enough to last the whole winter. In this case the beavers, if possible, get on land through some air hole or place of open water and then forage among the timber. Occasionally a combination of scarcity and severe weather may oblige the colony to emigrate during the winter to some more favorable spot.

Courting Trouble.

"Look here," said the official, "there'll be trouble if your wife disregards us when we persistently tell her she must not pick the flowers."

"Then," replied Mr. H. Peck, for it was no other, "why ever do you persist?"

Be prepared to answer for the single talent committed to your charge and take no thought for the rest.—St. Bernard of Chairvaux.

Saw It.

"There's been a conflagration here," said Cumso, looking at a tall building.

"How do you know?" asked Fangle.

"I saw the fire escape"—Kansas City Independent.

GOT IN ALL THE NEWS.

Cummings Killed a Lot of Ads. and Raised a Row.

When Amos Cummings was managing editor of The New York Sun, many years ago, an important news story came in late one night and was sent to the composing room with "must" written above it, which meant that on no account must the news be left out of the paper. A few minutes after the copy boy returned to the editorial rooms and reported that the foreman had said the paper was already overset and that two columns of other news would have to be killed if the "must" story was to get in. Cummings took the copy from the boy and went himself to the composing room. He demanded an explanation. The foreman told him that there was a pressure of advertisements that night and that they had usurped some of the space usually given for news.

"What shall I kill?" asked the foreman.

"Kill two columns of advertisements and print all the news," ordered Cummings, and it was done.

The next day there was trouble around The Sun office. A hurried meeting of the stockholders was called, and it was a stormy one. Some of the stockholders wanted to have Cummings discharged, but Charles A. Dana stood up for him, and as Dana owned the greater part of the stock his voice was all powerful. After the meeting Mr. Dana walked out of his office and straight to Cummings' desk. He put his hand affectionately on the managing editor's shoulder and said:

"Amos, you have my permission to throw out advertisements to make room for the news whenever in your opinion it is necessary. We are publishing a newspaper, not an advertising poster."

Shortly afterward an improvement was made in the presses so that two or more pages could be added to the paper at the last moment if necessary.

AGE OF THE OLIVE.

Plato's Tree Still Standing Near Site of Athens' Academy.

It is well known that olive trees will live to an extreme age, and trees are known which are many centuries old. What is known as Plato's olive tree is one of the oldest upon record. It stands near Athens and on the spot where the academy formerly existed. In spite of its great age it still appears to be in a flourishing condition and has a vigorous foliage. Although somewhat damaged by the combats of the insurrection, says the Scientific American, it will no doubt live for a long time to come. The proprietor of the ground, M. Vamvacas, had the tree examined by the naturalist Milliarakis in order to be assured whether the popular legend dating it from the time of Plato could be correct, and it was found that its age was sufficient to bear out the legend. As to popular belief, M. Camburoglus, conservator of the National library of Athens, states that tradition has it that the tree was no doubt already old when Plato sat under its shade. M. Vamvacas had the idea of honoring this contemporary of the great philosopher by sending its olives as a present to the different sovereigns or presidents, and among others President Roosevelt, who addressed him a reply of thanks for his unique present.

Don't Want Too Much.

A woodman who was passing through the forest came upon a bear who was rolling over and over on the ground and uttering the most dismal complaints. Bruin had one eye closed and was covered from head to heels with lumps and knobs and knots.

"What cheer?" gayly cried the woodman as he drew near.

"Bees," moaned the bear.

"But nature gave you a coat of fur to protect you from the sting of bees."

"So she did," answered the bear, "but she also made me fool enough to want honey just the same when I was shedding my coat, and every sting would lift me a foot high."

Moral.—None of us is ever satisfied with a good thing.

Saved Him an Answer.

An English nobleman, noted for his wealth and for his disinclination to part with it, once attended a bazaar promoted by the Princess Metternich in aid of a hospital.

"Will you buy this cigarette case?" asked the princess, offering a pretty article to the peer.

No, his lordship did not smoke.

"This penholder, then?" said the princess.

No, his lordship never wrote.

"A bonbonniere surely?"

No, said his lordship, he never ate sweets.

The princess then took up a cake of soap. "I shall not ask you to buy this soap!" she remarked.

An Exchange of Compliments.

Judge Charles P. Daly of New York was a charming conversationalist as well as a model citizen and an accomplished jurist. He met the Duke of Wellington once, and the duke remarked to him that he seemed too young to be on the bench.

"I owe my position," replied Judge Daly, "to one of those accidents of fortune to which your grace owes so little."

"I recall my criticism," said the duke grimly. "You are doubtless where you belong."

Cradle of the Railway.

Darlington is the cradle of the railway. I have just been over a bit of the original line—considerably altered—between Darlington and Stockton, upon which the first railway carriages in the world ran. At Stockton the first railway station is still preserved, just a common smoke begrimed house on a siding, but a relic to which Americans in particular do homage when visiting England.

THE DEEP SEA DIVER

Perils Against Which the Modern Expert Must Guard.

PROTECTING HIS AIR TUBE.

This Is His Chief Care While Delving in the Debris of Sunken Wrecks. Tragic Debut of John Day, a Clever but Ignorant Old Timer.

A great deal of water has run under the bridge since in the month of June, 1774, John Day made his fatal debut as a diver in Plymouth sound. Day, a clever but ignorant millwright, had laid numerous wagers that, confined in a water tight box and provided with a candle, food and drink, he would remain submerged at any depth for twelve hours. His plan was that the box should be fastened by screws—from within—to a vessel subsequently sunk and that when the allotted time had elapsed he should withdraw the screws and rise to the surface. His mad scheme was actually put into execution on June 22, and Day, as might have been expected, lost his life. Not the least extraordinary part of the affair is that, while he was warned how the pressure of the water would affect his box and greatly increased its strength in consequence, no one seems to have so much as hinted at the danger of his death from want of air.

The diver who goes down today to salve the contents of a sunken wreck, recover a dropped torpedo or execute some submarine erection or repairs has better knowledge of the necessary risks he runs and the precautions by which he may avoid all needless danger at his work than had poor Day. Science, mindful of the great increase of pressure brought about by every foot that he descends beneath the surface of the sea, warns him to go slowly down the stepladder that hangs from the ship's side or the dock wall and to pause frequently as he does so, that he may grow accustomed to the increase by degrees. By this means a man fit for the work, sound of heart and free from apopletic tendencies passes with little inconvenience from the moderate pressure of eight pounds per square inch, which surrounds him at a depth of twenty feet, to that of sixty-five pounds, which he must sustain after descending 150 feet—the greatest depth at which his work can be considered safe.

Once landed at the bottom of the sea the diver has a host of things to bear in mind. Weighted as he is with brass soled boots, copper helmet and often a treble set of underclothing below his diving suit of twill and rubber, the tendency to rise is yet so great that his powers of action are very limited. He can lift a comparatively heavy weight with ease; the attempt to pull down some trifling piece of wreckage from overhead will probably take him off his feet. Readers of Robert Louis Stevenson will remember how when, dressed in full deep sea costume, he accompanied a diver to his work the novelist was able to hop with ease upon the summit of a rock some six feet high. But descend again he could not. His companion hauled him on head downward and propped him on his feet "like an intoxicated sparrow." Even for such an apparently simple piece of work as drilling a hole in a rock or portion of a wreck the diver will perhaps need to prop himself against a stone or make himself secure by lashings to the object upon which he works.

The great danger against which the diver must be ever on his guard is that of getting his air tube entangled in the debris of a wreck—no difficult matter as he creeps in and out of cabin, engine room and hold, among a broken and distorted mass of wood and iron. He may have been moving in one direction, all unconscious that he is being helped by a strong current, until he presently attempts to turn and finds it vain. It is not the deep sea diver only who runs this risk. Some years since a diver was at work in twenty feet of water repairing some dock gates. His job finished, he gave the signal to the boat above to close the gates that he might see if all worked well. The rush of many tons of water as the heavy gates swung to swept him between and through them. In a flash he realized that his air pipe would be caught between the massive doors and at the same moment saw his only chance for life. He thrust his heavy hammer head between the closing gates, and this kept his pipe free till he could signal for them to be reopened.

The old method of communication between the diver and his helpers at the surface was by means of tugs upon the line, but nowadays the telephone or perhaps a speaking tube accompanies the air pipe at his side. And, though many divers still work in the comparative darkness, both oil and electricity will shed their light upon the scene if need arise.

Sharks are visitors with whom in certain waters the deep sea diver has to count. But the shark is not always so dangerous a morning caller as might be thought. A diver at work in the cabin of a sunken ship saw, to his dismay, a shark swim slowly in. The diver had no suitable weapon of defense at hand, and fight seemed the only chance for life—and a poor one at that. Meanwhile the shark swam to and fro in the cabin as if meditating on a system of attack. The diver made a sudden bolt for the door; the shark—as seriously alarmed, it seemed, as was the man—did the same and, being unincumbered with costume and in his native element, got out an easy first and disappeared.—London Globe.

Might Have Been Effective.

Judge—Prisoner, do you wish to challenge any of the jurymen?

Prisoner—H'm, yes, your honor. I'll fight that fellow on the end there!

KISS MICROBES.

There are microbes in a kiss, sweetheart, is what the savants say.
And yet, despite these microbes, do you think you'd say me nay
If I a kiss should crave of you with microbes or without?
Dost think you would deny me in the winning of love's bout?

Dost think that we should know or care if millions lingered there
Of naughty, hungry microbes? Don't you think that we would dare
Defy the millions one and all and kiss the same old way
As Adam kissed sweet Mother Eve in paradise that day?

The microbes of a kiss, sweetheart, pray what, pray, what, are they?
Of confidence and sweetest love and hope that day by day
These microbes all will stronger grow and flourish as they may
While I kiss you and you kiss me the sweet old-fashioned way.

ATTACKED BY WHALES.

Cases Where Ships Have Been Rammed by These Monsters.

While cruising in the south seas the whaler Essex on Nov. 20, 1820, was furiously attacked by a cow sperm whale, supposed to have been the mother of a calf which had just been harpooned. The whale had not been wounded herself, and her attack was very determined. At her first rush she passed under the Essex and carried away a great length of her false keel. Then, coming to the surface a considerable distance away, she appeared to take bearings and deliberately charged the vessel again, ramming her with such violence that she stove in the bows, while the ship rolled so heavily that the captain thought she must be dismasted. The case is memorable because the crew had to abandon the vessel and one boat was never heard of [illegible].

A more singular instance of a whale attacking a vessel occurred in 1895. The singularity lies in the fact that in the case of the Handa Isle the attack was entirely unprovoked. This vessel, a brigantine of 360 tons, was on her way to Sydney with a cargo of timber. On Aug. 24, about noon, a couple of sperm whales arose very close to the vessel, and while the crew watched them "sporting" across her bows the pair suddenly slewed around and came straight for her. One thought better of it and dived below the Handa Isle. The other struck her fair and square on her beam, crushing in her timbers. Having rammed the ship in this resolute fashion, the whale sheered off, terribly damaged about the head, and presently sank, tail first.

Fortunately there were some packages of rawhides on board, and the crew were able to keep the vessel afloat until a rough and ready collision mat had been fashioned out of these and drawn over the leak.

Asbestus Shingles.

An asbestus shingle roof when properly made will outlast the life of the building itself. The simple exposure to the elements causes the cement covering of the asbestus fiber to crystallize, and it becomes more and more serviceable as time rolls on, steadily toughening and hardening with exposure. The fact that the elements take better care of these shingles than the best paint or dressing does away with this expense.

Being fireproof and not affected by continuous moisture or frost, it is obvious that asbestus shingles and asbestus lumber can be used in a great many places where ordinary lumber has failed.

Reindeers and Wives.

At the meeting of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals some extracts from school children's essays were read. "Feed your horse with horseradish and horse chestnuts if you want your horse to grow," said one child. Another wrote, "If you are very kind indeed to your dog it may even follow you to your grave." A little girl wrote: "The Eskimos are very fond indeed of their reindeer—in fact, they love their reindeer sometimes more than their wives. But, then, they are very useful to them."—London Mail.

Red and White Meats.

An old idea was that red meat might be injurious sometimes when white meat would be harmless. Analyzing raw meats in 1899, Offer and Rosenquist concluded that there was practically no difference, but late analyses of both raw and cooked meats justify Adler in making a distinction. Losing less deleterious extractive in cooking, the red meat may be undesirable in certain maladies, like gout and nephritis.

NIPPING A CAREER.

Young W. S. Gilbert's Brief Military With Charles Kean.

At the early age of fifteen, according to the author of a biography of Sir W. S. Gilbert, the future dramatist showed his theatrical bias to his own undoing.

Enraptured with a splendid performance of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Princess theater, then under the management of Charles Kean, young Gilbert packed up a few clothes in a hand bag and actually succeeded in making an entrance to the theater with a view to going on the stage. Greatly elated at receiving the message that Kean would see him in his room, the boy lost courage when he was face to face with the great actor.

"So you would like to go on the stage?" said Kean.

"Yes, sir," replied Master Gilbert, trembling in every limb.

"What's your name?"

The boy's imagination failed him at a critical moment in his life. "Gilbert," he faltered, seeking refuge in the truth.

"Gilbert, Gilbert!" reiterated Kean, with a sharp glance at the embarrassed boy. "Are you the son of my old friend, William Gilbert?"

"Y-es."

Kean turned to an attendant. "See this young gentleman home," said he.

THE UPPER AIR.

Danger in the Chill That Comes With the Fall of Night.

Few people who visit Denver realise that it is located only a few feet short of a mile above the sea level. At such altitudes the climate is always treacherous. The midday sun may be broiling hot, but after dark the air is soon chilled and one is liable to contract a cold.

Several of the Spanish cities stand upon the crests of tall hills, where such climatic changes occur after nightfall. When, as a boy at the grand opera, I saw Spaniards in "Carmen" or "The Barber of Seville" toss their long cloaks or capes about their faces I assumed that the act was intended to disguise them—to hide their faces. Nothing of the sort. The Spaniard, like the Italian of the Alpine regions, always covers his mouth after sundown to minimise danger to his lungs from the night air.

Curiously the women haven't any fear of the chill that follows the darkness. They may be seen in low cut bodices at all hours of the evening in the cafes, at balls and on the streets. The men, however, are in terror of cold night winds. Pneumonia and tuberculosis carry off a great many victims in Spain and northern Italy.—Julius Chambers in Brooklyn Eagle.

Not a Dead One.

The hour was long past midnight, but the young girl had not yet retired. Moaning, wringing her hands, she walked the room distractedly.

"Oh, father!"

A stately, white haired figure in evening dress had entered.

"Father, speak. Has, Winterbottom Hance killed himself? I heard a commotion without at midnight—a crack as of a revolver, a fall as of a heavy body. I refused Winterbottom early in the evening, and as he staggered from the room, despair writ large upon his pale brow, he swore wildly to take his own life."

The old man's eye gleamed as with some secret joy.

"Refused him, did you?" he chuckled. "Refused Winterbottom, eh? Well, I'm glad you did. He's just cleaned me out of $7 in a poker game at the club."

Legend of Moses.

The story of the cause of Moses' slowness of speech is given in the Talmud and runs as follows: Pharaoh was one day sitting on his throne with Moses on his lap when the child took off the king's crown and put it on his own head. The "wise men" tried to persuade the king that this was treason, for which the child ought to be put to death, but Jethro replied: "It is the act of a child who knows no better. Let two plates be set before him, one containing gold and the other red-hot coals, and you will find he will prefer the latter to the former." The experiment being made, the child snatched up one of the live coals, put it into its mouth and burned its tongue so severely that it was ever after "heavy and slow of speech."

Bee Economics.

The organization of bee life is a fascinating study. The workers in a beehive may be divided, says the University Correspondent, into (1) harvesters, who bring in honey and pollen from flowers, wax from buds of pines and poplars, water to mix with pollen and honey to make the pasty food for the larvae; (2) scavengers, who in early morning carry out debris, including dead, sick or injured workers; (3) ventilators, who stand erect and keep their wings in continual movement in order to ventilate the hive; (4) guards, who defend the hive from wasps, robber bees and other enemies.

LARGEST HOUSE IN ENGLAND.

Guest Had to Drop Trail of Waters to Find Way From Room.

Wentworth-Woodhouse, Yorkshire, England, where the Earl and Countess Fitzwilliam recently entertained a big party, has the reputation of being the biggest private house in England. But its real interest lies in the fact that the kernel, so to speak, of the present stately mansion—the centre round which it was built — was once the beloved home of the ill-fated Earl of Stratford from whose grandson, the last Marquis of Rockingham, it passed to William, Earl Fitzwilliam, over a hundred years ago. Rumor has it that the late Lord Stratford still visits his old home, his ghost walking downstairs every Friday night bearing his head in its arms. Some idea of the size of Wentworth-Woodhouse may be gained by an old story told of a visit paid there by Baron von Liebig. When retiring to rest for the night he was solemnly handed a packet of wafers by a servant in order that he should, by dropping them in a continuous line from the smoking-room to his bedroom, be able to find his way back against next morning. Lord Fitzwilliam had the opportunity afforded him some years ago of reading his own obituary notice. When he was Lord Milton several papers announced that he had been killed in a hunting accident. To mark the rare event a waggish friend sent Lord Milton a copy of Milton's "Paradise Lost!" The same friend later on made amends by sending a copy of "Paradise Regained." This was when he married Lady Maud Dundas, which was really a pretty compliment to the bride. Before being called to his seat in the House of Lords, Earl Fitzwilliam had several years' experience of the Commons. His family had long been associated with the affairs of the nation. The fifth earl was the first nobleman to give his adhesion to the Anti-Corn Law League, and, it is said, an earlier member of the House spent £100,000 to win a Yorkshire seat.

CENTENARIANS ALL.

Veteran Claimants For Pensions in Donegal Break Age Records.

During the investigations in Donegal in connection with the old-age pensions some remarkable cases of longevity have come to light, including three centenarians. The age of a man, apparently hale and hearty, named Bryan O'Donnell, residing in the townland of Tower, parish of Inver, a tenant on the Sinclair estate, was given at over 108 years. He was able, it is stated, to attend his religious duties at Frosses Chapel last Easter. He has never uttered a word of English during his long life, nor can he understand it, but he speaks Erse fluently. The old man still wears buckled shoes, long, coarse, knitted stockings, with corduroy knee-breeches, and the old swallow-tailed blue cloth coat, and a waistcoat with brass buttons.

Mr. Henry McCaffley, clerk to the Old-Age Pension Committee, came across a man named Charles Kelly, residing in Burbane, Inver parish, who claims to be 111 year sold, and John McGinty, of Townawilly, Donegal parish, who had reached the great age of 106 years. They all appear strong, both mentally and physically, considering their advanced age.

Amongst the applicants at Carrick-on-Shannon for an old-age pension form was a man named Pat Reynolds, of the Cootehall district, who has attained the patriachal age of 109. He is hale and hearty, and in full possession of all his faculties.

Dignity Badly Ruffled.

When the recently discovered baronet, Cave-Browne-Cave, first came to Canada, a good many stories were told about the persistent manner in which he insisted upon being addressed by his full name. That was before he had the corners rubbed off his dignity by roughing it in the new world. He sat one night at dinner in a boarding-house in Montreal next to an Englishman named Leonard Holme, an old Cantab.

When the joints came on the table the landlady, who did the carving, said: "Beef or mutton, Mr. Cave?" The future baronet in his most freezing manner replied, "I beg your pardon, madam; my name is Cave-Brown-Cave, if you please."

Willing to oblige her guests, the landlady asked if Mr. Cave-Browne-Cave would take beef or mutton. He accepted the beef.

Then she turned to the next guest and said "Beef or mutton, Mr. Holme?"

Without a smile the Cambridge man gravely replied: "I beg your pardon, madam; my name is Holme, Sweet Holme." This drew a roar from the Englishmen at the table and cost Holme the friendship of Cave-Browne-Cave from that time forth.

Was Not Seeking a Berth.

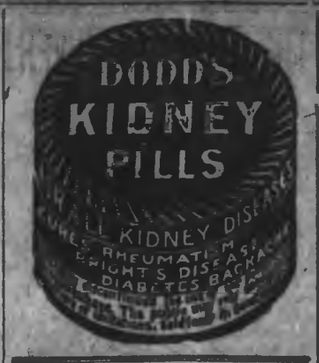
An amusing story is told concerning Lord Rosse, who has just died. His lordship possessed considerable engineering skill and knowledge, and before he succeeded to the peerage he once visited some engineering works, dressed very much as an engineer would be. The foreman of the works got the impression that his visitor was an engineer out of a berth. Meeting him a little later in Westminster, with his father, conversation about the visit to the works was resumed, and the foreman observed that he knew a berth that might suit him. "What do you say?" said the future earl, turning to his father, who replied that if his son could be spared from his other duties he saw no objection. "What other duties?" asked the surprised foreman. Explanations followed, and the foreman learned that his friend was not a practical engineer out of work, but the next heir to a peerage.

No-Rent Campaign.

Major Dawson having refused to give a reduction of four shillings in the pound to his tenants at Noughaval, County West Meath, Ireland, or to sell his estate to them, the tenants have decided to pay no more rents, but to place them with a trustee.

He Knew.

Teacher—Now, Johnny, what was Washington's farewell address? Johnny—Heaven.—New York Sun.



Like Father Like Son.

Four-year-old Clyde was a precocious youngster—very talkative and a close observer. He and his father were strolling through the meadows one morning when Clyde observed for the first time some tadpoles in a pond. He waded in and cried out, "Oh, father, what are they?"

"Tadpoles, son," the father replied.

"Please, father, let's take them all home with us, then come back and find the mamma and papa, and we'll have the whole family in our pond at home."

The father explained how impossible this would be, and as they walked on a few steps a large, ugly frog hopped across their path. Clyde's father said: "Look, son. Perhaps there is the papa."

Clyde was very thoughtful. He looked at the frog, then at his father, then at himself and exclaimed:

"Well, father, was there ever so much difference between me and you?" —Delineator.

Curious School Customs.

Mexican schoolmasters show their appreciation of a pupil's efforts in a curious manner. The diligent student is allowed to smoke a cigar during the lesson. When the whole class has given satisfaction, permission is given for a general smoke, and even the little Mexicans are allowed to light a cigarette for the occasion. Needless to say, the schoolmaster himself smokes a cigar of a size and quality proportionate to his superior position. But the scholars are not allowed to drink, this privilege being accorded to the master only. On his desk he always keeps a bottle of liquor, which, when empty, occasions much dispute among the parents of his scholars, as it is considered an honor to be able to fill the schoolmaster's bottle.—London Standard.

Cutting It Short.

A British lieutenant in the Second battalion, Lincolnshire regiment, who was called Leo Quintus Tollemache-Tollemache de Orellana Plantagenet Tollemache-Tollemache, gave notice by means of advertisement that he renounced the names of Quintus Tollemache-Tollemache Plantagenet Tollemache and should henceforth upon all occasions and at all times sign and use and be called and known by the name of Leo de Orellana Tollemache only.

Warming a Serpent.

"Down in Bermuda," said a Cincinnatian, "I heard Mark Twain make a speech about snakes to a group of little girls.

"The speech was great. The only trouble was that the little girls could not appreciate it. It flew over their heads.

"I remember the humorist's conclusion.

"'Never warm a serpent in your bosom,' he wound up. 'It is far easier to warm it by placing it under the pillow of an intimate friend.'"

He Was a Negative.

"He said he felt greatly encouraged because you turned the gas down low when he was calling on you."

"Well, he needn't feel encouraged. It takes a dark room to develop a negative, you know."

Advice.

"You wants to look out foh de man dat's always givin' advice," said Uncle Eben. "De chances are dat he's one o' dese folks dat likes to watch experiments while some one else takes all de risk."

Unless the average man is overestimated he feels that he is not appreciated.—Philadelphia Record.

Skin Diseases.

A diseased or disfigured skin will always leave its stamp on the mind of the individual. Many people suffering from disfiguring skin diseases avoid society and lose all pride in their personal appearance. When the skin breaks out in eruptions and sores it is due entirely to an impure condition of the blood.
In all such cases Burdock Blood Bitters will quickly purify the blood and drive all the impurities out of the system.

ITCHING RASH CURED.

Mrs. J. J. Magee, Jr., Kinmount, Ont., writes: "In the spring of 1906 I was troubled with a Rash that broke out all over me. It was the worst on my face and head, had a dry, scaly top, and when I would get warm it would become very itchy. I tried the doctor's medicine but it did me no good, so I then got one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and before it was all used the Rash was entirely gone."

SORES ON FACE.

Mrs. Harvey Barkhouse, Gold River, N.S., writes: "I was greatly troubled with Sores on my face and finally became so bad I had to go to the doctor about it, but he could do nothing to help me.
"I thought about Burdock Blood Bitters and decided to try a bottle. I cannot recommend B.B.B. enough, as I had not taken all the bottle before my face was cured."

SOME WORD ORIGINS.

Hurrah Comes From the Old Battlecry of the Vikings.

Hah, the final syllable of most college yells is, of course, short for hurrah. The word hurrah itself comes from the old battlecry of the ancient vikings—namely, Tur Ale, which means God aid. There is another form, huzza, which comes from hosanna. This was the old cry of the crusaders. The word yes comes directly through the Norman-French oyes, which means hear. In its old form it is still used by beadles and certain municipal officials in civic functions in England and also by the royal heralds in proclaiming the succession of sovereigns to the throne. No is purely Norman-French and comes from the Latin non its, meaning not so. The real Anglo-Saxon was nay, just as the Anglo-Saxon affirmative was yea. The word mister is directly from the Latin magister, meaning master. Mrs. is from the word mistress, and formerly, as late as the eighteenth century, all unmarried women were given the title of mistress—as, for example, Mistress Sophia Western in "Tom Jones." Esquire is derived from the old Norman-French escuyer, which means shield bearer. Every knight of the shire had his shield bearer, and the honor of carrying the shield was supposed to confer gentility upon the follower. The word gentleman until the middle of the seventeenth century meant, as the present French word gentilhomme, a nobleman, nothing less, and no man was a gentleman who was not entitled to "bear arms."

HIS SUNDAY SUIT.

He Was a Good Dresser and Careful With His Things.

"The line which separates those who 'dress for dinner' from those who do not is an invisible crack compared with the yawning gulf that divides those people of London who 'dress themselves of a Sunday' from those who have none but their workaday clothes." So writes a district nurse in "The Next Street but One."

"I had often noticed," said the writer, "that one highly respectable old agricultural laborer wore very much the same clothes at all times, but unfortunately it was not until after his death that I heard of the tragedy that had darkened all the Sundays of his later life and bitterly mortified his wife and daughters.

"'Thirteen year ago his clo'es was stole by a tramp, and us never had no money for to put 'em back. Us did feel it, going to chapel and all. There's a many as would have stopped at home, but he wasn't that sort, the old man wasn't. "It's the garments of our souls as matters," he'd say. But fer all that he was ashamed to wear his week day ones. He couldn't never get used to it.

"'His proper suit was made by an Irish tailor who came over to these parts in a cattle boat and stayed a month or two, earning what he could all roundabout. Twenty-nine years they'd lasted him, and they'd have seen him through to the end. Yes, he was always a good dresser, and pretty careful with his things too.'"

He Was a Warbler.

You could tell from his hair that he was a musician or something of the sort.

"Yes," he said to the company at large, "the greatest tenor in the land once paid me the biggest compliment I could wish."

"Oh?" remarked some one interrogatively.

"It was like this: I sang without accompaniment—I always have trouble with accompanists; they're so unsympathetic, you know—and at the end of the song he said to me:

"'Do you know when you began without an accompanist I was surprised; when I heard you I was astonished, and when you sat down I was delighted!'"

And the sun shone down and lit up the youth's beatific smile of satisfaction.—London Mail.

The Sun's Light.

It has been calculated that the amount of light received from the sun is about 600,000 times that of the moon. The intrinsic brightness of the sun's disk is about 90,000 times that of a candle flame, 150 times that of the limelight and more than four times brighter than the brightest spot in the crater of an electric arc light. The darkest spot on the sun is much brighter than the limelight.

How to Fish.

On many occasions one might imagine the fish saying to the anglers, "Take me while I am in the humor," but they take no notice of it and often attempt the feat when they are not. It is little use trying to catch fish either in the sea or fresh water when they are not in the humor to bite.

Acquitted.

Voltaire, when on his estate of Ferney, was fond of assuming the air of nobility and displayed a most philosophical hatred of poachers. One luckless fellow was caught and brought before him. Voltaire determined to try him according to law and took his seat as judge, directing his secretary to act as counsel for the prisoner. The advocate made a long speech in favor of the culprit and stopped suddenly.

"Why do you hesitate?" asked Voltaire.

"I wish to read a passage from a volume in your library."

He procured the book and silently turned its leaves. Voltaire became impatient and demanded the cause of his silence.

"Well," answered the secretary, "I have been looking for the word 'humanity,' and I see you have omitted it."

Voltaire thought the argument so forcible that he set the murderer free.

A DIFFICULT BATH.

Bathing Time in the Dead Sea and the River Jordan.

It is well known that the waters of the Dead sea are much heavier than those of the ocean. This is due to the great amount of salt held in solution. A few years ago Mr. (now Sir) Gray Hill of England made a trial of swimming in the sea and then in the Jordan to compare the two. He tells the result in his book, "With the Bedouins:"

Many tourists while at Jericho bathe in the Dead sea and the Jordan, and for very shame I could not pass by without doing so. But my experience was peculiar. I had with me one of the Jericho sheiks and one of the muleteers, and we rode first to the Dead sea. Its waters are generally perfectly still and of a splendid blue color, but now, owing to the storm, they were very rough, the waves ran high and for some 200 yards from the shore were of an ugly brown.

I looked askance at it as I undressed, but felt bound to go in. The waves very promptly knocked me down and filled my mouth, nose and eyes with their strong brine. Again I tried and again, picking up one after another of the bare branches of trees which are carried down by the Jordan and washed on to the shores of this strange lake, with which I tried to steady myself as I walked in. But the force of the waves, aided by the great floating power of the water, twisted the branches out of my hands and knocked me down time after time until, feeling that I had done enough for principle, I acknowledged that the victory did not lie on my side and scrambled out, smarting most unpleasantly.

Then we galloped off to the Jordan, where I thought I should succeed better. So I cast about for a suitable place to jump in, for I did not like to crawl in ignominiously at the pilgrims' bathing place, near which we were and which would have been the wisest course to adopt. I wanted to take a header. So, procuring a long stick, I ascended the stream a little and made sure by sounding with it of a deep spot under an overhanging tree.

In I plunged, intending to swim down to the regular bathing place, where I knew there must be a good bottom for getting out. Down I came with the fast flowing yellow flood, striking out in the fullest enjoyment.

But when I was just about to put my foot to the ground I was brought up sharp with a tremendous blow on my right breast. If it had struck me on the heart it would, I think, have killed me on the spot. I had come down on to the end of a stake pointing up stream and driven in to mark the upper boundary of the bathing place, but which was hidden owing to the rains having raised the surface of the river. I had some difficulty in crawling out again and was black and blue in the chest for a month afterward. There is nothing like a little experience to teach one wisdom.

A Matter of Color.

Wanderer (returned after several years)—Well, well, I'm mighty glad to see you. How are you, and how are all the good people?

Stayathome—Oh, we're all right and getting along as well as could be expected.

Wanderer—And how is the Widow Green?

Stayathome—She isn't so Green as she was.

Wanderer—What's the matter? She isn't gray, I hope?

Stayathome—No; she's Brown.

Wanderer—Brown?

Stayathome—Yes; married Samuel J. about five years ago, and she's been the Widow Brown for the last two years.

Wanderer—You don't say?

Stayathome—Yes.

Wanderer—Well, by gosh, if she's willing to change color again, I'll ask here as sure as my name's Black.

Jupiter and Lightning.

Among the ancients, especially the Greeks and Romans, one struck dead by lightning was held in great honor. The supreme deity in the Greek and Roman religions, Zeus or Jupiter, was supposed to be the manipulator of the lightning, and the person struck down by one of the fiery bolts was especially distinguished, inasmuch as he had been felled directly by the king of the gods. The dignity of the killer was reflected upon the killed. In addition to this, the opinion was quite universal that the bodies of those struck by lightning were incorruptible.

DYNAMITE KILLS TEN.

Disastrous Accidents Occur at Dryden and Ingolf.

Kenora, Ont., Nov. 6.—A dynamite explosion, resulting in the death of three men and terrible injuries to another, took place on Tuesday morning at Olsen and Larson's Camp No. 20, on the G.T.P. construction, about twenty-four miles north of Ingolf.

The killed are Nelgan P. Strube, aged 25, a native of Denmark; F. Ellertoum, aged 22, a Norwegian, and Olaf Christianson, aged 26, a Dane. All three were single men. The injured man is Andrew Coleberg, a Dane. His right hand was blown off and he sustained injuries to his head. Two other men received minor injuries from falling rock.

It appears that the men were drilling a hole in the face of the rock cut, and in so doing struck the bare of another hole, which had been exploded a few days before, but in which apparently some dynamite remained. The explosion was terrific. Larson, one of the partners in the firm of Olsen and Larson, was fixing the drill up to a few minutes before the explosion occurred. He had only gone a short distance from the cut.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 6.—Seven laborers were instantly killed on the line of the Transcontinental Railway, 18 miles north of Dryden, Ont., by being buried under tons of rock which were hurled upon them by the premature discharge of a large quantity of dynamite.

Four others were terribly maimed or injured in the same accident.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Water rates in Winnipeg will be reduced twenty-five per cent., it is announced.

Mrs. Delia Thibodeaux is suing her father-in-law, Henry Thibodeaux of Kent County, for $6,000 for alleged slander.

Cyril Rodgerson, a seven-year-old boy, was instantly killed at Brandon by falling off a wagon, the wheel passing over his head.

Ernest Johnston of Carleton, son of John Johnston, employed by the Dalhousie Lumber Co., is dead. A tree which he had been chopping, fell on him.

Miss Ethel Miller of Chesterfield, Ont., and a Colorado doctor were secretly wed and the marriage is perhaps illegal, according to a St. Louis despatch.

The annual survey of the St. Lawrence channel between Montreal and Crane Island, has begun. Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in charge.

Says Son Was Murdered.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 6.—Alex. Martin of Corunna, Ont., is here looking to an investigation of the death of his son, Alfred Martin, whose body was found floating in the St. Clair river three weeks ago after having been in the water for nearly two months.

On the left side of the dead man's head there was a wound, evidently made by some blunt instrument. A theory advanced by Mr. Martin is that the boy was assaulted and the body thrown from a boat into the river.

Glad to See Fleet Go.

Amoy, China, Nov. 6.—The second squadron of the American battleship fleet yesterday morning steamed out of the harbor, bound for Olongapo, Luzon.

The departing warships were given a demonstration in marked contrast to the apathy which was noticeable on their arrival.

The cost of the reception has exceeded $1,000,000. The Chinese Government has been lavish in its gifts to the American officers and men.

CANNOT SHIP WHEAT.

Grain Amounting to Millions of Bushels Tied Up In West.

Edmonton, Nov. 6.—Provincial Inspector C. S. Hotchkiss has been investigating the grain trouble along the Calgary and MacLeod line, and is now reporting to the Government.

He declares that over 4 million bushels of grain are at Claresholme, half a million at Stavely and three-quarters of a million at Granum, awaiting cars. It is alleged that, taking advantage of a technicality in the Manitoba Grain Act giving jurisdiction only over eastbound cars, the company is supplying only 300 cars to the first named and one hundred between the latter points. It is alleged the elevator men and the company are consigning all cars west, although there is a suspicion they are turned and sent east from Calgary.

Indignation meetings are being held and stormy resolutions forwarded to the authorities. Many farmers are hauling to Lethbridge and MacLeod.

Dean Reeve to Resign.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—The resignation of Dr. R. A. Reeve as dean of the medical faculty of Toronto University, is to take place very shortly, according to a report which appears to be well founded. Dr. Reeve has occupied the important office for 12 years, and should he carry out his intention, there will be widespread regret among members of the medical professions.

As to the report that Dr. Charles Clark, superintendent of Toronto Asylum, may be appointed, no verification can be obtained.

It is believed that Dr. Reeve has found himself unable to devote as much time to his duties as he considers their importance warrants, owing to the extent of his private practice. He is one of Canada's foremost eye-specialists.

Scott Loses Point.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 6.—The plea entered by Premier Scott in a case brought against him by H. W. Laird that the court at Regina had not jurisdiction to try the criminal libel charge was thrown out by Judge Johnstone yesterday, the court stating that the Attorney-General's Department had preferred the charge and could lay it anywhere in the province.

Scott had contended that as the alleged offence took place in Moose Jaw Judicial District, it must be tried there. To this the judge could not agree.

Some of the Axioms Given at the Retail Merchants' Banquet Last Night---Addresses by Men Prominent in the Parent Organizations---Merchants of Peterborough Form an Association---The Directors Elect---Credit to Mr. Kingan for Superintending the Banquet.

SOME OF THE BENEFITS TO BE ACQUIRED

MERCHANTISMS.

Keep your money in your home town.

Bear ye one another's burdens.

It is easy to do right and hard to do wrong.

Get at the back of your Fall Fair and boost it.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

W. E. Conway, Alex. Gibson,
J. H. Connel, A. H. Swatten,
R. J. Kingan.
Secretary, - - Wm. Harstone.

If the meeting of the retail merchants at the Hotel National last night is to be taken as a criterion, a new confine opened up for the men behind the counter, who pass the goods along from the wholesaler and producer to the consumer. The fact that they have become a branch of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada and that they will be benifitted not only locally from their organization but from favourable legislation secured by the parent body means considerable to the retail men who have so much with which to contend.

Last night there were present Mr. R. W. Trowern, Toronto, Dominion Secretary of the Merchants' Association and Mr R W Lieman, Preston, Provincial President, both of whom addressed the 150 or more retail merchants assembled in the spacious dining hall of the National.

Before the meeting there were many dubious that any favourable results could ensue from the organization of an association embracing men from every possible business. Their grounds for doubt, however, apparently fled long before the culmination of the able address of Mr. Trowern and when the book was passed around practically every merchant agreed to join. A board of directors was formed and the work of uniting the merchants will fall to their lot, assisted by the Secretary.

A most appetizing feast was served by Host Dennison and at its conclusion Mr. R. J. Kingan, who had been superintending the arrangements for the dinner, announced the speakers of the evening in a brief address. A similar meeting had been held some months ago but no definite course had been decided upon. Mr Kingan then explained the object of uniting the merchants around the festive board and called upon Mr. Lieman to address the assembly.

Live Branch Needed

Mr. Lieman hoped the merchants had come together to organize a good live branch of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada in Peterborough. An experience common to nearly all the branches was that for a time branch associations flourish, but finally interest begins to drop off, until all the members have gone by the board. He was glad the merchants of Peterborough had gotten together to make a fresh start. All were acquainted with some of the results accomplished by the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada.

Retail merchants in the past have been neglecting their business. They should "bear one another's burdens" and there are a great many more burdens resting on their shoulders now than there were a few years ago. The merchants should be made to understand thoroughly that it is easy to do right and hard to do wrong. A great many merchants fail because they do not follow this motto. A spirit that should be particularly manifested among the merchants is that of honesty. Another reason that the merchants should have an association is to become acquainted with one another. Unless merchants come in contact with their competitors they never really understand them. Acquaintance often brings respect. The Retail Merchants' Association was not a combine by any means. The merchants were the mediums through which goods passed from the producer to the consumer. As individuals, little could be accomplished but where there was unity there was strength. In the city to-day he had noticed that a great deal of dust was blowing. Individuals could not with much ease wield an influence with the authorities to see that this nuisance was prohibited but as a body they had strength to express their views emphatically and then only would they be honestly regarded. Merchants, too, who were organized were able to aid unitedly the selection of a municipal body at the municipal elections.

Some of the Advantages

Mr. Trowern was warmly greeted on rising. He had been in the city last May at the merchant's dinner and had taken an interest in the work in Peterborough. He congratulated the chairman who had succeeded in getting so many assembled together to discuss such an important problem.

The Retail Merchants' Associations were organized some 12 years ago, and up to that time the retail merchants were not organized. Since then, however, the association had become a force in the country. The retail man must look after the retail man's business interests, as they are a separate and distinct class. In Peterborough the retail merchants pay 45 per cent. of the taxes and they carry an immense amount of merchandise to be consumed by the people. Last year the merchants alone had paid $46,000,000 in dues to the Dominion Government and during that time there was not one bit of legislation favourable to the retail merchants that was not accomplished by the Retail Merchants Association.

Mr. Trowern very emphatically condemned the business methods of the "co-operative" men. He denounced it as a most vicious fraud. The Co-operative Secretary's Bill was one giving all kinds of people the same rights and privileges as one would receive if his business were a joint stock company. The bill was introduced by Mr. Monk and finally passed the Commons but was thrown out by the narrow majority of one vote.

"They have stolen the livery of heaven to carry the devil in" was Mr. Trowern's figurtive language in referring to the men who had organized it.

The whole co-operative movement was nothing but a fraud. The co-operatives claimed that they would give back 25 cents on every dollar purchase, something impossible to do with profit. No sane man would expect it. The fact was that they added on the 25 per cent. extra on their goods before they offered the 25 cents discount. Mr. Monk who brought in the bill was their president. It had been opposed so strongly by the retail merchants who had exposed the whole fraud, that although it passed the Commons it was thrown out by the Senate.

False Advertising

The Dominion officers had under control some proposed legislation and they wanted to see that false advertising would be made a criminal offence.

"I believe that the first thing the women read on Sunday morning is the advertisements on the back pages of some of those Toronto papers, They wonder why it is that the Peterborough merchants cannot sell as cheaply. But, my dear friends," said the speaker, "don't give those women one cent to indulge in purchases in Toronto stores, who often are represented by false advertisements."

The money should be left at home among local merchants. The women should buy in their home city, where if they do not like the goods purchased they had an opportunity to change them.

Another advantage to be gained from an association was the compilation of names of those who were "bad pay."

"A bad pay list" is one upon which to place purchasers who buy and never want to pay. Their addresses should be sent to the association, and all the poor-pay-people should have their names marked down. Every merchant should have a list. He has often observed that people who had not been accustomed to paying their accounts had been found to do so when threatened with having their names placed on the "bad" list.

Merchants are the men who have to assist the poor people. The very fact that they give credit in times of depression and listen to the plaintive pleas of those who are unable to pay places them in the position of magistrates. They have got to judge.

Cash System Rare

In the present age it is very seldom that a merchant institutes the cash system. Conditions are such that it is more profitable to have the customer who is a steady purchaser in individual articles, either by telephone or messenger.

In referring to one of the hardships the merchant had to contend with, he stated:

"All the bazaars, churches, etc., come to us when they want anything and we hand it out without a murmur." In Toronto, he explained, the merchants have cards placed in their stores which indicate that no donations shall be given to any organization, religious or otherwise, until the matter is placed before the Retail Merchants' Association. Nothing fur-

BELLEVILLE MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES IN A REAR END COLLISION AT BOWMANVILLE

A curve seems to have been responsible for the accident.

FIRST CANADIAN ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE IS NOW BEING COMPLETED AT C. G. E. WORKS

It is not generally known in Peterborough yet it is nevertheless a fact that at the Canadian General Electric Works there is in the course of construction an electrical locomotive—the first that has ever been constructed in Peterborough. The engine was ordered a few months ago to be build for use in a tunnel at Shawinigan Falls, Que., to replace the steam locomotive. The engine is about as large as a street car and is now in the test department being tested. It is of course the first machine of its kind ever built in Peterborough and is said to be the first ever manufactured in the Dominion of Canada. It will probably be completed in the course of a week or ten days and will then be shipped to Shawinigan Falls.

VANDALISM IN VICTORIA PARK; TULIP BEDS WERE DESTROYED

It is difficult to understand how any same person could damage and destroy the tulip beds in Victoria Park as did some vandals a few nights ago. Anyone possessing the slightest sense of common decency would not be guilty of such an act of destruction of public proerty.

Remembering the beauty of the park in spring when the tulip a bud and flower under the influence of the sun's early warmth, when even the trees are only giving promise of their foliage, it is inconceivable how anyone could uproot and trample the beds but a few days after they have been planted, and yet such is the case. The usual number of beds were planted and new wire fencing of pretty design was placed around them as protection against dogs. A few mornings after two of the beds were found in a pitiable state. One had been trampled and holes kicked in it, the other was minus the bulbs apparently having been dug up. Of course this is strong encouragement to the Horticultural Society who are catering to the aesthetic tastes of the citizens of Peterborough and were it not for the fact that they understand that hoodlums who would be guilty of an act of this kind are in the grand minority there would be little use in continuing their care of the park. It was suggested last night that if the public would show their interest in the appearance of the ark there would less paper carelessly strewn about, the grass would be untrodden and the flowers unplucked.

LAYMEN OF PETERBOROUGH TO HOLD BANQUET NEXT FRIDAY

The delegates who attended the Laymen's Missionary Movement conference in Toronto at the beginning of the week are back inoculated with renewed vigour for the advancement of this cause, which has now apparently become a national one. Those who are the energetic workers in connection with the work here are arranging for a laymen's banquet to be held next Friday night. The delegates from the different city churches, who attended the Toronto Conference, have the details in hand and are arranging with some of the best Toronto speakers to be present in order that the issues of the movement may be presented to the laymen of the Peterborough churches intelligently. Mr Campbell White, the secretary of the national movement, who has travelled from Vancouver on the Pacific coast to Cape Breton on the Atlantic, affirms that the movement has taken such a hold on the men everywhere that it must be regarded as a national issue.

Complete details of the banquet will be published later.

DESTRUCTION OF CENTRAL PARK HOSE; MORE "BAD" ACTS OF HOODLUMS

Another of the complaints which the caretaker of Victoria and Central Parks has to make is that in the summer they are continually losing hose through hoodlums, hooligans or whatever name will most appropriately fit them, cutting it with knives, or bending it until it breaks, also pulling it off the pipe thereby allowing the water to flood the ground around the pipe, making a hole in the grass. There are a few of the expressions of appreciation of the park and the pleasure it affords shown by some individuals who are the very persons who are making it necessary to have police protection advocated by the Horticultural Society.

WARM WORDS OF PRAISE FOR A PETERBOROUGH MINISTER

The Orangeville Banner in referring to the visit of the Rev Dr Langfeldt to Orangeville last Sunday whens he preached Harvest Festival sermons in St. Mark's Church says in part—

The annual harvest home services of St. Mark's Church were held on Sunday last. There was an early celebration of the holy communion at eight o'clock, which was largely attended. At the morning service the church was crowded with worshippers, and in the evening it was necessary to place chairs in the aisles to accommodate the large congregation. The special service for children at 3 p.m. also attracted great numbers. The preacher for the day was Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, of Peterborough. The reverend gentleman is a unique personality, and has had a romantic career. He was born in Germany and after service in the army as required of all German youths, he saw something of the world, travelling extensively with his uncle and finally settling in Toronto, where he made influential friends, acquired a liberal education and studied for the Anglican ministry, which he now so greatly adorns. Dr. Langfeldt is gifted with a fine sonorous voice, an excellent appreciation of the dignity of his calling, a graceful presence and a convincing earnestness of manner which at once impresses his hearers.

INSPECTED THE CADETS

Lieut.-Col. Hemming Pays Tribute to Collegiate Institute Cadets on Their Showing---Officers Conducted Manoeuvres With Skill and Precision.

WERE 167 OFFICERS AND MEN

The annual inspection of the Collegiate Institute Cadet Corps was held this morning at Riverside Park, Lieut.-Col. Hemming, of Kingston, being the inspecting officer. There were four companies, forming a half battalion, and Principal Kenner's boys won fresh honours by their fine showing, in spite of the muddy going, caused by the light fall of snow. The cadets were 167 strong, including practically all the boys of the school. The officers were as follows:

Major, Harry Hall.
Adjt., Max Dobbin.
Co. No. 1.—Capt., M. O'Brien; 1st Lieut., B. Clegg; 2nd Lieut., H. Wallis.
Co. No. 2.—Capt., A. Roseboro; 1st Lieut., D. Denham; 2nd Lieut., H. Johnston.
Co. No. 3.—Capt., S. Anderson; 1st Lieut., J. Brightman; 2nd Lieut., P. Hooper.
Co. No. 4.—Capt., H. Brown; 1st Lieut., A. Primeau; 2nd Lieut., H. Matthews.

The order of inspection was as follows:

Battalion drill, company drill, manual training, firing exercises, skirmishing, concluding with the march past.

Afterwards the cadets were formed up in front of the grand stand and were addressed by Col. Hemming. He paid them a fine compliment, referring particularly to the splendid work of Major Hall and the officers of the various companies. It was a pleasure to see the smaller boys of No. 4 Company showing the same skill and precision as those of the other companies.

There was an interested gathering to witness the inspection, the members of the staff of the Collegiate and nearly all the girls being present, as well as Lieut.-Col. Miller, Major Hayes, Major Young, Lieut. Hodgson, Lieut. Merritt and Mr. Adams have raised the cadet corps to a degree of proficiency that was deserving of the compliments of the commanding officer.

Pipes will be laid for watering this section and the work will be commenced next spring. The society will endeavour to arrange with the council to have the band concerts in Central Park.

RESOLUTION REGARDING THE PROPOSED BAPTIST UNION

Rev. J. B. Webb, who has been in Ottawa the past week attending the Baptist Convention, arrived home this morning. Among the most important of the business transactions was the resolution regarding the proposed formation of a Baptists' Union. The resolution was as follows:

"WHEREAS, this Convention has given two full days to the discussion of the desirability and the practicability of a Union of all the Baptist Churches of Canada under one organization to be known as 'The Baptist Union of Canada,' and

"WHEREAS, we have also discussed a basis of representation and the question of the particular denominational interests which shall form part of the work of the proposed union, and

"WHEREAS, we have arrived at a large degree of unanimity upon the aforesaid topics;

"THEREFORE, be it resolved:—

"That we affirm our conviction of the practicability and desirability of such a Union.

"That we believe such a Union would be in the best interests of the Kingdom of Christ, as represented in the Baptist denomination in Canada, and would contribute to a speedy and satisfactory solution of many of the great and important problems which are before us as Baptist citizens of the Dominion of Canada.

"That we express our hearty approval of the proposed constitution recommended by this Convention, and the propositions made to this Convention by the Committee representing the various interests which have been considered.

"That we recommend that a Convention be called during the Autumn of the year 1909, upon the basis of representation decided upon by this Convention, to consider the reports of such bodies and, if found advisable, to organize the Baptist Union of Canada — such Convention to be called at such time and place as may be decided upon by the aforesaid Committee."

PAID TRIBUTE TO MEN OF ST. PETER'S IN CONCLUDING SERMON OF RETREAT

Those who attended the concluding service of the special retreat for men which has been conducted at St. Peter's Cathedral since Sunday last, will not soon forget the splendid sermon which Rev. Father Deegan, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., delivered last night. He is a missionary of the Lazarist Fathers, and journeys throughout America on special retreat work. It was admitted by many that last night's sermon was perhaps the grandest that has ever been heard at the Cathedral. The congregation was composed entirely of men and almost filled the church. Father Deegan possesses a most imposing bearing, suggestive of power and strength, and this, combined with beautiful thoughts eloquently expressed, resulted in a sermon of indelible impression. He spoke first on the keeping holy the Sabbath, emphasizing the necessity of assisting at one of the masses every Sunday. His picture also of love, the love of father for son, mother for child and finally God for mankind, was conveyed by beautiful similes. The last advice was that to keep free from sin—the necessities are prayer and the sacraments.

Rev. Father Deegan said in parting that he had preached many retreats in many parts of Canada and the United States, but none had been such an encouragement as that in Peterborough. He remarked that this was no flattery, nor did he wish to say anything which might give rise to a feeling of pride, but he would always remember the manner in which the men attended the early masses at 5 a.m. 7 a.m., and again assisted at the evening service. Their conduct was an inspiration and an encouragement to him as they, as a congregation, had shown a spirit which he would never forget. It was an impetus to him while here and in other fields he would remember Peterborough men in his prayers and asked for the same remembrance.

Rev. Father Deegan left this morning via C. P. R., for a new field of work, beginning on Sunday next.

CLERGYMEN AT THE INDUCTION SERVICE AT ALL SAINT'S CHURCH

To-night at the All Saints' church Rev. H R Trumpour, the recently appointed rector will be inducted, the service to begin at 8.15 o'clock. Venerable Archdeacon Warren, of Toronto, will be present to perform the induction service. Principal O'Meara of Wycliffe College, will preach the sermon and Rev. Dr. Langfeldt and Rev. MR. BLODGETT TELLS OF BILLIARD STREET FIRE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your issue of Thursday last there appeared an account of a fire on Billiard street. It is stated that the firemen while unable to save the burning building, did, by heroic efforts save the adjoining premises. Now, I wish to say that I live in the adjoining building and that the firemen not only did not help to protect it, but refused to do so, and further that they refused to assist in removing a pile of valuable wood which was burned up and might have been saved had they given the assistance which the owner asked for. I have to thank Mr. Healey and the Messrs. Jones for the assistance which they gave my building and not the brigade. In addition the men claimed that they did not have enough hose to reach the next hydrant, while the fact is that the hydrant is about two and a half blocks away and could easily have been reached had they brought the proper amount of hose with them. I am quite willing to give the brigade credit wherever due, but I do not believe in the present practice of boosting the new brigade by praising them when they should be severely blamed.

Yours truly,
JUNIUS BLODGETT.

PLAIN, SIMPLE INFORMATION DEMANDED.

How much of unsatisfactory political or civic administration arises from indifference of the electorate is an interesting question; how much the lack of popular information contributes to this indifference is another interesting question, and these questions involve another and that is as to the best form of presenting information that will be accepted and assimilated by the body of the electorate at large. The "blue books" that contain the records of parliament, in the matter of legislation and administration are as likely to be studied and understood by the people as the Differential Calculus. Even the modest Auditors' Report presented as the sum total of municipal accounting and as a discharge of a council's responsibility to the ratepayers, is as Greek to the average ratepayer. What is wanted in both cases is something in more popular form, something so simple as to be "understanded of the people."

Cognate to these considerations is the special civic audit of the City of Toronto recently published which suggests the advisability of providing an uniform system of municipal accounting. This matter came before the eighth annual convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities held in July last at Montreal and during the discussion an address was delivered by Mr. S Morley Wickett strongly advocating municipal publicity through uniformity in the method of presenting the municipal accounts. In the course of his address Mr. Wickett noted the advances made by other countries in this direction. In England, for example, uniformity is largely attained through the supervision exercised by the local government board, a government department which "has large powers of audit and publishes detailed analyses of financial returns for over 34,000 local authorities of various kinds in England and Wales." Even more exact and elaborate is the system in vogue in Germany. Each large German town has a special statistical office under a trained official and there officials meet in yearly convention and cooperate in the preparation of a year book containing "complete information on industrial, sanitary, vital, financial and other municipal conditions worked out comparatively and with percentage figures." Much has also been done in this direction in the United States where the commissioner of labour now compiles an abstract of statistics of cities over 30,000 in population. Commenting upon this the Toronto World says:

"No one who considers the question will doubt the propriety and advantage of giving the fullest possible information regarding the numerous phases of civic life and accounts, and that in a form intelligible to the ordinary citizen. As Mr. Wickett rightly points out his object is not attained by the mere presentation of the various incomes and expenditures unaccompanied by analysis showing the exact cost of each department of every separate branch of the administration. He quotes as an example of classification of municipal revenues and expenditures the outline proposed by Professor Rowe, in which the National Municipal League has been working in its accounting reform movement. It aims to show the actual cost of each branch of work and as a valuable adjunct it enables a comparison to be instituted among the municipalities of the same class. Accounting of this kind is evidently of the utmost importance in disclosing whether due regard is had had to economy and whether sufficient vigilance is being exercised in the conduct of the city's business. Further support is given the proposal for a uniform municipal accounting by the fact that systems of similar nature have been adopted by many large corporations in the United States and are in force here as regards banks, insurance companies and street railways. It is understood that before long the provincial government will be approached and asked to promulgate an official scheme for Ontario municipalities. This is in accordance with the resolution unanimously adopted by the Union of Canadian Municipalities and a sub-committee of the executive has since had in hand the preparation of a suggested system. Our city council should give the proposal favourable consideration, as it is one certainly making for the efficiency of municipal government and is further calculated to stimulate the interest of the citizens in the management of their communal affairs."

Herein is much subject for thought. The point is emphasized that the ratepayers are entitled to the fullest information, presented in the most simple form; in a form that will diffuse a general knowledge of the general trend, as well as details of civic administration. If the people understood these matters better they would take more interest in civic affairs. Aldermen should welcome such an interest, for as things now go their best efforts are unappreciated, simply, in many cases, because the people do not know or understand and cannot appreciate what has been done, and cannot, therefore, evidently intelligently approve or disapprove. They are, therefore, led to poll their votes on general issues or purely personal considerations, not proper materials for orecting the best representation. On the principle that the people are entitled to full information the Examiner has advocated the publication in detail of the Assessment Roll. This is an illustration of what might be done in the way of placing in the people's hands, information in regard to all civic affairs, in a simple, intelligent form. The people of a municipality are placed at a disadvantage as compared with the Parliament of Canada which has its ponderous caves of the winds, Hansard, to supply information of parliamentary proceedings. Here we have no record of the proceedings of the council in a popular form, except the reports of the newspapers, evidently incapable of being preserved as permanent and convenient records. We have a capable city clerk. He might be delegated to compile a succinct record of council proceedings, full enough to be popularly informing and still succinct enough not to be cumbersome. If this were printed and distributed in advance of the annual elections the electors would be in a position to know more clearly what they were voting about.

EDITORIAL NOTES

President-elect Taft, for the last fifteen years, has occupied a summer cottage at Murray Bay, Que. He will occupy it no more. By what seems to be an absurd law the president of the United States is not permitted to go outside the bounds of the country during his term of office. A man must be fond of office to forego so much good fishing for the sake of his "sit."

Greatness carries higher penalties in Canada than in the United States. Sir Wilfrid Laurier can enjoy his triumph in peace. If, as happened a day or two ago, he takes a cold in the head he can soak his feet in hot water and sip his bonesot tea, none daring to molest or make him afraid. President-elect Taft, on the other hand, is in the grasp of the yellow journals. He has only one wife and three children to be photographed and done in yellow and scarlet in the Sunday papers, but what he eats, what he drinks, what he smokes, what he chews, what he thinks, what he speaks will be exploited and laid bare to the admiring gaze of his eighty millions of subjects. Mr. Taft will earn his salary.

President Hobson of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, argues in favour of protection as a means of building up a home market. Population and development furnish better material. Opening up new areas to settlement by means of railways in the great west, in Ontario and Quebec, and filling them with population, are the rational ways of increasing our home market. A protective tariff "as high as the clouds," wouldn't force the people to buy more than they want to buy. One can't have a market without buyers.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' BANQUET LAST NIGHT

ther is ever heard of their solicitations.

In connection with the half holiday question, Mr. Trowern asked, "Are you running your stores, or are your clerks?" The retail merchants are running the shops and they should tell their clerks and labourers that such is the case. Unless merchants are organized this is found to be impossible.

Trouble is also experienced in connection with insurance policies and unless they are correctly drawn up merchants often have difficulty in getting settlements. The Merchants' Association looks after this department through its secretary. Mr. Trowern advised the use of the cash register and pointed out its benefits and he also advised the merchants to look after the people who stand on the opposite side of the counter.

"There are women" he said, "bargain hunters, who one day are seen taking up a collection for a poor fund and next day are found looking for bargains and not always telling the the exact truth.

A good Fall Fair

It the merchants want to have a fall fair, they should have a good one. They should get at the back of the exhibition and let everybody shout for its success. Then Peterborough would have a "bummer" of an exhibition.

He wanted to see a Merchants' Association formed in Peterborough. It was necessary to have a working secretary and a good executive. The retail merchants were doing just as important work as the clergy. The organization has nothing to hide. It wanted to assist its members in every possible manner. The membership fee was five dollars per year and every merchant was wanted. Once the city organization was placed on a working basis the county merchants should be solicited to band together.

Directors Elected

Mr Keegan gave an interesting talk on benefits of forming an association from a local standpoint and explained the work of the board of directors and secretary which were then elected. The secretary is Mr. W. Harstone and the directors Messrs. W E Conway, Alex Gibson, J H Cosnal, A B Stratton and R J Kingan.

Other speakers

Rev. Canon Davidson was pleased to have heard the sentiments expressed—honesty and good fellowship—by the speakers of the evening. He could speak on behalf of other clergymen who would stand shoulder to shoulder in co-operating with the merchants in the carrying out their daily business as honest men. The more the ministers aid in teaching the people to stand by Peterborough and lend their assistance in building up Peterborough by purchasing from Peterborough merchants the greater will be the prosperity and morality of the community.

Mr Harstone, the newly elected secretary, gave a brief address referring to the work accomplished by the executive. He had not a plain idea of what was necessary to be done as secretary but with the co-operation of the merchants, so many of whom were present, he believed that the Peterborough Association would be one of the best in the province.

Mayor Bush spoke as an old retail merchant of Peterborough. He congratulated Peterborough on having a branch of the Merchants' Association and advised every merchant in the city to join and share in its benefits.

Mr. Robt. Fair said that there was a new life opening out for Peterborough merchants and that they, with the organization of the Association, would now be in a position to look after self-preservation.

Mr. T F Matthews spoke from the standpoint of the retailer as well as of the wholesaler and in a brief but effective address referred to the benefits that were in store for the merchants with the formation of such an organization.

An opportunity was then given any present to ask questions and with some explanations, the interesting gathering was brought to a close.

BEWARE OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Says 'Lame Back and Urinary Trouble Are The Danger Signals.

TAKE CARE OF BACKACHE

More people succumb every year to some form of kidney trouble than any other cause. The slightest form of kidney derangement often develops into Bright's kidney disease, diabetes or dropsy. When either of these diseases are suspected the sufferer should at once seek the best medical attention possible. Consult only a good, first class physician.

There are many of the lesser symptoms of kidney trouble which can be treated at home is stated by a well known authority. For some of these, such as backache, pain in the region of the kidneys, weak bladder, frequency (especially at night) painful scalding and other urinary troubles, try the following simple home remedy: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple ingredients are harmless and can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy, and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

There is no more effective remedy known to relieve all forms of rheumatism, because it acts directly upon the kidneys and blood. It cleans the clogged up pores in the kidneys so they can filter and strain from the blood the poisonous uric acid and waste matter which if not eliminated remain in the blood, decompose and settle about the joints and muscular tissues causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

Backache is nature's signal notifying the sufferer that the kidneys are not acting properly. "Take care of your kidneys," is now the physician's advice to his patients.

Sir,—At the banquet to Lord Milner in Toronto, Col. Denison declared "that Great Britain was sapping her strength by offering the rest of the world free markets," and made other statements against free trade. With a foreign trade of considerably over 1,000 millions sterling, England is prosperous beyond comparison. Never in the history of the world has a nation been so wealthy. Of course, there is poverty, because of bad government in education and legislation.

"LIVING PICTURE ARTIST" SAYS DAY OF CORSET IS NEARLY DONE

Monsieur Jean Marcel Quitted the Easel to Devote His Art to Making Flesh and Blood Pictures---And Money---- Discusses Women and Inventions of Satan.

"I give women just about ten years more to be wearing corsets—fifteen years at the outside—then they will abandon those monstrous inventions of Satan and allow their figures to develop the beauty with which the Almighty endowed them." said Jean Marcel, whose beautiful living pictures and bas reliefs were the star attraction at the Temple Theatre last week.

Monsieur is French of the French; moreover he is an artist. The combination makes for some of the pictures we see in books and drawings. His gestures, his mustache the big green jade on his taperings little finger, the loose black bow tie under his rounded sensitive chin—all are French and all are indicative of the artist. Not a syllable of English escapes Monsieur's lips except, when driven to desperation by the blank look that meets his voluble flow, he flutters timidly, deliciously, on the outskirts of some harsh Anglo-Saxon word that is like a lash to his artistic soul.

Not long ago Jean worked up in his atelier in Paris, painting beautiful pictures, but the wanderlust crept into his being and he longed to see all the world. Besides, he wanted to make a lot of money and make it quickly and one night in an hour of inspiration he thought of reproducing the works of the great masters with flesh and blood beings.

"You see this experience has given me opportunity to see a great deal of the world," Monsieur continued. "I think this thing of comparing the beauty of women of different nations is not quite right, because, you see, there are so many different types and it depends upon what you love most whether it is the French woman, the Italian, or the American. Of course, you might not say there is no such thing as an American type, because here all others are mingled. But there's no use denying that here women are lovely. I tell you why men love women. They like to look at a lovely woman because she has verve 'esprit, it is because the blood flows fast in her veins and she has gaiety, animation, vivacity. All that is what men love. They don't love statues. They like to look at them in museums—ai, oui, but they don't want to love them. Perfection of form, beauty of feature, exquisite colouring—they are not alluring—but the thing we love most in women is life, animation and heart. Ah.. oui, oui, then we love. Without it, non."

SCALDED BY BOILING FAT

Couldn't Use Hand For a Month— Zam-Buk Gave Instant Relief.

An accident in a Toronto home might have had very serious consequences had it not been for Zam-Buk. Miss Martha Green, of 9 Clarendon street, in taking a pan of boiling fat from the oven spilt it over her right hand. "The boiling fat ran into the palm of my hand," she says, "and over all my fingers. I was almost wild with the pain. The hand became swollen, and large blisters formed all over the palm and along the fingers. For over a month I was unable to use the hand at all. I tried several kinds of salves and liniments, but the wound seemed apparently no better. It was altogether too severe for these preparations to heal.

About this time I was advised to try Zam-Buk. I stopped using all Zother preparations and applied it instead. The very first application soothed may hand and seemed to draw out the fire and inflammation; and as I kept on using Zam-Buk the blisters gradually dried up and disappeared. In a very short time the scald was healed completely."

This is but one instance of the uses to which Zam-Buk can be so advantageously applied. It is equally effective for cuts, burns, bruises, abrasions, sprains and stiffness. It also cures eczema, ulcers, sores, blood poisoning, ringworm, scalp sores, chronic wounds, blackheads, pimples, cold sores, chapped hands, and all skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well on to the chest, in cases of cold, it relieves the aching and tightness, and applied as an embrocation it cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for receipt of price. 3 boxes for $1.25.

CHEESE PRICES ON THE LINDSAY BOARD

At the Lindsay Cheese Board meeting held yesterday the buyers were allowed half a pound per box for shrinkage. The best price paid for cheese was 12 1-8 cents, Mr. A Heavin of Dunsford, getting first choice at that price. Mr. Wiavelle secured the balance at the same figure. Mr. G A Gilhespie was also present.

YOUNG SAAL'S BRAVERY TO BE RECOGNIZED

Efforts are being made to have the bravery of Jesse Asiriss, Lansdowne street, recognized in a fitting manner. The young man has distinguished himself on no less than three different occasions by saving lives when people were in danger of drowning. Last winter he saved a boy who had fallen through the ice and during the past summer, clad in heavy clothing he plunged into the river and rescued a young boy who was going down for the last time. The Royal Humane Society has been approached in the matter and it is altogether probable that his bravery will receive recognition.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITIONS

—All cities over the Province are preparing for their exhibition, and Peterborough is no exception to the rule. It is the time we meet our old and new friends, and those who are not our friends. It is also the best time for the introduction of the newest and smartest suits in fall suits and where they can be shown to the greatest advantage. The New York Ladies' Tailoring establishment have removed their parlours and workshop from 359 George street to 357 Reid street, opposite St. Peter's Cathedral, for the better accommodation of their patrons, and are prepared to take orders in any line of ladies' garments. HOCKEY.

Lindsay, Nov. 6.—Lindsay will have a nominee for the O.H.A. Executive this year. Dick Butler, a local sporting man and the manager of the intermediate team last year, has been mentioned. The local sports think it is about time that Lindsay had a representative on the Executive of the Association.

RUGBY

There will be no junior City League game to-morrow. The Rough Riders and T.A.S.A.C. juniors were to have played, but after the weather conditions to-day were considered it was called off by mutual consent.

• • • •

The Collegiate Institute Rugby team journey to Port Hope to-morrow to stack up against the Trinity College School team.

BASKETBALL.

To-night at the Y.M.C.A. there will be two interesting basket ball games that should attract a big crowd The speedy Brownies, who go on tour next week, will clash with the Maple Leafs, and a great battle will be the result, as both teams are in good shape. Bess Dobbin, of Toronto, will play for the Maple Leafs, who are going to make a big effort to trim the Crack Brownies.

WALKING

There promises to be a big crowd at the Brock Street Rink on Monday, when Hoagland and Harrison hook up in a nine hour handicap walking race that should be just about the best that has ever been pulled off here. Hoagland is fit as was shown by his great work at the roller rink last night, while Harrison has been working hard to get in shape and this no doubt about the result. The race is due to commence at two o'clock sharp and will continue until eight o'clock.

ATHLETICS

Fred Meadows, of Guelph, in a letter to Secretary Crow of the C.A.A.U., has contessed that he was the ringer who ran at Quebec under the name of W Reland. Meadows has been suspended and it will be a long time before he is permitted to run as an amateur.

Most Profitable Age Of Hens; Professor Dryden Gives Opinion

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Prof. James Dryden, who is a Canadian boy, and a recognized authority in poultry, now at the Oregon Agricultural College, says: It is a point in management that I wish to speak of here, one point in fancy that must be taken into account if poultry keeping is to be profit a success. It is a question of the most profitable age of the hen. Poultrymen who have kept in touch with poultry investigations during the past few years are pretty well informed on this point but the importance of this subject is not yet generally appreciated.

The writer carried on for several years at the Utah experiment station a line of experiments with the object of determining the value of the hen at different ages for egg production. The same hens were kept year after year under similar conditions, and a record kept of production and of food consumed. These experiments proved that the hen is different from the cow, which retains or improves her productivity with age. The first year was the most profitable and there was a gradual decrease in productiveness each succeeding year. It is safe to figure this decrease at 25 per cent. each year. With average price for feed and for eggs it is not profitable to keep hens after they have finished their second year of laying. The first, or pullet year is very profitable; the second will give a satisfactory profit, but during the third year the egg yield will seldom pay for the feed consumed.

These conclusions, of course, apply only when the eggs are sold at market prices. Fowls that have a special value as breeding stock should be kept longer, but the notion that "the old speckled hen" is the good layer should not be cherished unless she is caught in the trap nest. The fact that she sings a joyful lay, paints her comb a brilliant red, and scratches a vigorous scratch, should not be accepted as sufficient grounds for commuting the sentence.

It is safe to say that our poultry keepers would be many thousands of dollars in the pocket by righteously killing off the hens every two years and replacing them with new stock,—with the exceptions noted above.—F. C. H.

Stable Treatment Of Cattle; Proper Housing And Interior Accommodation To Be Considered

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Now that cattle must all be brought into the barns, a few words as to early stable treatment may not be amiss. Well started is half wintered. Such a statement may be considered too sweeping, but the writer is of the opinion that cattle properly prepared for winter, properly placed in the stable and properly fed during the first two or three weeks, have an infinitely better chance of coming through in good shape, than have similar cattle, under similar conditions where badly started off.

The proper housing is probably the first consideration. It is not proposed that every farmer with rather faulty stable accommodation, should at once proceed to build a new stable, or remodel the old one. On the contrary the spending of money on improvements before the same are necessary is not an uncommon way of losing money on the farm. Certain minor improvements may, however, be made at very small cost as to money and time, and will repay the outlay in economizing feed, and improving condition of cattle in a very short time.

Is the stable airy? Is there any way of ventilating? If not the loss on this account will be very great and indeed incalculable, should disease get into the herd. Some simple, temporary system of ventilation could be installed by a handy man in a day or two; why not do it right now, and save feed, improve health and increase comfort of stock all winter and for winters to come.

LIGHT IN THE STABLE

Have you light enough? Can you see to work even during the dark days in the fall, in all parts of your stable? Do you like to work in your cow barn and do you feel cheerful when working therein? If not, then get some more light into the stable. Put a window in wherever possible on the south, east and west sides of the barn, and let them be good big windows. The cost will be small, the value to your cattle, to your family, to your men and to yourself will be far beyond your highest expectation. Put windows wherever possible.

Is your stable clean? Is it bright? Take a day and give it a thorough cleaning. Leave not a single cobweb or particle of dust on ceiling, wall or floor. That done, just look it over and see if a coat of whitewash would not be worth its cost and more, just for appearances, to say nothing of healthfulness, brightness and sweetness. A few bushels of lime properly prepared and carefully applied in the fall, leaves its mark and shows its effects all winter. Do it right now. Because the cattle are already in the barn is no excuse for postponement. Let a few of them out while the whitewashing is going on.

Your cattle in the barn, the next thing to consider is their health, freedom from parasites, vermin and condition of the coat and hide. Not infrequently the mixture of dry and green grass, so commonly eaten by cattle in the fall, affects the digestive organs injuriously and cattle, young stuff especially, enter the stable with digestion somewhat upset. A few heavy feeds of turnips and clover hay will usually set things right. In the more severe cases a good heavy dose of Epsom salts would likely help improve matters.

GETTING RID OF LICE

One of the most common causes of lack of thrift, again more especially in the case of young stuff is the presence of lice. Every individual animal, and more particularly white ones, should be examined to see that they are free from these most annoying and expensive pests. They are usually found along the back and about the base of the tail. The most effective and certain treatment is to wash thoroughly with some good sheep dip. Failing this it is fairly safe to depend upon a rather free application of some heavy mineral oil well rubbed in along the back beginning at the horns and going right back to the tail in a strip six or eight inches wide. Where a dip is used care should be taken to choose a warm spell in order to prevent colds or chills. Where oil is used, it is rendered doubly effective by first clipping the hair off the strip above mentioned. Where it is not intended to turn the cattle out on cold days it will be found advantageous to clip them all over. They are more easily kept clean, are more comfortable and do better all winter. Of course where it is the practice to leave the stock exposed to the weather during a part of each and every, even the coldest days, then clipping all over would be cruel and inadvisable.

Where winter dairying is practised the clipping of the cows in milk has much to recommend it. No other one thing that the dairyman can do to his cows will count half so much for "clean milk" as clipping the thighs and hind flanks, also the udders and a short distance up the belly of such cows as are being milked. The time required for all the clipping that should be done is quite insignificant when compared with the amount of work necessary to keep similar animals even passably clean, where clipping has not been practised. Clip your cows, and so improve their health, lower cost of maintenance and make a reputation for clean milk.

The Proper Housing Of Farm Machinery Important Problem

From The Canadian Dairyman.

One of the greatest outlays that farmers have to contend with is in connection with farm machinery. Many implements, some of which are most costly, are used only for a short period each year, some even only for a few days. The implements must, of necessity, lie idle till another season comes round which demands their use. Progressive farmers throughout Ontario and in the other provinces have provided sheds in which to shelter implements from the weather and thus prolong their period of usefulness.

Unfortunately, many of these sheds have not been located where they are convenient and, while the owner possesses the best of intentions, implements are often left in a convenient place to unhook, rather than taken to the shed. In other instances the size of the shed has not kept pace with the increasing number of tools that is now found necessary in the equipment of an up-to-date farm. The result is that machinery, which costs heavily in good hard cash, is left to fight out its own argument with the elements. While from some aspects this may be good for the manufacturer, it is not in the best interests of the farmer.

The indifference towards suitably housing farm machinery seems to be coming more prevalent. It is evident that those who leave implements exposed to the weather do not realize the great cost to themselves of such a practice. It costs money to erect a shed to accommodate the machinery. It costs much more, however, not to house the machinery and as a consequence, pay for the ravages of the elements, by purchasing new tools at shorter intervals than would otherwise be necessary. Aside from this monetary consideration, there is nothing which gives a farm a more slovenly appearance than implements exposed to the weather on the shady side of some fence, tree or building, or even herded in some central spot as is common with some western farmers. Shelter your implements as soon as you are through with them for the season. Remember that your neighbors are sizing you up by the machinery you leave out of doors.

New Moisture Test For Dairy Products Has Been Involved

From The Canadian Dairyman.

For some time dairy experts have been striving to secure a moisture test for dairy products, that would be more simple and easier to operate than the gravimetric methods. Mr. J. W. Mitchell, Superintendent of the Eastern Dairy School, Kingston, and Mr. W. O. Walker, Professor in chemistry in the same school, have evolved a test that would appear to be just what is needed for determining the moisture of butter and cheese. Bulletin 170, just issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, describes this test fully and gives complete information as to operating it.

Knowing the increasing demand for a practical moisture test for dairy products, Mitchell and Walker began in October 1907, a series of experiments with the object of evolving something that would meet the needs of the case. They made a thorough investigation of existing methods and while accurate they were of such a nature as to require an expert to operate satisfactorily. On this point the bulletin says:

"Being dissatisfied with all the existing methods investigated by us, we undertook to work out a form of moisture test that would prove more satisfactory. We decided that the following requisites were necessary, and we kept them continually in view in our work:

1. A rapid and reasonably accurate method.
2. An inexpensive form of apparatus, both to purchase and to use.
3. A durable form of apparatus and one easy to clean.
4. A method that requires no great amount of attention or care in operating, and that can thus be used by the average factory man.
5. An apparatus that can, if damaged, be easily repaired at small cost.
6. A method equally suitable for testing butter, curd and cheese."

A great deal of time was spent in working out a method that would meet these requirements and success finally crowned the efforts of the experimenters. To facilitate the operation of the test and to simplify the process a reagent is used in a somewhat similar way that acid is used in the Babcock Milk Test. The reagent decided upon as best suited for the purpose is chemically pure, amyl acetate. The reliability of the new test was demonstrated by a series of comparisons with the gravimetric method in testing the moisture in different samples of butter, curd and cheese. The results were approximately the same and the tests by the new method were shown to be accurate enough for all practical purposes.

The essential parts of the test are an evaporating cup, a spirit-lamp, a condenser, and a graduated glass receiver. The cup is made of copper, and is provided with a cover, and can be readily detached. The condenser, in which the vapors from the cup are condensed, is made of tin, and has a graduated glass tube in the bottom, which receives the condensed vapors. The cup is provided with a cord and cheese sampler. The latter is made fast to a stand beneath which is a drawer for keeping the parts in. There is an outside jacket for the condenser, which is filled with cold water during the testing.

In operating the test 10 grams of butter or 5 grams of curd or cheese, is weighed into the evaporating cup. To this is added the reagent. The cup is connected with its cover and the moisture and the reagent are evaporated by means of the spirit lamp. The vapors are condensed to liquid form again in the condenser, which flows into the graduated glass. As the water is heavier than the reagent, and consequently the two do not mix, the former settles to the bottom of the glass and the amount of liquid can be easily read by the graduated scale on the glass. The scales on the neck of the glass are graduated for reading directly the per cent. of moisture in a sample when either 5 or 10 grams are taken to a test. The time required for driving all the moisture from a sample of butter or curd is from four to seven minutes. The average cost per test is something below half a cent.

The features of the test that should commend it to every maker is its rapidity, its simplicity, the ease with which the apparatus may be cleaned, the small cost of conducting the test, the durability of the apparatus and the low cost for repairs. The test can be used for determining the moisture in flour, bread, breakfast foods, wood pulp, etc. Two prices are quoted in the bulletin for the complete outfit, $13 and $14, but the reasons given for charging two prices are not very explicit. Outfits can be obtained by applying to the Superintendent of the Eastern Dairy School, Kingston, Ont.

Some Pointers On How To Carve The Turkey On Thanksgiving Day

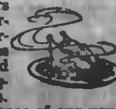
From The Canadian Dairyman.

PLAN your Thanksgiving dinner this year so that you will sit down to it with a smiling countenance and really enjoy it yourself, dear mother, to whom a "holiday dinner" generally means a really serious physical and mental strain.

Of all the dinners of the year Thanksgiving is best. It is the "truly, truly" National dinner. Each year, before I go into the serious part of planning my Thanksgiving dinner, I get down my own little shabby school history and girlhood books and read again and again about the birth of our nation.

Now,, as of old, I thrill with the story of the brave women who dared the tossing seas to journey to an unknown continent. I am thoroughly grateful for my luxuries as I read, through misty eyes: "In almost every family lamentation, mourning and woe were heard and no fresh food to be had to cherish them. The women at low tide gathered clams and mussels from the frozen beach, ate ground-nuts, acorns and scant fish.

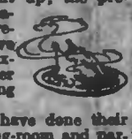
"One reason why I welcome Thanksgiving day is because it gives us a chance to bring home love of country. So our dinner is as purely Canadian as we can make it, and the recipes which come down from grandmother's day are honored as the main dishes. To the younger generations are given the preparation of the modern bits, the little dainty touches of the feast. Every chick and child about the place has a hand in the preparation of the dinner, and how they love to do their part, for it all spells home, home, home! At the table we lay aside all personal affairs and talk of the real meaning of the day. The little people tell the old stories; the older ones discuss the history of the past year, the promises of the future. A home-made centrepiece of flowers from my window gardens and belated garden flowers, and fruits from the orchard and cellar, has been arranged by childish hands.



"Would you like to hear of our very simple "contests" which come after dinner? I lead the way into the big sitting-room, where grandfather's fire burns brightly in th rough brick fireplace. On a bulletin board made of burlap stretched over a frame made of curtain poles is fastened, with thumbtacks, our Thanksgiving exhibit. The prizes are tiny flags. The little folks show sketches made in school and proudly recite some patriotic sentiment, or sing. The older members of the family show facsimiles of historical letters or documents, patriotic poems or songs selected during the past year and photographs of historical interest. You would be surprised to see how eagerly my married sons and daughters and father and I enter into this contest and how proud each is of the little flag bestowed as a reward of merit by the vote of the others. There are games to work off the superfluous energy of the little folks and patriotic songs for "good-night."

I attend to as much of the preliminary work of the dinner the week before as possible, and turn as much of it over to other members of the family on Thanksgiving day, so that I really do not go into the kitchen until the oven is ready for the turkey. This is my work schedule:

The Saturday before Thanksgiving Alice, the eldest daughter is coming, and she and the children have promised to wash all the china and glass and polish the silver, see that the table-linen is ready, make the salted nuts, candied orange-peel, fudge and nut candy of which we are so fond. I sort out all the kitchen utensils which I shall need for the preparation of the dinner, and the boys see that the knives are sharp and the pans are scoured clean. The firewood and the coal boxes are filled—my kitchen is put into a good shape as if it were a carpenter shop. I supervise the arrangement of the dishes on the pantry shelves and label each pile so there can be no confusion—"soup," "turkey," "salad," etc. All this work will be done before Thanksgiving day; pies, cakes, and bread baked and all the vegetables brought up; the prepared things, the seasonings and the ingredients arranged to save steps. I do not even expect to have an earlier breakfast Thanksgiving morning.



After the children have done their part in kitchen, dining-room and parlor, they will be "shooed" out for a long walk and a romp. The older members of the family attend the Thanksgiving union service and then take a long walk. If there is one day when we really need exercise that day is Thanksgiving.

With the house clear my faithful Nora and I prepare the turkey and the vegetables at our ease. We live inland and fresh oysters are not always at command, so I will serve a simple fruit mixture for my first course. This will be on the table when the family sits down. It looks pretty and attractive. It is simply oranges, canned pineapple and bananas cut in dice, chilled and sweetened. The children are very fond of it. I will serve a plain, clear soup instead of a rich one. To give it a holiday air, I will place a slice of lemon and a square cracker in each plate, and make celery "curls" to eat with it.

My main course will be roast turkey, oyster gravy, squash, mashed potatoes, boiled onions, stewed tomatoes, cranberry sauce. The salad will be either a cabbage salad, of which we are very fond, or an apple and celery salad. I mix my cabbage salad with a good cooked dressing and add celery. We have rye-and-Indian bread after grandmother's recipe. For dessert, I will have mince pie (without meat), lemon pie and Indian pudding, hickory-nuts and walnuts, raisins, apples and oranges. There will be coffee for the elder, and milk for the younger members of the family.

Another innovation which we have at our Sunday and holiday dinners is that the men wait on the table. Each of my sons has been accustomed since babyhood to help serve, and they really prefer removing the courses and bringing in the new ones, allowing "the women folks," who had the preparing of the meal, to enjoy it uninterrupted and to really rest a little.

INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS

FULTON'S RENAL COMPOUND

"Kidney trouble" is inflammation of the kidneys without albumen.

"Bright's Disease" is inflammation of the kidneys with albumen.

In each the real trouble is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS. Hence a cure for one must be a cure for the other. There has been no cure for either.

But many kidney troubled people get well.

Then—because inflammation of the kidneys unless severe commonly gets well at first. But if it does not yield early and the inflammation persists, the real trouble begins.

You can see why kidney disease has been incurable and why the deaths have risen to over 170 per day up to the discovery of Fulton's Renal Compound there was nothing known that would reduce inflammation in the kidney tissues.

The old kidney medicines were a misconception, irritating the inflamed kidneys to renewed efforts instead of allaying the inflammation, some of them being actually harmful. Result—physicians have abandoned them.

No matter whether you call it "kidney trouble," "Nephritis," or "Bright's Disease," if it has been hanging on a few months, recovery can be only hoped for through this specific. It has a proven efficiency in nearly 87 per cent. of all cases. It is the only thing known that controls inflammation in the kidneys, which is the real difficulty with kidney troubled people,

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON INDIA

Rev. H. J. Keith Addresses Large Number Last Night.

A large number visited Knox Church school room last night, to hear Rev. H. J. Keith's illustrated lecture on India, which was given under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society.

The lecture was a most interesting one and the views were excellent.

Mr. Keith referred to the conditions existing in India, the people, their temples and their feasts which were indeed interesting to learn of.

The choir rendered a short programme which was also greatly enjoyed. Miss Kathleen Wallis rendered two most beautiful selections on the violin.

Altogether the evening was very instructive, and those in attendance were well pleased.

SPLENDID SPECIMEN OF WINDOW DRESSING ART; THANKSGIVING SPIRIT

Mr. H. C. MacDonald, window dresser for Rich. Hall & Son, with his characteristic enterprise has a magnificently dressed window emblematic of the Thanksgiving season. The design is attracting much attention and admiration. In the centre of the window is a table upon which is displayed a splendid Thanksgiving turkey and other tokens of a holiday repast, while the dolls used by Mr. MacDonald in many of his windows, is seated at the table. The background of the window is decorated with autumn leaves, grapes and other fruits, and presents a most attractive appearance. A fine showing of linen is made in the window.

It was with considerable difficulty that it was obtained and will undoubtedly be the best production that the Ennismore amateurs have ever attempted.

The Horticultural Society Begins New Year With Bright Prospects Of Increased Work

Is Financially Strong—Membership Should be Larger—Mr. Peter Campbell Elected President—Women Not Taken in Yet

REPORTS WERE RECEIVED

The annual meeting of the Horticultural Society was held in the Council Chambers last night with the President Col H C Rogers in the chair and the following members present: Messrs. T A S Hay, Walter Stocker, B Cooney, S Jordan, Dr. Geo. Burnham, T Tucker, Wm. James, A E Poussette, Jas. English and H L Beal.

One of the prospects mentioned for next summer is increased work at the parks and the society recognizing this fact intends to prepare itself to meet the new conditions. The President gave a brief outline, of a cheery character, of the work which had been accomplished during 1908, after which officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—Mr. Peter Campbell.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. D W Dumble.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Dr Geo Burnham.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. H L Beal.

Board of Directors.—Hon. J R Stratton, Jas English, Wm James, Jas Stevenson, Ben Cooney, S Jordan, H Nesbitt, T A S Hay, Adam Hall, W Stocker, Col. H C Rogers, Thos. Tucker and Frank Wise.

Auditors—Messrs. T A S Hay and Arthur Stevenson.

General Discussion

Mr. Peter Campbell succeeds Col. Rogers as president to the society and Dr. Burnham succeeds Mr. T A S Hay as second Vice-President. Mr. Beal was the unanimous choice as Secretary-Treasurer. Several of the members seemed inclined to nominate a number of women as members of the Board but the rest were not so disposed. Although it was mentioned that other Horticultural societies had accepted the assistance of ladies in their councils and work, the welcome hand was not extended to Peterborough's women, at least not for the present.

The Water Commissioners

Mr. Beal speaking of the dried and burnt appearance of Central Park during the latter part of the summer said that many complaints had been made about its condition but that under the circumstances it could not have been otherwise. The Water Commissioners had prohibited the use of the water except from 4 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. As the caretaker's hours were of the ordinary it meant that the water could only be used a few hours each day. It was useless, Mr. Beal said, to try to divide the work between the two parks thus entire attention was devoted to Victoria Park. One of the members remarked that for the appearance of the city a little consideration and common sense should have been used by the commissioners.

Membership

With all the advantages the society affords its members it was stated that there should be at least 500 members in this city. As it is there are 146 now registered and it is felt by the society that the citizens who love to have the city as beautiful as possible and its parks well kept, will identify themselves with the work, become members, and thus augument the society's scope.

The Coming Visit Of The Choir Of The Sheffield Musical Union

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir—I notice that some one objected to the civic entertainment of the Choir of the Sheffield Musical Union which comes here next week. It is asked why the members of the Choir cannot pay for their own entertainment out of the money they are making out of their concerts. If they did that they would live very sparingly. It is well known that the visit to Canada will not be a financial success. It was not expected to be. Every member of the Choir had to contribute $50 to the expenses of the journey. There are two hundred members of the Choir and the trip should cost about $200 each. That makes $40,000; they give ten concerts in Canada. It would therefore require a receipt of $4,000 at each concert to cover expenses, which could not be realized, of course. It would require the selling of every seat in the opera house here at $5 each to secure anything like such a result.

The visit of the Choir of the Sheffield Union is a sacrifice laid on the altar of music as an imperial unity. Peterborough as a part of Canada should meet the visitors half way. If our city fathers cannot regard the visit in any other way, they might spread a light luncheon as a thanksoffering, appropriate to the Thanksgiving season in gratitude for the great honour of hearing a Choir like the Sheffield Choir and for to honour of having as our guests a musical organization Sans pareil in all the world; and bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh. I am one among thousands who will regret the inaction of the city council in case a suitable civic recognition is not extended.

I quite agree with the letter of "Citizen" yesterday in your columns. Let us think it over and think quickly.

Yours truly,
ANOTHER CITIZEN

S A Wilson, Y.M.C.A. Harriers.
J H Adams, Y.M.C.A. Harriers.
Geo. Robinson, Otonabee A.C.

With the above entry list for the Examiner's big road race on Thanksgiving day it looks as if all records in point of success will be surpassed. Last year there were but fourteen junior starters, this year there are eighteen and they are still coming. It looks like a bang up battle all the way. Jimmy McMartin, who was second last year and Bertram Cross, who finished third will be in the squad and there should be doings. Cross is in fine shape, cleaning up the All Saints-Knox church Boys' Chase road race last Saturday and doing 3 miles over a hilly course in 17 minutes, 4 seconds, pretty good going for a youngster. The Chatmains are pinning their faith to Jos Hughes who annexed the mile race at the Otonabee meet in the Brock street rink recently. Then there is a big bunch of dark horses any one of which might clean up.

The senior field may not be as big as it was last year, but it will be more classy and should be a fight throughout. Ernie Wilson last year's winner will face the starter again and with him will be his club mates, Charlie Thorpe, Geo. Frowde and J H Adams, the latter being formerly connected with the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto. The "Y" bunch will have a great race among themselves while Hanlen Howard, the Hiawatha runner will not be beaten off without the bitterest kind of a struggle. W J Bennett the Enlish lad who finished 32th last year has been keeping very mum but has been training hard and may hand out a surprise package on Monday. Nothing is known about Montgomery but it is said that he won't be far away when the prizes are handed out.

By the way, the prizes are on exhibition in one of the windows of the Peterborough Bookstore and have attracted much attention and favourable comment. In addition to holding the beautiful Examiner trophy for one year, the senior winner will receive a magnificent gold watch, the second a Royal Knot ornament; the third a gold stick pin, and the fourth a pair of gold cuff-links. The junior winner will receive a gold ring; the second man a gold locket; the third a gold pin and the fourth a gold lead pencil.

The arrangements for Monday's races are about completed. It has been decided to start both races at 10.30 o'clock instead of 10 o'clock as last year. For the benefit of the senior runners a 'bus will leave the Examiner office sharp at 8.30 o'clock on Monday morning and those who prefer to ride to Lakefield in that may do so or else take the morning train. The 'bus will follow the runners in to carry the contestants' clothes and pick up any of the runners who have dropped out. The senior race will start at the ten mile post in front of the Lakefield House in Lakefield and will finish as usual in front of the Examiner office.

A 'bus will leave the Examiner office at 9.30 o'clock to take the junior runners to the starting point 100 yards north of the first mile post on the Lakefield road. All junior entries are expected to be on hand sharp on time. The 'bus will follow them in, carrying their clothes. The finish will be in front of the Examiner office.

The officials for the races will be as follows:

Starters for senior race—Dr. A. W. McPherson and F. M. Dale Fouse.

Judge of course for senior race—Dr. A. W. McPherson.

Timer for senior race—W. H. Wasson.

Starter and judge of course for junior race—J. D. Craig.

Timer for junior race — Harry Clarke.

Judges at finish for both races—C. E. Sippel, Jos. Picard, H. M. Roy.

YOUNG DEERFOOT WILL BE LONGBOAT'S FIRST PROFESSIONAL OPPONENT

Tom Longboat's first opponent in the professional game will be Matthew Deerfoot, an Ajaabe Indian, said to be a relative of the famous Deerfoot.

If this young wonder from out of the West can step within a minute of the time he is credited with he will make Tommy Longboat look like a spavined crab, and if he beats him it will be your Uncle Thomas under the sink with the rest of the pipes. His $20,000 fortune will have disappeared like mist before a squall.

This young Deerfoot from out of the West is credited with rambling five miles so fast that he makes any of the Onondagas five-mile records look like a dead march at the Old Soldiers' home.

Western men say Deerfoot has rambled five in 24.52.

Alex Shrubb's world's record for five in 24.38 2-5, made in 1904.

The professional record has stood since 1903. It is 24.40, and J White is the holder.

Longboat's best five miles was made at the O.A.A.U. championships at Halifax, when he ran in 26.05.

He is credited with 25.30 indoors at Belleville, but he didn't do it. The distance must have been half-a-mile shy, because the Indian is notoriously a poor merry-go-round performer. Between 25.05 and 24.52 there is a quarter of a mile, and a quarter of a mile is a terrible trimming at five miles.

Of course, no one has yet chased the Indian hard for five miles, and say there is no real line on him, but he is not new in shape for a gruelling five miles, nor can he get there in time for this Buffalo race with Deerfoot if it comes off on Nov. 13th.—Toronto Star.

HOAGLAND THE SAME OLD MACHINE; BEATS ROLLER SKATERS BY 11 LAPS

Hoagland is the same old Hoag land.

Last night at the Auditorium Roller Rink he teamed up with four local roller skaters in a relay race and succeeded in trimming them in hollow fashion by eleven laps. He was up against a proposition to walk two miles while his opponents skated four, and he got away with the task without any trouble. In fact, he did more than the conditions called for, allowing his opponents to relieve each other whenever and as often as they wanted, and, in fact, gave them a lap, because of a hitch in the scoring.

The Auburn crack was given a hearty reception when he appeared on the floor, clad in the familiar blue suit, and the welcome was redoubled as he walked around the rink to the strains of "Yankee Doodle," played by the 57th Band, who were generous with his favourite selection.

It did not look like an easy matter to team five skaters, but Hoag accomplished the task. He kept up a steady, speedy gait all the way, sprinting only occasionally, and was enabled to keep well within his handicap. To watch the race it would appear that the skaters should skate more than twice as fast as he could walk, but such was not the case, and he had eleven laps to the good when he finished up his two miles with a characteristic sprint. The track is twenty laps to the mile.

His opponents last night were Prof. Gagno, B. Clute, M. Kennedy, Percy Parrington and Geo. Seymour.

To-night Hoagland will undertake to walk 2 1-4 miles while five skaters cover four miles. This should make an interesting event.

WALTER BELAND RESENTS ODIOUS REFERENCE TO HIMSELF

The Toronto Star says:

A young man very warm in the neighbourhood of the Adam's apple, blew into the Sporting Editor's office this morning.

"Say, what right have you to say I'm doubtful," he exclaimed, pointing to a paragraph in the write-up of the Quebec "ringing" case, in which it was said that Dave Beland told the proprietor of the house where the ringer was sheltered before the race was started, that the runner was his brother, Walter Beland, and not to talk to him too much.

"Why, I never said anything of the kind," said the visitor.

"Did you run in the Quebec road race?" was asked.

"No!" exclaimed Beland, I wasn't in Quebec, I was here in Toronto. Anyway I couldn't run from here to the corner without stopping for refreshments. Dave is the only one in the family who runs. Another brother is Arthur Beland, who's a manager of the Crown Pressing Company. Neither one of us is a runner. Dave is the only athlete in the family. I have lived here since three years old, while Dave was brought up in Quebec by an aunt. I'll write and tell it to Dave. The idea of him telling people the phoney runner was his brother Walter, and that Walter was foolish. My father is very sore about this crack of Dave's, too."

FRED SIMPSON IN FINE SHAPE FOR HAMILTON

Fred Simpson arrived in town this morning, looking in fine shape for the Hamilton Herald Race on Monday, and will remain here until Sunday morning when he will leave for Hamilton in charge of Corney Burns. Simpson worked out in the rink this morning, doing a few miles on the saw dust walk. He hails the snow with delight as he figures out that the going will be heavy on Monday, and feels that he is at his best in the mud, while such conditions would not suit Holmer and other fast men. Fred has been doing a lot of road work and is in good shape.

WHITCROFT SIGNS NEW GOAL KEEPER FOR EDMONTON

Brad Whitcroft has succeeded in rounding up another man for his Edmonton Team of Stanley Cup hunters. His latest capture is Lindsay, the star goal keeper of the Renfrew team, champions of the Ottawa Valley League, who comes with the highest recommendations of the Eastern hockey critics. His work in the nets last season left nothing to be desired, and he is considered one of the best goal keepers in the East. Lindsay is in Peterboro now and will go West with Whitcroft.

The Edmonton manager has lines out for Roy Browne, of Brantford.

INTERESTING DISCUSSION ON THE IMPORTANT QUESTION OF DIET IN ITS RELATION TO HEALTH; APPRECIATION OF NEEDS OF THE BODY THE GUIDE

Do We Eat Too Much Or Do We Eat Too Little, Is the Outstanding Question Attracting the Attention of the Scientist—Sir James Crichton-Browne Discusses This All-important Problem.

EXERCISE INTELLIGENCE

In the last century it was redundancy in nutrition that was in vogue, and it was feeding up that was on all hands recommended, but now it is frugality in nutrition that is in the ascendant and a spare diet that is insisted on. And this is no more fashionable crotchet or popular craze. Physiologists and medical men of high authority are preaching not merely simplicity of diet, but a degree of abstemiousness that would hitherto have been regarded as dangerous. Some of them tell us roundly that intemperance in eating has become universal in civilized races, and that we are all habitually consuming just double the amount of food we require, and others who do not go to this extreme are still inclined to believe that as regards certain kinds of food we have accustomed ourselves to more than is good for us, and might beneficially restrict our indulgence in them. The trend is unquestionably toward reduced dietary.

The campaign against overfeeding is all very well, but we need not substitute underfeeding for it, or rashly accept the new and startling standards that are prescribed for us. That there is a vast amount of overfeeding in most civilized countries is unquestionable. With us extreme obesity is not perhaps as common as it was fifty years ago, before the Banting era. There is a general recognition of its inconveniences and risks. Precautions are taken against it and cures of many kinds and of carrying efficacy are resorted to.

Persons Rarely die of Surfeit

Acute overfeeding, as it is called, does not require consideration. People rarely die of surfeit in these days, and death attributed to that cause is generally due to interference by a distended stomach, with the action of an enfeebled heart; but chronic overfeeding or the habitual indigestion of an excessive amount of nutriment is one of the burning questions of the hour, and has resumed an entirely new aspect in recent years. Overfeeding no longer means overfeeding in the old sense, of something in excess of the accepted physiological standard, for an entirely new and much lowered physiological standard has been presented to us according to which it would seem, as I have said that the whole population of all civilized countries, with the exceptions of a few individuals who have found salvation, is addicted to overfeeding, and is thereby incurring divers pains and penalties.

Horatio Fletcher, an American gentleman, has discovered, or believes he has discovered, the true inwardness of mastication. Middle-aged, obese, dyspeptic, in failing health, rejected by an insurance company, and unaided by many medical men consulted, he accidentally discovered that by slow and deliberate eating his condition improved. He literally chewed himself back into health, and in doing so satisfied himself that the whole process of bodily nutrition is profoundly affected by the preliminary treatment of the food in the mouth. He convinced himself that by the thorough mastication and insalivation of food appetite is satisfied with a much smaller amount than is ordinarily sufficient for that purpose, and that at the same time bodily and mental well being is marvellously enhanced.

"Fletcherism" Defined

Mr. Fletcher sums up his philosophy in these words: "If you eat only when you have an earned appetite, masticate your food throughly and take great care to eat only what your appetite approves, the rest will take care of itself." No very novel doctrine after all.

Hubert Higgins, a Cambridge professor, speaks of Mr. Fletcher's great physiological discovery," while Dr. Edward Hooker Dewey, of Meadville, Pa., assures Mr. Fletcher that, "In time the line of dietary reform you have done better work than the entire medical profession has done from the dawn of history. . . . What you have done to unfold physiological masticatness means more for human weal than all the mere medical prescribers have given the world from Adam to the present time."

Dr. J. M. Kellog, of the Battle Creek Sanitorium, Mich., writes: "You are certainly promoting the most important hygienic reform which has been brought forward in modern times; you deserve the gratitude of the whole world." "We are chewing," he writes again "hard at Battle Creek, chewing more ever day. We are continually thinking and talking of you and the wonderful reform you set going. We have gotten up a chewing song which we sing to the patients. The idea of munching parties is a good one." . . . "A quartette sang the Chewing song just before my lecture in the parlour last evening. . . . I read some of your notes to my colleagues, and they were so much affected that tears came into their eyes."

Mr. Fletcher accepts all these preposterous adulations with complacency, and tells us that he has received within two years more than a thousand letters, bearing the approval of writers, who report benefits received which seem "really miraculous." Overeating and wrong eating are, he maintains, the prime cause of intemperance in drinking—and he evidently anticipates that the next generation may chew themselves out of insanity and crime, it, one must add, they only retain the teeth with which to do it.

Observations at Cambridge

A paper by Dr. Ernest von Somaren, of Venice, interested the late Sir Michael Foster and led to Mr. Fletcher being invited to Cambridge, where some observations were made which were so far confirmatory of his claims. In two individuals it was found that complete bodily efficiency was maintained for some weeks upon a dietary which had a total energy value of less than one-half of that usually taken and comprised little more than one-third of the proteid consumed by an average man. With proper caution Sir Michael pointed out that it was doubtful whether continued efficiency could be maintained on such low values as these, but he recognized that the Cambridge experiments, although merely preliminary, made it

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. D.

The fifteenth century was singularly lacking in the production of great literary geniuses. Chaucer had died in 1400. Gower, who was far below him in literary qualifications, had died in 1408, and there are only two names besides, which stand out throughout the whole century as upholding with dignity the name of British authorship. These two are King James I. of England and Sir Thomas More.

King James I

King James was the son of Robert III. of Scotland, and was born in 1394. The boy, at the age of eleven, was placed on board a ship bound for France, but was captured by the English, and held captive at the court till 1424. He was treated, however, as befitted his rank, passing most of his time at Windsor, where he was given a regal education. Historians tell us that he excelled in every study and in every sport. His chief delight, however, was in music and versifying, and we are indebted to him for many fine amatory poems, but chiefly for the "King's Quhair," a lengthy poem of 197 stanzas, descriptive of many particulars of his own career. The poem was suggested to the prince by the first sight he obtained of his future wife, walking in the garden at Windsor. This lady was Joan Beaufort, daughter of the Duke of Somerset. The end of this king was sudden and sad. He was stabbed to death at Perth in the year 1437. His name is rendered especially interesting from the fact that it marks the entrance of the Scotch nation into the fellowship of British literature.

Sir Thomas More

Sir Thomas More will always hold an honoured place in history, as much for his eminence in statecraft as for his scholarship, and the versatility of his writings. He was a patriot of the most exalted description, and of stainless character. He has been accused by many of needless severity towards the Protestants, and certainly the views enunciated by him in "Utopia" accord somewhat ill with certain of his public acts, but we must remember that More was a Catholic to the backbone—to whom even a slight divergence from the paths of the established faith savoured of rank heresy. If for this More is to be called a bigot, then we have countless thousands to-day in the Protestant ranks, equally entitled to the same designation. As an instance in support of this contention we may take the Salvation Army. Thirty years ago this great organization was railed at, persecuted and reviled. To-day it pursues its course unchecked, doing an immense amount of good in reclaiming shipwrecked men and women; its leader universally revered, and its methods widely, if not universally, approved.

More's "Utopia"

We are not dealing, however, so much with More's religious views as with his qualities as an author. His great work is "Utopia." This was written in Latin and published in 1516. Some critics contend that it is not entitled to high praise, as many of the ideas contained within it are extravagant to a degree. Julian Hawthorne characterises it as "a philosophico-whimsical romance," and probably this fits it about as well as any other term that could be devised.

In it the author describes the happy state of a mythical island, discovered by an equally mythical being, Raphael Hythloday. The government of the island is republican, and all the inhabitants engage either in agriculture or in trade. There are no taverns, no fashions, and, therefore, no abominable "Merry Widow" hats in Utopia. There are no lawyers. Hunting is looked upon as low and warfare as brutish.

Raphael Hythloday

Let us see, in his own words, how More affects to preface the work that has become so famous in literature. "On a certain day, when I had heard mass in Our Lady's Church, which is the fairest, the most gorgeous and curious church building in all the city of Antwerp; and also most frequented of people, and service being over, I was ready to go home to my lodgings, I chanced to espy my friend Peter Gilles, talking with a certain stranger, a man well stricken in age, with a black, sunburnt face, a large beard, and a cloak cast primly about his shoulders, whom by his favour and apparell forthwith I judged to be a mariner." This man, More makes out to have been a companion, deserted by Amerigo Vespucci in one of his voyages. He takes him to his home, and "there" he says "in my garden upon a bench covered with green turves we sat down, talking together."

More's Advanced Ideas

The principles enunciated by More in his writings show him to have been far in advance of the times in which he lived. To-day, many of his ideas, regarded then as chimerical and preposterous, are imbedded in our glorious national constitution, and many more, yet in a nebulous state, are sensibly gathering form and substance as the years roll by.

More's far-sightedness and breadth of vision are the more to be wondered at, seeing that up to his time Christian teaching had produced nothing but injustice and intolerance. Note his sympathy with the poor man and what he says on the question of labour: "The rich are ever striving to pare away something further from the daily wages of the poor, by private fraud and even by public law, so that the wrong already existing (for it is a wrong, that those from whom the state derives most benefit should receive least reward) is made yet greater by means of the law of the state,' and again, "The rich devise every means by which they may, in the first place, secure to themselves what they have amassed by wrong, and then take to their own use and profit at the lowest possible price the work and labour of the poor. And so soon as the rich decide on adopting these devices in the name of the public, then they become law.'

An Advocate for Humanity

More advocated a working day of nine hours, a public system of education, more humane laws governing punishment for crime, and toleration in religion. To appreciate his influence for good in the work that he was instrumental in setting in motion, we must never forget that in More's time the poor were treated more like beasts than human beings; that at least half the inhabitants of England were illiterate and the thirds steeped in the deepest dye of superstition; a trivial theft was punishable by death, so that man murdered their fellow-man in order to banish all chance of a possible information being laid before the authorities. He was no believer in monarchial despotism or in judicial juggling and it was his fearlessness in speaking out his mind on both these points that cost him his life. "There will never be wanting some pretense" he said, "for deciding in the King's favour; as that equity is on his side, or the strict letter of the law, or some forced interpretation of it, or, if none of these, that the Royal prerogative, ought with conscientious judges, to outweigh all other considerations." "These notions are fostered by the maxim that the King can do no wrong, however much he may wish to do it; that not only the property but the persons of his subjects are his own! And that a man has a right to no more than the King's goodness thinks fit not to take from him." More, after all is said and done, was not an advocate of persecution, for he also desired to effect a reform of spiritual life within the church. But nothing was further from his thoughts, than to effect this by innovations. He wanted unity not revolution and thus, he endeavoured by all the power of his pen to battle against what he termed the "pestilential sectarianism" of the leaders of the reformation.

It space permitted it would be interesting to follow More through his political and private career and to show, amongst other things, the fearlessness with which he combatted a parliamentary grant to Henry VII.; his friendship with Erasmus, one of the greatest scholars of the century; his beautiful home life, and how he trained his wife in the tastes which he himself so dearly loved, and how, finally, he fell a victim to the vengeance of Henry VIII. But these are all matters of history.

As we glance at the records of the immortal dead there are few to which we can accord such unstinted admiration and respect as to that of Sir Thomas More.

Human Beings Who Worship The Sun As Source Of Light

Something About the Order of the Mazdaznan, Whose Promoter's Plans for a Temple in Montreal Were Recently Frustrated.

Man has twelve senses: Seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting, touching, feeling, intuition, transmission of ideas, telepathy, spiritual discernment, clearsight, realisation.

The development of these depends:

On the accumulation of Go-Llama, the centralising life principle; the capacity or power of breath; the generation of electric force through the expanded action of the ganglia of the nervous system; the regulation of circulation of blood through perfect action of the lungs; the rhythmical distribution of blood through the body by the heart; the equalized development of brain cells; the awakening of thought power through the spinal cord; the expansion of magnetic circles through the vibratory actions of sympathetic nerve centres; the perfect assimilation of food through digestion; the purification of body through its own action; the generation of life fluids through life preserving functions; the conservation of energies, and the consciousness of the All in existence.

That mysterious sect, having its central "temple" in Chicago, under the name of "Mazdaznan," but more familiarly labelled as "Sun Worshippers," has invaded Montreal, where its sponsors recently planned to erect a temple until a law suit in Boston overturned the plan.

Mazdaznan is supposed to be the Persian for "master-thought"—that is to say, the thought that makes for self-mastery. The Shepherd Kings of ancient Chaldea had it, and by them the cult was handed down to the Zends of Persia. Inasmuch as the same sun has continued its lighting and heating business right down to the present time, the sun's worshippers have been and are equally persistent. Their rites may have undergone some modification, but the principle—as well as the interest—still endures, explains the New York World.

The Mystic Yogi.

The high priest of Mazdaznan in America is the "Reverend" Dr. Otoman Zar-Adusht Ha'Nish, whose residence in Chicago is the central shrine of the faith. During three or four years past this mystic yogi, or "Magi" person has circulated more or less actively in Denver, in New York city, in Montreal, Canada, in Lowell, Mass., starting Sun temples, and ordaining wealthy, middle-aged ladies as "mothers" in charge of local branches of the society. The old doctor—he is said to be sixty-four years of age, though he looks about twenty-seven—lectured in Carnegie Hall, in New York, in 1905, and established a "Spenta Marie," or temple of worship, at Central Park West. Many fashionable faddists, and presumably wealthy women attended his seances, and not a few declared themselves converts and disciples. About this same time, however, such censorious agencies as Anthony Comstock's Anti-Vice Society, the State Medical Association, and the police got busy with remarkable unanimity. Dr. Ha'Nish's text-book, entitled "Inner Studies," was suppressed, and some of his priests and priestesses were arrested on the charge of practising medicine without a license. Both press and pulpit sat down rather hard on the Rev. Otoman, so he moved away from here.

Called Mrs. Shaw.

A little more than a year ago this same Dr. Ha'Nish precipitated a sensation in sun-worshipping circles by calling Mrs. Ellen Shaw, of Lowell, Mass., to Denver, to officiate as Mother in a temple out there. Mrs. Shaw, who was the widow of a wealthy hotel man, and quite prominent in Bay State society, promptly sold out all, and followed her occult "master."

What is the secret of these Mazdaznanites and their weird craft? What are the mysterious rites, outlandish practices and heathenish orgies of which they are accused to an extent that their leaders are mostly kept moving from one place to another?

A Queer Tenant.

One passage at which Anthony Comstock balked, in the "Inner Thoughts" dope-book, was that in which the novice is directed to "recline at length on a divan or a robe on the floor in the full sunlight, throwing a light blue silk scarf about you." Or, in case you still think yourself insufficiently clad, "if you wish you can hold an umbrella over your head."

Comparatively lucid, so far as it goes, is the exposition vouchsafed by a Manhattan Mazdaznanite in good standing:

"You are curious to ascertain the nature of the dreadful things we do? In a single word, the veil of Isis (or Gen-Isis, as the Rev. Dr. Otoman Zar Adusht Ha'Nish relevantly puts it) may be lifted: Breathe, breathe, breathe—breathe in the sunlight, bathe in the sunlight. Here you have the dread mystery revealed, the truth in all its nakedness."

Regeneration, or rejuvenescence, is the keystone to the Mazdaznan arch, to be attained and perpetuated through the sunlight by simple hygienic practices in which breathing, bathing and fasting are the fundamentals.

"The Infinite will not manifest in unclean tabernacles, and we owe it to ourselves and to the race to remain unspotted from the world, and show forth pure and healthy bodies."

"The body of man is the highest ideal of God and the culmination of processes creative and evolutionary." • • • "Purity of body produces purity of mind." • • •

"Mazdaznan accepts as its infallible guide to open the book of nature." These are wholesome tenets of "inner studies."

Transmutation of Force.

The transmutation of the finer vital forces is the first step for rejuvenation after thoroughly cleansing the body by fasting, bathing and anointing, always making the breath path the open way to the recreation of the "child-life" within, these refining and ether-realising processes regenerating the system of restoring it to that condition of youthful activity and beauty "which the prophets sang and the philosophers attempted to define—a condition preserving the elementary body from decay and death."

If you have "temperament" you will want to follow the Oriental injunction picturesquely and devoutly. If you want to be a real Mazdaznanite, you will repair to your sacred temple of the Holy Mother (Spenta Marie) and, donning flowing robes, with arms extended toward the god of day, with graceful genuflexion, and pious mind, meditate on "God-Llama." If you have yogi tendencies, substitute the word "prana" for concentration. But if you are a busy bee just fancy you hear the muezzin's noontide call, get your Oriental setting from your inner consciousness and, sans ceremonies, dwell on the synonyms for the term "oxygen," "ozone," "fresh air," while drinking in the life-giving element to your lungs' content. It will do you as much good as if you were labelled and ticketed and bore the glittering escutcheon of some fantastic ritual from out the dreamy East.

The symbolical posturing, or sundance, as regularly exemplified by Mme. Rabagliati and her pupils, supplies to the ritual just that poetic element on which the Eastern mystics lay so much stress.

"What can they imagine we do?" says Mrs. Brownie Rathborne Weaverson, the "Little Mother" of the Ancient Order of the Holy Robe.

Individuality is the keynote to all our development. We are not attempting to build up a society or organization, and while acknowledging the bond or spiritual relationship with all mankind, we do not attempt to proselytise or seek to gain adherents to our doctrines, recognising the principle of supply and demand as to position, time and condition, corresponding with cause and effect. Each one must be his or her own saviour, and each atom in the mosaic of divine destiny is as important as the greater manifestations which we try to emulate and sustain. The salvation of the individual depends upon the degree of one's self-recognition and consequent self-reliance, thus effecting liberation from bondage of all limitations, qualities and degrees. In our baptism or initiations no questions are asked, no vows exacted, except the pledge to be true to one's higher self. Our aim is to teach man to discover his individual relationship to all life.

"Our religion is that of the ancient Zends, handed down traditionally from the time of the shepherd kings, and still surviving in all its purity in the mountain fastnesses of Southern Asia and elsewhere. We have had 14,000 students in America. We are sun worshippers in just the same way in which the ancient disciples of Zar-Adusht paid definite homage to the glorious orb of that day as a symbol of God—the creating, generating and animating principle of life, the light of lights, in which the Godhead is revealed, as held in the Zend-Avesta. Light is light crystallized. All nature is life concentrated. Our very body is concentration of the universe. Every condition, attribute, sense must have residence in the body, else it cannot be looked for in the universe. It is beyond knowing or possessing.

"Have you ever sen the Little Master?" asked the seeress abruptly. "He is sixty-four years old and looks to be twenty-seven."

Thus inadvertently does Mrs. Weaverson tear the veil aside and disclose the true inwardness of the perplexing mystery. To be sixty-four and look twenty-seven.

Paris, like New York, has had its "go" at Sun-worshipping in this agnostic age where all are seeking new lamps in exchange for old. Such eminent Frenchmen as Camille Flammarion, the astronomer, and M. Eiffel, of "tower" fame, joined with the Astronomical Society of France, a few years back, in an effort to establish an annual feast of the sun, to be celebrated on top of the Eiffel Tower itself, from midnight to sunrise on June 24—the long day marking the entrance of the benign luminary to the summer solstice.

FORCED THE PLAY.

Career of a Tragedy Written by the Great Napoleon.

The Scene Illustrata of Rome tells this story of the first Napoleon as a dramatic writer. He had seen a performance of "The Cid," which impressed him so forcibly that he decided to write a classic drama. Within a short time he had finished nearly four acts of a play, which he entitled "Hector." Then came his election as a brigadier general, and the manuscript was thrown into a desk, where he found it again by chance in 1805. Napoleon then sent for Luce de Lancival, gave him the manuscript and directed him to finish the play. This was done, but the players refused to accept it. When Napoleon returned to Paris from the coronation at Naples he learned of the contemptuous manner in which his work had been treated. He demanded the manuscript and wrote across it: "The players of the Comedie Francaise will produce the tragedy which in their stupidity they rejected. Napoleon." Two hours later the work was accepted. In three weeks it was produced before a brilliant audience, declared a success, and the alleged author was decorated with the grand cross of the Legion of Honor.

The Voyder.

The voyder was a large dish in which were collected the broken victuals which were removed from the table with a large knife with a broad, flat blade, called the voyder knife, from vider, to empty, clear or make void.

"The Boke of Nurture," by Hugh Rhodes, the date of which is 1577, one of the curious set of handbooks of manners and etiquette reproduced by the Early English Text society, speaks of these vessels as follows: "See ye have voyders ready for to void the morsels that they doe leave on their trenchers. Then with your trencher knyfe take off such fragments and put them in your voyder and then sette them downe cleane agayne."

Few silver ones remain, but some large brass voyders or dishes which have probably been so used may still be seen, of the history of which nothing is known by their present owners. —"Old English Plate," by W. J. Cripps.

Types of Female Beauty.

In northern Europe, among the Teutonic races, there are distinct types of beauty to be met with in Sweden, Poland, Saxony and Austria. The Swedish type, however, lacks animation, but the mold and figure to some extent atone for this, says the London Globe. The Austrian women possess a composite beauty in which are united the charms of three or four races. Vienna ladies are tall and stately, with great harmony and proportion in feature and figure. The Tyrolese maiden often lacks a good figure, but her face and manner possess all that is most bewitching in the two races of which she is composed, Latin and Germanic.

At a Studio Tea.

She put down her cup and rose.

"Thanks awfully," she said, "for letting me see your academy picture, Mr. Brush—and goodby."

He accompanied her gallantly to the door.

"And are you going to see Black's academy picture over the way now?" he inquired.

She gave him her brightest smile.

"Oh, no!" she said sweetly. "I shall see that at the academy, you know."—Exchange.

Rare Bird.

"I had a parrot once," said the thin man, "who could repeat the first act of 'Hamlet' through without a break."

"I had a parrot once," said the fat man, "who could not speak a word."

"Huh! That is nothing."

"Wait a minute. He could talk in the dumb alphabet to perfection."—London Answers.

SOME PET ECONOMIES.

Saving String and Paper We Never Use—Wasted Medicines.

Hardly a person exists without some favorite economy, some little senseless tribute which he offers at the shrine of thrift and by which he saves—just nothing.

Some people refuse to cut the string of parcels and waste precious minutes laboriously untying knots. Others store away scraps of lace and silk and are delighted when a stray occasion justifies their practice by making use of a hoarded treasure.

I myself have a weakness for half sheets of note paper. I am annoyed exceedingly when I receive a letter with the third page covered and the second blank. It seems an opportunity missed. Yet as I rarely make use of my pieces I can only keep them from a magpie love of saving.

Apropos of this subject, I remember a clergyman once telling me about an aunt of his who in her eagerness that nothing should be wasted insisted upon drinking the remaining doses in any medicine bottles that the invalids in the household had been unable to finish.

This seems carrying a good principle a little too far.—London Black and White.

BABY'S WELFARE MOTHER'S CHIEF CARE

Every mother is naturally anxious that her little ones shall be healthy, good natured and bright. Every mother can keep her little ones in this condition if she will give them an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets cure all stomach and bowel troubles, break up colds, destroy worms and make teething easy. Equally good for the new born baby, or the well grown child. Mrs. W. E. Stewart, St. George, N. B. says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones for several years and have found them reliable in all emergencies. I cannot praise the Tablets too highly." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Alabama Sandwich.

"Gimme a sandwich."

"Rye or white?"

"Rye."

"Pint or quart?"

This dialogue may be heard at the counter of a large number of "dairy lunch" rooms in the state of Alabama. The last question relating to the bulk of the sandwich, refers to the size of the flash of "rye" to be found between the halves of bread loaves cut to look like oyster sandwich.

Since Alabama went dry there has been an enormous increase in the output of baker's bread.

Spirited Repartee.

In making a sharp turn the rear end of a street car struck an express wagon laden with jugs of whisky. Nearly all the jugs were precipitated to the pavement, with the natural disastrous result. The driver of the wagon alighted and, pointing at the pile of demolished earthenware, said to a bystander, "That's hades, ain't it?"

The spectator, who happened to be a minister, replied, "Well, my friend, I don't know that I would say that, but it's at least the abode of departed spirits."

A Mighty Eruption.

It has been calculated that the quantity of solid matter ejected by the great eruption of Krakatoa, in the Strait of Sunda, in August, 1883, was 4.14 cubic miles. To give some idea of the enormous volume this represents we may take the following illustration: The largest of the pyramids of Egypt, known as the Great Pyramid, contains about 82,000,000 cubic feet of masonry. It would therefore take about 7,560 of such structures to equal in bulk the matter that was thrown out by this eruption.

Golden Silence.

A man who once met Ralph Waldo Emerson at the house of a friend told of the characteristic way in which the Concord philosopher blunted the edge of a compliment.

"Oh, Mr. Emerson," said a young woman of the party, "it must be so delightful to know that people all over the country are grateful for the things you have said!"

"Thank you," said Emerson slowly, "but it is for some of the things I have not said that I feel most grateful."

To Save Himself.

Some naturalists are of the opinion that the whale was once a land animal and that it was forced to take to water as a means of protection.

A PERILOUS FEAT.

Caging a Savage Hippopotamus in the London Zoo.

Many more little dramas are enacted at the zoo than the outside public wots of, says the London Standard. Behind the lion house there is a black leopardess which is implacably savage and tries to eat her keeper. Her neighbor is a great romping leopard which a lady reared in India. He comes out to play when the British public is represented by only a liveried zoo man. Sometimes the animals get out without the consent of their keepers. One which did so was Obash, the hippopotamus. He proved a savage indeed when the attempt was made to deprive him of his liberty. Happily the gardens were closed at the time. Try as they would, the keepers could not entice or coerce the monster in the direction of his den. At last the superintendent called up an assistant whom the hippopotamus hated. The chief put a bank note into the man's hand. "Scott," he said, "throw open the paddock gate, show yourself to Obash, then run for it." Scott did. The animal went for him, raging along the path and after him into the paddock. Scott climbed the railings just in time, and the hippopotamus on turning found the gate secured behind it. Presently a press representative arrived to investigate the story, which had somehow become known. "Hippopotamus escaped? Oh, dear no! Come and see him in his den," he was answered as they led him to where the monster was caged.

A CHILD'S HEROISM.

The Story of a Visit to the Beautiful Glasnevin Cemetery.

A pathetic story of a child's heroism is told by a Dublin gentleman. Recently he proposed to drive with his wife to the beautiful Glasnevin cemetery. Calling his son, a bright little boy, some four years old, he told him to get ready to accompany them. The child's countenance fell, and the father said:

"Don't you want to go, Willie?"

The little lip quivered, but the child answered, "Yes, papa, if you wish."

The child was strangely silent during the drive, and when the carriage drove up to the entrance he clung to his mother's side and looked up in her face with pathetic wistfulness.

The party alighted and walked among the graves and along the tree shadowed avenues, looking at the inscriptions on the last resting places of the dwellers in the beautiful city of the dead. After an hour or so thus spent, they returned to the carriage, and the father lifted his little son to his seat. The child looked surprised, drew a breath of relief and asked:

"Why, am I going back with you?"

"Of course you are. Why not?"

"I thought when they took little boys to the cemetery they left them there," said the child.

Many a man does not show the heroism in the face of death that this child evinced in what to him had evidently been a summons to leave the world.—London Telegraph.

His Mean Trick.

"There certainly are differences in feelings," said the woman who sometimes philosophizes, "or at least different ways of expressing them.

"A few days ago a shocking incident occurred in the apartment house where I live. The janitor, who was an unusually good looking man, about thirty-five years old, killed himself for some wholly inadequate reason, some difference with his employer. Of course everybody in the house was much upset by the tragedy, and I, with other tenants, went down to the basement to see his wife and offer aid.

"The wife, however, seemed more resentful than grief stricken.

"'Would you ever think such a fine man would do such a mean trick!' she exclaimed."

Why Is It?

Oh, haven't you stood at the telephone,
The receiver in your hand,
And pleaded with "central" in humble tone,
Persuasive and meek and bland:
"Please ring 'em again. I can't stand here
From now till the crack of doom."
And hasn't the thing buzzed in your ear—

"ONLY MEDICINE THAT DID ME ANY GOOD"

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Backache After Doctors Failed Utterly.

"I have received most wonderful benefit from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for years from backaches and pain in the head and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any relief. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good. I took several boxes altogether, and now I am entirely well of all my dreadful headaches and backaches. I take "Fruit-a-tives" occasionally still, but I am quite cured of a trouble that was said to be incurable. I give this testimony voluntarily, in order that others who suffer as I suffered may try this wonderful medicine and be cured."
Mrs. Frank Eaton, Frankville, Ont.

Be wise. Profit by Mrs. Eaton's example, and start with "Fruit-a-tives." They will quickly relieve Pain in the Back, and stop Headaches because they keep bowels, kidneys and skin in perfect order and insure the blood being always pure and rich.

"Fruit-a-tives" is now put up in the new 25c trial size as well as the regular 50c boxes. All dealers should have both sizes. If yours does not, write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Ransoming Fancy.

By CARL WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Love me, love my dog," was a sentiment of which Miss Thayer entirely approved, though she had no reason to insist that Paul Nisbit follow the rule, for he loved Ida Thayer, dogs in general, his own brindle bull in particular and Miss Thayer's Boston terrier but little less.

Fancy, the terrier, had been his first gift to Ida, and Paul believed that it constituted the strongest tie between them, for in dogs they had found a common bond of sympathy.

This Nisbit had industriously sought to strengthen, with no small results, though he had not yet dared to put his fate to the test and possibly lose through precipitancy all he had gained.

That Ida Thayer liked the friendly, clean cut young man was evident, but friendliness is not love, so Paul waited for the opportunity that should show him more clearly where he stood.

And a dog it was that again tightened the bonds. The hydrophobia scare struck Wellington, and the edict went forth that all dogs must be muzzled, while the local papers dilated on the danger that threatened and called upon all broad minded citizens to destroy their pets before the town should gain an unpleasant notoriety through an epidemic of rabies.

Nisbit, coming up the walk to the Thayer home with the latest diatribe in his pocket, found Ida dissolved in tears.

"Take that horrid paper away," she cried as she saw what he carried. "I wouldn't mind muzzling Fancy, but the idea of killing her! And father believes that horrid stuff, and he's—he's going to have Fancy chloroformed tomorrow."

"Poor little Fancy!" said Paul as he stooped to pat the dog's head and wished instead that he might rest his hand upon the golden strands which crowned the shapely head of Fancy's mistress.

"Of course," he continued, "if we are threatened with an epidemic of rabies it is well to take every precaution, at the same time to kill all dogs because one of them might go mad is as absurd as to want to kill all human beings because some men are afflicted with a mania for murder. I am going to take Sir Herbert out to the Oaks this evening. What do you say to an abduction?"

"Mr. Nisbit!" Ida's voice startled him. He had never heard her speak in that tone before. Anger and surprise were mingled in her voice, and with a sinking heart Paul realized that she had misunderstood him.

"I didn't mean to abduct you," he cried. "It was Fancy I was thinking of. If Fancy should be sitting on the lawn this evening and a long, low, rakish car should happen along, and if, after the dust died down, it should be found that she had disappeared, don't you think that would be better than chloroform? AN EASY VICTIM TO CONSUMPTION

The run down system is an inviting field for the germ of Tuberculosis. You cannot avoid breathing in the germs—they are everywhere—but a robust system is immune from their attacks. To rebuild a weakened system there is nothing that contains so much virtue as COD LIVER OIL, but the virtue is not in the grease. In fact the grease retards the beneficial action of the really valuable principles of the OIL by deranging the digestion.

In "BRICK'S TASTELESS" the grease is eliminated. It presents the valuable principles of COD LIVER OIL in a palatable form, combined with phosphorous in the form of the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, the nutritious Liquid Extract of Malt and the Bronchial Tonic and Sedative Fluid Extract of Wild Cherry Bark.

"BRICK'S TASTELESS" will build up the enervated system and will cure Bronchitis, Pulmonary Affections, and the deranged or disordered nervous system. Make your body healthy and you need have no fear of germs or diseases.

there will be no stray curs to carry infection, and she and Sir Herbert could have a glorious time with the run of the grounds under Chester's watchful eye. He loves dogs as well as I do."

In her eagerness to atone for her misunderstanding Ida caught Paul's hand impulsively.

"You are so good!" she cried. Then she realized that she was holding his hand and reddened as her fingers unclasped their grip. "I am so worried I don't think I know what I am doing today," she continued. "I could think of no way of saving poor Fancy, and it seemed so wicked to kill the poor little thing."

"Then it is settled!" he cried. "The piratical auto will be along after supper. Don't you want to go, too, and see what fine quarters she will have? It's a splendid run, and there will be a moon tonight. Of course if you don't want to turn kidnaper"—

"But I do," cried Ida, "when it is Fancy who is being kidnaped. I know that when this absurd scare is over father will be only too glad to find that Fancy is still alive. He liked her until the papers commenced to print these horrid things. I don't suppose that it is really thwarting father's wishes."

"You're merely assistant kidnaper," explained Paul. "The principal is responsible for the acts of his agents. The responsibility is all mine."

As the summer twilight faded into dusk Paul's racing car puffed noisily into the Thayer driveway, and a goggled figure sprang up the steps and caught up the doomed pet. Then he gave Ida the leaders of the two dogs, and the car recommenced its noisy puffing. In a flash they were in the street again.

It was a delightful run out to the farm, which was Paul's hobby, and when Ida saw the two new kennels that had been built in compliance with Paul's telephone message to his superintendent she went into ecstasies.

They were side by side fronting a great lawn, in the center of which was an artificial lake fed by a brook. It was an ideal place for a summer playground, and it was not long before Fancy was chasing Sir Herbert over the grass and making herself at home generally.

"The gate is always closed," explained the superintendent. "There is no chance of a visit from a rabid cur, and the grass and water will do them a world of good."

"I wish I could stay here, too," exclaimed Ida, with a sigh, as she gave Fancy a final petting and prepared to follow Paul to the car.

"I'll bring you out whenever you want to see Fancy," he promised. "We'll come every day if you wish."

"I should like to come tomorrow," assented Ida, "to see how our victims are getting along. Our abduction is successfully accomplished."

"That shows you how much of a novice you are," retorted Paul as the car started. "The abduction is not a success until the victim is restored to an anxious family and the ransom has been paid. This is only the first chapter."

"And the second is the homecoming."

"That's the third," corrected Paul. "The second has to do with the ransom."

"And does Fancy have to be ransomed?"

"Why else should we abduct her?" demanded the head of the expedition. "Of course she must be ransomed. It's a very heavy ransom, too," he added. "I am half afraid that it will be regarded as too much."

Ida's eyes fell beneath his ardent gaze.

"I value Fancy very highly," she said softly. "When is the demand to be made? I want to know the terms."

"We should wait until the craze dies down," said Paul uncertainly. "That would be the proper way, but the scare will not be over until cold weather, and I thought perhaps I might collect in advance. It is a little unusual; but, then, this is an unusual abduction, and I don't want to be sending one of Fancy's ears to the owner as a warning to be prompt."

"Please don't," cried Ida, with a little shudder. "Name your ransom."

For reply Paul caught the little hand that rested on the arm of the seat. There was just a momentary resistance. Then it rested quietly in his own. The ransom had been paid.

She Saw.

When the Lawtons had lived in Willow Park about a month they were invited to a succession of little dinners at the houses of their new neighbors. Mr. Lawton was on a dyspeptic's diet, and Mrs. Lawton was endeavoring to reduce her weight. "I suppose we will have to eat all sorts of things we don't wish or else seem rude," said Mrs. Lawton mournfully as they set out for the first dinner. To their growing surprise the bills of fare placed before them at the dinners, although not remarkably varied, were all composed of such dishes as they could both enjoy. "I don't see how you all hit on just the right things when Mr. Lawton and I really are such difficult guests," said Mrs. Lawton in a burst of confidence one afternoon when the neighbors were taking tea with her. The ladies looked at each other, says Youth's Companion, and then one of them spoke: "You know Mary Sloan, who comes to wash for you Tuesday mornings?" she said. "Well, I have her Mondays, and Mrs. Green has her Wednesdays, and she irons for Mrs. Porter Thursdays and scrubs for Miss Comer Fridays, so you see"— Her voice trailed off into silence. But Mrs. Lawton no longer wondered. She "saw."

A Girl Queen's Test.

When Queen Victoria ascended the throne it was considered no reproach for men to drink themselves senseless after dinner. Noblemen of the highest rank joining the ladies after dinner in a state of semi-intoxication apparently created no disgust, and the habit of heavy drinking continued. Frank Hird in "Victoria, the Woman," says that the queen herself ended it, at least as far as the court was concerned.

Girl though she was, Victoria set her face against the practice the moment she became her own mistress and expressed her disapprobation with great tact and skill.

When she went to the drawing room with the ladies after dinner, she remained standing until the gentlemen came into the room. The knowledge that her majesty was standing until the gentlemen left the table made it impossible for them to stay behind longer than the few minutes necessary for the drinking of coffee.

This quiet but significant action of the girl queen had a most beneficial result, and by the time she married society was already beginning to look askance at "one bottle" and "two bottle" men.

Where They Know How to Economize.

At the request of a woman in search of a servant the manager of an employment agency asked each of the girls lined up against the wall if she had ever been employed in a minister's family. None of them had been.

"May I ask why you are particularly anxious to know if these girls have had an engagement of that kind?" asked the manager.

"Because we are very hard up just now," the woman replied, "and I must have a girl who is economical. I have found that of all servants those who have worked in ministers' families know best how to economize."

Easy Trick.

Marshall P. Wilder once showed Alexander Herrmann a new trick at cards. "Alex," said the humorist, "I will tell you the name of a card that you will select in your mind." After a pause he asked, "Now, what is it, Alex?" "The queen of diamonds," answered the magician. "Yes," said Wilder, "that is right." Herrmann stood puzzled for a moment, then smiled and admitted that the laugh was on him.

"WOMEN!"
"Are You Nervous?"

The results of modern civilization are evidenced in an increase of nervous disorders. It could not be otherwise with the way we eat, drink, lose sleep, and keep up a continual round of excitement. The work, the worry, the excitement, all tell upon the nerves till they cry out in revolt, and will not be placated till a remedy such as come along with their nerve-strengthening and energizing properties, and restore them to their normal condition.

MILBURN'S

Mrs. Wm. Levi, Markdale, Ont., writes: "I had for several years been troubled with nervousness, and, like many others, spent lots of money on medicine that did me no good. I was so bad that the least noise would make me jump and my heart would thump so you could hear it plainly and I could not lie on my left side at night. I saw a few testimonials of others and decided to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and to my great joy and surprise they completely cured me and it only took six boxes to do it. I have a neighbor, Mrs. Rickett, and I induced her to try them and they effected a cure. I can endorse their use for anyone afflicted as I was."

Price, 50 cents a box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Multiplicity
gives Economy - on - Cost

Skill and experience develop rapidity in a given grade of work.

Rapidity is the result of concentration and practice—the making of some one thing over and over again—thousands of times by the same person.

Such rapidity is only possible where there is multiplicity enough to dissect the work into oft-repeated units.

It is not possible in Custom Tailoring where each workman completes a whole garment to order.

Semi-ready Tailoring

Semi-ready Clothes are made for 150 stores in one big workshop. Each cost in the making is contributed to by thirty-one tailors—each one of whom has grown skilled and rapid in the making of one particular part of that cost.

The completed garment is made quicker, better and cheaper than a Custom Tailor can make it. And a further result is great economy on cost. Systematic specialism is further protected by giving the wearer the benefit of that economy-on-cost—for the plain price mark is fixed by the Company.

INTERESTING DISCUSSION ON THE DIET QUESTION

highly desirable that further tests of Mr. Fletcher's system should be instituted in a laboratory thoroughly equipped for such an investigation. That investigation has since been undertaken in the scientific school of the University of Yale by Professor Chittenden and with results that have attracted widespread attention. But as the investigation has gone on the centre of interest in respect of it has shifted. The chewing business has become unimportant, except in so far as it diminishes the craving for food, and the momentous question is now, What is the proper daily proteid intake to meet the needs of the human body?

This question Professor Chittenden has dealt with in a manner that is at once painstaking and brilliant, laborious and fascinating. His works on "Physiological Economy and Nutrition" and on "The Nutrition of Man" are much more than a record of personal experience and opinion. They describe an elaborate and extended experimental study in which he has been furthered by grants and facilities given by public bodies and assisted by colleagues of high scientific attainments, and which has been carried on in conditions more favourable than has ever before attended any inquiry into the problems of nutrition. Every observation has been made by an expert and verified by competent witnesses, and the conclusion arrived at is stamped with high authority. And, briefly stated, that conclusion is that the daily amount of proteid or albuminous food required for the maintenance of health and vigour is not more than one-half that hitherto regarded as necessary. Observation upon groups of professional men, army volunteers, university athletes and animals have satisfied Chittenden that for a man weighing seven kilograms or 154 lbs. there would be required daily 50.5 grammes—say sixty grammes—of proteid food to meet all the requirements of the body. "These are," he said, "perfectly trustworthy figures, with a reasonable margin of safety, and carrying perfect assurance of really being more than sufficient to meet the true wants of the body adequate to supply all physiological demands for reserve proteid and able to cope with the erratic requirements of personal idiosyncrasies."

Appeal to the Purse

Apart from personal predilections, these are grounds which would almost induce one to hope that Chittenden's views may prevail. They appeal to the purse. Proteid is the most expensive of foods, and if all our wants can be met by an amount of it one-half that ordinarily consumed, than a satisfactory curtailment of expenditure may be affected. They appeal also to our hopes for the future of humanity.

But, however alluring in some aspects Chittenden's conclusion may be, it conflicts violently with the orthodox physiological faith. It must be noted that his standard of proteid food is not only one-half lower than that of Voit, but is still further below the common practice of the enormous majority of mankind in Europe and America, and that in an argument against it which he has not answered. He points to the triumphs of modern scientific methods in revolutionizing our notions as to the causation of diphtheria and typhoid fever, and suggests that the same methods may equally revolutionize our notions of our dietetic requirements. But there is no analogy between the cases. In the one science is dealing with an accidental and external cause of disease; in the other with an universal and constitutional habit. It is an initial objection to Chittenden's view not easily set aside that it contravenes all human experience. If he is right, then all the work up to this time, with the exception, perhaps, of a few supposed faddists, has been wrong. Gluttony has somehow become universal. It is Chittenden's contramundum.

Needs of the Body

The nutrition of man involves an intelligent appreciation of the needs of the body under different conditions of existence, and constant modifications and adaptation to changing environment, and states of age, activity and health. There is no finality about it. Science has certainly not spoken her last word respecting it, but deep down beneath all superficial fluctuations and gradual evolutions there are certain fundamental instinctive nutritional demands that cannot be interferred with without risk. These are embodied in old-time tradition and customs, and one of these in the demand for a proteid intake, much more than double indeed treble, what Chittenden allow.

It is not on a prior physiological data, not yet on laboratory experiments,—elucidative and educational though these may be—that the science of dietetics is based, but on common observation and on the hereditary customs and habits of mankind. The lower animals select with unerring precision, so long as they are in a natural environment, from the materials around them those best fitted to their wants, and they do this by instinctive discernment inherited from a long line of natural selected ancestors, while they are checked in the consumption by a sense of repletion of co-eval origin. We unhesitatingly infer that the articles they choose are, of all nutrient material accessible to them, those best adapted to the special needs of their economy, and that their consumption of them is proportioned to their needs for the time being. But man is, as regards his bodily functions, subject to the same laws as those which govern the lower animals and we cannot doubt that in the formation of his dietetic habits he has been guided by the same kind of influences which have been operative throughout the animal creation in the choice and consumption of food.

Value of Dietetic Studies

It is obvious that in the study of dietetic customs those most widely disseminated and followed by many races and vast populations are of higher validity than those confined to small communities and further, that the practices of the more successful races and the more affluent classes of a nation are more likely to yield good dietetic models than the practices of the backward races and poorer classes. The former have had greater freedom of choice, and their success in the struggle for existence is evidence of the suitability of their food habits. Now the British race and the races of Western Europe, together with their descendents in different parts of the globe, are on the grounds stated best able to supply us with a body of dietetic customs that may serve as a model, and the salient characteristic of their diet has always and everywhere been its large proteid content. It has invariably consisted of cereal and farinaceous articles, fruit and animal flesh, and the success of the races, their vitality and energy, might almost be measured by the degree in which animal flesh has entered into their diet. All the successful races have habitually consumed proteid far in excess of the Chittenden standard and far in excess of what was required for tissue repair, and when we find a definite relation between proteid consumption and racial success there is good ground for believing that behind it there is biological law.

I know not exactly how things stand now but some years ago it was calculated that the consumption of meat per head per annum was in England 136 pounds, in France 40 pounds, in Russia 35 pounds and in Belgium 84 pounds. It was larger in cities than in rural districts and largest of all in London. But whatever the actual meat consumption may be, in all civilized countries the working classes have, so far as practicable arrived at a tolerably uniform diet. They have all adopted a diet yielding not less than 3,000 calories and 120 grammes of proteid. It is inconceivable that they should all under the most diverse conditions have fallen into the same mistake. Such a unanimity means no mistake, but a physiological discovery. — Sir James Crichton-Browne.

The Wonderful Moosonee Country Where The Natives Roam About In Thousands

First Moosonee and Keewatin Mailbag Comes South—Interesting Story About a Practically Unknown Land.

FASCINATING ARCTIC LIFE

Vancouver, Nov. 7.—(Special). Probably the only copy of the Moosonee and Keewatin Mailbag ever seen south was received a few days ago through the Brunswick (Ga.) postoffice by Percy S. Broughton, a young Englishman, 24 years old. According to the Savannah News correspondent at Brunswick, Mr. Broughton is one of the missionaries in the "Diocese of Moosonee," which extends from the north pole to Ontario and Quebec, and is perhaps the first man from Moosonee to visit the United States, or, at least, the South.

In 1903 Mr. Broughton was wrecked with the bark Lady Head while that vessel was homeward bound with a cargo of skins. The shipwreck was in the Hudson Straits and the young man, left on Chariton Islan made the use of his time that winter doing missionary work among the Indians at the fort of the Hudson Bay Company. A year later he received a call from Bishop Holmes, bishop of the diocese of Moosonee, which embraces a territory of ever 400,000 square miles and to cover which it takes three years for the bishop in his rounds of the stations now in operation.

The Moosonee country has developed some great characters," he says. "It is a pioneer's country indeed, but a country which will soon be open to the public, since the railroad is already within 300 miles of the Hudson Bay headquarters on James Bay. Beyond trapping and hunting and fishing there is nothing for the natives to do. Thousands upon thousands roam about in the Arctic circle knowing no place that they might call home. In fact, on the Lower Savage Island, where we were shipwrecked in 1903 I saw Eskimos who had not seen a vessel for many years. They traded valuable ivory and furs for the most ordinary trinkets. But that is, of course, one of the most northerly points and reached only from England by one of the private whalers, one of which goes out each year to the Hudson Straits to bring in the catch. When one of these whalers is caught in the ice it means that not only do the officials of the company have to wait for another year for their mail, but it often means suffering and privation for the missionaries."

He has a psalm and hymn book written in the Cree language, a written language devised by the late Bishop John Horden, who was known as the Patriarch of the Northwest Indians and Eskimos. The characters are much like those used by stenographers while the 110 letters used in the alphabet form a phonetic language which was taught by Bishop Horden to scores of the younger Indians until to-day there are thousands who not only can read it but can understand the spoken words. Unfortunately, Bishop Horden died before he had completed writing the Bible into the Cree. The prayer-book has been printed in the Cree, while a large part of the New Testament has been published. In the Eskimo the New Testament has been published, also the prayer book, and work on translating the Bible into Eskimo is being pushed.

"There is a fascination about life in the Arctic," says Mr. Broughton. "There is every reason to have encouragement for the missions of Moosonee. Here we have fully 100,000 Indians who up to the coming of the Episcopal missionaries had been taught that the soul of a man passed after death into the form of an animal. The strict rules of the Hudson's Bay Company, forbidding the introduction of liquor has had a good effect. It is true that that company has a monopoly in the way of trading and the Indian is kept in debt from year to year, but that is the custom and he knows no other. Really it is not a matter of debt, but that of an advance. It is called the debt system, for every hunter must owe the Hudson's Bay Company something or he won't go out on his long seven to eight months' hunt. When he comes back in the spring he is not happy until he has spent all the surplus due him, and is again due the company something for the food necessary to carry him through another hunting season.

"It gets cold up around Albany," continued Mr. Broughton. "But it is a dry cold. Forty below is common, and sometimes 50 and 60 is recorded. At Albany we maintain a school. The only railroad station in the diocese is Chapleau, Ont., on the Canadian Pacific. Here we have a school, as also at Moose Fort, Rupert's House, Brunswick House, Mistassinie, Fort George and other points. At Albany we have a boarding school with 40 scholars. At first it was hard to get the Indians to leave their children, but now it is a matter of accommodations, and scores are turned away.

"The Mailbag, which brings me news from the stations, is printed but four times a year. The copy is put up in the form of letters, which are sent to England, where the magazine is printed and sent over the world. I find where I have been in the United States very few who have ever heard of that part of the globe, much less of our largest city, Albany, or even Chapleau, from which point we make what is called the overland trip. Of this, 500 miles are covered by canoe over rapids which can be negotiated only by the most daring Indians. A new feature in 1909 will be a regular vessel to go out once a year from St. John's Newfoundland. This vessel will make life more bearable since it will insure the missionaries mail and supplies once a year.

"The Cree and Ojibway Indians are very much different from the Indians of the United States," said Mr. Broughton, in speaking of the deep religious nature of the inhabitants of that bleak and barren waste. "For instance, the Indian has been told that what the white man does must be all right. As a result we are kept at our wits' ends at times, for the Indian is curious and wants to know why we do certain things a certain way. They will come 200 miles with a child to have it baptized and an equal distance to attend communion. On Christmas and New Year's the Indian sees to it that he is at the fort or station. As to having any fear, that is out of the question. We have no records of a white man being injured by one of these Indians except that the Indian had been attacked. Taking into consideration the advances they have made since 1840, when the late Bishop Horden went out among the tribes and took up the work of teaching them, the cause of the church has not waned. Another great character was Archdeacon Vincent, who at the age of 70 was found planing boards with which to build more mission-houses. He had spent forty-six years among the tribes and had seen the station at Albany grow from the first log hut he had erected with his own hands to seven buildings with a boarding school filled with pupils. He was indeed a patriarch and so greatly was he loved by the Indians that never did one approach him without receiving the expected kiss of greeting."

Mr. Broughton graphically describes life among the Indians and tells many humorous occurrences. One of these as showing the power of faith is new. An old Indian after rubbing his squaw's shoulders and arms and administering the favourite pain killer, the cure-all for all pains, internal and external, was baffled when the woman failed to recover. Finally, taking a prayer book and placing it under his head and then placing a psalm and hymn book on her chest he waited for results. The woman quickly recovered and forever after the Indian was convinced of the power of the prayer book for bodily ills.

CANADIAN MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION HAVE IMPORTANT APPLICATION IN HANDS OF THE RAILWAY COMMISSION WHICH MEETS NEXT WEEK

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—The list for the Railway Commission to meet at Toronto on the tenth inst., is out today, and shows an unusually large number of cases. There are forty applications, so the sitting may take three days or more. Many of them concern Toronto directly, and others pertain to Western Ontario points. Some of them are as follows:

The Preston and Berlin Railway Company is asking permission to cross certain tracks in the town of Waterloo.

The town of Ingersoll, Ont., wants the G. T. R. to provide gates and day and night watchmen at certain crossings. The apportionment of the cost has also to be considered.

The G. T. R. asks authority to construct, maintain and operate certain branch lines of railway or sidings in the city of Hamilton, and crossing certain roadways to the premises of the Hamilton and Toronto Sewer Pipe Company and the Fowlers Canadian Company.

The G. T. R. is complaining regarding the position of certain of the Toronto Electric Light Company's poles east of Scott street, in the city of Toronto.

Toronto City Council is asking that the G. T. R. provide gates and watchman at the crossing at Jameson avenue, Toronto.

J. S. Dignam, of Toronto, is asking for an order directing the Bell Telephone Company to furnish him with a copy of their latest official telephone directory for Canada and the United States.

F. W. Wagenbast is making an application that is rather interesting. He belongs to Brampton, Ontario, and is asking the Board for an order, directing the G. T. R. to issue to him a 55 trip ticket, for use between Brampton and Toronto, similar to those in use between Oakville and Toronto, at the same rate those between Oakville and Toronto are sold—that is $7.15.

The R. Laidlaw Lumber Company, Limited, Toronto, wants the G. T. R. to refund certain switching charges.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association have an application pertaining to the classification of certain lines of goods to be carried; the Retail Coal Dealers' Association want several regulations pertaining to shipping and receiving coal, weighing it, collecting freight, and regulations pertaining to settlements for shortages, while the Boards of Trade at Galt, Preston, Hespeler, Waterloo and Berlin want certain connections made by the C. P. R., the G. T. R. and other railways in the towns mentioned.

The Board's announcement pertaining to regulations as to the transportations of explosives—looked on as a most important question—is likely to be made public before long. A special committee is now dealing with it.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

KING EDWARD VII., BORN NOV. 9th, 1841.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH RETURNING FROM SISTER'S FUNERAL; BROTHER HAD DIED PREVIOUSLY

Two members of a family die—one by drowning, the other from heart disease in consequence of the fatality—and a third on returning from the funeral of the latter is almost killed in a runaway accident. The last mentioned comes nearest home. Mrs. Jos. Whetung, wife of Chief Joseph Whetung, of Chemong, was returning from Peterborough to Chemong a few days ago, having been at the settlement near Keene attending the funeral of her sister, when a runaway occurred in which she received injuries that have confined her to her bed since. She was driving with her nephew, Dan Whetung, Jr., and her son, George Whetung. The former held the reins and leaned over to loosen the martingale when he dropped the lines and was unable to recover them again. Dan was thrown out and also Mrs. Whetung. The little boy clung to the buggy. Dan had to go back a mile or so to secure help and it was found that Mrs. Whetung was severely injured. It is expected that she will soon be around again. Her brother, Thos. Sandy was drowned a short time ago and a sister, Maggie, died from heart failure due to the shock.

OVER $400,000 PAID TO PEOPLE OF DISTRICT AT MEETINGS OF CHEESE BOARD

Figures Which Illustrate the Importance of the Cheese Industry in this Section—Statistics of the Year.

SEASON WAS SUCCESSFUL

During the last season's operations of the Peterborough Cheese Board which held its last meeting of the year on Wednesday, no less than $412,080 has been paid out to those interested in the cheese industry in this section. The figures give some idea of the importance and benefit of the industry when such a large sum of money is put into circulation.

During the season the total number of boxes boarded here was 40,400 and as the average weight per box is 85 pounds, the total weight of the cheese sold here was 3,434,000 pounds which at the average price of 12c. gives the total of $412,080, paid out during the year. The greatest number of boxes boarded at one meeting was 4,874 on July 8th, and the smallest number 979 on May 20, the date of the first meeting. The highest price of the season was reached on Sept. 23rd, when 12 9-16c. was paid, and the lowest was that paid at the first meeting of the board, 10 13-16c.

Thirty-five factories boarded cheese on the Peterbrough factory this year, giving an average of 3,440 boxes of cheese per factory during the season.

The board has had twelve meetings, commencing May 20, and ending last Wednesday, Nov. 4th. The year on the whole has been a most successful one.

HAVE WON 70 FOR GOD

Staff Captain Goodwin and Captain Maisey Conclude Work in Peterborough by Farewell Service on Sunday---They Have Won Many Friends.

FAREWELL TEA HELD ON MONDAY AFTERNOON

On Sunday, Staff-Captain Goodwin and Captain Maisey will conduct their farewell services, concluding their work in Peterborough in charge of the local corps. These officers have won many friends outside the Army and it is expected that large attendances will be present to bid them God speed and to assist in their last services here. They will leave the city sometime during the week, probably next Thursday and will be succeeded by Staff-Captain Walton, of the Temple, Toronto, who will be accompanied by his wife and family.

On Sunday afternoon there will be an enrollment of new members. During the officership of Staff-Capt. Goodwin 70 new members have been added to the permanent roll of the local corps, an indication of the effective work accomplished in the past year.

Farewell Tea

On Monday afternoon a farewell tea will be given by the League of Mercy at 5 o'clock. Brigadier Hargrave will be in the city on Monday for the Thanksgiving Day meetings. He will inspect all the books at a local board meeting, the usual duty before officers depart for new fields. On Wednesday night Adjt. Thorkildron of Port Simpson, B.C., will give a lecture on the mission work of the Army at that Port. He is of Danish descent and with his wife is the only white man among those Indians. He has been engaged in the work some ten or fifteen years and has many curios which he will exhibit while here. He visited the annual congress at Toronto recently and in visiting corps in this province before returning. He will give his address in Indian costume.

SOME MYSTERIOUS STRANGER ATTEMPTS DARING HOLD-UP IN OTONABEE LAST NIGHT

Considerable excitement prevailed along the River Road, Otonabee, last night between the Locks Bridge and McMartinville, when some uncouth stranger, purported to belong to the "tramp" genealogy, attempted the hold-up of a youth on a bread wagon. He appeared in the community about the time the sombre shades of night were falling and immediately set out to secure his evening meal. Calling at several of the houses he was successful in this regard, but this did not satisfy his mind. He wanted money, and with a huge stick as a weapon, attempted the hold-up of young Grady, who was delivering bread in Otonabee among his customers. The youth was accosted in a threatening manner by the unknown who demanded his money. The former, however, was too quick for the hold-up man. In a moment he had the horse off on a gallop, and soon had gone beyond reach of his pursuer.

Otonabee residents state that several threatening-looking individuals have recently been observed in that township, and it is probable a crusade may be waged against them.

Directors And Officers Of New Company Are Elected

The directors of the F. R. J. MacPherson Company, Limited, which has recently been formed, have been elected. The officers and directors of this new company are: President, F. R. J. MacPherson; vice-president, Wm. Rudkins; secretary-treasurer, A. J. MacPherson; directors, G. N. Gordon and William Young.

First Spoil Of The Chase Comes From Northern Woods

Some Peterborough citizens will dine on venison to-morrow. To-day a number of the antlered monarchs of the forest were seen in the city for the first time this season and as it was a twelve-month since anybody saw similar game, everybody noticed them. The Gladman-Ray party which is hunting this year, expressed seven handsome animals to Mr. Martin McFadden, who was a former member of the club. They certainly attracted attention.

Several Letters Received Opposing Choir Entertainment

The Examiner has received several letters opposing the idea of the civic entertainment of the Sheffield Choir—opposing it on the principle that—the funds of the city are needed for civic enterprises and that the expenditure would be unfair to the great bulk of the ratepayers. The demands on the Examiner's space are too great to permit of the use of the letters to-day, but the foregoing summary fairly epitomizes their spirit.

RESULTS OF DRY WEATHER

Farmer Forced to Carry Water Ten Miles For His Cattle---Wells and Creeks Go Dry From Lack of Rain in East Ontario.

MORE WORK FOR FARMERS

Forced to carry water ten miles for his cattle, pigs and horses in the unwelcome and unpleasant results of the scarcity of rain to a farmer living in one of the eastern townships. His wells are dry and also a creek that formerly ran through a nearby field. Water is a scarcity on his farm and to provide it for the animals he had to drive to a lake a distance of ten miles, using a water waggon of a threshing machine outfit.

TRAMPLED ON BY A HORSE

Little Boy Returning to House of Providence From School Injured by Reckless Driver ---Carried Home in Unconscious Condition.

THE DRIVER LENDS NO AID

Yesterday evening between four and five o'clock, Leo Montgomery, a twelve-year-old youth, who lives at the House of Providence, was run over by a vehicle and rather seriously injured. He was returning home from St. Peter's school when the accident occurred. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried to the House of Providence, where his injuries were dressed by Dr. Gallivan. It was found that his face was cut and his legs badly bruised but no serious results are anticipated.

The fact that the driver, which kindly is unknown, drove on without investigating the damage he had done or offering assistance, caused a feeling of indignation among those who witnessed the accident.

DOCTOR'S HORSE RAN AWAY AFTER GOING OVER TWENTY-FIVE MILES

It is not often that a horse runs away after going twenty-five miles, but such was the case with an equine belonging to a local doctor a few days ago. The M. D. had been spending a few days at Stony Lake and drove in from Crowe's Landing. All went well until he reached Irwin's hill, in East City, when the animal suddenly bolted and although the doctor could not check its flight he managed to control it so that he steered the horse through East City, over the bridge and straight along Hunter street to the Conservatory of Music where it was stopped.

Horse Supposed To Be Ill Got Up And Followed Cart Home

A laughable incident occurred on Rogers street the other day, when a carter's horse proved himself as big a fraud as many human beings. Apparently it became ill and fell over as if its last day had come. A veterinary surgeon was called and attended it, and the carter went home and got another horse, returning to find his first steed in practically the same condition. The "vet" told him to leave the horse for awhile and it would probably be around all right. The carter started to drive away, when to the amusement of the bystanders, the animal rose on all four feet and ran down the street after its companion and followed the carter home.

Peterborough Musician Speaks Highly Of The Sheffield Choir

Mr John Crane attended the second concert of the Sheffield Choir in Massey Hall last night. When interviewed this morning Mr. Crane remarked, "I cannot speak too highly of the work of the Sheffield Choir, their singing is characterized by all that is lofty and inspiring in music. As one voice they sing, guided by a conductor who makes for only one standard, and that, perfection. In dynamic power and fervent utterance this choir excells my highest expectations. Massey Hall was crowded, every seat having been sold for the cycle of their concerts.

"The Peterborough people may expect a great treat next Thursday. The soloists are very fine."

Novel Entertainment At The Social Of The Inthons

The Inthon's Social, held in the Sunday School of the George Street Methodist Church last night, was a big success. About one hundred ladies and gentlemen were present. Before the entertainment started a card was handed to each one, on which was printed a letter contained in some vegetable. The idea of this was to get the ladies and gentlemen mixed up in groups, containing as many as there were letters in the various vegetables. At about 8.15 the social was opened amid the excitement of all looking for the complement of their little societies.

The Inthon's orchestra and quartette were on hand and rendered some very choice selections and a most enjoyable time was the result.

"All The Comforts of Home" Company May Give The Production In Lindsay

Arrangements may be made to take the local cast which this week gave such a clever presentation of Wm. Gillette's sparkling four-act comedy "All the Comforts of Home" to Lindsay in the near future. The Lindsay Rugby Club is anxious to have the company appear there under their auspices, having been most favourably impressed with the work of the company as shown here. It is quite possible that the visit will be made, although at present nothing definite in the way of arrangements has been done.

Distances On Kawartha Lakes, Otonabee River And Southern Waters That People Want To Know When Summer Time Arrives

Judging distances is an art perfected by a few. Especially is this the case on water and those who have voyaged on any of the waters of the Kawartha chain will readily recall to memory the scores of occasions upon which they have been hailed by the "tenderfoot" with the query, on this tongue "how far is it between those two places?" Experience teaches many but still the majority forget what they have been told. The Examiner, to make matters more simple and to stop the everlasting questioner, has secured some distances which can be relied upon and which have often formed the medium of conversation and argument.

The distances given below refer to points on the upper lakes, Otonabee River and the southern waters of the Trent Canal. They have been prepared by exact measurements or from maps drawn accurately to a scale by members of the Trent Canal office, and can therefore be relied upon as authentic. If you're not going skating this winter cut out the following list, preserve it for next summer and eliminate the customary interrogations that so often irritate your travelling companions. The distances are figured along the best channels as nearly as possible. They are:—

Otonabee River

Wolte street wharf to lower end of lock, 1.41 miles.

Lower end of lock to Crawford's Grove, 1.36 miles.

SIMPSON QUOTED AT 4-1 IN BETTING; COLEY FAVOURITE IN HAMILTON RACE

Montreal, Nov. 7.—Great interest is being taken in the Hamilton Bay race on Monday, and Hamiltonians have already started their betting operations. Tom Coley is a warm favorite. The feeling being that if Coley is right he should have no trouble in winning. The prices of the first five are:

Coley	8—5 3—5
Parsons	5—2 even
Holmer	4—5 even
Simpson	4—5 even
Pearce	6—1 2—1

The race is looked upon as a bad one to dope out, Coley, Parsons and Simpson are regarded as having a royal chance. It is thought that the distance is a little too far for Holmer, who is expected to stop when he strikes the hard ground from the 15-mile post home. Claude Pearce is being watched closely as he is considered to have a chance.

That Coley is just about right is well known. The little chap has made some excellent trials recently, covering the course in 1.51 on his last trial. Potter, a local boy, with a good trial of 1.57 the first time out, is expected to show something.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The setting apart of a day of national thanksgiving, may not accomplish the idea behind such a day in a religious sense, but it is a national recognition of the Divine Authority that rules in the affairs of men. It is a peculiarly domestic affair, truly Canadian and as such should be distinctively observed. The claims of patriotism in this regard are all the more deeply emphasized by the fact that our Thanksgiving Day is synchronous with the King's birthday. For these reasons Canadian Thanksgiving Day should be distinctively Canadian. There is a disposition to confuse the Canadian Thanksgiving Day with a similar occasion in the United States; to give it features characteristic of the latter and more or less slavishly use the "trade marks" belonging to the national day of a foreign country. Thanksgiving Day in Canada is, or should be, what its name implies—a holyday instead of a mere holiday—a day devoted to national expressions of gratitude for the Providential bounty of the past year. What have Canadians to do with the turkey and pumpkin pie exploitation of our neighbours who make their Thanksgiving a purely secular holiday almost, if not entirely, disassociated from religious sentiment? Let us be distinctive and original, not slavish imitators of conditions that can have to us, as Canadians, no significance. Let our Thanksgiving Day be that and nothing more. It should not be allowed to displace to any extent as has been done in the United States our great and supremer festival, Christmas. We have abundant reason for thankfulness, we have peace in all our borders, not peace as contrasted with contention with foreign foes but peace at home, harmony among the diverse elements of our population. We have successfully passed through a crisis which threatened to divide Canadians on racial and religious lines. We have shown ourselves to be all Canadians, all united in one great common aim to advance the greatness of Canada and make it honoured, respected and cherished as the home of the homeless, if not as in potentiality; to work out our destiny unobstructed by internecine strife. We are thus left free to direct the national ambition to the development of our material resources under conditions that comport with the highest ideals of Christian civilization.

ROUND THE WORLD CABLE SERVICE.

Facility of communication has as large importance in its way as facility of transportation in stimulating commercial activity. Recognising this the Liberal Government of Canada brought about a reduction of postal rates both domestic and inter-Imperial with most beneficial effects and with no impairment, but in fact, with a great increase, of revenue. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster General, is now in Great Britain on an important mission, the endeavour to bring about a reduction in cable rates. At the recent conference of Colonial Premiers in London, the idea was indorsed by all of a chain of telegraphic cables serving all the chief colonies and the feasibility and importance of the proposal has been heartily accepted. The Australian Chamber of Commerce has affirmed "the unspeakable importance of a system of state-owned telegraphs, and cable lines, connecting all the several portions of His Majesty's Dominions." At the fifth congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the pire held in Montreal in March, 1903, a resolution was adopted affirming the desirability of all the self-governing colonies of the Empire being united by a continuous chain of state-owned telegraphs; and Sir Sanford Fleming regards such or similar conditions as a necessary element in Imperial unity. He thinks that till a state-owned cable is laid under the Atlantic and a system adopted for the transmission of messages across Canada to Australia and other colonies, and a low and uniform rate prevails, the ideal conditions will not have been secured. According to an estimate made by Sir Sandford, the cost of a system of state-owned cables would be about $25,000,000. The Government at Ottawa is understood to have in its possession data which go to show that if such a system were placed under the Dominion postoffice department, calculated at the low rate of 5 cents a word the immediate traffic that could be counted on would be sufficient to meet operating expenses, interest and sinking fund. The present rate is 25 cents per word, and even a reduction to one-half that figure would result in popularizing the use of the cable and incidentally prove of great advantage to Canada and all parts of the Empire. The success of Hon. Mr. Lemieux's mission will be a matter of interest to all Canadians, and the success of the Dominion Government in dealing with the postal problem with such brilliant results is an encouraging augury that Canada will lead in bringing about the great imperial desideratum, a world-round girdle of British-owned telegraph cables operated at popular rates and not only with a profit, in the matter of operation but with the result, not only of further uniting the various units of the Empire but of developing a tremendously increased inter-imperial trade.

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY.

Whether the selection of the King's Birthday as Thanksgiving Day was merely coincident or purpose, the combination is a happy one for whatever may be the reason for national gratitude, the fact that sixty-seven years ago King Edward was born of Queen Victoria, makes his birthday a significant occasion. While Queen Victoria was a pattern both as a woman and a monarch, the King has been a worthy successor. A great ruler of a great Empire, he has been more than a beneficent territorial influence. His sway has been continental, for no wearer of a crown in history has done more to keep the nations of Europe in the paths of peace than King Edward. That such a monarch rules is a cause for thankfulness and a justification of synchronising Thanksgiving Day and the King's Birthday. Therefore from grateful hearts the world over should rise the prayer,

GOD SAVE THE KING.

FOREST SCHOOLS.

Two schools of forestry are now in operation in Canada. Of these, that at the University of Toronto is the older. This was inaugurated in the autumn of 1907. It is a distinct Faculty of the University and has a staff of one professor, two lecturers and an assistant.

The head of the school and dean of the faculty of forestry is Dr. B. E. Fernow. He is German by training, a graduate of the celebrated forest school at Muenden, and has also studied at the University of Koenigsberg. He has, however, been a resident of this continent for over thirty years, was for twelve years (from 1886 to 1898) chief of the Division of Forestry of the United States Department of Agriculture, after which he was head of the New York State College of Forestry, connected with Cornell University, from 1898 to 1903. After several years passed as consulting forest engineer, he organized the Department of Forestry at the Pennsylvania State College, and thence came directly to the University of Toronto to organise the faculty of forestry in that university.

The course at the University of Toronto is an undergraduate one, requiring four years of study. It leads to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Forestry (B.S.V.) with the post-graduate degree of Forest Engineer, (F.E.), after at least three years practical work.

The University of New Brunswick, at Fredericton, N. B., also offers a four year undergraduate course in forestry, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Forestry (B. S.F.). The course was inaugurated at the beginning of the present session (1908-09). The professor in charge is Mr. R. B. Miller, M.A., M.F., a graduate of the Yale Forest School, one of the leading forestry schools on the continent.

In the Province of Quebec steps are also being taken to establish a school of forestry. Courses of study in forestry or preparatory to forestry are also offered by various other universities and agricultural colleges.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Commercial statistics relating to Canada, show distinct general trade improvement since the middle of the year.

If, as is the case the construction trains of the G. T. P. on the line from Winnipeg westward, are doing much to encourage the settlement on farms in the district traversed, what may we not expect from the completed and fully operated line?

Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, is the most modest of monarchs. Witness that he supplied the plan of campaign that permitted the British to beat the Boers in South Africa. It should be put down to his credit also that he organized Col. Sam Hughes and the Canadian contingents.

Next spring will see the completion of the Canadian Pacific double track between Winnipeg and Port Arthur, and the completion of a second line from the capital of Manitoba to the capital of Saskatchewan. This enlargement of the "sprout" will tend to relieve the congestion of the western hoppers, which however will continuously grow in size and volume of contents.

Some newspapers are inclined to be sarcastic over the fact, which, by the way, they assume that since the elections, we hear no more of rural mail delivery being installed. Yesterday's despatches tell of a new route being installed in Northumberland County. It takes some time to manufacture the boxes necessary to the operation of the system. These cheaply sarcastic journals should exercise a little patience. Though some departments of administration may not be as successfully conducted as others, the post office department is the last that can be girded at. Rural mail delivery will come in good time.

A PESTIFEROUS GERM

Burrows up the Scalp into Dandruff and Saps the Hair's Vitality

People who complain of falling hair as a rule do not know that it is the result of dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite burrowing up the scalp as it digs down to the sheath in which the hair is fed in the scalp. Before long the hair root is shriveled up and the hair drops out. If the work of the germ is not destroyed the hair keeps thinning till baldness comes. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ, and till now there has been no hair preparation that would do it, but to-day dandruff is easily eradicated by Newbro's Herpicide, which makes hair glossy and soft as silk. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes — 50c and $1. McDermid & Jury and Payne's Drug Store, special agents.

OPEN BARS AND THANKSGIVING

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The law of the land requires that hotel bars be closed on polling days in municipal, Provincial and Dominion elections. Why is this done? For the purpose of cutting off the influences which interfere with sober and intelligent use of the ballot. Then, logically, why not close the bars on Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day. If the open bar is a corrupting influence in politics, if it interferes with a proper exercise of the franchise, is it not a similar obstruction to the proper and reverend observance of days like Thanksgiving and Christmas, both sacred in their object and essence? Is religion less important than politics? Why should we not have laws to close bars on these days? Why not recognise the baneful influence on the holy days mentioned as well as on polling day? If their influence is evil on the latter day, why is it not evil on Thanksgiving and Christmas days? If their influence is evil on these days, why not close them on all days?

Yours, etc.,
WHITE RIBBON.

Latest News Of The Fruit Situation At The Present Time

From The Canadian Dairyman.

There has been little change in the fruit situation in Ontario since last week. Packers seem to be having difficulty in getting the quality that they expected in their packs. In spite of earlier predictions of a large, clean crop, the amount of really fancy fruit is limited. In some districts, all the high grade fruit is already absorbed or disposed of. Apples in the orchard have been sold at prices ranging from 75 cents to $1 a barrel. A correspondent in Welland County writes: Apples, though not a large crop, were bought from 75 cents to $1 a barrel." A report from Brant County states: "Nearly all the apples have been gathered and sold at from $1 to $1.25 a barrel." Owing to the ravages of codling moth and fungous diseases this season, packers should pay particular attention to grading. While it may seem possible at time of packing to place a few blemished or fungus-spotted apples in the barrel, they are almost sure to develop considerably and to cause much waste before reaching the export market. The following reports from our correspondents indicate the general condition of things throughout the province:

ONTARIO COUNTY, ONT.

Oshawa.—Apples are nearly all picked. Snows and some Greenings are scabby. Most winter apples are good, of fine size and well colored. Fameuse apples have been very unsatisfactory to handle owing to the hot weather Prices have taken an upward bound and we hope they will continue to do so. Buyers paid $1.25 a bbl. on the tree for a few lots. The average price was $1.—E. L.

HALTON COUNTY, ONT.

Oakville.—The dry weather has shortened the crop and fruit on the trees has developed scab during the past two weeks. The sample has been better than last year. Apples picked in orchard are selling for $1.25 a bbl Spys are scarce. Apples have been picked and shipped before properly matured, which has injured the Old Country market. I think that there is a good future for good apples.—W. H. M.

LINCOLN COUNTY, ONT.

St. Catharines.—Fruit prices, especially for fruit for general consumption, have been fairly satisfactory but while lower than during the last two years, there have been no slumps or sacrifice prices. Peaches have sold for good prices, bringing more than the factory price of three cents. Grapes in baskets have brought from $25 to $30 a ton. Pears have averaged 35 cents a basket, except the Kiefers. The factories do not appear to want these and consequently the price will be low. Apple prices are stiffening. No. 1's bringing $2.50 and No. 2's, $2. The season on the whole has been good.—E. T.

BRANT COUNTY, ONT.

New Durham.—The apple situation is not very satisfactory. The weather has been hot and dry and has caused a large amount of dropping. The Greenings have gone bad with mildew. We have packed some of the finest Baldwins that I have ever seen. The Baldwins and Russets are the best of all varieties. There is no change in prices, the crop being now in the dealers' hand. $1 a bbl. is the price paid on all sides. We are shipping our own. Our crop is 25 per cent. of last year.—B. J. P.

GREY COUNTY, ONT.

Owen Sound.—We have had an abundant crop of fall fruit of good quality and have handled some 6,000 bbls. through our association. We realized from $1.60 to $2 a bbl., f.o.b. here. We also have a fair crop of winter apples. The quality is good but the codling moth has done considerable damage in unsprayed orchards. We will handle from 5,000 to 8,000 bbls. of winter apples at prices ranging from $1.85 to $2.75 f.o.b. These are principally shipped to the western markets. The hot dry weather in the latter part of September ripened the fruit rather quickly, although little or no damage resulted from it.—A. B.

NORFOLK COUNTY, ONT.

Simcoe.—The apple crop will fall short of early expectations owing to the hot, dry weather. Our pack will be around 15,000 bbls.—J. E. J.

LAMBTON COUNTY, ONT.

Forest.—The fruit business is practically closed for this year. Our association has had a good crop of apples, which were sold for $2.50 for No. 1's and $2 for No. 2's, f.o.b. Forest. We did not care to hold apples and speculate on winter markets as so many working people out of employment will be disastrous to the fruit trade.—D. J.

Canadian Cheese Sold In England 3 Or 4c. Cheaper Than In Canada

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Cable reports last week announced that the big Lipton stores located in the leading cities of Great Britain, had reduced the prices of Canadian cheese to the consumer to 6¼d (13c). This means that Canadian cheese will be retailed over the counter to individual customers at 13c, or from 3c to 4c a lb. cheaper than this same cheese is sold retail in Toronto. In fact Toronto wholesale dealers in cheese are quoting Canadian cheese to the retailer at the present time at 13c to 13½c a lb. for large and 13¾c to 13¾c for twins. Before the Liptons' stores made the reduction Canadian cheese was selling over the counter in England at 7¼d (15c) a lb. This figure is below what retailers here charge for cheese and shows the smaller margin of profit the middleman in the Old Land gets as compared with what he gets in Canada.

A few issues ago in discussing the home market for cheese we pointed out that the consumer in Great Britain could buy Canadian cheese cheaper than the consumer in Canada could. The above figures bear this out. Is there any good reason why it should be so? The Canadian middleman will tell you that Canadians are not cheese eaters and buy in such small quantities and so infrequently that he cannot afford to sell cheese at the same margin of profit the middleman in the Old Country is content to charge. This may be true. On the other hand is it not equally true, that one of the reasons why Canadians do not buy and consume more cheese is that the price at which it is retailed is too high? If the retailer in Canada would sell cheese at the same price that the retailer in England does, and he should be able to sell it cheaper, there would be an increase in the consumption of cheese here. Why should the Canadian consumer have to go 3,000 miles from home to get the best bargains in Canadian cheese?

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. T. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club for November 8, 1903, are:

David Grieves for Absalom. II Sam. 18.

Golden Text: A foolish son is a grief to his father. Prov. 17: 25.

Verses 1-3 — Is there any hope for success in the ordinary affairs of life, or war as in war, without system and thorough organization?

How much of the success of this country depends upon our national leaders?

Verses 3-4 — Should a general in war, or a leader in any cause, personally expose himself in the danger line?

If a man courts martyrdom for the truth, is it either right or in the interests of the truth?

Was David right in wanting to personally conduct this war, or were the leaders right in persuading him not to go so?

Verse 5 — Was it right and according to the mind of God, for David to command that no harm be done to such an arch traitor as Absalom?

When people sympathize with criminals and try to shield them from justice, is it a maudlin sympathy or true Christian love?

Verses 6-8—Has war, upon the whole, been a blessing or a curse to mankind?

Is war ever right, except as a necessary means for obtaining peace?

Was David to be blamed or praised for this war?

Describe the horrors of this war, and compare them with the unspeakable horrors of the possible wars of the future, and then say if future wars will, or will not, brand their authors as worse criminals than the traitorous Absalom?

Verse 9 — Was it accidental or providential for Absalom to be caught by the head in this oak tree?

Are there any accidents in the life of a true Christian?

Is there any reasonable expectation that the wicked will not, finally, bring destruction upon themselves?

Verses 10-12—What can you say for or against the reasoning of this man, who found Absalom hanging on the tree and refused to kill him?

As between our souls and God, should we obey, or disobey, those in authority, when we know their commands are against the will of God, as in the present case?

Should we obey God, rather than man, even at the risk of our lives?

Is it noble, or ignoble, to let personal profit influence us in matters of right and wrong?

Verses 14-17 — Notwithstanding the command of the king to the contrary, was Joab right in slaying Absalom?

When the leader in a bad cause is destroyed, does it generally stop the rebellion, as in this case?

Is it possible for an ignoble life to have a noble ending, or a noble life to have an ignoble ending? What is the record of history?

Verse 18 — Should a truly good man ever be concerned as to what posterity will say of him, or personally cause any monument to be erected to his memory?

Barring exceptions, is it generally a disgrace, or otherwise, for a man to die having no children?

What is generally the end of a self-centred prond life?

Verses 19-23 — Ahimaaz was a priest: should priests or preachers take any active part in political affairs?

In carrying important tidings, either good or bad, to our friends, what rules should govern us? Is it wise to tell the whole blunt truth at once?

Did Ahimaaz, the young priest, tell the truth, and was he to be blamed or praised?

If a preacher or a priest defends a creed which he knows to be untrue, can his word be trusted in other matters? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the Club.)

Verse 33 — What can you say, for or against, the pathetic grief of this heart broken father, at the death of his worse than worthless son?

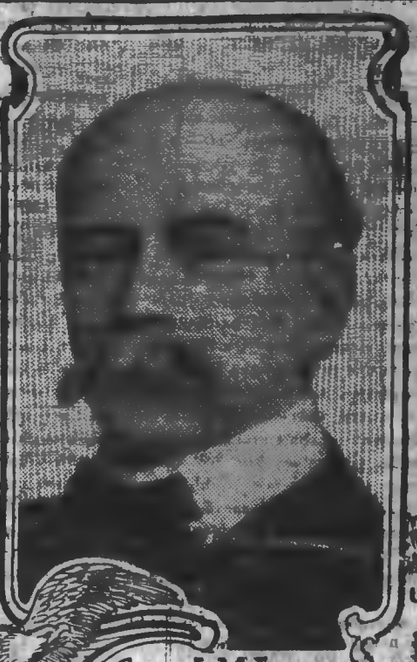
AMERICAN OFFICERS OF HIGH RANK AND OTHERS ENDORSE PE-RU-NA.

Prominent People Recommend the Remedy, Pe-ru-na.

Dr. Hartman's World Renowned Catarrh Medicine.



Gen. A. M. Legg.

Recommends Pe-ru-na to the Afflicted.

Brig. Gen. D. T. Kirby, Washington, D.C., writes concerning Peruna, as follows:

"Friends of mine having used your Peruna catarrh cure with good results, I am impressed with its curative qualities, and can recommend it to those who are afflicted."

Used Pe-ru-na—Satisfied as to its Merits—Recommends it to All Sufferers.

Gen. E. S. Yoder, 209 Md. Ave., N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I desire to say that I have found Peruna to be a wonderful remedy. I only used it for a short time and was thoroughly satisfied as to its merits. I shall gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

A Remedy for the Grip.

Gen. W. H. Parsons, 925 H St., N. W., Washington, D. C., writes as follows:

"Upon the recommendation of personal friends and many strong testimonials to the efficacy of Peruna in the treatment of the numerous symptoms of the grip with which I have been afflicted for four months past, I have been induced to undergo a treatment of this justly celebrated formula.

"I feel a decided change for the better by its use for one week only, especially in toning up the stomach, and a consequent decided effect upon my appetite.

"I therefore feel much encouraged that I am on the road to complete restoration.

"My numerous friends in Texas, where I have had the honor to command a brigade of her veteran cavalry in a four-year war, may accept this voluntary testimonial to the merit of Peruna from a sense of obligation for its wonderful efficacy."

Pe-ru-na a Good Tonic.

Gen. M. C. Butler, of South Carolina, writes from Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble.

"I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved.

"It is indeed a wonderful medicine, and besides a good tonic."

Colds in the Head and Throat.

Chas. W. Bowman, 1st Lieut. and Adjt. 4th M. S. M. Cav. Vols., writes from Lanham, Md., as follows:

"Though somewhat averse to patent medicines, and still more averse to becoming a professional affidavit man, it seems only a plain duty in the present instance to add my experience to the columns already written concerning the curative powers of Peruna.

"I have been particularly benefited by its use for colds in the head and throat.

"I have been able to fully cure myself of a most severe attack in forty-eight hours by its use according to directions.

"I use it as a preventive whenever threatened with an attack.

"Members of my family also use it for like ailments.

"We are recommending it to our friends."

Usefulness of Pe-ru-na.

Peruna brings to the home the combined knowledge of several schools of medicine in the treatment of catarrhal diseases, the scientific skill and knowledge of the pharmacist, and the vast and varied experience of Dr. Hartman himself in the use of catarrhal remedies.

For Catarrh of the Stomach.

Gen. W. W. Duffield, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I have used Peruna in my family and have found it a valuable medicine and take pleasure in recommending it to all who suffer from catarrh of the stomach or who require a tonic of prompt efficacy."

When Other Remedies Failed Pe-ru-na Proved Efficacious.

Hon. Geo. W. Honey, National Chaplain, U. V. U., Ex-Chaplain 4th Wisconsin Cavalry, Ex-Treas. State of Wisconsin and Ex-Quartermaster General State of Texas G. A. R., writes from 1700 First street, N. E., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I cannot too highly recommend your preparation for the relief of catarrhal troubles in their various forms.

"Some members of my own family have used it with most gratifying results.

When other remedies failed, Peruna proved most efficacious and I cheerfully certify to its curative excellence."

Pe-ru-na a Standard Treatment for Catarrhal Diseases.

Mr. John C. Nelson, Dayton, Texas, geologist and mining engineer, while a Captain in the Federal Army during the Civil War, contracted a case of rheumatism. This malady was constant and persistent, inducing the development of other ailments, which also became chronic. After taking a course of Peruna, Captain Nelson writes:

"Having been painfully afflicted with chronic rheumatism and the adjunctive complications for many years, and after having received many general and special treatments with only temporary relief, I read your scientific treatise on catarrhal diseases.

"At my request you prescribed a special course of the Peruna remedies, which I closely followed, and am happy to report that my rheumatism and complicated ailments are subdued, and I feel young again at the age of 69 years.

"Reason will accept your classification of catarrhal diseases as scientific and true, and the Peruna remedies as a standard treatment for them. I thank you heartily for your skilled and logical advice."

Regained Health and Strength.

Mr. Fred P. Allen, Special Agent for Fidelity & Casualty Co., 320 Hibernia Bank Building, New Orleans, La., writes:

"About two years ago I was troubled with bronchitic asthma, and was treated by the best physicians in our city, but receiving no benefit from them, I began to despair lest I should not recover.

"I wrote to Dr. Hartman and he prescribed for me. By faithfully following his directions, in six months I was cured of the asthma and the cough had disappeared entirely. I regained my health and strength, and the twenty-five pounds which I had lost, and am thankful to say that I am as well as ever."

For free book of testimonials address The Peruna Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

DEAFNESS CAUSED BY CATARRH—RELIEVED BY PE-RU-NA.

Gen. A. M. Legg writes from the Savings Bank Building, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I take pleasure in endorsing the many recommendations I have heard and read of Peruna, because of having had knowledge of the truth of so many of them.

"We always tell our sick and ailing friends of the remedies that we have learned, from experience, were good for us when ailing in the same way, and we do it as a duty we feel that we owe them.

"Why is it any the less our duty to advise all the people we can when we know of a good and comparatively inexpensive remedy that makes many cures, and benefits in almost all cases?

"My own little personal experience of being relieved of deafness, caused by a siege of catarrh, warrants me in advising all the afflicted to just try Peruna."

For Kidney Trouble, Coughs, Colds and Catarrh.

Gen. A. F. Hawley, 1326 35th St., N W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I have used Peruna and find it very beneficial for kidney trouble, and especially good for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."

Indigestion and Nervousness.

Gen. George B. Williams, whose Washington address is 2121 Bancroft Place, writes: "I have been for many years a great friend of Peruna. It has always helped me wonderfully. I can recommend it for indigestion and nervousness without any qualifications. I am always in possession of a supply of this medicine, and, when required, freely use it."

Some Pointers On How To Carve The Turkey On Thanksgiving Day

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Not a bone of the bird should be scratched by the knife or touched by the fork. Take off the joints, slice the breast and cut out the oyster pieces, and the carving-knife will not so much as rub against a bone.

The knife should be sharp to begin with, and, by the way, the one who attempts to cut up a fowl with a dull blade is not fit to eat a Thanksgiving dinner.

Place the Turkey on One Side

Place the turkey, on one side, and secure the leg and second joint with fork. With one stroke put the knife beneath it in such a position that when raised the path of the knife will clear the point completely from the bird and separate the ligaments, with the bone showing firm and appearing without blemish. There is no flesh left on the bird that should have come off in the carving.

The Proper Placing of the Knife

The next move is toward the wing. Get a good hold on that with the fork, then with the knife placed carefully beneath it, lift the fork slowly and firmly while the knife does its work well.

The taking off of the joints is the most important part of the carving.

A Clean Cut

A carver can spoil a dinner by not knowing his business. He can make everybody feel uncomfortable and sorry they came, or he can take away their appetite by letting the bird flop in a greasy trail half over the platter or seem perilously near landing in the guest of honor's lap. He must have science and patience and be a graceful subject or he will surely be a laughable one. If he will do as shown here, there will be no more grumbling over "tough joints," or sawing and pulling at bones while blaming the tools.

To slice the breast, lay the turkey on its back and put the fork in. Then above the wing cut through the thickness of the breast so when sliced the pieces fall off abruptly. Cut them very thin and remove all the meat with the utmost care. When it is all done it is arranged about the platter so the mister of giving each guest what he or she fancies is a most simple one.

The real test of every carver is in removing the oyster piece. You will see it is whole and comes out with one stroke of the knife, leaving the bone without a fragment of covering and with nothing to show a knife has been near the surface. The other side, of course, gets the same sort of treatment, and the bird is stripped.

Women as well as men ought to know how to cut up a turkey properly, and they cannot begin to learn too young. Frequently the choice bits are left on the carcass. Ignorance is always wasteful, and the man who says he does not know one part of a turkey from another ought to learn it, and in the meantime he should let his wife handle the knife and fork.

In the beginning, poor carving is ignorance; if persisted in it is thoughtlessness, and at last it becomes downright selfishness. In carving you cannot assume virtues you do not possess. Knowledge comes only from practise and patience. A little thing like cutting up a turkey may not strike you as being worth so much consideration; but if you will carve your Thanksgiving bird like this you will find that you have contributed greatly to the success of the dinner.

CONSUMPTION'S STARTING POINT

Is in Weak, Watery Blood—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make the Blood Rich and Red.

Bloodlessness is the starting point of consumption. When your blood is thin and watery your whole health declines. Your face grows pale, your appetite fails and your heart jumps and flutters at the least exertion or excitement. You are always weak and wretched and lose interest in everything. This is the point from which you may easily step into that hopeless decline that leads to consumption and the grave. What is actually needed to bring back health and strength and energy is the new rich blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. In all the world there is no other tonic medicine like them, and all who feel weak and easily tired should take these Pills at once, and regain new health.

Miss Ada Burke, The Range, N. B., says:—"I feel that I cannot say too much in favour of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In March, 1907, I was attacked with whooping cough which clung to me for several months, and when the cough disappeared I was left weak and run down. All summer I was ailing, but when the autumn came I seemed to be completely worn out. For a whole month I never moved outside the house, and could scarcely walk about the house I was so weak. I had no appetite, my colour was a greenish yellow. I had severe headaches and would be almost breathless at the least exertion. I took several bottles of medicine, but it did not help me, and then my mother got me three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, when I had used them I was much better, and by the time I had taken another three boxes I was again enjoying the best of health, with a hearty appetite, good colour and renewed energy.'

If you want new health and new strength try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a fair use of this medicine will not disappoint you. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Thanksgiving

On Monday next Canadians will observe a day of Thanksgiving; it will be variously observed in hunting, in sport, in worship and feasting—none of these forbidden if the right spirit is cherished, while the spirit of thanksgiving cannot be established in one invariable way, yet the form of feasting has Scriptural warrant. In all ages feasting has been the most general form of rejoicing. We can show our gratitude by heartily feasting, but always in grateful spirit— upon the bounties divine Providence has supplied. A good housewife is always gratified to see her guests eat with enjoyment of the good things she has made ready. The greatest sacrament ever ordained originated in a feast and took on its symbolism therefrom. The loaf on our table at our home feasts is a type of the broken loaf on the table of the Lord; this is a noble type of the community that obtains in the realm of society, the community of interdependence and co-operation. It is said the farmer feeds us all; this is only true in a limited and particular sense, as suggested in a beautiful passage of "Un Philosophe sous les Toits". While the farmer turns up the fecund soil to provide us our daily bread, he is not working alone. Far away the artisan in the city weaves the clothing that covers him; the miner in his subterranean shaft seeks the iron for his ploughshare; the soldier guarantees him toil in peace; the judge on the bench turns the law to his protection; the government regulates the relations of his particular interest with the general interest; the man of commerce occupies himself in exchanging the farmer's products with those of distant lands; the scientist and the scholar, the dreamer and the inventor contribute their share to this magnificent equipment, which, with the blessing of heaven, brings from the soil meats for the use of man and, which working with a perhaps unrecognized harmony, unrealized community of aim and tacit convention of cooperation makes this grand old world go round and creates the conditions that go to constitute the highest Christian civilization, the highest human happiness. Thus the loaf is at once the prototype and symbol of the most stupendous element of community in the spirit world of earth and Heaven and the symbol and result of the admirable cooperation and community of object, that obtains in human affairs. God is the Divine factor, the indespensable element in both, and the measure of our recognition of the Divine-goodness, and the extent to which we reflect it in our relations to our fellow man, is the measure of our true and acceptable thanksgiving.

Rev. H. R. Trumpour Inducted As New Rector Of All Saint's Church By Archdeacon Warren

Splendid Sermon by Rev. Canon O'Meara, of Wycliffe College, on "How to Make a Success of the Church."

MANY CLERGYMEN ASSIST

"The secret of a happy ministry and a successful church is absolute manly sincerity between pastor and people. This was one of the messages of advice conveyed to the congregation of All Saints' Church by Rev. Canon O'Meara principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto, in his sermon last night in connection with the ceremony of the induction as rector of Rev. H. R. Trumpour. He urged the congregation to assist their new pastor through the difficulties which were sure to come, to give him their sympathy in all his undertakings and by unity of spirit and constant prayer for his welfare and that of the church, thus to win for All Saints' the fulfillment of those hopes and expectations under which the Rev. Mr. Trumpour begins his pastorate. "He is sincere," the speaker said, "I have known him for years and you will find nothing double about him. Treat him as I believe he will treat you, but above all, in God's name, do not go behind his back to talk. If there may arise anything which you might have against him, tell it to his face, man for man" and this open sincerity will have a telling effect in the success of the Church's work.

These statements were made by Rev. Canon O'Meara in answer to the questions, "How can we make a success of the Christian Life," and "How can we make a success of our Church." One of the requisites emphasized was prayer for the pastor to give him strength to meet the difficult problems he would surely have to contend with as days rolled by bringing with them the unforeseen questions that must be contronted. Rev. Canon O'Meara said that no mistake had been made by the head of the church in the appointment of Rev. H. R. Trumpour. The new pastor was responsible to God and not to the congregation and therefore he must deliver the true message of the Gospel, although there might be some parts that the congregation did not like to hear.

As stated in the sermon the induction marked a new epoch in the life of the church as well as in the life of the pastor.

The Services

Venerable Archdeacon Warren of Toronto, conducted the service and was assisted by the following ministers — Rev Dr Langfeldt, Rev Canon Davidson, Rev F J Lynch and Rev H D Raymond, besides Rev Canon O'Meara. The form of induction was followed according to the usual rite.

His Career

The Rector of All Saints' Church, the Rev. Henry Ralph Trumpour is a native of Napanee. He has had a very creditable scholastic career. He took honour matriculation from Napanee Collegiate Institute to Toronto University from which he graduated in 1900 with first class honours in classics, taking his M. A. in 1904. From 1900 to 1903 he was classical master of Rothsay College, St. John's, N. B. During his course at Wycliffe College he stood first in first class honours in almost every subject during every year. During his course he was for two years tutor in Patristics and New Testament Greek and also curate of the Church of the Redeemer, Bloor street, Toronto. Rev. Mr. Trumpour was ordained deacon in 1905 by the Bishop of Ontario. The following year in addition to student work, work as tutor and curate, he pursued a post graduate course leading to a B.D. degree, and on the death of Principal Sheraton, took his lectures in New Testament Greek for the remainder of the year. He was ordained priest in 1906, and returned to New Brunswick as headmaster of Rothsay College and curate of St. John's church from which he was appointed to All Saints'. So much for Rev. Mr. Trumpour's scholastic career. He also found time to give a fair share of time athletics, having been a member of Varsity I Association Football team and St. John's N. B., rugby and cricket teams.

It is thus seen that the new rector of All Saints' has a splendid scholarly equipment and those who know him best testify to his religious zeal and earnestness as complementary conditions to a successful and acceptable pastorate.

THE MIGHTY POWER OF MI-O-NA

Mio-na, that extraordinary and perfect stomach tonic, will relieve dyspepsia in twenty-four hours.

It will cure and is guaranteed by Wm. Madill to the readers of the Examiner to cure the most pitiful cases of dyspepsia, if taken according to directions.

Mi-ona tablets not only cure dyspepsia, but all stomach disturbances, such as vomiting of pregnancy, sea or car sickness and the stomach sickness after excessive indulgence.

Mi-o-na cures by strengthening and invigorating the flabby stomach walls and after a course of Mi-o-na treatment, constipation, if there is any, will entirely disappear.

Mrs. S. Kensit, of Clarksburg, Ont., says, 'A bad stomach trouble that had bothered me for years, baffled and puzzled skilled physicians, was nicely relieved by my using Mi-o-na. My trouble was on account of food not digesting but fermenting in my stomach, forming a gas that gave me untold suffering and pain and also made me weak, nervous irritable and unable to rest. Since using Mi-ona I can go to bed at night and sleep and wake up in the morning refreshed I cannot speak too highly of Mi-o-na.'

Mi-o-na is a most economical treatment, a large box of tablets only costs 50 cents at Wm. Madill's and the dyspeptic, nervous or otherwise, who does not give them a trial is losing an opportunity to regain health.

DIGESTS ALL THE FOOD IN THE STOMACH

Give Your Stomach a Good Eat Without Fear of Distress.

If your meals don't tempt you, or you feel bloated after eating and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something for a sour stomach and indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body you must rid your stomach of poisons, excessive acid and stomach gas which sours your entire meal—interferes with digestion and causes so many sufferers of dyspepsia, sick headache, nauseous breath, and stomach trouble of all kind; putrefying the intestines and digestive canal, causing such misery as biliousness, constipation griping, etc. Your case is no different—you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name, your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking one triangule that fermentation and sour stomach is causing the misery of indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble catarrh of the stomach, nervousness or gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at your pharmacist any time you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will purify the sourest and most acid stomach within five minutes and digest promptly without any fuss or discomfort all of any kind of food you could eat.

WEBSTER AND HIS DICTIONARY

One Hundred Years Since Famous Book Was Compiled at New Haven—Noah Webster Once a Newspaper Editor.

THE SON OF A FARMER

One hundred and fifty years ago, Noah Webster, compiler of the famous dictionary, was born. In many of the educational institutions of the United States and Canada the anniversary was celebrated the most impressive services being those at Hartford, where Webster was born, and at New Haven, where he died, in 1843. In the latter town is a fine collection of Webster relics, including the house in which he lived while engaged on his great work, the table at which he sat writing, and which visitors find extremely difficult to write upon; the very bookcase where he kept the reference works he used and the saddle bags in which he carried the manuscript of his famous speller when travelling from state to state to get it copyrighted. There is also to be seen a fragment of the manuscript of the dictionary which was found in these saddle bags. Not far away lies Webster's tomb, in a cemetery whose dust is particularly rich in historical traditions to the people of New England.

THE GREAT WORK

After a few years in New York, Webster moved back to New England, and there the remainder of his life was spent, with the exception of a few months in Europe, where he went to study for his dictionary. It was in 1807 that this monumental work was begun. As he became more and more engrossed in his work, his opportunity for earning "outside" money decreased, and so in 1812 he moved from New Haven and settled in cheaper quarters in Amherst, Mass. There he was instrumental in founding Amherst College whose first president he was. Having saved up a little money he moved back to New Haven in 1822, and thence forward devoted himself to the dictionary. The amount of research necessary for this work is indicated by the fact that Webster studied in 20 languages in order to thoroughly present the subject of etymology. He also catalogued no fewer than 36,000 words that had never before been brought between the covers of a dictionary. Webster was one of the first "simplified spellers," as he omitted the "u" from such words as "labour" and "honour." He was a public spirited man all the years of his life and spared time from his work to sit as an alderman in New Haven, and to serve in the Legislature. Thirty-six years of his life was spent on his dictionary which had passed into its second edition at the time of his death.

AS NEWSPAPER EDITOR

Webster's spelling remained the standard in the United States until recent years and to its general use was due the uniformity of pronunciation that prevailed throughout the country about the middle of last century. The speller was largely responsible for the "spelling match," which remains even to-day such a distinctive feature of school life, both in Canada and the United States. The speller was followed up by several pamphlets, and in 1793 Webster was urged to start a newspaper to support Washington's action in refusing to allow France to raise troops in the United States. This paper was called the Minerva, a daily, and its weekly edition was the Herald. The latter had a new lease of life under the name of the Spectator, while the Minerva persists as the Commercial Advertiser.

Noah Webster's father was a farmer in Connecticut and he was either extremely frugal or very needy for when his son received his degree from Yale in 1778, all that he gave him was a note for $8 in continental currency, worth about $4 in silver. Like many another man who has become famous Webster's first work was school teaching; for small as was the wage, it was more certain than his earnings as a briefless lawyer. As he taught he mapped out a series of textbooks, an English grammar and a reader. These were the first books of the kind ever written in the United States and their sale was surprisingly large. Indeed the spelling book proved one of the best sellers ever placed on the American market before or since, and its circulation has only been exceeded by the Bible, Shakespeare and "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Down to the year 1847 no fewer than 24,000,000 copies were sold. Even in the early years of the speller's existence the royalty of less than a cent a copy was enough to support the Webster family. Had it not been for the popularity of the book the author could not have had the leisure to prepare the dictionary.

ONE MAN'S WORK

In these days when the work of simply revising a dictionary requires the undivided attention of a corps of specialists each presumably a man of wider information than Noah Webster, it is marvellous how much he accomplished. Not only did he write, unaided, the second large dictionary in the English language, but he wrote many erudite pamphlets upon medical and physical sciences, all the result of his own investigations. He taught school and issued famous textbooks. He fought with his father and brothers in the Revolutionary War. He practised law. He edited newspapers. He travelled from one end of the country to the other. He was a recognized authority on the laws of banking and statecraft and he was a publicist who influenced the laws of his country. It was Webster who obtained the passage of the earliest copyright laws in the United States.

THE PUNISHMENT OF CHILDREN

Children Should be Understood by Their Parents—Likes, Dislikes and Fears Must be Known.

SUCH PARENTS ARE RARE

"I simply can't do a thing with that child. She's beyond me."

Haven't you heard those remarks time and again as they have been uttered by a fagged, tired looking woman, with eyes which worry has dulled and with lines marked deep in her face by the relentless hand of care? If so, doubtless you have pitied, but not known what to say. The child in question probably was, to your way of thinking, a most annoying and troublesome one, and the chances are that when you left the house you found yourself muttering: "I wouldn't have a child like that."

Perhaps you wouldn't want to, but if you had a child, what would you do to prevent your child becoming like the one of whom you disapprove? The one who has just so disgusted you has had his need of spankings. He has been put in corners innumerable. Dark closets have swallowed him up for hours at a time, and he has known many nights when bed has been sought without the preliminary of supper. What would you do with a child of yours?

Children Must be Understood

Few women realise that the only way in which children can be brought up as they should be brought up is as they would be brought up is by having the parents, and especially the mother, understand them.

The woman who understands her children is rare and wonderful. She is a blessing to her neighbourhood, though she may not realize it. She is a boon to her country, though that country may not know that she exists. She is greater than most queens, for her subjects adore her. She does good which is far more personal and far-reaching than that of the moneyed philanthropist. Her work, which begins at home, reaches out tendrils which extend into the future and embrace the lives of other generations.

In order to understand her children a woman does not need to be all wise. However, she does need to be a careful student of that child's nature. She must discover whether the child is abnormally sensitive or just the opposite. She must know the likes and dislikes, the fears, the pleasures, the ambitions and inclinations of this child of hers and treat him or her accordingly.

Questions About Punishment

"I believe in what the Bible says, Spare the rod and spoil the child," declared one woman not long ago. "I have always whipped my boy good whenever he was naughty, and I can tell you he never dares disobey me."

The boy in question was ten years of age—a sturdy little fellow of whom any mother might be proud. But in his boyishness there was something lacking. The brown eyes had a sullen expression; the fresh mouth a droop that was far from childlike. The obedience which he offered in response to parental demands was so willing that it suggested craftiness. His attitude toward the mother who whipped him had in it a trace of fawning. There was about him the suggestion of constant alertness. Conversation with the mother revealed that he—"lied, sometimes."

Music and Drama

"THE BONNIE BRIER BUSH"

The able dramatization of the late Ian Maclaren's tales, called by him "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," will be presented at the Grand Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night. This charming Scottish play, with its honest rugged sentiment, its atmosphere of the bleak Highlands and its quaint humour, never fails to draw to the theatre those who have read its lamented author's work, or those who hold sacred the name of Scotland. The original production will be used and many of the original cast. This is the first time this famous play has ever been offered to the public at popular prices.

ON AND OFF CHAT ABOUT FAT

The society reporter picked up the following gem at Madame Brewster's not twenty-four hours ago. One of her millionaire customers struggling into a new gown, asked the famous costumer how she kept her figure in such superb shape. "You habitually eat and drink heartily and even thoughtlessly, not to say riotously at times," she complained, "whereas, I live like a hermit. Yet I cannot keep slim, and apparently you can't get fat. "Guilty," replied the fashion czarina. "I admit I don't fatten up nor do I thin down, but it is because I have the power, my dear Mrs. ——— (the name almost slipped out), to say to my fat "Thus far and no further." I don't exercise nor diet nor run any danger of wrinkles nor stomach trouble either. Here is the secret." She wrote a few words on a piece of paper and handed it to her questioner. "Get that filled at the druggist's," she concluded, "take a teaspoon after meals and at bedtime and you will never get any fatter than you want to be. You can take off a pound a day with this receipt, if you want to."

Being fat herself and fully alive to the tremendous value of these statements to fat folks everywhere, the society reporter committed an unpardonable social sin; she peeped over the lady's shoulder—and this is what she saw; For excess Fat, simplest, safest, cheapest, most helpful receipt of any; One-half ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 4 3-4 ounces Peppermint Water.

HINDUS REPORTED IN A CONSPIRACY

East Indians in British Columbia Said to Be Making Bombs.

SENT TO REBELS AT HOME

Sikh Tells Vancouver Police That Secret Organization at Millside is Engaged in Manufacture of Explosive Machines and Purchase of Arms For Disaffected in Calcutta and Other Districts.

Vancouver, Nov. 7.—That a conspiracy having for its object the manufacture of bombs and supplying them, together with arms, to malcontents in Calcutta and other disaffected districts in India exists among the Hindus at Millside, near Westminster was the startling information yesterday conveyed by a sikh to a police official in this city who formerly resided in India, who speaks Bengali and who has befriended numbers of these people since their arrival in British Columbia.

To what lengths the plot has already gone, it is difficult to learn, for reason that the heads of the conspiracy are comparatively few in number and very closely guard the innermost secrets of their work. In a general way, however, scores of Hindus, now living at Millside, are aware that the manufacture of bombs is proceeding in a secret guarded room at that place. They also have general knowledge that money secured from them by subscription from time to time is ultimately converted into firearms, with which the "yoke" of Great Britain is to be thrown off by India's millions.

One of the principals in the conspiracy is a Hindu working at the saw mills at Millside, but the chief plotter is a resident of Seattle. The latter formerly lived in Vancouver, and always affected to have great influence over his countrymen.

Plauen, Germany, Nov. 7.—The most violent earthquake ever experienced here terrified the inhabitants of the city at 5.40 o'clock yesterday morning. Houses were shaken, and the people fled panic-stricken into the streets. The shock, which lasted for several minutes, was accompanied by sharp explosions and thunderous rumblings in the earth.

Sixty or seventy earthquake shocks have been felt here daily the past week. They are now becoming less frequent but more violent. The temperature of the medicinal springs in the vicinity has increased fifteen degrees.

EXTRAORDINARY EVIDENCE GIVEN

More Evidence Against Gregory in Marine Inquiry.

TO SUSPEND GRAFT-TAKERS

Hon. L. P. Brodeur Expected to Take Drastic Action—Merchant Testifies to Paying Gregory Checks on Account of Commission — Says Overcharges Amounted in Some Cases to 25 Per Cent.

Quebec, Nov. 7.—More light was let yesterday afternoon into the system pursued by the dealers who furnished supplies to the Marine and Fisheries Department, a system which Mr. Watson, K.C., described as one of "bribery, corruption and boodling."

Mr. Lemieux, a partner of the Samson hardware firm, occupied the witness stand during the greater part of the afternoon, and being shown a number of checks payable to bearer, issued by his firm, admitted that most of them were given to Mr. Gregory. There was one in September, 1905, for $100, in 1906 two for $250 each and one for $50; and in 1907, two for $250 each and three for $150 each. The stubs of these checks being produced, it was shown that the name of Mr. Samson, the head of the firm, was marked opposite to them.

Mr. Perron asked why this was done, when the checks were intended for Mr. Gregory, and whether it was not possible that it was because they did not want Mr. Gregory's name to appear.

Witness said that might have been the reason. "In August, 1907, witness had transactions with Gregory and paid the 5 per cent. commission by check. He said he had placed Mr. Samson's name on the stub.

"Is it not true, speaking according to your heart and conscience, that the name of Mr. Gregory was not to appear?" asked Mr. Perron.

"Yes," he replied.

Asked whether the overcharges in dispute between the firm and the Department had been settled, witness replied in the affirmative, but being asked for the statement of the settlement, said he had not got it. Mr. Gregory might have it.

Questioned as to the difference between the charges made to the Government and others by his firm, witness said he knew little. Wholesale prices were charged merchants and retail ones to others. The Government was treated as ordinary persons and not as merchants, though the firm sold $77,000 worth of goods to the Government in three years and no merchant bought as much. He could not tell the difference between wholesale and retail prices; perhaps Mr. Samson could.

Mr. Perron pressed for an answer as to whether the difference was 15 or 25 per cent. between the wholesale and the retail prices, and witness reluctantly replied that in some cases it was 25 per cent. He said Mr. Gregory sometimes cut their prices. In some cases they charged the Government more than others.

"Lawyers do the same," said Senator Choquette.

"Speak for yourself," returned Mr. Perron.

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, is at present on a tour of inspection of the St. Lawrence waterway.

In his absence there is no likelihood of an order being issued from the Department suspending the officials of the Quebec agency, who are alleged to have taken commissions from F. X. Drolet and other business men of the Ancient Capital.

It is quite probable that Mr. Brodeur will order the suspension of a number of the officials when he arrives in Quebec.

Cornwall, Nov. 7.—David E. Wilson, late clerk in the Molsons' Bank, Chesterville, pleaded guilty to six indictments of burglary before County Judge O'Reilly yesterday and was sentenced to three and one-half years on each, the sentences to run concurrently.

He robbed four stores of some $250 worth of gents' furnishings, etc., was tripped up by the merchants, and, restoring the goods, was given a chance to turn over a new leaf. DISASTROUS FIRE CLAIMS EIGHT

Carey Family Near Swan Lake, Man., Nearly Annihilated.

FATHER'S CASE HOPELESS

Mother, School Teacher, Five Daughters and a Son Perish In Fire That Breaks Out In House—Son Was Set Burn at Time of Disaster—Oil Is Thought to Be the Cause — Perished In Bed.

Swan Lake, Man., Nov. 7.—One of the most terrible tragedies in the history of Manitoba, and one which nearly wiped out an entire family, occurred yesterday morning on the farm of Edward Carey, near here, when Mrs. Carey, her five daughters, one son, and Miss Gillespie, a teacher in the Lake View school, who boarded with the Carey family, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home, while Mr. Carey himself was so terribly injured in the awful holocaust that he cannot long survive. Very little is known of how the fire, which cost eight lives, originated, as none of those who may have seen it remain to tell.

Mr. Carey and his eldest son, Herbert, arose at an early hour, and the latter at once proceeded to the barn to attend to the stock while his father lighted the fires. A few minutes later he was shocked to notice the house in flames, and rushed back just in time to rescue the charred body of his father from the flames before the roof fell in, burying all who were near and dear to him in the raging fire. It is believed from the position in which the charred remains were found amidst the ruins yesterday afternoon that all had perished in their beds, and some of the smaller ones probably never awakened to realize their terrible fate.

While nothing definite as to the cause of the fire can be learned, it is presumed that Carey had attempted to use coal oil in lighting the fire, and that an explosion followed, which not only enveloped him in flames, but set the house on fire, the flames spreading with such rapidity that the escape of the sleeping members of the family was cut off almost instantly.

Six other people have been burned to death as a result of coal oil explosions in Manitoba within two weeks, and it is believed that an inferior grade of oil, below the regulation flash point, is being sold here, with murderous results. Some of it has actually been tested and will explode like gasoline.

BUSINESS PICKING UP.

Taft's Election Is Already Showing Good Results.

New York, Nov. 7.—From data collected within the last month from all parts of the country the National Association of Manufacturers has calculated that before Jan. 1 next the industries of this country will add to their original working force more than 500,000 men. American Industries, the official organ of the association, which will publish the data to-day, says that its figures are conservative. The National Association of Manufacturers has 3,000 members. In the middle of October the editors of American Industries sent out letters to all association's members asking about trade conditions at that time, prospects for the near future, and what suggestions they had to make as to means of restoring the country's prosperity. The answers made a political matter out of the request for suggestions, 100 per cent. of the members who touched the question saying that the election of Mr. Taft would be the best thing that could happen to trade.

TRAGEDY COMPLETE.

Hamilton Youth and Pretty Victim Die From Wounds.

Hamilton, Nov. 7.—Miss Rose Ouimet, the pretty 20-year-old girl who was shot Thursday night by Chester A. Johnson, who afterwards killed himself, died at the City Hospital yesterday morning. She was conscious just before death, and said that Chester had shot her. She asked if he was dead, and when answered in the affirmative said she was glad.

The statement of Johnson leaves little for the police to clear up, except why there was two hours' delay in notifying them. It was nearly two hours from the time that she was shot until she received medical attention.

Mrs. Ouimet claims that before her daughter died she said she had been forced at the point of a pistol to go to the house of Mrs. Camille, 180 Rebecca street.

Wreck at Danby.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—One killed and thirteen slightly injured is the result of a wreck yesterday at Danby at 10.56 a.m. No. 5 passenger train from Island Pond due at Montreal at 1.10 p.m. collided with a freight train at the east end of Danby yard, and the combination mail and coach on the passenger train was telescoped.

One passenger, an old man, name unknown, was killed, two of the train crew and eleven passengers slightly injured.

The cause of the accident was the engineer of passenger train ran past signals which were against him. The track was damaged and the main line blocked temporarily.

Shortage Reduced.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—D. Cameron McCallum, the teller of the Farmers' Bank, whose shortage was discovered Monday, has not yet been officially arrested. His liberty, it is said, is being extended to allow the bank to realise upon his accounts with various brokers. The amount has now been reduced to between $4,000 and $6,000. A restitution of $3,000 was made yesterday.

It is now broadly hinted in inside circles that his confession has involved another man not in the employ of the Farmers' Bank.

WAS IN BED FOR THREE MONTHS.

PEOPLE SAID SHE HAD CONSUMPTION.

Read how Mrs. T. G. Buck, Bracebridge, Ont., was cured (and also her little boy) by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

She writes: "I thought I would write and let you know the benefit I have received through the use of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A few years ago I was so badly troubled with my lungs people said I had Consumption and that I would not live through the Fall. I had two doctors attending me and they were very much alarmed about me. I was in bed three months and when I got up I could not walk, so had to go on my hands and knees for three weeks, and my limbs seemed of no use to me. I gave up all hopes of ever getting better when I happened to see in B.B.B. Almanac that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good for weak lungs. I thought I would try a bottle and by the time I had used it I was a lot better, so got more and it made a complete cure. My little boy was also troubled with weak lungs and it cured him. I keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it for anything."

Price 25 cents at all dealers. Beware of imitations of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Ask for it and insist on getting the original. Put up in a yellow wrapper and three pine trees the trade mark.

With good weather on Monday, the annual Thanksgiving Day Road races conducted by the Examiner promise to constitute the most important sporting event of the year. Never has there been such great interest taken in the events and the crowd that will see the finish will undoubtedly be the biggest in the history of the races. With thirty youngsters in the junior event, and a dozen well trained speedy men in the senior, there is every indication of two grand races, with a fight all the way. The field in the senior race is not as large as last year, but it comprises better men, and runners in better condition, with the result that it should be a more even up fight, if the finish is not as exciting as last year. In the 1907 race Ernie Wilson and Ben Howard won first and second away off by themselves, losing the rest completely, so that the fourth man was nearly four minutes behind. This year the conditions should be different. Wilson, Thorpe, Adams and Howard should make it a hard fight for the ten miles, with Geo. Fowler a contender for part of the distance at least, while some of the other men may prove dark horses. It should be a spectacular, well run race, and if the weather conditions are right, the record of 55 minutes 16 seconds may go by the boards.

With thirty in the junior race it is bound to be a hard race, and while Cross, McMartin and Hughes are the logical favourites, there is such a large field that some surprises may occur. The record for the course, 29 minutes 30 seconds, should receive a severe shaking up when that bunch are let loose up above Nassau.

Everything is ready for the race and all that is wanted is weather such as was enjoyed last year. The races will both be started at 10.30 o'clock, instead of 10 o'clock, as last year. Promptly at 10.30 o'clock starters McPherson and Dela Fosse will start the seniors on their ten mile jaunt from Lakefield, and at the same time starter J. D. Craig will give the word to the score or more juniors five miles away. The juniors should reach the Examiner office a little before eleven o'clock and the seniors about 11.25 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made to carry such of the seniors as wish to go that way to Lakefield by bus, leaving the Examiner office at 8.30 o'clock on Monday morning. The runners, if they wish, may go to Lakefield by train. The bus will follow the runners in, carrying their clothes and picking up such runners as may have dropped out on the way.

The juniors will be taken out to the starting point, 100 yards north of the five mile post on the Lakefield road, in a bus that will leave the Examiner office at 9.30 o'clock sharp. All juniors who intend to start should be on hand at that time. Their clothes will be taken care of in the bus.

Arrangements are being made to have mounted police patrol George street, near the finishing point, so that the contestants will have a chance to finish unhampered by the crowd.

Following are the entrants with their numbers in the two races:

DAVE BELAND FIRED BY ZOUAVES BECAUSE OF THE "RINGING" DEAL

The Quebec Telegraph has this to say regarding the road race which was won by a ringer:

"While all this excitement was rampant throughout the streets in the expectancy and anticipation of the race, the scene in the Q.A.A. Clubhouse was a no less lively one. Suddenly a rumour was bruited about to the effect that runner No. 14 of the Zouaves, one Walter Beland, was no other than the quarter mile, doing nearly six miles of a hilly course in 23.50, and breaking the course record by two minutes.

The Telegraph gives no description of the ringer, but an outside description says the unknown had fair curly hair. Meadows hair is dark and curly. Burn has fuzzy fair hair, but the description says that the winner was only 5 foot, 8 inches high. That is Meadow's height. Burn is 5 foot, 10 or more.

Judges Satisfied

A Quebec despatch says—"The judges are satisfied that the man who won first place in the race is Fred Meadows, of Toronto, and not Walter Beland, under whose name the former ran. Consequently the judges have awarded the first prize to A Robillard, National A A A, Montreal; 2nd Menard, Zouave A A A Quebec; 3rd Baber, National A A A Montreal; 4th P. Royal, M A A A. As Meadows ran under Zouave colours and was vouched for by Dave Beland as his brother, the latter has been requested by Zouave Association to send in his resignation."

Western crack runner Meadows, who figured at the Olympic games, and who on several occasions gave Tom Longboat, himself, a run for his money, others maintained that the runner was Art Burn of Calgary, and the man in question was duly surveyed, but no one recognized him except those who were handling him, and according to them he was no other than Walter Beland.

"The rumour that he was a fast man and altogether the greatest runner ever seen in Quebec, as was afterwards proved by his winning the race and breaking previous records for the course, was strengthened by the fact that certain local men were going around with handfuls of money offering to take No. 14 against the field, and other such wagers upon the results of which the running of No. 14 had a particular bearing. Much excitement was aroused on this score, but the race was in no way delayed, and No. 14, W. Beland, whose card was in the hands of the local representative of the Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada, by which organization the race was sanctioned was entered, and all who saw him know in what a splendid manner he competed, and how easily he won the race."

The description of the race shows the ringer to have been a veteran. He let the others take the early pace then went at them and beat them to a standstill in the last three miles. He won by a

BOTH MEN CONFIDENT OF WINNING BIG WALKING MATCH ON HOLIDAY

Hoagland and Harrison, the two contestants in Monday's big walking match in the Brock Street Rink, are each confident of winning the event and there is no doubt that the race will be one of the best of its kind ever seen here. Many local people fancy that Hoagland will find that a handicap of one mile in nine hours a little too much for him, and consider that he has rather underestimated the ability of the local crack, who has vastly improved since the walk here last spring. Hoagland has no doubt of the result of the event himself, however, although he realizes that it is a hard task.

Harrison stated to the Examiner this morning that he is in good shape and hopes to win out, and then accept the challenge of Wolff, of Montreal, published in the Examiner the other day.

The big race will commence at two o'clock on Monday afternoon and terminate at eleven o'clock. Dick Baker has been agreed upon as referee, and should give the best of satisfaction, while G. N. Graham will be stake holder.

BROWNIES DEFEATED MAPLE LEAFS LAST NIGHT BY 19 POINTS TO 17

Two lively basket ball games were seen in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last night, when the Tigers took the measure of the Rustlers to the tune of 47-28, while the Brownies trimmed the Maple Leafs in a nip and tuck battle by 19 points to 17. The latter game was a hard fought contest all the way, with honours pretty even and the playing hard and fast throughout. Mr. S. W. Collings was referee and the teams were as follows:

Brownies.	Maple Leafs.
Centre
W. Fitzpatrick	Sutherland
Defence
F. Cressman	Laing
R. Hall	R. Best
Forwards.
G. Miller	Downing
N. Darling	Martin

Tigers.	Rustlers.

Staunton	Dobbin

Wallace	Maguire
Neill	Pringle

The Tigers had a wide margin on the Rustlers throughout, as the score indicates. Bob Hall refereed and the teams were:

The Brownies journey to London on Monday, where they will play a game with the London Y. M. C. A. seniors.

THE LATE BEN HOWARD,
Who was second to Wilson in the senior race last year.

KEEP OFF THE COURSE

In other years the greatest difficulty in the Examiner Road Races has been in keeping the crowd back at the finish, and the same trouble is to be expected this year. Last year the crowd blocked the street to such an extent that it was almost impossible for the runners to get through and the finish was interfered with. Special efforts will be made to keep the crowd back and the citizens are urged to do their best to keep the course clear to the finishing point.

HOAGLAND WAS DEFEATED BY ONE LAP BY ROLLER SKATERS LAST NIGHT

A large crowd saw a most exciting race at the roller rink last night between W. A. Hoagland, the champion pedestrian, and a squad of five roller skaters. The latter succeeded in winning out a fine struggle by a lap, although Hoagland was a contender all the way. The conditions were that he was to cover 2 1-4 miles while the skaters travelled four miles. He allowed the skaters to relay each other as often as they wished, and they just managed to beat him out. In fact, Hoagland had but one lap to go when the skaters finished their four miles.

The same team of skaters was put up against the walker—Pro. Genno, Seymour, Kenneally, Parrington and Clute. The latter, the smallest of the bunch, showed the greatest speed, and it was his fine work that defeated Hoagland.

Kissing Spreads Disease.

San Francisco, Nov. 7.—Tuberculosis, spread through a rite of their church, is said to be thinning the population of the Aleutian Islands at an alarming rate.

Dr. Robert Oleson of the revenue cutter McCulloch, who arrived here Thursday from Alaska, states that 40 per cent. of the natives in the islands are afflicted with consumption.

He expressed a belief that the ceremony of kissing the dead is, in part, responsible for the spread of the disease.

Big Freight Steamer Sunk.

New York, Nov. 7.—The freight steamer H. M. Whitney of the Metropolitan steamship line was sunk on Thursday night in the East River while on her way to Boston. The vessel, valued at $500,000, is a total loss, and it is not believed that any of her cargo, valued at $300,000, can be recovered.

The steamer, in trying to avoid collision with a tug and several scows, collided with Steep Rock.

Strikers Go Back.

Glens Falls, N.Y., Nov. 7.—Twenty-five striking paper-makers of the Glens Falls and Fort Edward mills of the International Paper Co. returned to work Thursday. By an almost unanimous vote the local branch of the Paper-makers' Union decided on Thursday night to return to work in the International Paper Co.'s works at a reduction of 5 per cent. in wages.

Fire In a School.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Fire, which started in the kitchen of the Bliss Electrical School, located in the edge of the district line at Takoma Park, a suburb north of this city, early yesterday, compelled nearly 200 students to flee for their lives in night clothing.

To Carry Mails on Street Cars.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—The Postal Department in this city is negotiating with the street railway for the carriage of mails between the different city postoffices and the railway stations.

Roosevelt For Senate.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 7.—That President Roosevelt may be the successor of Senator Platt of New York in the Senate is considered by many in Washington as not at all improbable.

Bank Did Not Prosecute.

St. Catharines, Nov. 7.—James W. Howard, who was accused of passing a bogus check drawn on the Rochester Safety Deposit Co., appeared before Magistrate Campbell yesterday. The officers of the bank wrote that it was not convenient for them to appear in court here. The crown attorney decided not to go on with the case, as the expense of taking evidence in Rochester would be too great and the magistrate discharged the prisoner.

Suicide by Chewing His Tongue.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 7.—Arthur Newman, serving a five-year term in prison, committed suicide Thursday by chewing his tongue, causing him to bleed to death.

Ward Will Win.

London, Nov. 7.—(C.A.P.)—A Times' Wellington despatch says indications are that Premier Ward will be returned with a majority of 30.

Beggars Are Ingenious.

"Nowhere is the ingenuity of the present age more apparent than in the begging letters received by rich men," said a private secretary. "I have been reading letters of that kind by the hundred for the last fifteen years. Formerly all begging letters sounded alike. So stereotyped were they that they might have been copied verbatim from a ready letter writer. Now the writers display originality. They may want the same old things that their predecessors wanted, but they ask for them in a different way. People in need have acquired the art of expressing themselves forcibly. That is to their advantage.

"It may be unjust, but usually it is the letter that hits the rich man hardest that brings a favorable reply. The writer may not really need assistance nearly so badly as some timid person who can't get away from trite phrases, but he gets the relief asked for every time."

Useless.

A young enthusiastic revivalist had been exhorting a congregation in a small mining town for over two hours without perceptible effect. He was somewhat discouraged until a rough old miner interrupted him with:

"Say, brother, I'd like to ask a question."

The young revivalist beamed. "Thank you, my man, for your interest," he replied. "I shall be more than glad to set you right on any question. Your desire for enlightenment is a good sign, which I am very, very glad to see. Now, what is it you want to know?"

"Kin I smoke?" asked the miner.—Life.

Quite Handy.

Wife (reading)—Isn't this funny, my dear? Here is an article which says they have found a new species of birds in Australia which have four legs. Now, whatever do you suppose they want four legs for? Husband (yawning)—They are probably politicians, my love, and by this beautiful dispensation of their Creator they are enabled to stand on both sides of the fence at the same time.

Showing Him.

"You young scoundrel!" said the father, seizing his disobedient son by the hair. "I'll show you how to treat your mother!"

And he at once proceeded to show young hopeful the way by banging him across the ears two or three times and then shaking him until his hair began to fall out.

Defined.

A little girl who had listened to a discussion of nature faktrs in literature when asked to define the human and animal families replied:

"A brute is an imperfect beast; man is a perfect beast."

Unless you bear with the faults of a friend you betray your own.—Syrus.

Building Collapsed.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—The high wind of yesterday morning caused the collapse of three storeys of skeleton frame work on a building owned by Mrs. W. J. Ingram at the corner of Gerrard street and Galt avenue.

A man working in a five-foot drain on Galt avenue had a narrow escape, falling timbers and planks having fallen over the hole, completely entombing him for some time.

Heinz Gets Concessions.

Leamington, Nov. 7.—By a vote of 558 to 18 the bylaw to present the H. J. Heinz Co. with a six-storey building and a sewer was passed yesterday, and a branch of the big pickle industry is assured. The amount asked for by the Town Council to purchase the building and lay the sewer was $10,000.

QUALITY FIRST

In some lines of business price may well be the great talking point. Those who can buy best and sell least have something interesting to say to the public. In the DRUG BUSINESS it's different. Quality, regardless of price, should be the main factor, and it is here. What you buy here in the line of Drugs and Medicines will be of right quality, and price asked will also be right—as low as goods of same quality can ever be bought for anywhere.

PILED RAILS ON THE ROAD

Buggies Behind Had a Rough Passage From Zion.

Monday night there was a fowl supper at Zion Foresters' Hall at which a rather large number of local people were in attendance. On leaving the hall two of the young men who had driven down in a buggy, got away to a good start on the rest of the people from the city and when several miles up the road they stopped their horse, got out and proceeded to play a joke (if such it may be called) on the others. They got fence rails, logs, etc., and placed them across the road with the result that those behind them had the none too pleasant task of getting out and removing them. This was not done until they had driven over several of the barricades and in the meantime the two in the lead had a big laugh over the trouble which they felt sure they had made for those behind.

THE CARE OF THE HAIR

Every woman and every man desires beautiful hair. And everyone may have it if they will but give it proper care and attention.

The first and all important step toward the prevention of baldness and grayness and toward promoting a luxuriant growth of fine, silken hair is to keep the scalp sweet and clean and free from dandruff.

All kinds of advice have, from time to time, being offered for the removal of dandruff, and for the promotion of hair growth; some bad, some good.

There is, however, one safe, sure and economical way. That is to use Hay's Hairhealth.

Hay's Hairhealth "Keeps You Looking Young." It positively removes dandruff and always restores gray and faded hair to its youthful colour and beauty, no matter how long it has been gray or faded or what its original colour.

It is not a dye, promotes a fine growth of luxuriant hair when all other remedies fail. Is not greasy or sticky, and does not soil skin or linen.

Send 2c. for free book, "The Care of the Hair."

You can get $1.00 and 50c. bottles of Hay's Hairhealth of any druggist, or they will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by Philo Hay Specialties Co., 82-92 Clinton street, Newark, N. J.

JACK FROST MAY COME AS SOON AS HE LIKES TO NEW CURLING RINK—EVERYTHING IS READY

One of the Best Rinks of its Kind in the Dominion—Rooms Heated With Steam—New Arrangement for Putting on Water—Prospects are Bright.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE

With a splendid new rink on Charlotte street nearly completed, the grand old game of curling should take on new life during the coming winter and should have a larger number of devotees than ever before in its history in this city. The building is fitted up with all modern improvements, and the equipment is about as thorough as could be expected. The interior is ready for the cold weather. Sand has been placed ready for the ice, the only remaining work being to roll it, and this will soon be done.

The rooms facing Charlotte street are being heated with steam, to provide which a furnace will be placed in the cellar. It arrived last night and the work of installing it will be entirely completed before the sport begins. The rooms will be comfy heated, as may be surmised, and they will be comfortably fitted out in every detail. In the cellar, lavatories are being placed, and everything for the convenience of the curlers will be within easy reach.

New Features

One of the features of the rink will be the club or assembly room, which, like the rest of the building, has been planned for the comfort of the members. Out in the rink there are also new ideas put into force. The water pipes are no longer under ground, but are strung along the beams at the side of the rink, about six feet above the ice, one at each side. They are placed at a slight grade, the water being turned on in the cellar, and as soon as the flooding has been completed provision has been made to have the water run back into the sewer, thus guarding against its freezing in the pipes. The only work still incomplete is the lighting, which has not been decided on yet, but will receive due attention.

The Season's Sport

It is expected that the annual meeting will be held in a week or ten days, although the date has not been announced, as many of the members and officers have not yet returned from the deer trails. A special endeavour will be made to induce young men to join the club, and it is fully expected that with the increased advantages all the old members will be back on the ice again. Many will have to purchase new stones. The members feel that this will prove no deterrent to the enthusiasts, who are looking forward to the keen contests that are promised for the coming season. It is felt that an energetic committee will place the local club upon a footing with the best in the province, with the result that many honours should come this way before the blasts of winter have been spent.

The appearance of the building from the sidewalk is now most imposing. The architecture of the façade is pleasing and appropriate, and with the ground in front now almost entirely cleaned of debris, the lot forms one of the most conspicuous in the city. The members of the club may be excused if they feel proud of their new quarters, which are a decided adornment to the city.

LAND NEAR REGINA YIELDED 61 BUSH. FALL WHEAT TO THE ACRE

Ground that yields sixty-one bushels of wheat to the acre is not found every day in the year, but Mr. John Bradshaw, of North Monaghan, told of a tract near Regina, Sask., which returned sixty-one bushels of fall wheat to the acre. He has just returned from the west, where he has been harvesting and threshing during the past two months. He also had to look after his property holdings in the vicinity of Regina. The average yield that he had in his operations was about thirty-five bushels. In the case of the exceptional yield of sixty-one bushels, the farmer's claim was doubted and to prove that this figure had actually been reached he had his land surveyed to find the exact area of his property, with the convincing result that the exceptional yield had been realized. It was claimed to be of the best quality of wheat in the district.

MARRIED MAN BOUND OVER TO KEEP THE PEACE AT THE REQUEST OF WIFE

The troubles which invest some married ladies were revealed by a case in police court this morning when a young woman asked to have her husband bound over to keep the peace. From her evidence and that of other witnesses it appeared that the young man had been drinking heavily and that when under the influence, he acted violently towards his wife, so much so that she testified that she was afraid that he would do her serious injury. The culmination came last night when the husband, after his wife had threatened to have him blacklisted, attacked her.

Magistrate Dumble, after hearing the evidence, bound the young man over to keep the peace, at the same time advising him to let liquor alone.

Mr. A P Pousette appeared for the defendant.

Edmonton Will Have Strongest Team That Ever Left The West

"Edmonton will have a stronger team than any amateur or professional team that ever came out of the west in search of the Stanley Cup," remarked Fred Whitcroft, captain and manager of the Edmonton seven, when asked this morning by the Examiner as to his opinion of the coming hockey season. "No expense is being spared," he went on, "to get together the strongest team possible. I have been signing men whose names, when published, will startle the fans, and I think that the seven should be able to wrest the honours from the Wanderers. We will get in shape as soon as possible, and expect to be in the pink of condition when we have to come east in January."

"Will you bring your team to Peterborough?" he was asked.

"I most assuredly will," was the answer. "I may bring them here for a week before the cup games and let them finish their training here. At any rate they will visit Peterborough on their way back, and we will play a game with the strongest aggregation that the rink company can gather together to meet us."

Manager Whitcroft expects to leave for the west in a few days, as he has practically rounded up his team, although he prefers to keep the line-up dark for a while.

With his long experience as a hockey player Whitty should prove to be some manager. Last year, under his guidance, Edmonton made a great reputation in the west by winning the Interprovincial League and beating everything in sight. He adds to his own ability as a hockeyist the knack of getting the best out of his men. Whitcroft was a member of the Peterborough junior and intermediate O. H. A. champions, played with Midland in the senior O. H. A. and with the Kenora team, Stanley Cup holders, so that he has had plenty of experience.

FRED WHITCROFT
Manager of Edmonton Hockey Team who says the Stanley Cup chasers will be the fastest team that ever came out of the west.

It was estimated that thirty or thirty-five were turned away on this account. The market clerk stated that morning that the hall is no loafing place and that those men who go up there for the sole purpose of gathering or tugging the stove will have to find some other place, as the women who are making their purchases do not like the crowding that results. It is likely that the police will look after loafers in the future.

GUNNING ACCIDENTS.

The despatches of Tuesday contain reports of four gunning accidents, two of which were fatal, and two more practically fatal. Only two of them were due to unpreventable causes. In one case a man climbing a fence caught his gun trigger in some way and was killed instantly Another fell and his gun discharged, killing his son; who was following him. In another a man was trailing his gun behind him with the result that his hip was shattered by a bullet. In a fourth case the explosion of a gun at the breech shattered a man's jaw. In all or nearly all of these cases, persons were carrying guns who did not know how to use them, or if they knew failed to apply their knowledge. In the case of the exploded weapon some ignorance of the care of the gun or the proper manner of loading it may be blamed for the accident. In in the case of nearly all accidents those referred to are due mainly to carelessness. As in canoeing accidents the trouble is chiefly due to ignorance of canoeing, so a large proportion of the gunning accidents are to be traced to careless ignorance of the proper use of these weapons. In both cases if the matter could be managed, persons who are ignorant of both canoes and guns should not be allowed to have charge of them till they are properly instructed and can give some guarantee of having common sense enough to use them with proper care. There is altogether too much shooting done anyway. Every day or at least every holiday or half holiday one can see youths armed with guns, making for the woods in the vicinity of the city, intent on slaughter. They do not always go for game in the proper sense of the word, for there is very little game to be had. But they go out to kill something, to follow the primal instinct of destruction—inherited from Cain.

If there is no legitimate game then the innocent kind are killed for the mere sake of killing. The other day two men were arrested for having in their possession seventeen birds of different kinds, but all benign birds; some, song birds, but all insectivorous birds, the destroyers of insect life which, if not kept down by these same birds and their kind, would destroy every green thing, and bring conditions bordering on starvation. It is bad that indiscriminate use of firearms by irresponsible and unthinking if not depraved persons should destroy so much innocent and benign bird life; but it is worse when the careless and reckless use of guns destroys human life. It is perhaps a little early to receive reports of green hunters shooting a companion in mistake for a deer, but, doubtless, there will be the usual quota in due course. A celebrated painter, in reply to a question, said he mixed his colours with brains. Part of the ammunition—as it does not do in hundreds of cases—of those who go forth with guns should consist of brains—and caution and care.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Provincial elections in Prince Edward Island will be held on Nov. 16th. The Liberals expect to win.

The German Kaiser is to go up in an air-ship. That will be no new experience—he "is up in the air" most of the time.

Things go rapidly in the West. The wheat grows and matures rapidly, and the bountiful crop of this year is being rapidly coined into money. Farmers are rapidly meeting their accounts, business men are rapidly discharging their financial obligations and business is rapidly picking up.

NOTES FROM ALASKA EXPOSITION

Special Rates to Seattle During the Fair Time—Motor Boat Races.

CONGRESS OF BOWLERS

During the early part of June, 1909, the Western Bowling Congress will be held in Seattle, and the local bowlers are making great preparations for the event. At least three hundred bowlers will attend, taking advantage of the reduced rates to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

The Fraternal Brotherhood will hold its 1909 encampment of the uniform rank in Seattle, and plans are being made to establish the camp upon the grounds of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. About 3,000 men will be quartered in the tents.

The railways have made their first announcement of rates to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in Seattle next summer. A fifty dollar round trip rate from Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Sioux City, Omaha, St. Joseph and Kansas City to the North Pacific Coast will be in effect from May 25 to September 30, good until October 31.

The Navy Department at Washington has notified the officials of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition that the Pacific squadron will be at Seattle on the opening day of the exposition, June 1, 1909. The fleet consists of the huge armoured cruisers California, Colorado, Maryland, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Washington, West Virginia and the modern protected cruisers St. Louis and Milwaukee, with smaller vessels.

The National Association of Engine and Motor Boat Manufacturers have enthusiastically endorsed the proposed exhibit of motor and power boats at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in Seattle next Summer. Motor boat races will be held at various periods during the exposition, the inland waters of Puget Sound making an ideal race course. Races will also be held on Lake Washington, which is twenty-two miles long, and on the shores of which are located the exposition grounds.

MRS. L. GARSIDE.

PSYCHINE SAVED THIS LADY'S LIFE.

This statement is no fiction, for Mrs. L. Garside resides at 509 York Street, London, Ont., and to use her own words is: "Always happy to reply to anxious enquirers and let them know what PSYCHINE has done for me."

Four years ago, Mrs. Garside wrote: "Your remedy, PSYCHINE, did wonders for me. I was about 28 or 30 years of age when I took your treatment. I was in consumption and the very best doctors told me there was nothing else that could be done, (this was 20 years ago) so as a last hope I gave your remedies a trial. From the first this was a most wonderful success. PSYCHINE certainly gave me new lungs, and I honestly believe PSYCHINE saved my life."

Writing four years after under date August 7, 1908, Mrs. Garside says: "My statement still holds good, my lungs never troubled me after your treatment which I took after being told there was no hope."

PSYCHINE, Dr. Slocum's great Health Remedy, is known everywhere as Nature's Greatest Tonic, building up the entire system, not only rendering it proof against those terrible germ and other diseases, that are so deadly in their operation, but it is the sworn and deadly foe of the germs and the diseases themselves. Bacilli, or disease germs, cannot live in the system with PSYCHINE. Send for FREE TRIAL BOTTLE. See coupon.

WEDDING BELLS

HANCOCK—SEDGWICK

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in the Methodist Church, Gelert, on the evening of October 28th, when Miss Emoth Luriamine Sedgwick, daughter of Mr. John Sedgwick, became the bride of Mr. Wilfred Stanley Hancock, of Irondale, the church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the whole front of the interior being banked with tall evergreens and potted plants. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. E. W. Rowland, of Minden, took place beneath a large arch of evergreens. Promptly at the appointed time, seven o'clock, the bridal party entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, skillfully played by Miss Maggie Wilson, of Fenelon Falls, niece of the groom. The bride, who was given away by her brother, J. B., looked winsome and sweet in white lace robe over taffeta silk. She wore a bridal veil caught up with a wreath of orange blossoms, and a shower bouquet of bridal roses, white carnations and maiden-haire fern was carried. The only jewelry worn was a pearl and amethyst bracelet and ring, gifts of the groom. Miss Pearl Sedgwick, sister of the bride, and Miss Olive Sedgwick, a niece, were daintiest of bridesmaids in gowns of white silk elaborately trimmed with net and lace. They wore high pink satin girdles with touches of the same colour on collar and sleeves, each carried a huge bouquet of pink carnations and roses. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. R. H. Hancock, Mr. Ernest Sedgwick and Sergt. Fred Dummitt, of Peterborough, acting as ushers. After the ceremony a reception was held at "Hillcrest," the home of the bride. After the usual congratulations over fifty guests sat down to a well laden table.—Minden Echo.

MORRISEY—FOX

One of the prettiest and best attended weddings ever witnessed in Ennismore took place on Tuesday, Oct. 20th, when Miss Emma Fox, adopted daughter of Cornelius O'Connor, ex-Reeve of Ennismore, and James Morrisey, son of Timothy Morrisey, of King's Wharf, were married. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick in the presence of a large number of friends and guests. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous dinner was served to over 300 guests.

Among the guests from Ennismore were Mr. Samuel Killen and wife, Reeve of Ennismore, who presented the bride with a handsome china tea set. Among the other guests were: T J Scollard and wife, W. J S Scollard and wife, Michael Perdue and wife, John Young and wife, P. O'Connor and wife, of Toronto; John Flood and wife, and a great number of other friends and relatives of the bride and groom from Downeyville; Mr. Jos. Lucas and mother, Mr. David Morrisey and wife, Mr. Frank Crowley and wife, Mr. Wm. Flynn and sister, Mr. Bert Lucas, Thos. Lehane, John Hickey, of Lindsay. The presents received by the bride were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the young couple were held by their many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Morrisey will reside at King's Wharf.

O'TOOLE—DORIS

Examiner Special.

A pretty wedding was celebrated at St. John's Catholic church, Keene Monday, Novemebr 9th, when Miss Agnes Doris, of Keene, was united in marriage to Mr. William O'Toole, of Kingston, formerly of Peterborough. The wedding took place at 9 o'clock a.m., and Rev. Father Galvin performed the marriage ceremony. The bride was becomingly attired in a travelling gown of blue broadcloth and wore a white hat. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Richard Doris, and Miss Evelyn Doris was bridesmaid. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. James O'Toole. The wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's father, and the happy couple left on the afternoon G.T.R. train for Kingston, where they will reside. The bride was the recipient of numerous handsome and costly presents.

Was Troubled With Weak Back For Years.

Could Not Perform Household Duties. Doctors Attended Without Avail.

Mrs. Arch. Schnare, Black Point, N.B., writes: "For years I was troubled with weak back. Oftentimes I have lain in bed for days, being scarcely able to turn myself, and I have also been a great sufferer while trying to perform my household duties. I had doctors attending me without avail and tried liniments and plasters, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was about to give up in despair when my husband induced me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after using two boxes I am now well and able to do my work. I am positive Doan's Kidney Pills are all that you claim for them, and I would advise all kidney sufferers to give them a fair trial."

Doan's Kidney Pills are a purely vegetable medicine, realizing quick, permanent relief, without any after ill effects. A medicine that will absolutely cure Backache and all forms of Kidney and Bladder Disease.

A medicine that strengthens the kidneys so that they are enabled to extract the poisonous uric acid from the blood and prevent the chief cause of Rheumatism.

BLACKMAIL WITH DYNAMITE.

Woman Tries to Get Money by Threatening to Drop Explosive.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Genevieve Chandler Phipps, divorced wife of Lawrance Phipps, a Pittsburg millionaire, narrowly escaped death by dynamite at the hands of a woman, who for two days had haunted the Phipps' home and had at last got hold of Mrs. Phipps and demanded $30,000 under penalty of death, immediate and horrible.

She was identified yesterday as Mrs. Allen Reed, the wife of a druggist of this city. Mrs. Reed returned recently from Springfield, Mass., whither she had gone to attend the funeral of her father, whose name has not yet been learned. She is believed to be insane.

When foiled in her attempt the woman cast dynamite at detectives from Mrs. Phipps' automobile, in which she had forced her intended victim to drive her to a bank to procure the money. An explosion was prevented because the dynamite struck a cushion of the automobile. The woman was quickly placed under control.

The woman persistently refused to give her name, and insisted that she was under the influence of a hypnotist and that this explained her attempt to blackmail Mrs. Phipps.

Southampton, Nov. 11.—The White Star line negotiations, which have been in progress for some time past for the construction of an immense drydock here, were concluded yesterday. The new dock is to be capable of accommodating any vessel up to a thousand feet in length.

Time Cut In Two.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—The Pennsylvania system from Manhattan and Jersey City to Philadelphia will be electrified and the running time between New York and Philadelphia reduced to one hour. The fastest time now between the two points is two hours.

Each Gained Three.

Almonte, Ont., Nov. 11.—At the recount of the ballots cast in North Lanark at the Federal elections Thoburn, Conservative, was declared elected by six. Each party gained three votes, which left the majority as before.

M'CALLUM ARRESTED.

Farmers' Bank Teller Is Formally Charged With Theft.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Donald Cameron McCallum was handed over to Detective Harry Twigg by Superintendent W. H. Welsh of the Canadian Detective Bureau at his office yesterday afternoon. He was locked up on a warrant sworn out by Charles R. Hill, manager of the head office of the Farmers' Bank, charging him with theft of $16,495. Of this sum $5,083 has been recovered in undisposed assets of McCallum.

The loss of the balance, $11,412, will fall upon the Fidelity Guarantee Co.

It was stated last night by one who has been on the inside track from the start, that no one else is implicated in the confession made by McCallum, but that any help he received in working his schemes was innocently given in the regular course of bank business.

McCallum will appear in the Police Court this morning, and, should his counsel arrive from Owen Sound, will likely plead guilty without further delay.

Bank officials say that their action in taking out the warrant was not hurried by the crown, but was intended from the start.

No effort was made last night to secure bail.

REIGN OF TERROR.

Revolutionists In Calcutta Kill Detective on Street—Arms Smuggled In.

Calcutta, Nov. 11.—The City of Calcutta is terrorized by an outbreak of political crimes.

The daring but unsuccessful attempt made three days ago on the life of Sir Andrew H. L. Fraser, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, was followed by a murder Monday evening. A Bengali detective who had been active in trailing the revolutionists was shot down on a crowded street by three men.

The people fear to give information concerning the criminals lest vengeance be visited upon them. The police are powerless. One of the two natives who was found guilty of murdering a man named Gossans last summer was hanged yesterday. All the police reserves of the city have been ordered on duty to prevent sympathetic demonstrations.

In the course of a trial at Midnapur, Bengal, in connection with a discovery of arms and explosives, a police informer testified that one of the accused had told him that many cases of rifles and revolvers had been shipped from America to Bombay under the guise of sewing machines and cotton goods.

Parties Now Tied.

Halifax, Nov. 11.—With the Government and the Opposition each holding eighteen seats, Newfoundland is now confronted with a situation probably unparalleled in the annals of British political history.

Whether Sir Robert Bond will resign and Sir Edward Morris be entrusted with the task of forming a new Administration, or whether he will endeavor to carry on the Government by electing an Opposition member as Speaker, or whether he will go to the country again are still moot questions.

Insurance In Jamaica.

London, Nov. 11.—(C.A.P.)—A Kingston, Jamaica, cable says: "Canadian underwriters representing three fire insurance companies, are starting business here on a policy which does not contain an earthquake clause with the understanding that the decision of the Supreme Court of Jamaica is to be final in any litigation which may arise."

The Canadian companies are the Anglo-American, the Montreal-Canada, and the Ontario. They are grouped as the Royal Canadian Underwriters.

Toronto Actress Disappears.

Pittsburg, Penn., Nov. 11.—Jan Davis, member of a theatrical company which went to pieces during a tour of towns in this section, is strangely missing, and the police of a dozen cities have been asked to search for her.

Miss Davis, whose right name is Jane Milhun of Toronto, Canada, disappeared from a hotel in Cumberland Md. A sister resides in Toronto.

Port Arthur Protests.

Port Arthur, Nov. 11.—A mass meeting of citizens was held last night to protest against the action of the Railway Commission in requesting the sheriff to take charge of the street railway.

Six Days Making Trip.

Port Arthur, Nov. 11.—The steamer Turret Chief arrived yesterday afternoon. She has been six days making the trip from Georgian Bay.

Peterborough Nov. 10, 1908.

Editor Post Card Column:

Dear Sir,—In your description of the race there is not a word about the disgraceful crowding at the finish. The race was decided not by the swiftness of the runner, but by the runner's ability or luck in dodging the people and rigs of so-called sports who were unfair enough to block the way to the finishing line. It was a repetition of previous years and I for one thank it should be severely guarded against in the future.

Yours truly,
"FAIR SPORT"

The above postal communication in the main is correct and the Examiner regrets that there should have been any trouble in this regard. Of course it should be understood that the race is run on the public highway over which the Examiner has no control, and dependence has to be placed upon the common sense and spirit of fair play of the spectators to ensure the runner a clear course. Unfortunately there seems to be some individuals who lose their heads at the finish. The greatest offenders on Monday were the people in vehicles and especially those who had connection with the race. They came crashing through the crowd just at the finish and the lane that had been kept clear was blocked in an instant. Why the people in rigs had not sense enough to keep clear of the finishing line is hard to understand but the fact remains that they failed to do so. The problem will be carefully considered and better things are expected for next year.

OBITUARY.

MRS. GEO. J. GILES

The many friends of the family will learn with deep regret of the death of Mrs. George J Giles, which took place at the family residence, Frederick street, North Monaghan, on Wednesday. The deceased lady was the second daughter of Mrs. Grace Allen, of the 7th line of Smith. She had, at the time of her death, been married eighteen months, and she leaves to mourn her loss a husband and an infant son, aged two weeks, as well as a mother, two sisters and two brothers. The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at two o'clock, from the family residence, and proceed to the Lakefield Cemetery.

JAS. WEDLOCL

The death occurred yesterday morning at 5.30 o'clock of Mr. Jas. Wedlock, one of the best known residents of South Monaghan. Two weeks ago Mr. Wedlock was badly injured by falling from a telephone post near his residence, and his injuries proved sufficient to cause his death. He was widely known and correspondingly respected, and the intelligence of his death will be received with much regret. He had been a resident of the township all his life and his handsome residence on the bank of the Otonabee River was known by everyone who had occasion to be on the stream.

He is survived by his wife and four children, Louis, Stirling, Belle and Edwina, all living at home. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon.

At the indoor meet held on Friday night last in Port Hope under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., Gordon Campbell, a Peterborough boy, who is attending T.C.S., won the 50 yds. and 220 yds. events in a handy manner. Arnold Knox, of Toronto, and Bobby Kerr, of Hamilton, were present, the latter giving exhibitions of short distance racing.

To Be Dyspeptic Is To Be Miserable.

Dyspepsia is the prevailing malady of civilized life. It is largely due to gross errors in diet, over-eating, too free indulgence in stimulants and over-taxing the stomach with indigestible food, eating too rapidly without chewing the food sufficiently, indulging in hot biscuits, pastry, pickles, confectionery, etc.

Constipation, headache, heartburn, sour stomach, distress after eating, belching of wind, faintness, and fullness and distention of the stomach are a few of the many distressing symptoms of the poor, weary dyspeptic. Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the stomach, stimulates the secretion of the saliva and gastric juice to facilitate digestion, removes acidity, purifies the blood, and tones up the system to full health and vigor, and thereby cures dyspepsia and all its tributary diseases.

Mr. Amos Sawler, Gold River, N.S., writes:—"I was greatly troubled with dyspepsia, and after trying several doctors to no effect, I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters and I think it is the best medicine there is for that complaint."

PERUNA A WONDERFUL BOON IN MY OLD AGE.

MRS. MAHALA REID,
Heartily Approves of Peruna and Manalin for Kidney and Bowel Trouble

MRS. MAHALA REID, Corbyville, Ont., Canada, writes:

"Your celebrated remedies have been a wonderful boon to me in my old age.

"I have not been in so good health for several years as now. I was troubled with constipation, rheumatism and kidney trouble.

"A little over two years ago, I completely lost my health, becoming almost helpless, when a dear friend sent me your remedies, Peruna and Manalin. I began to take them, following the directions on the bottle. I very soon began to feel benefited by their use and continued to take them.

"I am now completely recovered from the above ailments, in fact, better than I have been for years past. I cannot praise the remedies too highly and will always recommend them to others."

Constipation is almost sure to set up other derangements.

Retained accumulations within the bowels are partly reabsorbed into the system, producing sometimes rheumatism, sometimes kidney trouble.

The blood being surcharged with acids, which ordinarily find their escape through the bowels when they are regular, rheumatism is the result.

Acid blood forms crystals, which accumulate about the ligaments, cartilages and sometimes the bones in the joints.

Such morbid accumulations of blood throw extra work upon the kidneys. The kidneys being unable to perform the unusual labor of excreting these poisons, often give way and kidney trouble is the result.

Permanent relief cannot be reasonably expected except by correcting the constipation.

Regular bowels are a great safeguard to health. Peruna and Manalin are unexcelled the world over for chronic diseases affecting the bowels and kidneys.

Mrs. W. W. Lamaster, 3127 McAtee, Ave., Louisville, Ky., writes:

"I suffered for twenty-six years with bladder and kidney trouble, and being advised to give Peruna a trial, I did so. Eight bottles of Peruna and three bottles of Manalin entirely cured me."

INTHON BIBLE CLASS MEETING

Was Held on Sunday—Mr. C. C. Robinson Gave Address—Interesting as Usual

The Inthons gathered as usual in the George street church parlour Sunday afternoon.

A report on the convention held in Orillia some time ago, by the teacher, Rev. E A Pearson, and a report on the thousand men banquet held in Toronto last Tuesday night, by Assistant Secretary Briggs, were given in place of the regular lesson.

At the close of the lesson Mr. C C Robinson, secretary of the State of Maine for the Y.M.C.A., addressed the school. Mr. Robinson is a splendid speaker.

After the regular friendly handshake the Inthons dismissed. Some of the fellows went to the Conservatory of Music and will give a report on the splendid addresses they heard.

Mr. F A Mason, the clans artist, had a very pretty design, illustrating the lesson on the black-board.

Say, fellows, let's see you with us next Sunday.—Com.

Simpson Stuck To Coley Too Long; Thought Englishman Was Dangerours; Fred Davidson Was In A Collision

The Toronto Star has the following graphic account of the Hamilton Herald race:—

A bluenose, trained on cod fish and cod liver oil, one Hans Holmer, waltzed away with the Canadian foot-running Derby, the great Hamilton Herald around-the-bay race, yesterday. Holmer, the one-mile Canadian champion and king of Maratime Province long-distance gallopers, didn't break any records, but he climed home in 1.51.16. Sammy Mellors' records is 1.48.43.

Chasing the bluenose into town was a chap bred on Manitoba No. 1 hard—Harold Parsons of Neepawa, the Prairie Province champion—but, just as the goal was in sight, Fred Simpson, the Irish-Canadian's big Hiawatha Indian—Tommy Longboat's successor—came tearing down the trail like one of his wild ancestors on a scalp hunting excursion, ran over top of the tiring prairie wold, and scared Holmer out of a year's growth. Another mile and Simpson would have been scratching dust into the Nova Scotian's face, for Holmer was tiring.

Simpson's Usual

'Twas ever thus with Simpson! A slow beginner, he wakes up after ten miles, and makes them all look like woolly worms coming home from a banquet. It som eone would take after Simpson with a blacksnake whip for the first mile he would show them that Tom Longboat wasn't the only redskin remarkable for his alacrity.

Only Four Contenders

There were only four men really in the race, though twenty-one faced the barrier.

There were Indian wonders from Midland and Beaverton, a couple of Yankees, Jack Roe of Toronto, who ran second to Tom Longboat at Toronto in the Ward Marathon; Potter, the Hamilton green wonder; an Uxbridge dark horse; Ernie Woods of I.C.A.C., Toronto, the fireworks of all these long-distance races, but they all had to back up when the race running commenced. Percy Sellen, Holmer, Parsons and Simpson were the only gallopers who ever had a real chance.

Ernie Woods' curly head bobbed to the front at gun-fire and stayed there till the three-mile most. Then Percy Sellen, the Irish-Canadian's tiny little trotter, the gamest traveller the club ever had, loosened up. The wind was behind, and Sellen figured that if he could cook a fe wot them while he had it easy maybe he could ease up and last out when he struck the rough going.

Sellen's Fast Clip.

How that little spider did scoot for ten miles! He opened out a gap at the five-mile post and just paralyzed Jimmy George, the Beaverton Indian, Frank Mason, the dark horse from Uxbridge and a couple more who tried to glue to him.

At the canal Sellen had Sammy Mellor's record of 50.20 beaten by ten seconds, and he was still going, though the cruel, chilly wind from across the bay had sadly sapped his strength.

Holmer Comes!

At the ten-mile mark, Holmer, the bluenose, who had been steadily wading through the bunch, came by on the jump. He caught Sellen on the rough road. The I.C.A.C. boy tried to tack on, but Holmer, encouraged by James Lithgow, the Maritime Province A.A.A. president, and one of the best sports down by the sea, was not to be denied. He plugged by with that flat-footed shuffle of his, toes turned out, head up, elbows out. Holmer never let up. Sellen kept him in sight until the turn for home. Then the bluenose, well supplied with pacers, drew away.

Sellen ran second for four miles, then Parsons, who, by the way, was the favourite, loped by.

Parsons had more style than Holmer, but he lacked the Maritime boy's rugged strength. However, he struggled along gamely after him. Sellen had close to Parsons to the 16-mile mark, where he weakened. Fred Simpson galloped up.

See Him Go!

Galloped!—yes, galloped! That's it.

The way that big bronze boy tore up that road was a picture for the man who likes to see human beings in stern competition. He came along in a little cloud of dust—running strong and revelling in his very strength.

He smashed by his club mate, Sellen, like a quarter-miler out for a jaunt, and went after the prairie wolf.

Parsons was half a mile away—would he get him?

After Parsons.

Nothing daunted, he went right at him. Simpson's attendant had lost his wheel in a collision, but Claude Pearce, who was with Percy Sellen, went on with his club mate when Sellen quit. He just whooped the red boy into the village.

How that redskin gobbled up Parsons's lead.

Every bound brought him closer to the faltering Manitoban.

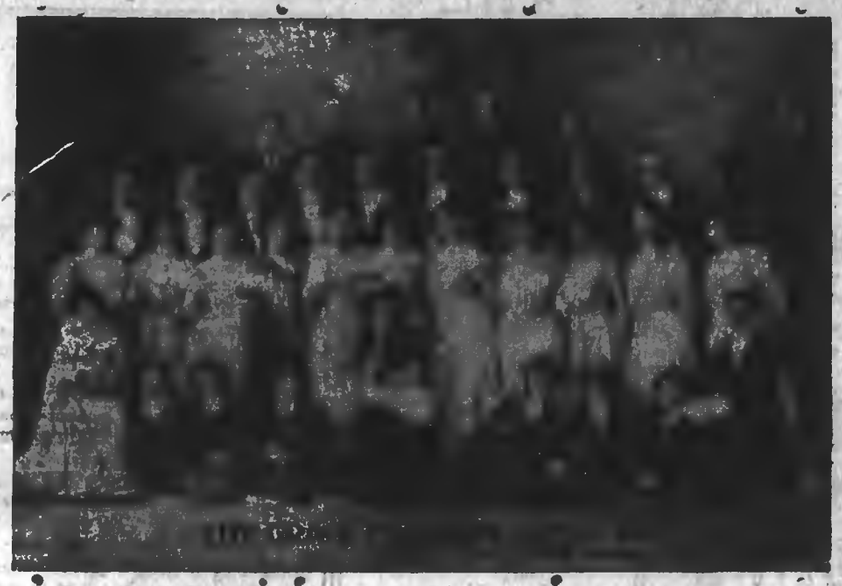
Up the famous Valley Inn Hill, where so many grand runners have died, went the Indian without a halt.

It looked like level ground to him.

Over the crest he sighted Parsons. "Whoop-ee," he shouted in his glee and down York street he tore like relentless fate. He caught Parsons a mile from home and sailed after the Bluenose. But in front like a wild man. He couldn't get Holmer, but he crowded his dead down to a third of a mile and finished fresh.

Holmer is Good.

Holmer had about all he wanted on end. He ran a well-judged race and now takes rank with the best in Canada. Tom Coley, who ranked favourite for a mile, until the Parson's money came in, was a poor fourth. He was outrun all the way. Coley lacked life. Roy Potter and Charles Cook, of Hamilton, had a great race for fifth place. They finished abreast after a rattling battle for five miles. Ernie Woods, the early pacemaker, settled down and came through alone, unattended, well ahead of Jack Roe, the West End's best long distance man. Mason, of Uxbridge, was right on Roe's heels.



At the Grand Friday, presenting "Little Dolly Dimples." Saturday matinee, "M'lle Julia" or "A Trip to Egypt." Special prices—Evening, 25, 35, 50 and 75 Cents. Matinee—Adults, 50c., Children, 25c. Plan now open.

STOP STARVING YOUR WEAK STOMACH

There Will be no More Stomach Trouble If You Will Do This.

Miserable indeed is the man or woman whose digestive system is unstrung—who goes to the table and can not eat or what little is eaten seems to fill them and lies like a lump of lead in the stomach, refusing to digest.

If you, dear reader, suffer this way and will put on your wraps now and get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and eat one 22-grain Triangule after your next meal you would appreciate, five minutes later, how long you suffered unnecessarily.

There will be no more indigestion—no misery in the stomach — no sour risings or Belching of Gas, no Heartburn, Flatulency or Eructations of undigested food and acid or feeling of Nausea, Fullness, Headache or other symptoms of a weakened stomach.

Stomach trouble (and Indigestion vanish like snow before the blazing sun.

When Diapepsin works your Stomach rests—gets itself in order. Diapepsin purifies and sweetens a sour stomach and freshens the intestines without the use of Laxatives, and what is more, it increases the gastric juices. This is what your stomach is begging for—more and better digestive juices. This is what makes you hungry and want to eat, and you can rest assured what you then eat will be taken care of properly and not left in the stomach to ferment and turn to gas and acid, and poison the breath with nauseous odours.

Get a 50-cent case from your druggist now—you ought to have Diapepsin about the house always. Should one of your family eat something which does not agree with him or her, or for a Sour Stomach or Excessive Gas, one triangule will always give immediate relief.

Will Address the Peterborough Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society.

Dr. Chas. Stratton, of Napanee, who has recently been to England in connection with post-graduate work along medical lines, and who was, during his visit there, entertained by Prof. E W Maunder, director of solar physics at the Greenwich Observatory, will lecture in Peterborough before the Royal Astronomical Society, Peterborough Centre, on the evening of Nov. 17th, in the chemical room of the Collegiate Institute. Dr. Stratton's paper is being looked forward to with interest, as he will give an account of what he saw in one of the greatest observatories in the world, and will seek to present the newest ideas relative to astronomy. The general public is cordially invited and no admission charge will be made.

IMPROVEMENTS BEING MADE TO THE BARRACKS

Roof Being Re-shingled and Winter's Fuel Obtained.

A few evidences of the executive ability and the industry of the local officers of the Salvation Army is shown by the fact that the citadel is being reshingled and promises have been received which will provide for the winter's fuel. Staff Captain Goodwin always looks ahead to future requirements, and is leaving the local corps probably stronger than it has ever been.

RETURN FROM DUCK SHOOTING AT THE LAKE

Peterborough Party of Three Have Successful Week.

Messrs. Ernie Mitchell, S. Coon and Jas. Goselin, who spent a week at Potash Point, Rice Lake, duck shooting, have returned home after a successful outing. They brought down forty-four ducks and enjoyed the best of sport, in spite of the cold weather. The birds were plentiful and a fairly large number of hunters were located at the most advantageous points on the lake.

The speakers who have been secured to lecture in this district are Mr. Barr, who will deal with the cool-curing question and will describe experiments and their results in the care of milk. This work has been carried out under the direction of the dairy section of the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Whitely also of this department will speak on cow testing.

Progressive farmers and dairymen will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing these men as they have devoted particular care and attention and also study to the work which they will discuss. It is understood that many of the factories will have large meetings which should be profitable to all those who will be present.

Messrs. Ward and Cameron will give addresses as well as other local men who are interested in dairying and the cheese business in particular.

Dust And Dirt Problem As It Affects The Local Merchants

Merchants are just like the rest of human beings anyway. It is true that last week they were complaining of the clouds of dust that blew along the main street, lodged in their doorways, yes, and even found entrance in small gusts into the interior as customers came and went. They were looking after their own welfare and the dust should not have been allowed to lie on the streets when they were paying taxes to provide for watering carts which they understood were not to cease work until the snow had come.

Finally the carts made their appearance, and Saturday came with its slight showers of rain transforming the dust into the muddiest of mud. Customers sought their week-end needs and the stores were thronged with people. True there was no dust waiting to be whirled into the spotless interior, but before the day was over there was more dirt in the the business places than there would have possibly been had the sprinklers been absent for a week. It was brought in on the men's boots and the women's shoes and one and all of the customers showed a distinct tendency to relieve their footwear of the mud as soon as they touched the clean floors inside. It seems that nature has more than one way of carrying out its original designs.

How A Duck Hunting Trip Was Spoiled By A Trivality

Towards the end of last week two lone duck hunters set out one afternoon at four o'clock to paddle to Rice Lake, and arrived at their destination at 12.30 that night, landing on one of the points past Hiawatha. The night was very chilly and the water had splashed on their clothes, and the mits they wore were wet and nearly frozen. To say that they were uncomfortable is merely stating the case very mildly. They pitched their tent, but had not brought a stove, so they lit a fire in front of the opening and placed their mits to dry above the flames. They were beginning to feel the returning glow of warmth and were comfortably gazing into the dancing flames when a gust of wind blew the mits into the flames. They were quickly destroyed before the eyes of the luckless hunters, who, with the weather quite cold, realized that their hopes for a hunt were practically gone. The ultimate result was that they returned the next day according to the report, disgusted with the manner in which their expedition had ended. They would otherwise have remained over the holiday.

AGED PEOPLE

Mrs. Sarah J. Windrom of Chicago, Grandniece of Alexander Hamilton, Who Signed The Declaration of Independence, Says:

"Vinol is a godsend to old people. I am 76 years old, but I have a hearty appetite, sleep soundly, and feel active and well to-day — thanks to Vinol. When I was young, cod liver oil was dispensed in a greasy, unpalatable form, and it fairly gagged me to get it down. Vinol is entirely different, very palatable and nourishing to impoverished blood. It is the finest tonic and strength-creator I ever used."

Mrs. H W Avery, Norwich, N.Y., says: "At the age of eighty-nine I felt the need of a tonic, something to strengthen and build me up. For some time I have taken Vinol, and have found that it brings vigour and life to the aged as nothing else will."

The reason Vinol is so beneficial to old people is because it is composed of two world-famed tonics—the medicinal elements of cod liver oil—and iron. Vinol tones up the digestive organs, aids assimilation, makes rich, red blood, and strengthens every organ in the body.

We will cheerfully return money to all those who try Vinol and receive no benefit. McDermid & Jury, druggists, Peterborough.

SPECIAL MEETING OF THE COUNCIL

Will be Held This Evening to Consider Important Question.

A special meeting of the council is being held for to-night to consider a question of importance. All those interested in civic affairs should be present as the matter is one that will be of general concern. It is the question of giving the franchise of the city streets to a natural gas company.

LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT MEETING

A meeting of delegates from the different church congregations in the city will be held in the Y.M.C.A. building on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, to consider arrangements for a mass meeting of men in the interests of the Laymen's Missionary movement. It is expected and urged that every congregation will, if it has not already been done, select representatives for the meeting on Friday night.

STEAMER TEMISKAMING BLOWS UP

Explosion on Lake Temiskaming Kills Five Persons.

MANY HURLED INTO WATER

Boiler of Vessel Bursts Just as She is Approaching Temiskaming Landing and Five of Those on Board Are Already Dead—Another Will Die and Six Others Are Burned — Details Are Meagre.

North Bay, Nov. 11.—A terrible disaster occurred between 5 and 6 o'clock last evening on Lake Temiskaming, accompanied by loss of life and injuries.

The steamer Temiskaming of the Temiskaming Navigation Co. was approaching Temiskaming landing on her regular trip from New Liskeard with passengers and freight when, without any warning, her boiler exploded, wrecking the steamer and throwing the passengers and crew into a panic, several being cast into the lake by the sudden shock.

Details are lacking, owing to the remoteness of the scene, Temiskaming Landing being on a branch of the C.P.R. running north from Mattawa.

Five met death from the explosion and drowning, while many are injured.

A special train left Mattawa to bring the injured to that place for treatment.

So far the casualty list includes: McBride and Hunter from the United States, missing; J. Menard, fireman.

The dead: Fireman Bergounhan.

McBride is supposed to be drowned. Two men, names unknown, will likely die. Six are badly burned.

TOOK PRINCE FOR KAISER.

And Papers Reported That William Accompanied Zeppelin.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—It was erroneously reported here yesterday that Emperor William had made a successful ascension in the Zeppelin airship in the afternoon and the evening editions of the local papers carried detailed descriptions of the reported flight to his Majesty.

Prince Von Fuerstenberg, who did make an ascension with Count Zeppelin, was mistaken by the cheering crowds for His Majesty. The prince has been the Emperor's traveling companion lately and yesterday was clad in the same style of hunting dress that the Emperor has been wearing.

When the count returned from his short flight with Prince Von Fuerstenberg he was met by the Emperor, who personally conferred upon him the Order of the Black Eagle. His Majesty hung the chain of the order around the neck of the count and kissed him [illegible] the cheering of the assembled crowds.

Dorando to Meet Hayes.

New York, Nov. 11.—John J. Hayes, winner of the Marathon race at the Olympic games in London last summer, has signed a contract, it is announced, to meet Pietri Dorando, the Italian runner, who was half carried and half pushed across the tape in front of the American and was disqualified because of his assistance. The agreement which Hayes has signed calls for practically a re-running of the event in Madison Square Garden, this city, on Wednesday, Nov. 25, Thanksgiving Eve. It is stipulated that the full Marathon distance—26 miles, 385 yards—be run.

New Railway Brotherhood.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—A wire received at the headquarters of the Canadian Federation of Labor, states that the International Brotherhood of Railway Employes, embracing the whole of the Intercolonial system, have severed connection with the international union.

They have reorganized in Halifax as the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes, with A. R. Mosher as president. Eight thousand men are affected.

New Bishop of Washington.

ECZEMA DEVELOPED BLOOD POISONING

Geo. E. Williams

Mr. Geo. E. Williams, of 69 Mutual Street, Toronto (who with a view to entering the ministry, studied theology at King's College), tells how Zam-Buk saved his leg. He says: "Eczema broke out some time ago on my leg and the irritation and pain it set up were terrible. I must have introduced some foreign substance into the open sore by scratching, for blood poisoning set up and caused me a terrible time. I was in Hamilton on business one day when the limb started to be so painful I could hardly walk. An examination when I got home revealed a big discolored patch, and the agony from it was fearful.

"We consulted a doctor who said it was a bad case of blood poisoning and for a long time he feared amputation of the leg would be necessary. The treatment I underwent did not seem to tend towards recovery, and so many people advised me to try Zam-Buk, till I did so at last.

"The first application gave me some relief, and the poisonous matter which was drawn from the wounds convinced me that I was on the right track. I therefore persevered with this healing balm. The first two boxes drew out the poison and cleaned the sores, so that at that stage my legs looked as though they were full of holes.

"From that time on the healing work commenced, and I am thankful to say that after using several boxes of Zam-Buk all the wounds were healed and my legs cleared of the horrible Eczema that had affected me for years. My skin now looks as clear and as healthy as that of a child. I give you this testimonial in the hope that every sufferer from Blood poisoning or Eczema will give Zam-Buk a trial."

SAVED A GIRL'S ARM.

Miss Saddington, of Huntsville, says: "I had a scalded arm which "went the wrong way" and began to swell very badly. The pain from it was terrible and when I went to the doctor he said it was blood-poison. For ten months I was very bad with it. One day in the house of a friend, Zam-Buk was recommended to me. I applied some Zam-Buk that same night, but it was more to please her than because I had much faith in it. To my intense surprise, when I awakened next morning my arm was much better. I thereupon obtained a supply of Zam-Buk and continued with the treatment regularly. In three weeks the arm was quite well.

HANDS BADLY CHAPPED: ZAM-BUK HEALED.

Mrs. H. H Rankin, of Appin, (Ont.), says: "I consider it only my duty to tell you of the great benefit I have derived from Zam-Buk.

"My hands were so chapped that I could not put them in water. They had big cracks on them which caused me such pain that I could hardly work. Whenever I tried to put them near water they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. They did not seem to be benefited by anything I had tried until your Zam-Buk was introduced. To my great pleasure within a very short time Zam-Buk closed up the cracks and healed the sore places. My hands are now white and smooth.

WHAT ZAM-BUK IS AND WHAT IT DOES

Zam-Buk combines the knowledge of the ancients with the science of the moderns. The charioteers, gladiators and wrestlers of ancient Greece seldom emerged from their contests without some gaping wound or severe bruise, and to anoint their injuries with secret balms was part of the day's programme.

In Zam-Buk you have the modern representative of these ancient healers. If you think what modern chemistry can now do, at concentrating essences, at putting into small space the virtue out of great bulk, you will understand how the concentrated and purified herbal essences in Zam-Buk have made for this balm a name all over the world as being the greatest healer yet discovered. Ordinary ointments contain mostly rancid animal fat or poisonous mineral substances. Leave the lid off these ointments for a few days and note the result. Zam-Buk on the contrary is absolutely free from any trace of animal fat or mineral poison. It is made from purely herbal essences, is so concentrated and purified that it is suitable for the delicate skin of children, and yet so powerful as to be equal to the cure of the most stubborn sore, ulcer or chronic wound. Zam-Buk never goes rancid. It always keeps clean, fresh and sweet.

Apply Zam-Buk to a sore, a cut, a scratch, a poisoned wound, a patch of Eczema and at once the healing process begins. Zam-Buk is at the same time healing, soothing and antiseptic. It prevents suppuration, blood-poisoning, etc. It draws out inflammation, ends pain and smarting and heals. The best test is a personal test. Send in for a free box and let Zam-Buk prove its own case.

REICHSTAG ALL AGAINST THE KAISER

Wilhelm's Indiscretion Finds No Defender in Reichstag.

HE TALKS FAR TOO MUCH

Prince Von Buelow In His Explanation Before Parliament Says Emperor Must Show More Reserve or He Will Quit—Conservatives, Radicals and Socialists Unite In Reprehending the Interview.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Emperor William never has been so severely judged by his Parliament as he was yesterday during the debate in the Reichstag on the interpellations concerning the conversations published with the permission of the Emperor in The London Daily Telegraph on Oct. 28.

The criticisms of His Majesty's court, his Ministers, and His Majesty's treatment of the constitution, as well as of his freedom of speech, went to lengths that astonished observers acquainted with the traditional caution of the Chamber in dealing with the personality of the sovereign. And the Emperor seemed to have no defenders.

Chancellor Von Buelow made an address lasting fifteen minutes, but he lacked his usual spirit and a person high in his confidence is authority for the statement that he had also told the Emperor that neither himself nor his successors could remain in office unless His Majesty was more reserved.

The House received Von Buelow's explanation in icy silence. The Conservatives, representing largely the landed nobility, were almost as relentless as the Socialists, the Radicals, and the National-Liberals, and yesterday's proceedings are regarded by the extreme Liberals as the beginning of a long contest between the crown and Parliament, that may end in Germany having a Ministry responsible to Parliament and not to the crown alone.

Prince Von Buelow spoke earnestly in reply to the criticism of the Government and the Emperor. He said, in part:

"I must weigh my words because of the effect they will have abroad. I do not wish to add fresh prejudice to the damage already caused by the publication in The Daily Telegraph. I assume that the details given therein are not all correct, and I am certain that the story about a detailed plan of campaign to end the Boer War is not right. This plan consisted merely of some academic ideas concerning the conduct of war in general, which the Emperor conveyed to Queen Victoria in the course of their correspondence, and it was without practical significance for the operations then going on or for the end of the war.

"The recognition by His Majesty of the unjustified misunderstanding of his utterances that the reference to Great Britain and the excitement and regret aroused thereby in Germany will, I am convinced, lead the Emperor in future private conversations to exercise that reserve which in the interest of a uniform policy and the authority of the crown is indispensable. If this proves not to be so, neither I nor any one of my successors could take the responsibility. I accepted the blame for the publication of the article in The Daily Telegraph and offered my resignation, and it was the most difficult task in my political life to resolve to remain in office. How long I will continue I do not know, but I consider it my duty at this difficult period to continue to serve the Emperor and the nation."

Herr Von Heidebrandt and Prince Hatzfeldt, Conservatives, and Baron Von Hertling, a member of the Centre party, took part in the debate and energetically protested against the personal element being injected into foreign politics.

Herr Liebermann Von Sonnenberg, the arrarian and anti-semite, surprised the House by the vehemence of his utterances. He declared that the monarchists, with heavy hearts, found themselves compelled to protest finally against the Emperor's statements. The nation's confidence, he said, has sunk to zero.

"We do not believe," he continued, "that the chancellor can take the responsibility, or that the future will bring any real improvement. The improvement will last only until the next time. Evidence exists that there is further material in foreign hands for use when the occasion calls."

The House adjourned to meet today, and when the chancellor departed the crowds outside the doors heard and hooted him.

Premier Deakin Outvoted.

London, Nov. 11.—A cablegram from Melbourne says the Federal House of Representatives met yesterday and on a division the Government was defeated by a vote of 49 to 13.

The Labor party, comprising approximately one-third of the strength of the Federal House, withdrew its support from the Government a few days ago, hence the defeat of the administration in Australia.

Hundreds See Murder.

Newark, N.J., Nov. 11.—Several hundred employes, many of them young women, yesterday witnessed the killing of Francis Embriana by Pietro Disconti, near a large factory in Harrison, and instantly pursued and captured the slayer.

Grand Jury Important.

St. Catharines, Nov. 11.—"I am not one of the judges who would do away with the grand jury. I think the people at large should have a part in the administration of justice and this is the only way possible. Serving on the grand jury should be looked upon as a privilege, not merely a duty," said Sir William Meredith yesterday morning in opening the Assizes, when three of the grand jurymen did not appear.

New Wing May Be Ready.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Hon. R. F. Sutherland, who will continue to fulfill the duties pertaining to the Speakership of the House of Commons till a new Speaker is named, has arranged to have the work on the addition to the Parliament buildings rushed night and day in order to have it in readiness for the January session.

Declared Sane.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Severin Desjardine, son of Ald. Desjardine, has served two terms for local thefts and his mental capacity has been examined. He was reported mentally responsible at yesterday morning's Police Court and goes to jail for other thefts for one year.

Switchman Arrested.

KEPT IT UP ELEVEN YEARS

Mr. Davie of Ship-Wrecking Firm Tells of Annual Levy of $500 Which He Paid to Sweeten Up Former Agent—Worst Is Not Yet Known According to Rumors—James Holliday Is Now on Stand.

Quebec, Nov. 11.—The investigation into the management of the Quebec agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department was resumed yesterday morning at the criminal chamber of the Quebec Court House in the presence of a large number of spectators, which included Quebec's prominent citizens. The evidence adduced yesterday was startling in the extreme, and at times the amount of moneys recounted by the witnesses to the former agent of the Department, Mr. J. U. Gregory, fairly amazed the listeners. One of the witnesses, Mr. A. Davie, a member of the Davie shipwrecking firm, deposed that he paid to Mr. Gregory $5,500 in installments of $500 per annum during the past eleven years, and in addition gave him another $400 to proceed to New York with on a matter of private business.

Yesterday afternoon several witnesses admitted paying the former Government agent five per cent. on the amount of their accounts with the Department, and Mr. H. C. Schmidt, inspector of Government steamboats, admitted receiving money to the amount of $1,000 from the firm of F. X. Drolet, foundrymen and machinists. Judging from rumors, the worst features of the immoral transactions have not yet been fully elucidated.

The first witness examined when the court convened yesterday morning was Mr. James Holliday of Holliday Bros., steamship owners, who have had their steamer Aranmore under hire with the Marine and Fisheries Department for the last three years. He was not detained long in the witness box. He deposed that he had done business with the Department amounting to $45,000 in three years. Mr. Watson expects to elicit startling information from this witness later when he produces his books and papers.

THE VALUE OF COD LIVER OIL

No physician would dispute the value of COD LIVER OIL in nervous and pulmonary diseases, if the nauseous grease did not so derange digestion as to more than counteract the good done by the therapeutic principles of the oil.

In "BRICK'S TASTELESS" there is no grease. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, invigorates the nerves by nourishing them, and CURES Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis. Its timely use is an insurance against serious consequences, as the weakened system is a prey to germ diseases, such as Tuberculosis, Typhoid and Typhus Fevers, and Diphtheria.

Brick's guarantee with every bottle is an evidence of our faith in this matchless Preparation.

"BRICK'S TASTELESS" is put up in eight (8) ounce bottles, retail price fifty (50) cents, and in twenty (20) ounce bottles, retail price one (1) dollar.

McMartin and Cross May Hook Up; Examiner Winner Quite Willing To Meet Otonabee A. C. Youngster

The prospects are that there will be another rattling race in a few days between two of the junior runners in the Examiner road race. Jas. McMartin of Otonabee, father of Jimmy McMartin, who finished third, was not satisfied with the result and issued a challenge to the winner, Bertram Cross, to meet his son in a five mile race when there would be no confusion owing to the crowds. Cross the plucky winner of the junior race, is game, and is willing to meet McMartin on any course, except on the road where McMartin has been training. He is anxious to get another crack at the Otonabee boy and asks McMartin if he really wants another race to meet him in the Examiner office on Thursday night at 7.30 o'clock to make the arrangements. Cross would like the race run off Saturday. The youngsters should have a great battle if they hook up again.

"Jack" Corkery Makes Dazzling Run Of 75 Yards In Game With Ottawa Seniors-College Star

On Thanksgiving Day afternoon the Ottawa College Rugby team stacked up against the senior team of the city, the team that trimmed Hamilton last Saturday and although defeated by 17 points to 12, they gave their opponents a close run. In fact at one stage they were leading by 12—9. The Ottawa papers state that Jack Corkery played a star game on the College half line, getting one of their tries after a run of 75 yards through the Ottawa players. The reference to the local boy's play in the Ottawa Citizen is as follows:

The fourth quarter was by far the best of the day. Ottawa had the better of it for a while and then came the most spectacular and sensational piece of work of the day. Williams kicked across the field to Corkery and the latter, after dropping the ball picked it up again, wiggled past Ryan and Stronach, side-stepped Disney and Church, ducked under George Kennedy's arm and dashed through a broken field towards the Ottawa goal. The play brought the crowd to its feet. Corkery lout-running the Ottawa line and going straight on. McCann and Williams were on the west side of the field, too far away to get to him, and Hal Kennedy was the only man who had any chance of nailing the flying Collegian Faster and faster Corkery moved, Kennedy, however, gaining on him. For a second or two it looked as though Kennedy would grass the youngster, but Corkery sprung further ahead at the 25-yard line, going over a few feet ahead of Kennedy and planting the oval squarely between the poles. The play brought the College students to their feet, cheering like mad, all the spectators joining in giving Corkery a hand for his long run. Bawlf kicked the goal and College were ahead by 12 to 9 with ten minutes to play.

Corkery the star

Of the Varsity men Corkery was the star. College used a number of trick plays and on many occasions, Bawlf feinted a punt and then flashed it over to Corkery. The latter was always there with the goods, running magnificently throughout. College were not as sure with their hands as Ottawas.

With the College students Corkery was the hero of the day.

College certainly have a find in Corkery.

Champion Hoagland Leaves For Home; Has Handicap Race On Friday Night

"The Walking Machine" W A Hoagland, who defeated Jim Harrison here on Monday, left for his home in Auburn, N.Y., this morning, stating that he had had a most enjoyable visit and that he hoped that he would soon have an opportunity to come back to Peterborough. Hoagland will rest up until Friday night when he meets Weir, the Trenton, N.J., walker, in a handicap race at Trenton. The conditions are that Hoagland is to give his opponent a quarter of a mile in ten miles. The two met two weeks ago at Auburn under the same conditions and Hoagland was unable to cut down the lead, although he made it close. He hopes to do better on this occasion.

Saturday's Rugby Game At Lindsay; Scugog Impressions Of The Contest

The Lindsay Post says of Saturday's rugby game:

The Lindsay rugby team again demonstrated their superiority over the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. team when they defeated them in a fast and exciting game on Saturday afternoon by the score of 13 to 3. The attendance was very poor, there being only about fifteen persons who paid an admission fee into the grounds. Those who did attend, however, witnessed one of the best games seen here this fall, and were well repaid. It was nearly four o'clock before the two teams lined up for battle, the Peterborough boys being a little late in reaching the grounds.

At the first kick-off it was seen by the spectators that the game was going to be a tight one, and it was not until the last of the first quarter that Lindsay scored a rouge, which counted one point. Before any more could be scored by either team quarter time was called, and the teams changed ends. The Peterborough boys lined up ready to play for all that was in them and they had the ball up at Lindsay's line for the most part of the quarter. At last by some clever playing they scored three rouges, making the score 3 to 1 in their favor. This gave them some hope and they played hard. At half time Lindsay saw that it was up to them to get going and pressed hard against the Peterborough line. At last their efforts were rewarded, for after several attempts Boyd Sylvester broke through and after a sensational rush scored a touchdown. This was easily converted by "Duky" Cotton, giving Lindsay six more points, making the score a total of 7 to 3 in favor of Lindsay. After this the game was never in doubt, and the Lindsay boys won as they liked. By a pretty play a drop kick was scored, counting four more for Lindsay, and making the score a total of 12—3 in favor of Lindsay. In the third quarter Lindsay scored another rouge, making the score 13 for Lindsay. This ended the scoring and before either side could count any more the game was called. The game was indeed a friendly one, there only being one or two heated discussions. After the game the Peterborough boys gave three hearty cheers for the Lindsay team, and left in the best of spirits. They have a splendid team but seemed rather stranger on the grounds. Kelley, their centre half, played a great game, making many fine kicks. The rest of the team also played up well, but the Peterborough line was not quite as strong as Lindsay's. For Lindsay "Duky" Cotton and the two Greens were the shining stars and made many fine plays.

Rev. Father Collins refereed to the satisfaction of all.

Fred Simpson's Whirlwind Finish; Graphic Story Of Round-the-Bay Race, Would Have Won In Another Mile

Fred Simpson, (accompanied by Messrs. Corney Burns and Fred Davidson, arrived home from Hamilton last night, the Indian runner feeling in fine shape after his long jaunt of the day before. All three state that Simpson should have won and that only a mistake in judgment lost him the race, as he was by far the freshest and strongest of the field at the finish.

Tom Coley, last year's winner, was tipped off as the dangerous man, and accordingly Simpson stuck to him like a leech for the first eleven miles, paying no attention to Sellen out in front and allowing Holmer and Parsons to get away. He realized at last that if he stayed any longer with Coley he would be out of the running altogether, and he therefore cut loose but it was too late. The way he ate up Sellen first and then Parsons was a revelation to the spectators. He negotiated the Valley Inn Hill without difficulty and passed Parsons as if he had been tied up, letting out after Holmer and cutting down his lead every step. He was too far ahead, however, to be stopped.

The Peterborough Indian ran unattended part of the way. Fred Davidson, of Peterborough, was with him on a bicycle, but met with an accident on the course. The local party state that his upset was deliberately achieved by Tom Coley's attendants. They did not relish the way Simpson was hanging on and one of their rigs crowded Davidson into the ditch twice, finally running over his back wheel and putting his bicycle out of commission. He had to leave the wheel there and come home in a rig.

Claude Pearce, of the Irish-Canadians, who was with Sellen, on a bicycle, left the Englishman when the latter quit, came on with Simpson, and two miles out Fred Ebbeston, who had been attending one of the green runners, helped him out by pacing him.

"RECKLESS" IS A WONDERFUL BICYCLIST

His Work at the Roller Rink Last Night Opened the Eyes of the Crowd.

One of the best trick bicycle "turns" that has been seen in Peterborough in a long time, is being put on at the Auditorium Roller Rink just now. Reckless Recklaw, the New York cyclist, made his first appearance in Peterborough there last night, and opened the eyes of the crowd by his clever work and the novelty of his feats. Trick bicycle riding is not new but Recklaw has succeeded in mastering some astounding stunts and his act is great from start to finish. He is assisted by Miss Fanny Leight, as graceful and expert a lady roller skater as has been here. The two will be at the roller rink to-night and to-morrow night, the programme for Thursday including a race of cyclist vs. roller skater. The two clever people are well worth seeing.

THE HERALD'S OPINION OF SIMPSON

Says That the Indian Made a Marvellous Finish on Monday.

The Hamilton Herald says:—Fred Simpson, the Indian who ran second, was second in the race last year, and was sent to England last summer as a member of the Canadian Olympic team. He belongs to the Chippewa tribe, and his home is in Hiawatha, near Peterborough. He is 27 years old, and stands 5 feet 11 inches in height. For two years Simpson's great ambition has been to win the Herald race, and after he won second prize last year he named his son Herald Simpson, in honour of the great race. Simpson lacks the ability to follow the early pace, but he is a great finisher. He covered the last part of the journey much faster than any other runner, and he did the same thing last year, when he came from behind at a terrific clip and passed several men in his effort to win.

BASKETBALL.

The Brownie basket ball team of the local Y.M.C.A., returned home last night from London, Ont., bringing with them the short end of the score in their game with the London seniors on Monday night. The Brownies were beaten by the close score of 35 points to 28 and the showing made by them was most creditable, considering the bunch they were up against. The London team included Stroud, formerly of the champion Buffalo Germans, and Brock of the crack Hamilton seniors, as well as a star Syracuse, N.Y., player. The strange floor of course bothered the Brownies to some extent, and the difference in the rules was another draw back. There is no touch at the ends in the London floor, the baskets being hung from the wall, a difference which was advantageous to the winners.

However, the Brownies gave them an awful run for their money and played fine ball throughout, never letting up for a moment. Both quintettes scored rapidly and the game was always interesting. The score at half time was 20-12 in favour of London.

The Peterborough team lined up as follows:—

Forwards—Creasman and Miller.
Centre—W Fitzpatrick.
Backs—R Hall and N Darling.

The boys had a very enjoyable trip and are well satisfied with the treatment they received.

Condin, formerly of Peterborough. Nuptial mass was solemnized by Rev. Father Phalen, in the presence of a large number of friends of the young people. Mr. Frank Ayotte, a brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Maggie Ayotte bridesmaid. The wedding dejeuner afterwards was partaken of by a very large number of friends.

"THE HIDER IN THE WOOD-PILE"

Thousands of people go through life feeling more or less miserable without ever knowing the reason. They suffer from headaches, indigestion, pains in the back, and at the slightest chill get rheumatism or neuralgia.

They try to cure these separate outbreaks, never suspecting that the root of the whole trouble is the failure of the bowels to move regularly, and in many cases the sluggish action of kidneys and skin. The result, of course, is that the whole system gets clogged with impurities, which soon turn to poison, and show their presence in various ways.

"Fruit-a-tives"—or fruit juice tablets—promptly stir up the sluggish liver, regulate the bowels, and stimulate the kidneys and skin to do their work properly. Thus they cure all these troubles by removing the cause, and make it possible to really enjoy life. 50c a box—6 boxes for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

ANOTHER SOUTH END GROCERY

Will be Opened in a Short Time by Mr. Bert Hunter—A High Grade Stock.

IS IN A GOOD LOCATION

The new grocery store at the corner of Sherbrooke and Reid streets, which was built by Mr. H. J. McCannon, and which was recently purchased from him by Mr. Bert Hunter, will be opened to the public in the course of a week or ten days. This is the seventh building that Mr. McCannon has built in this block. On the opposite side of the street he erected six sandstone brick houses, which by their design and finish have won many complimentary remarks.

In this store he has provided Mr. Hunter with a splendid place of business, equipped in a manner which affords plenty of room and ample opportunity of displaying the goods. The store faces Reid street, with two large windows looking out on that street and one on Sherbrooke street. The shelving, show cases, etc., are arranged in a pleasing style, and everything is bright and clean and business like.

Mr. Hunter has been in the employ of Mr. Peter Connal & Son, and has gained a valuable experience in the handling of high grade groceries and provisions. He was also engaged in the grocery department of Simpson's, Toronto. Mr. Hunter will carry a complete line of fine groceries, provisions and confections. He will receive telephone orders, and with a delivery waggon on the road will be able to guarantee prompt responses.

The upper stories of the building are built for living purposes and are likewise well equipped with modern improvements.

Church League Is To Be Organized

At Least Five Teams are Promised and Prospects are Bright.

Prospects are bright for a church hockey league this season on the same lines as the baseball league during the past summer, but probably with a more elastic constitution in regard to the age limit. It is likely that five teams at least will battle for the honours. The probabilities are that George street Methodist, Park street Baptist, Knox church, All Saints' church and St. Andrews' church will all be represented, while other teams are expected. The only difficulty in the way is of rink accommodation, but this is likely to be overcome by the open air rink which the Park street boys expect to have, and it is likely that Knox church will also have an open air rink. A meeting was held on Thanksgiving Day and preliminary arrangements were made.

HAWKING MACHINES.

Catarrh Sufferers Are Nothing But Hawking, Spitting and Blowing Machines, Says an Authority.

It is possible that in these days when cleanliness and sanitary reforms are being preached in the churches, schools and at public gatherings, that thousands of people will continue to suffer from catarrh when there is an absolutely certain remedy always on hand.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is a pleasant, medicated, and antiseptic air. Breathe it in and it will cure catarrh. It will stop foul breath, watery eyes and crusts in the nose in a few days.

Mrs. H. W. Wilson, of Johnson, street, Wellesburg, Ont., says: "Yes, we are great friends of Hyomei for the reason that Mr. Wilson has had catarrh for several years and tried several remedies and doctors, but nothing has relieved the trouble like Hyomei. His trouble is from pains across the eyes and a burning or huskiness in the throat. Sometimes much difficulty in breathing, the glands in his eyes and nose swollen and the disease made him literally sick all over. He cannot say enough in praise of Hyomei, and there is nothing that can give better relief to catarrh than this remedy, which we heartily recommend."

A complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of a strong, hard rubber pocket inhaler and a bottle of Hyomei, costs only $1.00, and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost only 50 cents each. Wm. Madill sells it and guarantees it to do exactly as advertised.

Hyomei also cures asthma, bronchitis, coughs, colds, and infant's croup.

QUALITY FIRST

In some lines of business price may well be the great talking point. Those who can buy beg and sell least have something interesting to say to the public. In the DRUG BUSINESS it's different. Quality, regardless of price, should be the main factor, and it is here. What you buy here in the line of Drugs and Medicines will be of right quality, and price asked will also be right—as low as goods of same quality can ever be bought for anywhere.

AMERICAN CAPITALISTS TO BORE FOR NATURAL GAS NEAR PETERBOROUGH; GIVEN FRANCHISE BY THE COUNCIL

By virtue of an agreement, ratified by the City Council at a special meeting held last night, a franchise has been given to a new company to use the streets for the operation of a gas supplying business that the aldermen confidently expect to to mean big things for the city. A company of American capitalists, represented by Mr. C. E. Dittman, of Waynesburg, Pa., has decided that Peterborough is a suitable field for the operation of a natural gas plant and that natural gas is to be found in the neighbourhood. Confident in their belief they are prepared to spend a considerable amount of money, not less than $6,000 at the least, for the purpose of boring for natural gas in the neighbourhood of the city, and have already taken steps to acquire property. If oil and gas is found the company will spend $2,500,000 in and around the city, so that it can be seen that the proposition looks to be a good one from the standpoint of the citizens of Peterborough in more ways than one.

Together with Mr. R. H. Leary, who has been doing heroic work on behalf of the new company, Mr. Dittman has already secured 3,500 acres of property to the west of the city, and some 12,000 or 15,000 acres in a solid block are required.

The conditions of the lease which Mr. Dittman is asking the farmers to sign provide that no wells are to be drilled within 300 feet of main buildings without the lessor's consent, that the lessee shall deliver to the lessor free of all cost the one-tenth part of all petroleum and other minerals produced and saved from the premises, and to pay $50 per annum for each gas well from which the gas is marketed.

The lessee also undertakes to pay any actual damage to crops caused by the operations and to give the lessor the free use of gas for one dwelling house situated upon the premises upon which gas may be found.

The agreement with the company was discussed by the Manufacturers' Committee on Tuesday night, and when read to the council last night was passed without any discussion and a by-law authorizing its execution passed.

Following are the principal points in the agreement between the city and Mr. Dittman:

Agreement between the Corporation of the City of Peterborough and Charles D. Dittman, of Waynesburg, Pa., who with his associates proposes to make tests and borings in the vicinity of Peterborough for the purpose of ascertaining if sufficient natural gas can be obtained to enable them to supply the inhabitants of the city with the same for domestic and manufacturing purposes. They have requested the council to agree that if natural gas should be found in sufficient quantities to grant him or his company to be hereafter formed the right to use the streets and public lanes for laying pipes for supplying gas to the consumers. In the opinion of the council it is desirable and in the public interest to grant such a request, subject to the terms hereinafter mentioned.

The agreement is that Mr. Dittman and his associates will as soon as possible, and not later than January, 1909, commence boring operations and spend at least $6,000 on same, and take such other action as may be necessary to ascertain if a sufficient supply of gas can be obtained in the vicinity of Peterborough.

That if such natural gas be found within two years from the date hereof, Mr. Dittman or his company shall in that time lay the necessary pipes from the source of the gas to the city and do other necessary work, and will supply the inhabitants of the said city with the same.

That the pressure of such natural gas shall not be less than four ounces per square inch at the meter of the consumer, and the price to be charged therefor shall not exceed 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for domestic use and 25 cents per 1,000 for manufacturing purposes.

That at all times a good and efficient service shall be furnished to the citizens desiring to use it, so long as there is a sufficient supply.

In case Mr. Dittman and his associates fail to furnish the natural gas and install the system in the time specified, or fail to operate same at any time after such installation, except in case of strike, accidents, etc., or should they form a combine or amalgamate with or sell to any other person or company doing a like business in the city, then the rights to use the streets shall ipso facto cease, or in case of the breach of any of the terms after notice has been given by the corporation of the default and the same has not been remedied within two months.

That before Mr. Dittman or his associates shall lay, relay or change any pipes for the distribution of gas, an application accompanied by a plan and profile shall be furnished the city engineer, and shall be subjected to his approval. Such application must be made before the first of April in any year, or else the express consent of the council must be secured.

All the work must be done under the control and to the satisfaction of the city engineer, and the company shall not unnecessarily damage or obstruct traffic while the work is in progress and the streets and lanes must be kept in as good condition as before the work was started.

That the company shall indemnify and keep indemnified the city from all claims for damages, etc., arising by reason of the work, and shall pay all persons of firms or corporation such damages that may be sustained.

The city reserves the right to appoint the street commissioner or other person to superintend the work and the company shall pay the reasonable expenses of such superintendence.

The city agrees that for twenty years from Jan. 1, 1909, to allow Mr. Dittman and his associates to use such streets or public lanes as may be required for their purposes, but the city has still full control of the streets and lanes.

The city also agrees that for the first ten years of the twenty years the city will not grant or allow any other person, firm or corporation the use of the streets or public lanes for the purpose of laying pipes for the supply of natural gas.

As soon as sufficient land for the purpose can be secured Mr. Dittman and his associates will commence work to bore for oil and gas.

The members of the council are most enthusiastic over the proposition and spoke heartily in favour of it at last night's meeting. It is felt that a development of a natural gas system would mean a great deal for Peterborough, as it would ensure cheap gas for cooking and lighting purposes, and the amount of money spent in developing such a system would benefit the citizens greatly.

"Doctored" Used Transfers; Had Punch Like Conductor's; Rode Free On Street Cars

A Buffalo chemist has been caught filling in the punches in old street car transfers, which he repunched similar to that of the conductor's. His name is Nicholas Severin, and after his apprehension he gave a written statement to the attorneys of the company.

He has been out of work a good deal and being desirous of saving car fare thought out the matter and then bought two punches. One made a small hole like the one cut by the conductor's punch, and the other a larger hole. Severin saved every old transfer he came across and with his large punch cut pieces from these to fit into the transfer he was planning to use. With his larger punch he would cut out the hole already made by the conductor, then clip a piece to correspond from an old transfer and plug up the hole he wanted filled. Then with the smaller punch he would punch his transfer to suit his own time and convenience. He has been working the game about two months.

Peterboro' Man Breaks Liquor Law; Without Money He Goes To Jail

Owen Sound, Nov. 11.—Frank Arkles, who since the beginning of October has been running the Pacific Hotel here, appeared in the Police Court this morning and was found guilty of having sold whiskey to a C.P.R. employee named McDonald. He was fined $100 and costs, with the alternative of three months' imprisonment. Being unable to pay the money, he was sent to jail. Arkles was also accused of assaulting McDonald, and he got off by paying the costs, while he defrayed two claims against him for wages.

Arkles lost his temper in court, and said that he was the victim of a conspiracy, as he had never sold any whiskey. He had dismissed about 60 C.P.R. boarders because they were in the habit of bringing in whiskey and creating disturbances. Some of these men had told lies in order to get him into trouble. Arkles came here from Peterborough.

Arkles was at one time proprietor of the hotel at Jubilee Point, Rice Lake.

THE CREED TEST.

The political situation in the United States is not yet altogether one of repose, although the elections are over and the President elected. During the campaign and since, Mr. Taft was, and is being, attacked on account of his religious views. It appears that he is not strictly orthodox, that is, his "doxy" is not the same as the "doxy" of his critics—that he is Unitarian, practically a Jew. Ex-President Roosevelt has issued an open letter defending the position of the President-elect. He holds that a man's creed is purely his own affair, and that it interferes in no way with the faithful discharge of his duty. He also holds that to allow the subject of religion to enter the politics of the country would be to hark back to the days of bigotry. In this ex-President Roosevelt is partright and partly wrong. He is right in saying that so long as a man's practice in his public capacity is right his creed or belief is a comparatively unimportant matter. But he is not right in saying that the subject of religion should not enter into the politics of the country. Religion in its broad definition and meaning, is doing right in accordance with a man's belief or creed. The most elementary creed or belief involves principles whose practice makes a man upright and honest, so that a man's being religious according to his creed would necessarily make him honest and upright, the essential quality, apart from possession of the requisite ability, in a public man.

In the matter of citizenship in both private and public relations, creed is a very unimportant matter; it is the life and actions that count. If we were to judge—condemn and approve—select our friends, transact our business, choose our employees, elect our rulers and representatives, on the narrow lines of creed or belief alone, impossible conditions in government, general and local, in business and social life, would be created. In Canada, the great mass of the people are Christian in the broad sense of the term, which means a belief in a supreme Almighty Being, and the Atonement. There is one broad line of cleavage into two main parts, and subordinate lines of cleavage on dogmatic lines, but neither or none of these affects the broad principle that determines the title to Christian citizenship, common belief in the one true God. It is the practice, not the belief, that counts in dealing with the practical things of life. The nicest orthodoxy, the most eloquent profession of sanctity and honesty, will not reconcile one to the idea of being robbed or dishonestly or dishonourably treated, simply because the offender happens to be of the same creed and worships in the same church pew. Neither can one fail in appreciation of honest treatment and square dealing on the part of the man that practises them, towards us even though he may be a publican and sinner or a heathen.

As civilized society is constituted, the social, business and political relations of life must be regulated on the lines of doing, not of believing. We select our private employees and our public servants on the score of their fitness and ability to give us satisfactory service, without reference to their creed, as the determining factor in the choice. We sometimes even select our ministers on the same ground, though in a purely religious matter like this, such considerations are less defensible. Cases are not unknown where a minister has been preferred, whose orthodoxy has been as questionable as has been unquestionable his ability to preach eloquently and fill the church pews and the church coffers to over-flowing. Practice, not profession, deeds, not creeds are becoming the determining elements in selection of public men. Conscientious living up to the demands of a possibly defective creed, is better than absolute disregard in practice of the demands of the most flawless creed. It may not be sound theology, but it is sound politics to subscribe to the spirit of the couplet of Alexander Pope:—

"For modes of faith let graceless zealots fight;
His can't be wrong whose life is in the right."

As Mr. Roosevelt points out the setting up of religious tests in a country like the United States (or Canada) would be a return to the days of bigotry. The repeal of the Test and Corporation Acts in England—acts which excluded Roman Catholics and Dissenters from holding office in towns and cities—will have been done in vain if we are to turn back the dial of progress nearly a hundred years and restore the Test Act in practice. The very persons who, in both the United States and Canada, would apply the religious test and exclude a man from office on account of his creed, are the most rabid believers in the entire separation of Church and State. In neither country has the ruler or representative any authority in regard of religious belief or practice. But these same persons by their actions would bring about the most mischievous possible interrelation of Church and State, for in both countries the electorate is the State. In England there is a State Church. Yet, there religious creed is no bar to parliamentary representation. In 1829 the passage of the Roman Catholic Emancipation Bill made those of that faith eligible for election to parliament; in 1833 Quakers were admitted, and in 1858 Jews were also made eligible for election to parliament, and a man of that race became Prime Minister of Great Britain. If England, the mother of parliaments and the cradle of civil and religious liberty, rejects the creed test, there is evidently no place in the United States or Canada for a recrudescence of the epidemic of creed distinction in civil matters, long since stayed in the Mother-land.

It a man is to be debarred from office on the grounds of creed or religious belief, it logically follows that those of the same or similar creed or religious belief should not possess the franchise—the power to elect to office—and that the persons who are debarred from the exercise of the highest of all privileges of a common citizenship, should be relieved from the obligations of citizenship—such as paying taxes, etc.

It is "righteousness," not creed, "that exalteth a nation;" it is "sin," not the sin of wrong belief, according to your views or mine, but the sin of intolerance, the sin of discord, the sin of disruptive influences, that "is a reproach to any people." The rejection by a nation of the creed test as a condition of office, high or low, is by no means inconsistent with a national recognition of a Divine Providence that over-rules, and moulds the destinies of the kingdoms of the world.

MANY DROWNED IN WRECK AT BUFFALO

Buffalo, Nov. 12—Six Chinese and two white men were drowned in a wreck on the Buffalo breakwater early this morning, having been dashed against the stone abutment by a heavy sea. There were 13 persons in the party all engaged in the Chinese smuggling game.

Four Celestials were rescued and are now under arrest. The bodies of the drowned were recovered and taken to the morgue.

"Bronchitis"

Is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

The Symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color.

Neglected Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of Consumption.

Cure it at once by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. D. D. Miller, Allandale, Ont., writes: "My husband got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my little girl who had Bronchitis. She wheezed so badly you could hear her from one room to the other, but it was not long until we could see the effect your medicine had on her. That was last winter when we lived in Toronto.

"She had a bad cold this winter, but instead of getting another bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I tried a home made receipt which I got from a neighbor but found that her cold lasted about twice as long. My husband highly praises 'Dr. Wood's,' and says he will see that a bottle of it is always kept in the house."

It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, the price 25 cts.

Be sure and accept none of the many substitutes.

Beaten to Death.

Phillipsburg, N.J., Nov. 12.—Clarence Laid, a foreman on the Delaware, Luckawanna and Western Railway, cut off, was murdered Tuesday night by an Italian. Wednesday afternoon Laid took the foreigner to task for loafing and threatened to discharge him. At 11 o'clock that night he was attacked by the Italian, who knocked him down and beat him to death with a club.

Close In Prince Albert.

Prince Albert, Sask., Nov. 12.—Though the full returns of Tuesday's election in Prince Albert will not be in for some days, a Liberal victory is probable, from present appearances. With 65 polls heard from the Liberals claim 37 majority for Ruttan, while the Conservatives claim 12 majority for McKay.

Watterson's Son Killed.

New York, Nov. 12.—Harvey Watterson, a lawyer, son of Henry Watterson, the editor, of Louisville, Ky., fell from a window in his office on the 19th floor of a Wall street building yesterday, landing on the roof of an adjoining building, nine storeys below, and was instantly killed.

Wholesale Bribery.

Chatham, Nov. 12.—Eight charges of corrupt practice will be brought against one of the Liberal workers in the recent Clements-McCoig election. This man, it is said, will be charged with wholesale bribery of English immigrants.

A "Tree" Tale.

Many stories have been told concerning Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who has just given a new interpretation of Mephistopheles. The actor-manager's passion for realism is well known, and one day during the rehearsals of "The Tempest," which, as everyone knows, opens with a gale at sea, a furious storm was actually raging outside, and great gusts of wind and rain made themselves heard repeatedly. Mr. Tree was specially anxious that the opening scene of the play should be rendered as true to nature as possible, and time after time he made the men whose duty it was to suggest to the audience the ungovernable fury of the elements repeat their efforts. Presently a blinding flash of lightning, followed by a deafening peal of thunder, swept through a narrow window above the scene dock and illuminated the stage. "That's better," announced Mr. Tree. "but I still think it might be improved upon." "If you please, sir," observed the master-carpenter, mildly, "that was a real one."

Insane Solicitor's Client.

A solicitor who is an inmate of the Somerset Lunatic Asylum at Cotford, England, has written to the Taunto guardians, asking them to release another inmate, who, he declares, is sane. In referring the matter to the medical officer recently the chairman said that it was the first time he had ever heard of a lunatic applying for another's release.

Crewel Work In Style.

In addition to all the various kinds of embroidery brought out to make our clothes look eastern and gorgeous is the revival of crewels.

This work will be done on broadcloth and satin as well as on the softer materials. All colors will be used and brilliant and fantastic designs followed.

The effect is beautiful on an elaborate indoor costume of soft broadcloth. The woman who wears black will welcome it, for it is allowed as a trimming for mourning garments and gives character to an otherwise negative costume.

Ancient Smithfield.

Smithfield is probably the oldest cattle market in the world. It was already ancient when Fitz-Stephen made an allusion to its existence in 1150. Then a place for live cattle only, it lay outside the city walls and served in the absence of the cattle as a place of recreation. Two hundred years later the corporation assumed official control over the beasts and the butchers. But these did not have the complete monopoly of Smithfield, as the blood of the the martyrs and the revelers of Bartholomew fair testify.

Long-Lived Family.

The master of St Austell (Eng.) Workhouse reported to the guardians that a woman, aged 97, who was brought to the workhouse recently by her 75-year-old son had been taken out a few days later by her sister, who is 90 years of age.

WILL LIKELY CHANGE LEADER

Ottawa Rumor Says Sir Hibbert Tupper Will Succeed Borden.

TIRED OF POLITICAL LIFE

Section of Conservative Party Is Said to Be Agitating to Put Tupper In as Member For Carleton County and to Let Leader Take C.P.R. Solicitorship—Vancouverite Denies Intention of Entering Politics.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—A despatch from Ottawa to The Evening Telegram last night said:

"It is understood that a movement has been started among certain sections of the Conservative party here to attempt to depose R. L. Borden from the party leadership and replace him by Sir Charles Tupper.

"Those who are behind the movement state that Mr. Borden himself is weary of the political game, and that he would not object to be provided for by the C.P.R., from which it is said he has a standing offer of one of their solicitorships. The plan is to seat Sir Hibbert in Carleton County, which Borden will vacate, and after a decent show of service perhaps for the coming session, allow him to be deposed in favor of the knight from Vancouver. There are, of course, objections to the plan from the wing of the party."

Montreal, Nov. 12.—The news that there is a possibility of Sir Hibbert Tupper running in Carleton has been heard here, but his possible succession to the Conservative leadership is not discussed, and, in fact, the Carleton movement is not taken here as indicating a possibility of a change near, though it may be. The French-Canadians always admired the Tuppers. One thing, however, they cannot understand, and that is why Sir Hibbert backed out of the Pictou contest.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 12.—Conservatives of Nova Scotia would warmly resent any movement to supplant Mr. Borden, but if Mr. Borden of his own motion really desires to give up the leadership, they would no doubt look with more favor upon Sir Hibbert as his successor than upon any one else in sight.

Vancouver, Nov. 12.—Sir C. H. Tupper says he is still out of politics and has no present intention of running.

ROBBED QUEBEC BANK.

"Portland Fatty" Is Picked Up by New York Police.

New York, Nov. 12.—When several Central Office detectives at once were strolling through Chinatown the other night looking for suspicious characters, they took into custody a party of four men because they had recognized two of them as safe-blowers. One of the strangers, who described himself as George W. Monroe of Cumberland, Maine, made a plea for freedom, saying he knew nothing of the men in whose company he had been found.

Yesterday, Monroe, or as the police say he is better known as "Portland Fatty," is in a cell awaiting the call of Canadian officials, who wish to take him across the border to tell what he knows of the robbery of a bank in Quebec. In the pockets of the prisoner the police found a number of certificates marked "Labanque, Province St. Raphael, Quebec, Canada." Enquiry developed that the bank was robbed Oct. 23.

Clumsy Forger.

St. Catharines, Nov. 12.—The police made a speedy capture of a clumsy forger yesterday. The man gave his name as Robert Collins and said he was from New York. He passed a check on Peter Freeman, who gave him $8 on it. It was drawn for $16.40 and signed William H. Buntin. It was on a form of the Sterling Bank. On the prisoner were found other checks in favor of George F. Beaver for $9.40 and $9.45, signed by William H. Bunting in pencil. On the check for $9.40 the prisoner had got whisky worth $1.50 from J. Donnelly of the Geneva Hotel.

Accidentally Killed.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—Jos. Lepine, aged 40, foreman for the E. B. Eddy Lumber Co., accidentally shot himself last Friday near his camp, about 80 miles above Des Joachims. His body was brought to Ottawa yesterday.

MANY DON'T KNOW HEART AFFECTED.

More People than Aware of It Have Heart Disease.

"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a doctor at a recent inquest. "I should not like to say that heart disease is as common as this would imply," said the expert, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent."

"But undoubtedly heart weakness, not disease, is more prevalent nowadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and rush of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

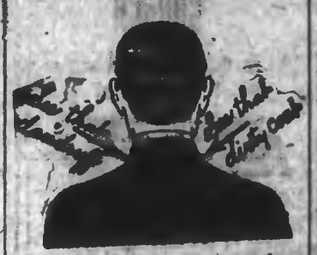
There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Price 50 cts. per box or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FLUTTERING OF THE HEART.

Mrs. G. M. White, Williamstown, N.S. writes: "I was troubled with weak spells and fluttering of the heart. I was so bad I could scarcely lie down in bed. I procured a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and they helped me so much I got another box and it has made a final cure. I cannot speak too highly of them. I think they are worth their weight in gold."

A FILTHY CONDITION



Many a man, otherwise scrupulously clean, is dandruff dirty. The small, persistent germs of dandruff working all day as well as night are constantly throwing off the small white dandruff scales which, falling on the shoulders of a coat, give it a filthy appearance which is repulsive to the friends of the victim.

Many men allow this condition to exist because they believe there is no cure for dandruff; they have tried various so-called cures with unsatisfactory results, and naturally condemn all.

The famous prescription called Parisian Sage is put up in America, but only by the Giroux Mfg. Co., of Buffalo, N.Y., and Fort Erie, Ont. It is for sale in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, who guarantees it to cure dandruff in two weeks, or money back.

Parisian Sage is guaranteed to do more; it will make short, thin hair grow long, lustrous and luxuriant; it will stop hair from falling out; it will cure all diseases of the scalp. Wm. Madill guarantees it — every bottle of it. The price is only 50 cents, and if you want to stop the filthy dandruff flakes from lodging on your coat and disgusting your friends, get a bottle at once.

Woman Burned In Toronto.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Mary Cooke of this city while lighting a gas jet at her home, 42 Howis avenue, at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, fell over it and her clothing caught fire.

She staggered back against a stove and then collapsed. She was found at 7 o'clock by her husband, George Cooke. Her clothes were completely burned off above the waist. She was removed to the General Hospital, where she is in a critical condition.

Scarlet Fever Epidemic.

Chatham, N.B., Nov. 12.—Alarmed by a fresh outbreak of scarlet fever, the Board of Health Tuesday ordered all schools, Sunday schools, public meetings and places of entertainment closed, and engaged watchmen to enforce this. The town has also been divided into medical districts, each being placed under a physician's care. In Albert County the schools at Hillsboro and Surrey have also been closed because of scarlet fever.

Seven Killed In Wreck.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 12.—Seven persons are known to be dead and a score or more injured as the result of a wreck yesterday on the New Orleans and Northeastern Railroad at Littlewoods, 12 miles from New Orleans.

Earthquake Scare.

San Bernardino, Cal., Nov. 12.—Death Valley and the surrounding country are in the throes of a series of earthquakes, which began three weeks ago, and the most violent of which occurred Wednesday, causing consternation. Many miners and prospectors have fled from the region.

Gift to Dr. Herridge.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The congregation of St. Andrew's Church gathered last night to honor Rev. Dr. W. T. Herridge, who has just completed a quarter of a century as pastor of the church. Dr. Herridge was presented with a purse containing $1,700 in gold and a gown and cassock.

Pleads Conspiracy.

Owen Sound, Nov. 12.—Frank Arkles, who has been running the Pacific Hotel since Oct. 1, was found guilty of selling whisky and ordered to pay a fine of $100 and costs or three months' imprisonment.

He said he was the victim of a conspiracy, as he had never sold a drop of whisky since he took over the hotel. He had had trouble with C.P.R. boarders, and has dismissed sixty of them and now some of these men had got him into this trouble.

Fatally Burned.

Winnipeg, Nov. 12.—J. Hetherington, C.N.R. employe, whose clothes were soaked with gasoline, hung them wet to dry last evening. Later, his wife passed with a candle and her garments caught fire, and the woman was enveloped in flames. Her husband was also badly burned. Both were removed to St. Boniface Hospital, where the woman is dying, but the man is expected to recover.

Yardman Goes to Trial.

Brantford, Nov. 12.—Jos. Maguire, late Grand Trunk yardman, who was held by the company as partially responsible for the recent wreck in which one Brantfordite and two Londoners were killed, was yesterday committed for trial at the next high court Assizes on the charge of manslaughter.

His counsel made an effort to have the charge reduced to neglect.

Immigrants Stranded.

Chatham, Nov. 12.—Chatham faces the serious problem of how to keep 100 immigrants, Englishmen and their families, during the coming winter. Nearly all of them are out of work and none of them have any money.

Trolleys Crash.

New Brunswick, N.J., Nov. 12.—Louis Sayre, a motorman, was killed, and several persons injured, in a head-on collision between two trolley cars, due to a misreading of signals on account of the dense fog.

Spelling Reform In France.

Paris, Nov. 12.—Simplified phonetic spelling, upon the lines advocated by President Roosevelt is to be introduced in the public schools by M. Doumergue, the Minister of Public Instruction.

"ALL-RED" APPROVED.

London Likes Penny Cable Scheme—Australia Will Subsidize.

London, Nov. 12.—The Times says to-day: The widespread interest aroused by the penny cablegram proposals is sufficient proof that it is an object which all are eager to see advanced.

The Times is glad to see that Canada, which has led the way, shows no remission of zeal in regard to the all-red girdle of telegraphs.

The Standard says that nowhere is there stronger evidence that barriers of ignorance and local prejudice are built of false impressions and garbled news than in Canada, whose news comes through United States sources and is not infrequently colored en route. Cheaper cable rates within the Empire would remedy this unfortunate state of things.

Premier Deakin of Australia states that, every rate-lowering proposal in connection with the cables would be most cordially welcomed. The Australia Herald says it would be well worth Australia's while to join in liberally subsidizing the service.

The Standard publishes articles with the object of removing misconceptions respecting the Repatriation Act and admits regretfully how large a proportion of unsuitable emigrants are English.

"Why," asks The Standard, "should not Canada have its own fleet, as well as Argentine or Chili? Against some loss of strategic efficiency might be set an immeasurable political gain. Separate navies with a common general staff is the basis of the new naval confederacy."

ASHAMED OF GETTING.

One Marine Department Employe Gave Back Some.

Quebec, Nov. 12.—A sick witness was examined at his own house yesterday afternoon in the Marine Department enquiry. This was Mr. Audibert, bookkeeper for Mr. Drolet, through whose hands all the money passed which was said to have been paid out for Mr. Drolet in presents to the 23 officials recently suspended because of Drolet's evidence.

Mr. Audibert declared that except for possible slight errors, which may have crept in during his work at night, in preparing the statement for Mr. Drolet, the amounts paid out as mentioned in that statement were correct. He went minutely into the figures and being cross-examined, by Mr. O'Farrell's counsel positively denied the existence of any plot between him and other parties to destroy Mr. O'Farrell.

Of the amounts he had paid the latter, O'Farrell returned him $100 because he had made a remark that he was always paying out and never receiving. It was O'Farrell who had asked for the favors in gifts of money. The request, he said, had been made in his own office. The other developments of the day were not less interesting.

China Will Fight Japan.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 12.—Declaring that the youth of China, the younger and more progressive element in the nation, would in a great revolution overthrow the present dynasty, Rev. William Christie, a missionary at the Christian and Mission Alliance, stated that great disturbances were about due in the celestial empire, and also that a war with Japan was in contemplation. Mr. Christie said:

"The object of the revolutionary movement is the overthrow of the present dynasty, which is hated for its conservatism and feared for its power. The unrest is being fostered by the student element.

"China is not afraid of Japan. The Government is working night and day in the training of men for the war with the Japanese, that eventually will come."

Andree's Body Found.

Copenhagen, Nov. 12.—There is reason to believe that the body of Prof. S. A. Andree, the Arctic explorer, who in 1897 made an attempt to reach the North Pole in a balloon, has been found on the coast of Labrador.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 12.—No report of the finding of a body thought to be that of Andree in Labrador has reached St. John's. Little credence is placed here in the report of the Danish captain.

Drover Killed.

Kincardine, Nov. 12.—D. Campbell, a drover, died early yesterday morning from the effects of a fall from his buggy, which bit a hydrant in the street Tuesday night.

Turkey Orders Ammunition.

Constantinople, Nov. 12.—The Turkish Government has given an order in Germany for 300,000,000 cartridges for the Mauser rifle. Delivery must be made in two years.

Sold on Sunday.

Chatham, Nov. 12.—Hogan and Hoy, proprietors of the Algonquin Hotel, were fined $75 and costs for selling on Sunday.

Illegal Sale of Drugs.

Montreal, Nov. 12.—A druggist, two bar maids and a Chinese constable on the city force were fined yesterday for dispensing cocaine.

AN ADVERTISING FALLACY

Several Important Things That Advertisers Must Learn To Do.

Many advertisers have a somewhat mistaken idea of the functions of advertising. They consider that the mere purchase of space in an advertising medium and the insertion of an advertisement should forthwith bring them in a great deal of business—in fact, enough to justify them in saying that advertising pays. When their attempt does not have this immediate result, they at once come to the conclusion that advertising does not pay.

A business man, who runs a trial advertisement in a medium for a single insertion, hopes thereby to get returns from every reader of the paper. When only one or two answer, instead of being gratified, he is disappointed. He forgets the dozen or so more, who noted his advertisement, but who, by the reason of the indolence of human nature, neglected to reply at once, and gradually forgot about it. There was no second insertion to quicken the memory and no third insertion to stir them up. The effect of the advertisement was lost on them.

Then there is another aspect of the case. Looking at it from the reader's standpoint, he sees one firm advertising, spasmodically and another firm advertising regularly. What is his natural conclusion as to the merits of the two houses. Undoubtedly he will be led perhaps unconsciously, to attribute greater solidity and progressiveness to the firm which uses space regularly. This is a psychological fact. It means that it pays to advertise regularly, whether the advertiser can trace direct results or not.

Again, an advertiser who asserts that advertising does not pay, oftentimes has only himself to blame. There is a way to advertise well and there is a way to advertise ill. It is for the advertiser himself to make his publicity tell. Do not be inclined to blame the medium and blame advertising in general. Rather ask if you are obtaining the best possible effects in the composition of your advertisement, both literary and typographical.

Many arguments can be brought forward to support our position. Persistency is needed in advertising as much as in anything else if success is to be attained. Others have succeeded and it has been through continuous effort. Therefore, before condemning advertising, give it a fair and reasonable trial.—From The Bookseller and Stationer.

Will Remove the Loose Dandruff Scales But it won't Cure Them

If your hair is brittle and thinning you have dandruff. The mere scouring of the scalp of the loose scales won't cure dandruff, because dandruff is nothing but scales of scalp being thrown up by a pestiferous little germ in burrowing its way to the root of the hair where it saps the vitality, causing falling hair, and in time, baldness. Now you can't stop dandruff nor falling hair, nor prevent baldness unless you destroy the germ, and the only preparation that can do it is the new scientific discovery, Newbro's Herpicide. In fact no other hair preparation claims to kill the dandruff germ—all of them will clean the scalp; soap and water will do that, but only Newbro's Herpicide gets at the root of the trouble and kills the dandruff germ. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes—50c and $1. McDermid & Jury and Payne's Drug Store, special agents.

CARGO OF TURNIPS TO THE CITY

Will be Brought up From Rice Lake by Steamer Monarch.

A cargo of turnips is something which navigation men claim has never been brought to this city before and the steamer Monarch went down to the lake yesterday for a scowload of these vegetables which they will bring to the city. Potatoes, apples, grain, in fact almost everything grown, has found its way up by barge, but it is claimed that an entire load of turnips is a novelty.

INDIAN CHIEF GAVE ROBES AND CHARMS TO MISSIONARY BECAUSE THEY TEMPTED HIM TO RETURN

Adjt. Thorkildson, of Salvation Army Mission in Northern British Columbia, Tells of the Kitksians, Who are Believed to be of Japanese Stock.

ABOUT THEIR OLD CUSTOMS

Attired in the complete regalia of an old chief of the Kitksians, a tribe of Indians dwelling along the upper Skeena River, British Columbia, Adjt. Thorkildson, of the Salvation Army Mission at Glanyowell, a little town in the country of these people, gave a most interesting lecture on the habits, history and character of the Kitksians, a race almost unknown to the people of Eastern Canada.

Those interested in the missionary work in our own Dominion would have been given probably a new subject for thought if they had heard this officer's address, which although but little advertized, was listened to by a large audience, the majority of whom went away with the story of an Indian tribe of whose very existence thye had before been ignorant.

Their Territory

The Kitksians dwell in the northern part of British Columbia. The population is estimated at 4,000 souls. To reach their territory one must travel 700 miles north of Vancouver and then up the Skeena River 180 miles. They are not redskins like the primitive Hurons or Iroquois, but are of yellow complexion. They are also of comparatively small stature, their average height being about five feet. From their general appearance Adjt. Thorkildson believes that primarily they were of the same stock as the Japanese, having crossed from Asia by way of Behring Straits. Industry is one of their good qualities, and they are also peaceful and law abiding.

Former History

A tribe speaking the same language is found on the Naas River, about 25 miles from the Skeena, and another is found along the Pacific Coast.

Their history reveals the fact that in bygone years these three clans, as they may be called, were at continual war with each other. They were not brave fighters, and seldom fought pitched battles in the open. Adjt. Thorkildson stated that they would sneak up on each other's villages, and if they had succeeded in catching the villagers off their guard would fall upon them, killing the men and carrying off for servitude the unfortunate women and children. At times the Naas River and Skeena River tribes would be engaged, and later those from the coast would conflict with the victors. As fighters their predominating characteristic seemed to have been to slay from behind, using a sort of bone tomahawk, called a "destroyer." When not in use it was kept in oil. The Adjutant had two of these which with great difficulty he had secured from the Indians. While not large they were very heavy and backed by a strong arm would cause death by a well directed blow.

Nearly all Christians

Two thirds of the Kitksians are Christians, the rest being still in their heathen state. The English and Methodist Churches have missions established throughout the country, as well as the Salvation Army. There is but little friction between the Christianized and heathen natives, the latter at times simply trying to coax their brothers back, but in this they are unsuccessful.

Referring to their primitive method of disposing of the dead, the adjutant stated that the bodies were bound in a sitting posture and cremated, all except the heart, which was cut out and buried. Now they all adopt the white man's method.

Consumption Rampant

The white plague has secured a strong grasp on these people, and more people die from this disease than from probably all other causes. They succumb to its inevitable call in spite of all the efforts done to stem its advance.

They are an intelligent race and easily Christianized, although the first attempts were unsuccessful. One old chief after conversion still retained his ceremonial dress, which proved a constant temptation. Finally the adjutant prevailed upon the chief to give them to him and he acquiesced on condition that the officer should never sell them. In this manner Adjutant Thorkildson came into possession of the head decorations, robes, belt of beads, circlet of bears' claws and all other tokens and charms, which gave the old chief his appearance of wild pomp and majesty among his heathen people. Money could scarcely buy the robes and shawls woven from the wool of the Rocky Mountain sheep, and these vestments which were for religious and festival wear, have brought many offers of large sums but the adjutant refuses to part with them.

A Peterborough Canoe

About seven years ago he purchased a Peterborough canoe which he still uses. The Kitksians are hunters and fishermen, although to a slight extent they pursue agriculture. As yet they have not grown grain. They grow potatoes and fruits, increasing their yield every year. They have also a steam saw mill which turns out the lumber used in their frame houses. The Kitksians never used tents, their original dwellings being of logs.

Adjutant Thorkildson visits other cities before returning to his charge in British Columbia.

DIRECTOR OF "ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME" ARRANGES FOR ITS APPEARANCE IN LINDSAY

The Lindsay Watchman-Warder says: Mr. Irving Beers, a well known actor, was in town yesterday for a few hours and called on The Warder. Mr. Beers has been identified with the amateur production of "All the Comforts of Home," which was presented in Peterborough last week, by Peterborough talent. Mr. Beers is the manager of the company and instructs the actors as to their respective parts. He carries with him all the costumes worn in the play, which by the way, is a well written four-act comedy. It took well in Peterborough, and Mr. Beers visited Lindsay with the intention of organizing the Lindsay amateurs with a view to putting on the play or some other play, in Lindsay in about five weeks' time.

The production was presented in Peterborough under the auspices of the Peterborough Hockey Club, and it staged in Lindsay will likely be as a benefit for the Lindsay Rugby Club, which is deserving of the support of the citizens.

It is the intention of Mr. Beers to bring the Peterborough company to Lindsay about the end of the coming week, and then commence and work up the same play or a new play for the Lindsay amateurs.

Amateur productions have taken well in the past and no doubt Lindsay theatre goers will welcome the coming attraction.

Mr. Beers returned to Peterborough last evening and will return at the end of the week to make arrangements for the presentment of "All the Comforts of Home."

A good dramatic club would take well in Lindsay and this would probably result in the organization of the Lindsay Dramatic Club. Other towns and cities support such clubs, and even some of the small villages in this vicinity boast of dramatic clubs. Therefore the introduction of an amateur play at the present season of the year might lead to the organization of such a club.

THE LAYMEN OF KNOX CHURCH

Take up the Missionary Movement and Form Committee.

A very enthusiastic meeting was held in Knox Presbyterian Church last night to hear the report from the delegates to the L. M. W. Convention held in Toronto.

After the opening exercises Mr. H. McCannon gave a very interesting account of the convention and of the work done. He then described the banquet, at which 1,000 had been present, given at the Excelsior Rink, being one of the largest ever given in Toronto; closing his address with an appeal to the men of Knox Church to take up the work.

A quartette, composed of Messrs. Galley, Barr, Davenport and R. Connon, gave a fine selection, after which Mr. R. Clifford gave an address on the great call and the practical work done among the laymen of Canada.

A missionary committee was then chosen to carry on the work among the men of Knox Church. It was as follows, Messrs. H. McCannon, R. Clifford, Carruthers, M. A. McKenzie.

Mr. Carrithers was chosen to act as secretary-treasurer of the committee. Mr. A. McKenzie was appointed delegate to represent Knox Church on the general committee to meet in the Y. M. C. A.

Members Of Sheffield Choir Slept On Hotel Floor In Hamilton

Hamilton, Nov. 11.—If the members of the Sheffield Choir have good reason to remember Hamilton for the enthusiastic reception received here, they will have better cause to remember it for the inconveniences they had in securing hotel accommodation. Local people who looked after their comfort to-day roasted the officials in charge of the Canadian tour. After the concert last night many of them had to shift for accommodation, and at midnight a large section of the male contingent had been unable to get into the hotels and were obliged to seek lodgings in private houses.

In a number of cases the girls were packed seven and eight in a room, and many of them were obliged to sleep on the floor.

At one of the hotels two married couples were obliged to sleep in one room, with only a screen between them.

It was intended that all the male members of the choir and those accompanying it should attend the Hamilton Club luncheon after the concert.

"Through stupidity on the part of those in charge," said an officer of the club, "only fifty guests were present."

MAGISTRATE'S DECISION REVERSED; APPEAL HEARD BY JUDGE WELLER

His Honour Judge Weller gave a most important decision in the appeal heard before him yesterday afternoon, in which it was asked that he should set aside an order made by Police Magistrate Dumble, dismissing a prosecution, made by License Inspector Stewart, in which a blacklisted man was charged with a violation of the Liquor License Act, in that he had been found drunk. When the case was heard before Magistrate Dumble in the police court his Worship dismissed it after hearing the evidence, construing the act to mean that a blacklisted man had to be found drunk upon the premises where he had obtained his liquor. Objection was taken to this holding on the part of the magistrate, but he refused to change his opinion and advised the prosecution to appeal against his decision.

Inspector Stewart consulted the Attorney General's Department and it was decided to enter an appeal.

The evidence heard in the police court was used in the hearing of the appeal yesterday, and at its conclusion Judge Weller reversed the judgment of the magistrate and held that it was sufficient that a blacklisted man should be found drunk to constitute a violation of the act and he decided that the defendant should have been fined. His Worship accordingly inflicted a fine of $10.

Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., and Mr. Bailey, of the Attorney General's Department, supported the appeal, while the police magistrate was heard on behalf of his own decision. The decision of Judge Weller is important inasmuch as the case was a test one, and that several other cases of the same kind have come up here.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ROBERT ARMSTRONG

The death occurred last evening of Ann Elizabeth Sandy, wife of Mr. Robert Armstrong, 295 Bethune street, at the age of 33 years. The deceased was born at Manvers and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sandy of that place. About a year ago she was married to Mr. Armstrong and has resided in Peterobrough since that time. Besides her husband and parents she is mourned by two sisters, Mary, at home, and Mrs. H J Byers, of Port Hope and a brother, John, of Toronto.

The remains were conveyed from the family residence, Bethune street, this morning at 7.30 o'clock, to the C.P.R. station and thence to Mr. Henry Sandy's residence, Manvers, where the funeral service will be held on Friday at 2 p.m. Interment will take place in the burying ground.

MANY HUNTERS IN HALIBURTON COUNTY

Messrs. R. C. Braund and E. E. Barrett are among the first to return from the haunts of the deer. The former got a nice one and his customers are enjoying a meal of venison as a result. They were back in Haliburton county where the hunters are reported very numerous. More sportsmen have gone back into that county this year than ever before. As a result the hunters wore bright red toques or sweaters to avoid against accidents.

Calendar Hunters Will Find The Same Business Houses As Well Provided As In The Past

A Custom That is a Part of the Christmas Season and is Considered by the Merchants a Costly Advertisement.

HOW TO GET CALENDARS

"I suppose the merchants of Peterborough have nearly all eliminated the old fashioned custom of giving calendars to their customers at Christmas time?" a reporter suggested as a question to one of the local up-town business men to-day, thinking that from all that had been said one way and another they were actually carrying out the determinations that they have so often spoken of.

"No," he replied, "I do not think you will find much difference this season from any other. I for one have long ago ordered my calendars, and as far as I know those who have continued the practice have their usual supply. Last year I had one thousand of them in stock, and I took every possible precaution to see that they were given only to my customers, yet for all that my supply ran far short of the demand."

The reporter asked if with their newly formed organization the merchants would likely resolve to discontinue the practice of giving away these calendars, but the merchant replied that he was not in a position to say what action they would take in this regard.

This Seasons Hunt

From this and other enquiries it is likely that the calendar hunters will find the field as fruitful as in the past. Of course regular customers expect that they will be remembered by the business men, and in many instances the whole family drops around thinking that he may have forgotten that mother received one a few days previous. Another storekeeper has a particularly striking calendar, and the word is passed around to that effect among neighbours, by those who are proud in the fact that they have something which Mrs. So-and-So has not got, and is not very likely to get. The coveting household plans an attack on Mr. Merchant, the details depending on the nature of his business. Pa is not so particular but still he is expected to qualify himself in some manner, and if he thinks of it, buys a tie, pair of socks, pound of nails, or whatever is necessary according to the store.

Brother Will makes an attempt in the event of the Pater not pressing his plea strongly enough and, as a last resource big sister Annie goes in with little Frankie, to buy him a sweater or box of tools as the case may be. It is pretty safe betting that this last combination wins the day and returns with the desired calendar which for a few weeks or a month receives some notice but after that,—well little Frankie and his gift box of paints is in evidence in more parts of the house than one.

The merchants have their own troubles pleasing their customers and those who are not, and they can tell of cases which are even better as stories than that which is given above as an example.

NEW DAM AND PUMPING STATION RECOMMENDED FOR THE WATER WORKS SYSTEM; PLANS PREPARED

The members of the Peterborough Water Commissioners, Messrs. T. F. Matthews (chairman), W. H. Moore and W. H. Hill, waited upon the city council last night, at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole, and laid before them the report of the hydraulic engineer, whose opinion they consulted in regard to improvements at the pumping station and water works dam. His recommendations, if carried out, would mean a complete renovation of the plant inasmuch as they call for a new dam of concrete, a new pumping station and the installation of a steam pumping plant, which, as was pointed out, would be most useful in the season of the year when anchor ice is prevalent. The commissioners asked for the sanction of the council to proceed to have plans pregared so that they will be in a position to know what is needed and what the cost of the improvements will amount to.

The commissioners have had the matter of improvement to their plant under discussion for some time and the result is that Engineer Kennedy, of Montreal, has made a report to the commissioners upon the changes that will have to be made there.

Mr. O'Keefe, of Montreal, had recommended in 1904 that a new dam at a cost of $75,000 be built, but a high suggestion was not agreed upon, as it was thought a dam a short distance below the present dam would be better. Recently Mr. Kennedy, the well known Montreal hydraulic engineer, had been engaged and had made a report, which Mr. Matthews laid before the council.

The report recommended a new dam and pumping station, the establishment of a steam pumping plant in the old station, and the consideration of the using of the surplus power developed for street lighting purposes.

Mr. Matthews remarked that the Water Commissioners wanted to get the permission of the council to go ahead and get plans prepared in order that they might be in a position to place the matter satisfactorily before the people.

Ald. Butler suggested that the Power Committee of the City Council should hold a meeting with the Water Commissioners, as they were both working along the same lines.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Phelan, the commissioners were given the permission asked for and will go ahead at once with the work of having plans prepared.

MR. THOS. LEE RETURNS FROM THE WEST WHERE HE SPENT THE SUMMER

Mr. Thos. Lee returned last night from the west where he has spent the summer and this morning was welcomed back by his many friends at the market. He has had a busy season looking after his land and crops and has had a fine return from his crops. The people are going into the winter, Mr. Lee says, contented and pleased with the summer's harvest. Things are now beginning to freeze up and the weather is becoming blustery and cold. The farmers have received good prices for their grain and have been able to put their ground in good condition. As a result everyone is looking forward to a boom in all lines of business next year. The threshing has been almost entirely completed and although there is some obstruction in freighting the grain the delay is not causing any trouble as it is not likely to be protracted. Real estate is quiet but is expected to boom next summer.

Individual Lockers For The Men At The Armouries

As the new Armouries are nearing completion there are features about the equipment which will be welcome news to the officers and men. Among these are new individual lockers for the men. They are an entirely new idea, having never been used up-to the present, but the possibilities they present lead the local officers to believe that they will be adopted here. They were submitted to the officers at a recent meeting, and general satisfaction was expressed with their design. Each private will have a lock and key for his locker, which will be spacious enough for his entire uniform and arms. A seat is also provided, combining a feature which will appeal to the men. The large recreation room will be well fitted up and also the lecture hall, which is another new feature that will be of great value.

TOOK THEIR MEASURE, ALSO THEIR MONEY--THAT OLD STORY AGAIN!

About six weeks ago a slick fake was worked through Northumberland and Peterborough Counties in this vicinity, and they are just now coming to light.

A man representing himself as an agent of the National Clothing Co. of Montreal, went through this district taking orders for ladies and gents' tailor-made clothing. He carried a grand bunch of samples and a grand bunch of talk, which took in several well known residents. He showed his samples, taking the customers' measures in more ways than one, and also accepted a deposit on the suits which were to be delivered in twenty days. The twenty days have gone, and enquiries at Montreal seem to bring one to the conclusion that the National Clothing Co. is a myth. It looks very much as though it pays to deal at home with those who have a reputation to sustain instead of with peddlers and green goods men.—Hastings Star.

THE CALGARY EYE-OPENER WINS OUT

Jury Finds Calgary Man Guilty of Criminal Libel.

JUDGE ROASTS EDWARDS

He Says Editor of Eye-Opener Could Have Been Power For Good But Tendency Now Is to Demoralize Public—Jury Finds Nemesis Article Libellous and Plea of Justification Insufficient.

Calgary, Nov. 12.—The jury in the McGillicuddy criminal libel case were out for near four hours and gave a verdict finding the accused guilty of libel; and that the plea of justification was not sustained.

The following rider was added: "We believe the contents of the letter published in The News too drastic to meet the requirements of the case, but as citizens of Calgary we desire to place on record our disapproval of obscene and suggestive articles and illustrations which appear in The Eye-Opener and we respectfully request your lordship to caution the prosecutor against publishing any more such articles; and if persisted in, they should be suppressed."

Judge Beck sentenced McGillicuddy to pay a fine of $100, or in default to two months' hard labor, execution of judgement to be stayed until Dec. 15.

Meanwhile McGillicuddy is out on $200 on his own recognition. Each party is to pay his own costs.

Judge Beck in giving judgment said it often struck him that the paper (The Eye Opener) could have been of great value, but that it had exercised a demoralizing influence on the public. The editor was worthy of very little consideration. He said it was only fair to say that counsel for the defendant agreed that it was not the intention to charge Edwards with the abominable crimes suggested.

In the afternoon Mr. Nolan, counsel for private prosecutor Edwards, delivered a powerful and logical address to the jury, occupying an hour. He delivered a scathing and clever arrangement of the defendant and the libellous article.

Judge Beck's address to the jury occupied 40 minutes. He told the jury they must find McGillicuddy guilty on the whole charge if he was guilty of libel in any part, but he added that they could find McGillicuddy justified if they thought so. The jury went out at 4.10.

P. Davis, K.C., counsel for McGillicuddy, made his address to the jury yesterday morning, entirely ignoring the evidence which had been put in for the defence.

Mr. Davis confined himself to a discussion of various copies of The Eye-Opener, from which he read extracts. He claimed that Edwards was a degenerate on account of the publication of The Eye-Opener and because of his drunken habits.

Davis said that the defence wished to kill The Eye-Opener.

He insisted that this was the trial of Edwards and not the trial of McGillicuddy, and he called upon the jury to suppress The Eye-Opener by their verdict.

The judge intimated that he should direct the jury to find a verdict of guilty as regards the matter being libellous, but that he should leave them to consider as to whether or not the plea of justification had been established. The court then adjourned.

Hon. Mr. Cushing, Minister of Public Works for Alberta, was examined in behalf of the defence regarding an article appearing in The Eye-Opener last September relative to a deal, when Cushing bought certain lands at Lethbridge from Howard Douglas for Government purposes. Cushing said there was nothing in the deal. Further, he said he thought the article in The Eye-Opener cast discredit on his honesty. He had known Edwards for some years and knew nothing against him personally.

Dr. Mason, Edward's physician, called by the defence, testified that he did not consider Edwards either a dissolute, a depraved or a degenerate person. During the past year he had not attended Edwards. Previous to that he had attended him for about five years, off and on. He considered Edwards a respectable member of the community, whose only failing was that he drank now and then. He did not believe he was a dope fiend.

Eight Will Probably Be Total Fatalities in Steamer Wreck.

SEATED AROUND BOILERS

Number of Injuries in Explosion on Steamer Temiskaming Is Accounted For by Fact That Passengers Had Sought the Boilers For Warmth —Man Walked Four Miles With Terrible Wounds.

North Bay, Nov. 12.—The explosion on the steamer Temiskaming Tuesday evening was an event full of horror and painful incidents. Five deaths resulted and three of the injured will likely die. The dead are:

John Menard, fireman, aged 22, of Temiskaming, died after reaching landing.

John Bergounhea, aged 40, Ville Marie, Que., fireman, instantly killed, leaves wife and six children.

J. McBride, Columbus, Ohio, missing.

E. Chartier, Gatineau Point, died at hospital.

Unknown man missing, supposed to be drowned.

The injured are:

S. F. Laurent, Matasoneuve, seriously burned.

P. Roy, Montreal, terribly injured, condition very critical, very low last evening, and not likely to recover.

James Morrison, Liverpool, England, badly burned, may die.

C. Ryan, Ottawa, scalded, little hope of recovery.

Fred Laverdure, Levis, Que., engineer, face and hands burned, not serious.

Joseph Therrien, Hull, Que., hands and head scalded.

James Keenan, Mattawa, condition serious.

Morrison, Ryan and Roy are so badly scalded that they can hardly recover.

The steamer left Haileybury at 8 in the morning with passengers and freight for Temiskaming Station, 38 miles north of Mattawa.

About twenty-five persons were on board, including three women, the cook and two waitresses. Most of the passengers were men from the lumber camps. As the chill of the northern evening settled down on the lake the passengers gathered in the centre of the boat close to the boilers, which accounts for the number scalded.

Within four miles of the steamer's destination an explosion occurred, followed by a rush of hot, scalding steam to all parts of the boat, filling the cabins, which were closed in.

Instantly all was confusion. Mingled with the roar of escaping steam rose the frightful cries of the injured, while the passengers rushed blindly to and fro in the clouds of steam which obscured everything.

Capt. L. E. Jones was in the wheelhouse and immediately threw the wheel and headed the ill-fated boat for the shore, which, fortunately, afforded an ideal place to beach the craft, which was under sufficient headway to reach the shore.

As soon as the nose of the boat ran upon the bank those who were able scrambled ashore, with the exception of Capt. Jones, J. A. Larochelle, managing director of the Temiskaming Navigation Co., and one or two more, who remained behind to rescue the injured. Mrs. Keenan, the cook, and two waitresses were imprisoned in the after cabin and were dragged out of the windows up the side of the boat to the hurricane deck, and thence to the shore.

When the accident happened, J. McBride of Columbus, O.; A. Hunter and C. Ryan of Ottawa jumped into the lake and began to swim to shore. Ryan, though terribly burned, kept afloat for 20 minutes, until rescued by a rowboat. McBride has not been seen since and is undoubtedly drowned. Passengers also state that an unknown man who was on the boat has not been seen since the accident. P. Roy was sleeping on the deck immediately over the boiler, and the explosion forced the planks on which he was lying upward, precipitating him into the hold, which was a furnace of hissing, roaring steam and flying coal. Fifteen tons of coal, piled at one end of the boiler, acted as a buffer and prevented the entire bow being blown from the boat.

Capt. Jones, Mr. Larochelle and two passengers placed the injured in two lifeboats and rowed to Temiskaming Landing, four miles away, while those able walked.

Ryan, with the flesh hanging in strips from his legs, walked the entire distance. At Temiskaming the injured, who were all suffering from burns and scalds, were bandaged up after the wounds were covered with lard, which was the only available material for temporary relief.

Leave Victims to Die.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 12.—Although the deer-hunting season did not open until yesterday, a score of hunters already have been killed and two-score wounded in Wisconsin woods this fall.

In two cases it is reported that men shot in mistake for deer were left to bleed to death, the careless hunter preferring to run away and leave his victim rather than pay the fine for hunting in the closed season.

ACTRESS ON TRIAL.

Montreal Woman Charged With Trying to Kill Man.

Montreal, Nov. 12.—Madame St. Andre, who had already been convicted of poisoning a horse, was up yesterday to stand a second trial on a charge of attempted murder.

The ex-actress is alleged to have fired a shot at Leon Duchesne, the owner of a saloon on Rachel street, with intent to kill.

Mr. Duchesne himself was the first witness. According to his evidence, he was entering the side door of his place of business on April 21 last, at noon, when he heard a shot fired and a bullet crashed through the plate glass window of the saloon. He ran in front and saw a cab disappear, but of the occupant's identity he was ignorant.

Questioning revealed that on the night previous to the shooting he met Mme. St. Andre in the Newspaperman Cafe, and during the interview she had threatened to kill him, he said. He left the cafe and walked along St. Catharine street to St. Denis, and following in the rear he descried the figure of the lady he had just left. He became frightened, and applied to a constable for protection.

FOUR YEARS FOR THEFT.

Bank Clerk McCallum Goes to Kingston Penitentiary.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—For theft of $16,485 from his former employers, the Farmers' Bank, Duncan Cameron McCallum was sentenced to four years in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate Kingsford yesterday afternoon.

He pleaded guilty and was given his sentence. He was then led away to be photographed, and measured and was at last taken to the jail awaiting transfer to Kingston.

In delivering sentence the magistrate said that it was but one more instance of the pernicious influence of stock gambling and house race betting.

The shortage was placed at $16,485. Of this $5,053 was covered by assets of McCallum, recovered from various sources. The Fidelity Guarantee Co. bond covers $5,000, and friends have made up the remaining $6,400.

It is understood that McCallum's heaviest losses were on the horses, and that most of his stock ventures, particularly his Cobalt deals, yielded considerable returns.

DRAMATIST LAID TO REST.

Victorien Sardou's Request For Quiet Funeral is Observed.

Paris, Nov. 12.—Victorien Sardou, the French author and dramatist who died Nov. 8, was buried in this city yesterday.

He would have been gladly accorded a state funeral had it not been for his expressed wish that he be buried without pomp or ceremony. He was, however, given the military honors always accorded those who have received the grand cross of the Legion of Honor.

Telegrams and letters of condolence continued to pour in on the family of M. Sardou from all parts of the world. King Edward and Queen Amelie, mother of King Emanuel of Portugal, sent personal messages, and almost every dramatist and theatrical organization in Europe has paid homage to the famous Frenchman.

Sarah Bernhardt sent the following telegram from Cairo, Egypt: "France loses one of its glories, half Paris a friend, all the unhappy a protector, and we artists our beloved master, Victorien Sardou."

Bryan as Evangelist.

Burlington, Kansas, Nov. 12.—Rev. French E. Oliver, who is holding a revival meeting here, has issued an open letter to W. J. Bryan, urging the Nebraskan to become an evangelist and predicting that Mr. Bryan would become the equal of the Apostle Paul.

"Who knows? Perhaps God has withheld the Presidency from you in order that you may become more to your country than President. I am firmly convinced that one ambassador of Christ of your calibre is worth more to this nation than ten thousand Presidents," writes Dr. Oliver.

Slavery Still in Florida.

New York, Nov. 12.—What was asserted to be the practical marooning of 3,000 on the wild and inaccessible regions of Florida, and their detention there under hard labor for a period of several months, was dealt with at length before Judge Hough and a jury in the United States Circuit Court, in the course of the trial of the Government's case against employers and agents of the Florida East Coast Railway Co., for alleged violation of the statute prohibiting "peonage, slavery and enforced servitude."

HOAGLAND ACCEPTS WOLFF'S CHALLENGE WANTS TO WALK FOR PURSE OF $250

The Montreal Star says: In the issue of The Star of November 4th, a challenge appeared from Mr. F. Wolff to walk Canada's fibest pedestrians. Already two answers have been received to this defy. One is from W. A. Hoagland, of Auburn, N.Y., who calls himself champion of America, while the other is from Mr. William Scutleman, of Montreal.

Hoagland writing from Peterborough, Ont., dated Nov. 9th, says in part: "I have a walking contest in this city to-day against Mr. Jim Harrison, of this city. I allow him one mile in nine hours. I must return to my home at the conclusion of this race but would gladly return and walk Mr. Wolff in your city, and will make a match with him if he will post a forfeit for a race of any distance he may name, but the match must be for $250, or more. Mr. Wolff's address, he says, is 346 Lagauchetiere street west, Montreal. He can communicate with Mr. C G Graham, of Peterborough, who will attend to details for me. Trusting Mr. Wolff means business. I remain,

Yours truly,
W. A. HOAGLAND,
Auburn, N. Y.
(Champion of America.)

EUGENE TREMBLAY'S NEXT BIG MATCH WILL BE FRIDAY WITH CYCLONE MACK

Montreal, Nov. 12.—Tremblay, the local lightweight, will have pitted against him next Friday night at Sommer Park, one of the best of the European lightweights, in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match, the best two falls out of three to count.

"Cyclone" Mack, the Irish wrestler, who will meet Tremblay, has had up to the present time a marvellous career, and has been cleaning up opponents in a manner that has set patrons of the sport on the other side to thinking that he will ultimately be the lightweight, and probably the welterweight champion of the world.

He has been beaten but once in his entire career and on that occasion he tried to reduce to a weight far below his normal, and even at that he lost principally by being knocked out through his head hitting one of the posts of the ring.

Mack is a rapid fire wrestler who never lets up in action. He is a cordy fellow with the toughest kind of muscle, and this backed with his recklessness makes him one of the greatest drawing cards in the game.

The match between the big Turk, Yussuff Mahmout, and Jess Westergaardt, which was to have been the card, was declared off during the week, as the latter had his shoulder put out of business by Jim Parr last Friday night, and he has been obliged to lay up for two or three weeks. As soon as he is in proper shape he will meet the Turk in this city.

Longboat's First "Pro." Engagement Was Relay Race At Kingston

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 11.—Tom Longboat made his first appearance as a professional at the Kingston Roller Rink this evening. His manager, Tom Flanagan, arrived at noon but the Indian did not arrive till five o'clock, coming down from Deseronto behind a spanking team of greys, in company with an Indian girl of the reserve. Flanagan said that if weather conditions were favourable he would keep Longboat here a while to train.

At nine o'clock 1,200 people were assembled to see "Tom" do five miles. The track was laid around the outside edge of the skating rink. Thirteen laps made a mile.

Three of Kingston's best runners went after the Indian. Longboat took the lead after the first five laps and never lost it. He covered the distance in about twenty-six minutes. T. T. Thompson, physical director of the Y. M. C. A.; P. McMaster and Pte. Billedeau, R.C.H.A., were the Kingston men running, the first two men doing two miles each.

HANLON HOWARD,
The young Hiawatha Indian' who was fourth in the Senior race and who was a contender for nine miles.

The Rough Riders Will Place A Team In City Hockey League

The Rough Riders have decided to place a team in the City Hockey League this season, and expect to turn out a line-up that will make any of the other sevens extend themselves to the utmost. The Riders have any amount of material, in fact enough for two teams, and they may have that number in the league. One at least is certain. The Rough Riders played great hockey last year, winning a large number of games. They lost by only one goal to the Keene Trent Valley League team on their own ice, and tied them here. The Rough Riders will no doubt be made greatly welcome to the City League ranks.

C. THORPE APPRECIATES THE WORK OF TRAINER

Charlie Thorpe, who was second in the Examiner's senior road race on Thanksgiving Day, wishes to express his appreciation of the services of Trainer "Bill" Milburn, who looked after him in the big race. He feels that much of his success is due to the attention he received from his trainer, both in his preparatory work and during the race itself. Mr Milburn, who is Dick Baker's successor as trainer of the Y. M. C. A. clubs, certainly worked hard with Thorpe and did his best for him.

A JUNIOR CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE MAY BE FORMED

It is possible that a Junior City Hockey League may be formed this season, if the difficulty of securing suitable ice accommodation can be overcome. The youngsters are anxious to see such an organization under way, and there will be no trouble in securing at least six teams. An age limit of eighteen years and under has been spoken of, and would, no doubt, suit the junior teams. The Otonabee A. C.'s team is doing its best to have a league formed and have succeeded in getting other teams interested, so that it is likely that steps will be taken in a short time to organize.

W. C. T. U. OFFICERS ELECTED

Meeting Held Recently—Reports Presented and Outlook Discussed.

THE MOVEMENT ADVANCING

The city W. C. T. U. met Friday afternoon for the reception of reports and election of officers. At the conclusion of the devotional exercises the president showed the advance of the temperance movement since the organization of the first society just one hundred years ago, in Saratoga, N. Y. State the pledge being —" No member shall drink wine, gin, rum, whiskey or any distilled spirits, except at public dinners, under a penalty of twenty-five cents". This year two thirds of the population of the United States, and quite a large proportion of the Dominion are living under prohibition; every province but one having adopted local option, which has carried in 813 municipalities out of 492 in Ontario, with 100 towns to vote Jan 1st.

Even Russia has moved along this line of reform. A commission appointed to look into the evils of the traffic with a view to correcting them, recommended that the imperial label used on liquor bottles, should be discarded as it endorses what is bad, for its place the commission recommended that each bottle be labelled with skull and cross-bones, and beneath the death signature should be printed, a warning that it is better not to use the stuff at all, but if used, it should be in small quantities.

We note with deep gratitude the great advance of the cause of temperance in our city during the past year, and look hopefully forward to the banishment of the bar in January 1910.

As W. C. T. U. women this cause demands the earnest efforts of our hearts, and urged by all motives that can prompt the heart to prayer, the brain and hand to act, let us make the power of united Christian womanhood tell for God and home and native land.

"Lo! The Right's about to conquer,
Clear the way!
With this Right shall many more
Enter smiling at the door.
With the giant Wrong shall fall
Many others great and small,
That for ages long have held us
For their prey.
Christian women, clear the way!"

The treasurer's report showed a paid membership of 43 and 4 honorary members. Receipts for the year, $75.78; disbursements, $63.46; leaving a credit balance of $13.32.

Before proceeding to the election of officers, the president, Mrs. Lewis, tendered her resignation, which was accepted.

The following is a list of officers for next year:—

Honorary President: Mrs. Kenner.
President: Mrs. Dr. Morrison.
1st Vice-President: Mrs. E. D. Lewis.
2nd Vice-President: Mrs. Potter.
Corresponding Sec.: Mrs. Turner.
Recording Sec.: Mrs. S. Taylor.
Treasurer: Mrs. P. Downham.
Superintendents of Departments:—
Work in S. Schools: Miss Lumsden.
Press Work: Mrs. Carlysle.
Systematic Giving: Mrs. Campbell.
Lumber Camps: Mrs. Thornton.
Gospel Temperance: Mrs. Kendry.
Prison Reform: Mrs. Lewis.

The Union welcomed four new members, among whom was Mrs. Kenner, who has been both local and county president for many years.

TORONTO PROS. LEAVE FOR PITTSBURG

Are Picking up Some Easy Money in the Smoky City—Will Return in Winter

"Con" Corbeau, the cover-point of the Toronto professional team, Ken Mallon, the left wing of the Montreals, and Jack Mallon, his brother, who was with the Pittsburg Lyceums last season, left Toronto for Pittsburg on Sunday night.

"Newsy" Lalonde, Bruce Ridpath, and Walter Skerrow, the Torontos' forward will go down. The Toronto men will only stay until the Ontario pro. season opens. The Pittsburg season opens to-night. The Toronto men should be in good shape when they come back.—Toronto Star.

SIMPSON SHOULD HAVE WON RACE

Hamilton Spectator Says That He Stuck to Coley Too Long—Would Have Been Sure Winner.

Holmer out loose going home, and rounding into York street he had the race safe, with Fred Simpson coming like a whirlwind for second place, which he eventually got, catching Parsons before the finish was in sight. The Manitoba boy tired badly in the run home, and Simpson finishing very strong, looked good for first place had the race been a mile farther. In fact, the Indian was the freshest man in the race, and simply lost first place through the fact that he expected Coley to be the man to beat, and stuck to him until it was too late to catch Holmer. Had Simpson set sail earlier in the race he would have been a sure enough winner, as he had all the speed and was in grand shape at the finish.—Hamilton Spectator.

DORANDO-HAYES RACE IS NOW A CERTAINTY

New York, Nov. 12.—John J. Hayes, winner of the Marathon race at the Olympic games in London last summer, has signed a contract it is announced, to meet Pietri Dorando, the Italian runner, who was half carried and half pushed across the tape in front of the American, and was disqualified because of his assistance. The agreement which Hayes has signed calls for practically a re-running of the event in Madison Square Garden, this city, on Wednesday, November 25, Thanksgiving eve. It is stipulated that the full Marathon distance 126 miles, 385 yards—be run.

Dorando started for New York on Wednesday on the Teutonic. His brother will be his manager and will look after his training.

Sporting Comment

One of the Ottawa papers states that there is a rumour that Eddie Gleeson and Jack Corkery, of Ottawa College, may play with the Ottawa Interprovincials next Saturday in their game with the Hamilton Tigers.

• • • •

Tuesday two games were played by the Y.M.C.A. Business Boys.

The first game between Hamwells' and Laing's teams, resulted in a score of 11—1 in favour of the former.

The second game between McWilliams' and Halpany's teams was close, the score being 2—1 in favour of Halpany's five.

The boxing class of the Y.M.C.A. will be held on Friday evening from 7 to 8 o'clock, instead of Thursday, owing to the Sheffield Choir Concert.

May Run A Special To Kingston; Tigers And Ottawa Play Off There

The Interprovincial Union executive has decided that the championship of the union shall be decided by a sudden death game between Ottawa and the Tigers on Saturday afternoon in Kingston. A number of local enthusiasts are making arrangements to run a special train to Kingston on Saturday, if possible, in order that Peterborough fans may have a chance of seeing what promises to be one of the finest Rugby struggles ever played on Canadian soil. If a sufficient number from here express a wish to go a special train will be chartered, returning to Peterborough after the game. It will be necessary to have a guarantee that one hundred people will go.

Saturday's match will be of particular interest to Peterborough followers of the game, inasmuch as a number of old Peterborough boys will be on the line-up of the two teams. Ben Simpson is with the Tigers, while Murray and Hal Kennedy, and possibly Jack Corkery, will be on the line-up of the Ottawas. Corkery made a grand showing against the Ottawas on Monday, playing for College and the Rough Riders are discussing the advisability of using him on Saturday.

Winner of the Examiner Senior road race for 1908.

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE O.H.A.

The amendments to go before the annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association, which will be held in the Temple Building, Saturday, Nov. 21, at nine o'clock, are all in. No radical changes are sought.

To the constitution Mr. J. Ross Robertson introduces a motion that says that no member of the executive shall serve on the executive when the club he represents is in question.

Francis Nelson wants to have junior and intermediate certificates that are used in the series above them marked on each occasion of such use by the referee. This will give evidence as to whether a player took part in one game which he may do in the series above his card or in two which he must not do unless willing to continue in the upper series.

W. A. Hewitt wishes to have the regulation enforced which calls for a forfeit of $25 on the loss of a protest. Sometimes a motion to have the money refunded in the case of such loss is brought up. Henceforth, if this carries, the executive will have no power to hand any such money back to clubs. It will tend to do away with trivial protests.

A. M. Edwards, of Galt, would make it a rule for all clubs to forward to the O. H. A. secretary on or before Dec. 15 a complete list of its membership. His idea is to cut off "paper" clubs. Most hockey clubs, however, have no membership until they get on the ice.

J. Ross Robertson wishes to simplify things in cities like Toronto, where all the teams are on home ice. He would settle the play-off ties and semi-finals by playing out any tie on the round in the second game of a home and home series, where both teams are on home ice. Hitherto a third game has been played.

W. A. Hewitt would clear up defaults. He asks that when a team defaults the games it has played stand as won or lost, and the ones left to play go as wins for the teams scheduled against them. One default would debar a club from their series as heretofore.

T.A.S. AND COLLEGIATE LEAGUE GAME SATURDAY

There will be a game in the Junior City Rugby League on Saturday between the Collegiate Institute fourteen and the Junior T. A. S. A. C. The result of the game will have no effect upon the championship race, as the Rough Riders have a clear lead, but it should be a good game nevertheless. The Abstainers have been improving every game and last Saturday held the champions down to a score of 3—2. They hope to take Dr. McPherson's protegees into camp on Saturday, while the Collegians are anxious to finish up their season with a win.

The standing in the league at present is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	To play.
Rough Riders	6	0	0
P. C. I.	3	2	1
T. A. S. A. C.	2	3	1
*Y. M. C. A.	0	6	0

*Defaulted.

HALL'S BRIDGE HUNTERS ON THE WARPATH

Many Have Departed in Search of the Elusive Deer.

Examiner Special

Hall's Bridge Nov. 10.—Mr. Chas. Jones arrived home in time for the election.

Mr. Stephen Nicholls, Mr. Dave Montgomery and comrades, as well as the Haines party are away on the hunt. A great many hunters passed through here last week, especially on Saturday.

The Trent Valley Dredge, "Emerson" spent a few days here last week digging up the old dam from in front of the new log-sluice. Now that the new bridge and approaches are completed many are thinking of wet feet in rainy weather for pedestrians and "passing" troubles for horsemen. Most would have preferred a couple of feet more width and a higher centre.

Mr. J Chesney has the framework up for two new houses. Mr. W Blewett's house presents a very attractive appearance now that it has been bricked.

Mrs. Chesney, Sr., returned to the village on Nov. 1st, after spending about six weeks among friends at Rookcroft.

The cheese factory here will remain open till about the middle of November.

Havelock Will Vote On The Local Option By-law On January 4 Next; The Petition Has Been Submitted

Examiner Special

Havelock, Nov. 11.—The local option fight in town is on in earnest and the history of the struggle against the liquor party during the last year is indeed a very interesting one.

Last year the people did not think of local option in time to vote on it in January. Then in February a petition was circulated by one of the fathers of the village and a vote taken on a by-law to raise the hotel license fee from $350 to $750, a raise of $500, and carried by a small majority. The three hotels in town paid the high license, but the people in town were not satisfied, and are now clamouring for local option. Two of the resident clergymen circulated a petition and it was signed by 170 electors, while only about 90 names were needed on it. The petition was filed with the clerk on Oct. 19th, and on Nov. 2nd placed before the council, and on Jan. 4th, 1909, at the municipal elections a vote will be taken on the important question.

In Polling Subdivision No. 1 — In the council chamber, R. Phelps will be deputy returning officer and James Scott, poll clerk. In No. 2— in town hall, H. T. Andrews will be deputy returning officer, and Wm. Bryans, poll clerk. If the vote results in a majority in favour of the by-law it shall come into effect on May 1st next.

The by-law will carry if all the people on the petition vote for it.

Some of the many who have, as in other seasons, gone on the usual deer hunting trip for two weeks, Mr. Jas. Backus, of town, is fathering a party at Sandy Lake, namely, Mr. Wesley Hart, Wm. Rose, Ross Webb, Wm. Webb and others, all of town. Mr. Backus is an old reliable hunter and the wily deer will surely fall to his rifle.

Mr. George Phillips and Wm. Johnson are camped near Twin Lakes with the Seymour party.

Messrs. Thos. Wright, Jas. Ruttan, A. Wight, C. Kilbanks, of Trent Bridge; Dolty Smith, of town, and Fred Schitre, of Toronto, are at Tory Hill, north of Peterborough.

Mr. Thos. Bennett and Master Leonard are hunting with a party north of Parry Sound.

Messrs. Andrew and Alex. Matheson, Henry Pacey and John Burnett are in the vicinity of Pine Lake.

Mr. Chas. Armstrong and Master Albert and Mr. C. Brennan, of Muskoka, are with an American party around Stony Lake.

Mr. David Louis, a farmer living about four miles north of Havelock, passed away on Thursday morning, at the residence of Mrs. Campbell, in town. The deceased had undergone an operation last week for appendicitis, but same had not been performed in time, and after a few days' intense suffering he passed peacefully away. The funeral takes place on Friday afternoon from his residence in Belmont to the Maple Grove Cemetery.

Mr. George Alley, of Belmont Township, passed away very suddenly on Thursday last. The deceased was well known in Belmont and Havelock, and his demise is much regretted by a large circle of friends. The funeral took place on Saturday last from his residence in Belmont.

The death occurred on Saturday last of Norman Rush, aged four years, son of Mrs. Rush, of Belmont. The little one was eating a piece of turnip and choked to death. The funeral took place on Monday last.

The Rev. Wm. Kettlewell, Secretary of the Dominion Alliance, will preach on the subject of "Temperance" on Sunday next. In the morning at the morning service at the Presbyterian Church, and at the evening service in the Methodist Church. In the afternoon he will address the children of the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday Schools. The first address will be given in the basement of the Presbyterian Church, and the second in the Methodist Church. On the following Monday, Thanksgiving night, Nov. 9th, he will preside at a public meeting to be held in the opera house, when the local option temperance movement in Havelock will be organized. The meeting will commence at eight o'clock, and all those in sympathy with the movement are asked to be present, to hear Mr. Kettlewell, who is said to be a very able and convincing speaker.

The bylaw No. 239, to prevent the sale of liquor in the Municipality of Havelock, appeared in print in the Standard for the first time in last week's edition, Nov. 5th, 1908.

A number of townspeople are taking advantage of the holiday rate (half fare), allowing them to go on Friday, Nov. 6th, returning Tuesday, Nov. 10th.

Among the out-of-town guests who attended the "Masquerade Calico Ball" on Friday night last, were as follows: Miss Weyar and Dr. Andrew, of Toronto; Mr. E. Bennett, of Parry Sound; Mrs. Wright, Miss Kirkengaarde and Messrs. Anderson, Howell and Horwob, of Deloro; Mrs. Gouldeny, Misses Edith, Florence and Stella McWilliams, and Messrs. Denmark, of Campbellford; Mr. Lonergan, of Warkworth, and Mr. Forde, Chapman, of Ottawa.

On Thursday afternoon and evening of next week, Nov. 12th, the annual meeting of the Belmont Township Sunday School Association will be held in the Methodist Church, Havelock. Mr. Richard Lees, P.S.I., and secretary of Peterborough County Sunday School Association and Mr. H. W. MANY COAL MINERS WERE ENTOMBED

Three Hundred Are Lost in German Mine Explosion.

NO HOPE OF SAVING THEM

Redbod Coal Workings at Hamm, Westphalia, Are Blown Up and of 339 Miners Only Six Escape Uninjured — Thirty-Seven Bodies Are Taken Out and Thirty-Five Injured Are Rescued.

Hamm, Westphalia, Germany, Nov. 13.—The greatest mine disaster in many years in Germany occurred yesterday morning at the Redbod mine, three miles from here. There was a heavy explosion in the mine about four o'clock, and almost immediately the mine took fire. Of 339 miners only six escaped without injury. Thirty-five were taken out badly injured, and 37 bodies were brought out. The remaining 302 have been given up for lost. The explosion destroyed one of the shafts, which had to be partly repaired before the rescue work was begun.

Heartrending scenes were enacted at the mine when the dead and wounded were brought to the surface, and there were similar scenes in the town when the injured were transported through the streets to the hospitals.

Finally the fire had made such great headway that it was decided that any further attempts to rescue the entombed men were vain, owing to the impossibility of entering the galleries. At the same time an order was issued to flood the mine. First reports indicated that the accident was the result of an explosion of coal dust, but the statements of the injured men render this impossible.

Trip Has Drawbacks.

London, Nov. 13.—The Sheffield Choir sang before a delighted audience Wednesday night. The house was packed.

The members of the choir are complaining of the poor management of the trip, claiming it has been bungled. There would have been no accommodation at many cities had not private citizens come to the rescue.

Wednesday night the choir were entertained to a banquet tendered them by four private citizens, who took upon themselves the financial responsibility the council refused to assume.

Attacks Salvation Army.

Denver, Col., Nov. 13.—Addressing the convention of the A.F. & A.M., P. M. Draper, delegate from Canada, told of some of the work that the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress was trying to accomplish.

Mr. Draper was bitter against the Salvation Army, saying that it has been acting as an agent for the capitalist class in securing the emigration of large number of mechanics from England who came to Canada in times of strike and thus harmed the union men of the Dominion.

Third Victim.

Belleville, Nov. 13.—Robert Young, injured in rear-end collision near Bowmanville a week ago last night, died yesterday morning. He had been for many years in charge of the water service department in this division and was on the way to repair a water service at Bowmanville. He was 59 years of age and leaves a widow. He was for a quarter of a century employed on the Grand Trunk. He is the third victim of the wreck.

Street Railwaymen Conclude.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—The Canadian Street Railwaymen's Association concluded their proceedings by choosing Winnipeg as next place of meeting. Messrs. Leitch, Ingram and Kitson of Ontario Railway and Municipal board addressed the convention.

Big Steamer Launched.

Belfast, Nov. 13.—The steamer Minnewauska, the largest vessel in the fleet of the Atlantic Transport line, was successfully launched here yesterday. She is of 14,500 tons.

DR. W. H. WITHROW DIED YESTERDAY

Methodist Sunday School Editor Passed Away in Toronto.

WROTE CANADIAN HISTORY

Doctor of Divinity of Victoria College, Fellow of Royal Society of Canada, and Editor For Thirty-Four Years of the Methodist S. S. Publications, Dies of Hemorrhage— Was Well-Known Litterateur.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—Rev. Dr. W. H. Withrow, F.R.S.C., editor of the Methodist Sunday School periodicals, died at his residence, 244 Jarvis street, at 11.40 last night, after lingering in an unconscious condition since Thursday evening last, when he was stricken with hemorrhage of the brain.

Dr. Withrow's children and grandchildren were with him when he passed away.

The late Rev. Dr. Withrow was born in Toronto on Aug. 6, 1838. He was a graduate of Victoria Methodist University, Cobourg, and of Toronto University. For a few years he had charge of various [illegible] in the Hamilton conference. In 1874 he was elected editor of the Sunday school publications of the Methodists General Conference and has been re-elected at each successive meeting of that body. When first appointed he had charge of three publications with a circulation of 46,500. This increased under his direction to ten publications with a circulation of over 400,000.

Dr. Withrow was a great lover of travel, and devoted to literature. These traits were manifested in his researches at the catacombs of Rome, which he embodied in a book by that name before he was thirty years of age. This work is still regarded as one of the standard authoritive works upon the catacombs and is much used as a guide book by visitors. Dr. Withrow's History of Canada is well known. The excellence of his literary work was so widely known that no less an authority than the late Hon. Wm. Ewart Gladstone wrote him a personal letter of appreciation.

He received the degree of D.D. from Victoria University in 1882. He was a fellow of the English literature section of the Royal Society of Canada and an honorary member of the Woman's Canadian Historical Society.

The surviving members of the family are two sons, William J. and Frederick D. of Ottawa, and two daughters, Mrs. Stafford and Miss Florence Withrow, B.A.

Arrangements have not been made for the funeral.

Madison Garden Must Go.

New York, Nov. 13.—Madison Square Garden, the home of the horse show and kindred big enterprises, and probably the largest and most widely-known building in the country devoted exclusively to public entertainments, is likely to be lost to the city as a public amusement place.

The stockholders of the company which controls the garden have decided to place the entire block on the market. The decision was based on their belief that there is no prospect of the Garden in its present shape ever being a profitable venture.

Affinity Bride Not a Success.

New York, Nov. 13.—Ferdinand Pinney Earle, of "affinity" renown, is nursing a black eye at his castle-like home in Monroe, N.Y. He is also caring for a large bruised bump upon the same side of his head.

The marks of battle, he confided to a neighbor, were inflicted by Julia Kuttner Earle, his affinity-wife, whom he wedded early this year, after putting aside his first wife and his children last fall.

The affinity-wife, Earle told his neighbor, used a chair as her weapon.

Earthquake at Spa.

Spa, Belgium, Nov. 13.—A violent earthquake of three seconds' duration occurred there at half-past nine yesterday morning. The people of Spa were thrown into a panic and rushed wildly from their houses into the streets. Glasses and bottles in the cafes were broken, and in many houses pictures and bric-a-brac crashed to the floor.

The quake was accompanied by a loud roaring sound. The shock was felt also at Esneux.

Forger Gets Two Months.

St. Catharines, Nov. 13.—Convicted of passing a forged check on Peter Freeman, Robert Collins was yesterday afternoon sentenced to two months in the county jail.

Ruttan's Majority 200.

Prince Albert, Nov. 13.—The majority of Ruttan (Lib.) in 120 out of 129 polls is 191. It will be a week before the remaining polls are in. There was a celebration last night by the Liberals.

J. E. GREGORY'S EVIDENCE WAS HEARD

Marine Agent Admits Receiving Interest on Advances.

KEPT BACK HIS ACCOUNTS

One Bill For $4,000 Was Not Forwarded to Authorities at Ottawa For a Year—Thinks Conditions Justified His Actions and Anyway He Needed Money — Correspondence Produced at Enquiry.

Quebec, Nov. 13.—J. A. Gregory, the suspended agent of the Marine and Fisheries Department here, took the stand yesterday, his examination taking up the greater part of the afternoon. The examination furnished a number of quite interesting incidents and a few dramatic situations.

Senator Choquette exacted the promise from the crown counsel that none of the evidence elicited in the examination would be used against Mr. Gregory, in the event of criminal proceedings being taken against him.

Witness deposed that he had had charge of the local agency of the Department since Confederation, though his nomination was only made official in 1899.

He admitted the receipt of the various amounts paid him by Mr. Davie of Levis. He was in need of money, having made many advances, and lost a good deal of interest through his advances to the Government, and in his predicament thought that the most honest man and the best friend of his acquaintance was Geo. T. Davie, and to him he went.

Asked whether he deposited these amounts to his own credit; he replied that they went into the general account. To the question if anyone was present when he received the moneys in question, he said it was not very likely.

Witness produced a number of documents, including correspondence, with officials at Ottawa, some of which proved decidedly interesting, and one of which did not get to the public at all. This latter is well understood to have been a private note to Mr. Gregory, telling him not to bother himself at all about the instructions contained in an official communication of the same date from the Department.

Another was a letter signed by Col. F. Gourdeau, Deputy Minister, confirming a telegram previously produced in the case, authorizing Mr. Gregory to secure $10,000 on the best terms possible for the immediate use of his agency, seeing that the extra appropriations were not then voted.

One message from Ottawa which he produced read, "Please make best arrangements possible for the payment of wages." Witness said he did so, but absolutely denied that he charged the men anything for the advances so made them. Neither did he receive any return from the Government. He could not even get the bank interest paid. He asked for it, but was told that there was no vote for the payment of interest and that it could not be recognized.

Regarding the amount paid him by Mr. Davie he said that he had rendered service to the firm by sending them orders as far as possible from ship masters among his friends and others. The money he borrowed from the bank was on his personal responsibility. Witness admitted that all the money he had advanced to employes of the Department in Ottawa had been returned, and said that the Government, which was the largest debtor, was the most ungrateful.

The correspondence between the Department at Ottawa and the witness simply brimmed over with complaints against the Quebec agency, but most of them were taken very complacently by the witness.

Some of the Department communications complained of the holding back of accounts that should have been promptly forwarded from the Quebec Agency to Ottawa.

"It is not true," declared the witness.

One letter spoke of an account of $4,000 having been kept back for more than a year," being only one more instance of the grave irregularities of the Quebec agency." Other letters explained that if certain accounts had been promptly sent in they would have been promptly paid. It was stated that one of Mr. Holliday's accounts for $20,000 was kept over without payment from Oct 31 to the following June. On the other hand payments had been made within three days of the receipt of the accounts at Ottawa.

Witness was asked if it was not his duty to have forwarded the accounts to Ottawa promptly, but there was no answer.

Child Choked by Bean.

Brockville, Nov. 13—Rosetta Young, aged four years, went to the barn with her mother, who resides on a farm near Hammond, and while there was noticed to choke and become very ill. The parents started with the child to get a doctor, but she died. A bean had lodged in the windpipe.

CELEBRATION AT TUNNEL.

Festivities Mark Official Opening tion in St. Clair.

Sarnia, Nov. 13.—Just how long it will take to electrify the steam railroads of the world no one can answer say, but the first step towards the end was signalized yesterday by the proceedings celebrating the electrification of the St. Clair Tunnel.

The work was completed by the Westinghouse Electric Co. and the traffic run under their superintendency since May 17 last, but the Grand Trunk Railway yesterday took over the new electrical system and the tunnel, its yards, and approaches will henceforth be run as an independent division of the road. The western division will deliver its trains at the Port Huron yard to the tunnel division, which redelivers them to the eastern division on the Sarnia and vice-versa.

The importance of the occasion was adequately marked by the company and appreciated by a large contingent of visitors and guests.

The luncheon was a brilliant function at the Hotel Vendome here with Third Vice-President Fitzhugh in the chair. H. G. Kelly proposed the health of Joseph Hobson, who is regarded as the genius of the tunnel. Wm. McNab proposed B. J. Arnold's health, who responding, gave an account of similar undertakings elsewhere. He paid a high tribute to the Westinghouse Co. for its work, and was proud to turn it over to such capital men as Messrs. Hobson, Hayes, Fitzhugh, Robb, Jones, McGrath and Hall, of the G.T.R. Messrs. Sheppard, Graven, Stover, Wilson and Kirker of the Westinghouse Co. were specially mentioned by Mr. Fitzhugh.

Another banquet was held last evening at the Hotel Harrington, Port Huron, when the proceedings were equally cordial. The royal and presidential toasts were honored on both occasions.

QUALITY FIRST

In some lines of business price may well be the great talking point. Those who can buy best, and sell least have something interesting to say to the public. In the DRUG BUSINESS it's different. Quality, regardless of price, should be the main factor, and it is here. What you buy here in the line of Drugs and Medicines will be of right quality, and price asked will also be right —as low as goods of same quality can ever be bought for anywhere.

"JACOB" IN THE BUSH.

Harrow Headmaster Was Promptly Dropped When He Became Known.

Bishop Welldon, Dean of Manchester, who was one of the officiating clergy at the marriage of Mr. Winston Churchill and Miss Clementine Hosier, was headmaster at Harrow for fifteen years, and he tells an amusing story about Archbishop Longley, a former headmaster there. Dr. Longley, who was familiarly called "Jacob" by the boys, one day discovered that his amiable pupils used occasionally to escape from school at night on marauding excursions, and then got back to the dormitory by means of a long rope, which they pulled as a signal for their friends above to haul them up. One night the wily Longley went round to the window and pulled the rope. Immediately the boys above began to haul up. The headmaster hung on like grim death, and when his respectable bald head appeared level with the dormitory window the boys, with a terrified "Jacob, by jingo!" let him fall flat into the bushes below! Dr. Welldon, who rejoices in his physical bigness, has received some queer communications in his time. On many occasions he has received letters asking for some information of a sporting character. When at Harrow he received contradictory telegrams from the mother and father of a boy. The father said: "Send Johnny home by the next train," while the mother said: "Keep him at school." In such a conflict of parental commands he deemed it advisable to side with the mother. Dr. Welldon, who was born at Tonbridge in 1854, is very witty. Not long ago he compared a bazaar which he was opening to "an eruption on the face of a baby." No doubt in cold print this seems just a little too bizarre, but to have heard the bishop explain this as only being a symptom of good health and vitality was to reduce the formation of a simile to a fine art.

BIDDING AGAINST HIMSELF.

Sir Donald Currie's Carelessness Once Cost Him a Round Sum.

One of the treasured possessions of Sir Donald Currie, the veteran shipowner, who has offered to erect and equip a hospital in the island of Skye, off the coast of which his estate of Scalpay lies, is a clay pipe which was given him by Tennyson, who, with the late Mr. Gladstone, had been on a cruise with him. He once entertained twenty-nine royal personages on board the Pembroke Castle, including Queen Alexandra and her parents. Sir Donald, who started life as a junior clerk in a Greenock shipping firm, was caught napping once, and his forgetfulness cost him a pretty penny. Amongst a quantity of furniture about to be sold by auction was a chair with the name "Dunnottar Castle" ornately carved upon it. He decided to purchase it, and instructed a commission agent to buy at any cost. The agent started the bidding at £5, and was surprised to hear another well-known dealer double the bid. "Fifteen" shouted the agent, while the audience began to grow interested, for the chair seemed comparatively valueless. "Twenty," cried the dealer; "Thirty," came the agent's answer, and the bidding continued until £670 was reached, when the chair was knocked down to the agent. A rumor went round that the secret of the keen competition lay in the fact that the woodwork was hollow, and was filled wih notes and Government securities, but this rumor, like most of its kind, was far from the truth. The fact of the matter was, Sir Donald forgot that he had commissioned two men to buy the same chair, so the battle was equivalent to Sir Donald fighting himself.

Fatal Lottery Prize.

While the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co.'s steamer Trent, was lying in the harbor at Kingston recently a passenger named Hans Ole Wilhelm Wind was found dead in his chair. Several empty whisky bottles were discovered near him, and death was due to alcoholic poisoning. He was on his way home to Denmark, and had with him nearly $15,000, which he had won as a lottery prize two months before.

Early Missionary to Africa.

Rev. J. Martin of Wilmslow, England, who was the oldest Wesleyan minister in England, died recently on his 91st birthday. He was one of the first missionaries sent to West Africa, and did much to suppress the slave trade.

Lawyers Fight In Court.

A scene between two solicitors recently at Dundalk, Ireland, culminated in blows, which caused two magistrates to leave the bench in disgust.

NO WOMAN

CAN BE STRONG AND HEALTHY UNLESS THE KIDNEYS ARE WELL.

When the kidneys are ill, the whole body is ill, for the poisons which the kidneys ought to filter out of the blood are left in the system. Then how important it must be to see to it that this system of sewerage be not clogged up. Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble know not the misery and suffering which those afflicted undergo.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles. They begin by healing the delicate membranes of the kidneys and thus make their action regular and natural.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and all the urinary passages.

Doan's Kidney Pills are entirely vegetable, and may be safely taken by young and old.

Let Doan's Kidney Pills do for you what they have done for thousands of others, that is, cure you.

Mrs. M. Bryanton, Spring Valley, P.E.I., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for two years. They were so bad at times I could not cross the floor for the pain. I tried a doctor but he did me no good at all. I sent to my nearest druggist and got four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I am glad to say that after taking them I have had no more trouble for nearly three years now."

Price 50 cts. per box, or 3 for $1.25, all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DOMINION AMMUNITION

RAILROAD TIME.

Why the Trains on Some Roads Start One Minute Late.

"We're one minute late in starting," observed a man to his seat mate on an outward bound train at the Grand Central the other afternoon. "Either the train is late or my watch is slow. I don't think it's my watch, for it's as absolutely accurate a chronometer as there is in America. I paid $700 for it," he added pridefully.

"Your watch is all right, and so is the train," replied his companion. "It is something that is not known to the public, but it is a fact that most of the great railroads nowadays make their published time cards, those that it issues to the public at large, exactly one minute faster than those they furnish their train employees. For instance, this train, according to the time table, is due to leave the station at 4:59. The time card the engineer runs by gives the leaving time as 5 o'clock, and at 5 o'clock to the second he pulls out.

"The reason for that is this: I get to the gate at exactly 4:59. I am agreeably surprised to see that the train I want to take is still there and slide through the gate just as it is closing. I get aboard and in my seat just as the train starts. I look out of the window and see no one hastening down the platform trying to make a swift swoop and land on the rear step at the last moment. If there is any one left behind he is on the other side of the gate. The railroads have adopted this plan of having their public time tables sixty seconds faster so that the gate leading to the train may be closed at the moment the train is scheduled to start and so that those who get inside at the last moment can have exactly one minute to get aboard, which is ample if one is at all nimble."—New York Press.

Troublous Problems of Population.

How many of the world's greatest staples are dependent on essentially pioneer conditions? Wool is a pioneer industry, dependent on the half occupied areas of the world, to say nothing of furs. How will the human race be fed when population has been spread over all parts of the earth available for human settlement at an even ratio? Saskatchewan is larger than Germany and probably fully Germany's equal in economic resources. How would the world be fed if Saskatchewan and places like it were peopled as closely as the kaiser's empire? This is really the wheat question of the future, and the wool question and the lumber question and in large part the beef question. James J. Hill now estimates that in twenty years we shall be a wheat importing nation, having passed over from the lists of areas which help to feed the world into the category of those that somebody else must help to sustain.—Boston Transcript.

Before the Day of Matches.

Sixty years ago the use of flint and steel to produce a fire was not wholly unknown. The late William E. Stone of Peoria lived at Beaver, Pa. His father one warm August night was stricken with apoplexy. The fire was out in the kitchen hearth, and his mother in her distress, unable to find the tinder box, was obliged to send his brother Marsh two miles and a half to a neighbor. She gave him a handful of tow, which he put in his pocket. Arousing a neighbor with some difficulty, she gave him a live coal, which he wrapped in the tow and, putting it back in his pocket, ran home. When he arrived there he swung the tow around his head, thus fanned the coal and produced a flame which lighted a candle. In the meantime relief had been so long coming that the father was past all surgery.—Peoria Star.

Waiting in a Doctor's Anteroom.

Any one who has had to wait any considerable length of time in a doctor's public room until the man of medicine was ready to receive him will appreciate an experience of Congressman Francis W. Cushman of Washington state. It is said the congressman some time ago had occasion to visit one of the noted physicians at the national capital and was compelled for many weary minutes to cool his heels in an anteroom. Finally, his patience becoming exhausted, he summoned an attendant, to whom he said: "Present my compliments to the doctor and tell him if I am not admitted in five minutes I shall get well again."

The physician found it convenient to admit Mr. Cushman at once.—Chicago Post.

In Hanging Pictures.

A safe rule to remember when hanging pictures is that the middle of the picture should be on a level with the eyes. Of course if you are unusually tall this rule does not hold good. Don't mix several kinds and types of pictures together. Let all the water colors, oils or engravings be placed in separate rooms or, at any rate, on different walls. Above all, do not overcrowd your walls. A few well chosen pictures look far better than a number of mediocre ones.

SIGHTS OF SLOUGH.

Spots of Legendary, Literary and Historic Interest.

The soil of England is so thickly sown with legends and historic literary shrines, that if one should unexpectedly be set down from a balloon or an automobile in any part of the mother country, he would be likely to find something to interest him. This is illustrated by the contents of a little pocket guide about Slough, recently published. Slough is a town of approximately fourteen thousand inhabitants, situated eighteen miles west of London. It stands on the "Great Bath Road." In earlier days, before a direct rail line was built to the royal country seat, members of the royal household used to leave the trains at Slough on their way to Windsor, two miles distant. Within a radius of nine miles, one may find the burial places of Edmund Burke, Edmund Waller, the poet, and the author of the "Elegy Written in a County Churchyard." Two villages in which John Milton lived, one still containing a cottage whose roof is said to have sheltered the head of the blind poet, are in the neighborhood. Only six miles from Slough is Runnymede, indissolubly connected with the signing of Magna Charta by King John. There are relics of Dick Turpin to be seen at Colnbrook, only four miles away, and Eton College is only one and a half miles distant.

The first public telegraph line in England is said to have been erected between Paddington and Slough in 1844, and the first time the telegraph was used for the capture of a criminal was the employment of this line when Tawell, a Quaker, endeavored to escape to London after committing a brutal murder near Salt Hill. His approach to the city being known, he was shadowed from the moment he reached Paddington, and he was eventually arrested. Salt Hill, which is a suburb of Slough, it will be recalled, for nearly two centuries was the scene of the triennial hold-ups by the Eton schoolboys. Before the opening of the railroad age the highway adjacent to this "hill" was frequented by numerous travelers. Once in every three years it was the custom of the scholars to march in procession from Eton to a mound on the south side of the Bath Road. Here, accompanied with much ceremony, witty speeches were made by the captain of the scholars, some wearing quaint uniforms with brass epaulettes and small swords and others carrying long staves with round, flat heads, bearing inscriptions, scoured the country and the highway and required all "to stand and deliver." The money thus collected was known as "salt." It was applied to providing the captain of the school with funds on going to the university. It was his custom to express his thanks from the top of Salt Hill. It is said that King William III. was not exempt from the "attack" of these licensed young highwaymen, and his Dutch guards, ignorant of the custom, would have cut the lads down as robbers had not the King intervened. King George III. was also a regular attendant at the exercises and a contributor, and on the last occasion, before the custom was abolished in 1844, Albert, the Prince Consort, was present. The mound may still be seen, though it is somewhat hidden by the surrounding houses.

It was while living at Slough that Sir William Herschel, the famous astronomer, discovered the planet Uranus with its four moons. The butt end of the great reflecting telescope with which he made his discoveries, and which was afterward used by his son, Sir John Herschel, and his grandson, Prof. Alex. Herschel, is still to be seen lying on the grounds. The instrument was broken in two by a falling tree in 1863.

330,000 Pensions Already.

The Old-Age Pensions Act will only just double the number of male pensioners in the country. This seems a remarkable fact, but it is perfectly true.

Of the old people who will become pensioners next year the majority will be women. About 250,000 old men are all that will benefit. But at the present time we have that number of pensioners among us, made up as follows:

There are 171,815 army, navy, and civil service pensioners, who receive £7,903,000 a year; while officials of local authorities and the police are pensioned to the number of 33,186, receiving £1,830,800.

There are 5,829 pensioned schoolteachers, who get among them £171,333.

Trade unions pension 13,383 members, giving them £256,754 a year. From charities and in almshouses, over 30,000 people get pensions of about £400,000.

This makes a total of more than a quarter of a million, nearly all of whom are males. They receive nearly £10,562,000 among them. But there are more. For instance, the friendly societies are said to have 58,000 pensioners, and many old servants, and other employes, are pensioned by their former employers.

Probably the total number of pensioners does not fall much short of 330,000, all told.

Blue Drinks.

"Champagne is golden," said a bartender, "beer is amber, claret is red, cream of mint is green, whisky is brown, punches are white, but you will never, never find a drink that is blue. Doesn't the thought of a blue drink seem unpleasant to you?

"Blue drinks could be easily made, but the public would have none of them. Nothing blue would go down with the public. Why is this aversion to blue so general? Many reasons have been advanced, but none of them is good. One is that blue, being the color of poison bottles, incites distaste and horror."

Even the Hash.

Embarrassed in the fashionable restaurant by the menus written in French, the Wall street man of business exclaimed:

"Hang these froids, entrements and hors d'oeuvres! Bring me a plate of good plain hash if you've got such a thing on the premises."

"You mean an olla podrida, sir," said the waiter in a tone of dignified reproach. "And afterward?"

WHAT COLORS TELL.

The Way the Spectroscope Reads the Sun and Stars.

When one lights a common sulphur match in the dark it is worth while to notice what happens. First, its phosphorus gives out faint yellow rays, and almost at the same time the sulphur begins to burn with bluish beams.

As yet the flame yields little light. In a moment or two the wood of the match takes fire, and then a stream of clear white light pours forth. Each of the materials of the match—its phosphorus, sulphur and wood—has shone in burning with a color of its own.

In a street lighted by electricity and gas the eye detects at once the difference between the white rays of the one and the yellow beams of the other. If nitrate of strontia is set on fire we have a splendid red flame. Filings of copper burn with a glow of greenish blue, and a fine, pure blue is had when filings of zinc are ignited. These and other such substances furnish the maker of fireworks with his materials.

Rockets, roman candles and bombs all derive their beauty from the special tints which attend the combustion of their ingredients. And any one who has once seen the colors peculiar to common salt, iron or antimony as they trace themselves on the evening sky will always know what is aflame when he sees those colors again.

Sir John Herschel was the first to understand that colors of this kind tell a wonderful story. He will knew how the stars varied in tint—that Aldebaran was ruddy, Arcturus yellow and Sirius, the most glorious of all, white. Might not the colors of a body aflame, whether on earth or in the sky, really be telling us of what that body was composed?

His suggestion was taken up, and its fruit is that marvel of ingenuity, the spectroscope. One of its principal parts is a prism employed to break up the hues. These hues, which are divided by many dark lines, make known to us that the sun and stars are built of such materials as compose our own globe.

Yet more, they tell us what kind of atmosphere surrounds them and, most astonishing of all, give us the rate at which a remote star is moving toward or from the tiny orb we inhabit.

NEW YORK WAITERS.

They Spoiled the Appetite of the Transplanted Citizen.

"These New York waiters have got on my nerves," said a transplanted citizen from a smaller town. "Dining in the magnificent hotels and restaurants would be a joy if some one would kindly remove the waiters while you ate. I can think of nothing but the big, black buzzards that hover over your head in Florida.

"There are so many waiters standing around, all in black, and they look so big and get their faces or their hands so close to you and your dinner that you feel like throwing the china at them. When your waiter has disappeared a smaller edition keeps right after you, filling your glass, removing dishes, giving you more butter, and if you look away from him the head waiter has his eye on you.

"The most maddening thing of all to me is the way the waiter orders your dinner for you. One took me in hand the other night, and I let him have his way just to see what he would do to me. I hate fish, but he averred that fish was the best thing I could eat and one particular dish was the chef's masterpiece. He brought it and, ye gods, it was fish all greasy with a dope made of cheese and mushrooms that about finished me; but, fortunately, he only let me take two bites when he whisked my plate away and set down a salad that had several kinds of fruit laced to lettuce leaves, with strips of red and green peppers and French dressing over that. I barely looked at that when he took it away in triumph and gave me an ice cream thick with chestnuts and fruits.

"Now, I dine on rare roast beef, plain lettuce and never take dessert, so you see how near he came to suiting me. 'Come again, sir,' said he. 'Not if I'm conscious,' said I."

Rat's Strange Death.

A cocoanut was recently brought to me just as picked up in a Colombo garden, with the head of a big rat fixed into the nut, the rat being not long dead. Clearly the rat was up a tree nibbling at, or, rather, being well into the nut, nearly full size, when the nut tumbled, and before the rat could withdraw it was crushed to death between the nut and the ground.

British Columbia Likes Gin Pills.

Chilliwack, B.C.

I divide the year about equally working on this ranch and on various logging claims, being consequently entirely dependent on bodily fitness for a living. At times I have suffered like many others in this country from backache and weak Kidneys, sometimes to the extent of being laid up for weeks together. Having tried many remedies I have pleasure in stating that your Gin Pills are the only one from which I have derived any permanent benefit. I have been using them only a short time when the trouble left me, and has not returned since. J. EDWARD JAMES.

SPOTLESS TOWN.

Brock, in Holland, is the Cleanest Place in the World.

The housecleaning tools, hung upon the wall in neat lines, were as numerous, as diverse and as handsome as the tools of a carpenter or a chauffeur. There were floor brushes, wall brushes, picture brushes—all sizes and shapes. There were rakes and scrapers for corners. There were polishing instruments of every kind—for glass, for metal, for floors, for furniture. There were sponges, chamois skins, soaps and powders of all descriptions.

"It is a complete set of cleaning tools, isn't it?" said the owner. "It should be complete. I brought it from Holland with me—from Brock—from Spotless Town.

"Brock is the cleanest place in the world. When you enter its gates they give you a pair of new straw sandals yellow as gold to put on so that you will not track up the snowy streets.

"In the bright sunshine you seem to be walking in a town made of sugar candy. The tree trunks are painted yellow, the garden fences are a bright blue, the tables and chairs before the little inns are as white as though carved out of snow.

"Enter a Brock stable. The walls are scarlet, the mangers are green, the floors are yellow. The cows' tails are fastened to rings in the ceiling so that they may not sell nor be soiled."

THE ILLS OF MAN.

Appendicitis and Gout Rampant Thousands of Years Ago.

The injuries, disease and peculiarities of the people who lived in the valley of the Nile from prehistoric until early Christian times, a period of over 5,000 years, are shown in a pathological collection on view at the Royal College of Surgeons in London. The collection was obtained during the exploration of fifty-seven cemeteries in the area of the Nile valley lying immediately south of the pillars of Konosso, which mark the frontier of ancient Egypt.

The survey was carried out under the direction of Captain H. G. Lyons of the Egyptian government. In one grave were found the abdominal organs of a woman so well preserved that it was possible to say that she suffered from appendicitis, which is considered to be the earliest evidence of this disease. Typical lesions of gout were found in an early Christian subject.

A pair of splints, with bandages, were found on the forearms of a young woman's body, both the forearms having been broken just above the wrists. The splints are almost identical with those used at the present day.

Maryland County Flags.

How many students of Maryland history are aware of the fact that in addition to the Maryland colors, gold and black, embodied in our state flag, each county of the province erected prior to 1695 had its own colors?

Ten counties had been erected in Maryland prior to 1695. Colors for the organizations of these several counties were assigned as follows:

St. Mary's, red; Kent, blue; Anne Arundel, white; Calvert, yellow; Charles, orange; Baltimore, green; Talbot, purple; Somerset, buff; Cecil, crimson; Dorchester, the union jack (being the maritime county).

To Suffer From Headaches Makes Life Miserable.

It takes a person that has had or is subject to headaches to describe the suffering which attends them.

The majority of cases are caused by constipation and dyspepsia. The dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on, purely indicates that there is something the matter with the stomach or bowels. To the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches every part of the system is due its success in relieving and permanently curing headache. It has proven a specific for the malady in all its forms.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHES.

Mrs. Allison E. Brown, Summerfield, N.B., writes:—"I have been troubled with Constipation and Headaches for a long time. After trying different doctors to no effect, a friend asked me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I find I am completely cured after taking three bottles. I can safely recommend it to all."

JUBAL AND TUBAL CAIN.

Jubal sang of the Wrath of God
And the curse of thistle and thorn—
But Tubal got him a pointed rod,
And scrabbled the earth for corn.
Old—old as that early mold,
Young as the sprouting grain—
Yearly green is the strife between
Jubal and Tubal Cain.

Jubal sang of the new-found sea,
And the seals its waves divide—
But Tubal hollowed a fallen tree,
And passed to the farther side.
Black—black as the hurricane wrack,
Salt as the under-main—
Bitter and cold is the hate they hold—
Jubal and Tubal Cain!

Jubal sang of the golden years
When wars and wounds shall cease—
But Tubal fashioned the hand-flung spears
And showed his neighbors peace.
New—new as the Nine point Two,
Older than Lamech's slain—
Roaring and loud is the feud avowed
Twix' Jubal and Tubal Cain.

Jubal sang of the cliffs that bar
And the peaks that none may crown—
But Tubal clambered by jut and scar
And there he builded a town.
High—high as the Passes lie,
Low as the culverts drain—
Wherever they be they can never agree—
Jubal and Tubal Cain!
—Rudyard Kipling.

WELCOMING THE SCROLL.

Toronto Hebrews Make Festival of Religious Ceremony.

The cosmopolitan section of Toronto, namely the ward, never witnessed a quainter scene than was enacted recently attending the reception of a Hebrew scroll of the law, which had just arrived from Russia, and a witness of the scene wondered for a few moments whether he was in Toronto or some little village in far off Russia.

The Congregation Havre Lilias Yankor or "the Sons of Jacob," composed of 28 members, had sent to Schedlopka, Russia, for a scroll of the Hebrew law, which was made by Rabbi Schedlopaka, and it arrived in Toronto, where it was received in much the same manner as it would have been in Russia.

A procession was formed headed by a band consisting of six musicians, followed by the president, Mr. M. Sigal, carrying the new scroll, which was wrapped up in one of the praying shawls used by Hebrews and protected by a canopy decorated with Canadian flags held by four members of the congregation. This in turn was followed by about 500 Hebrews, men, women and children, each one of whom carried a lighted candle or Chinese lantern, while a large number of people were setting off firecrackers and roman candles.

One man had a can of kerosene oil, and he would occasionally fill his mouth with the oil and blow it upon his candle, causing a great flare up.

The music was of the same character as that which is played at a wedding exemplifying the delight of the paraders in their possession of the new scroll.

The procession passed through "the ward" stopping at each synagogue in turn, when a halt would be made and the paraders to the inspiring strains of the music would form in groups and dance the Russian Cotzatski, which, when once seen, would never be forgotten.

The procession finally halted at No. 83 Louisa street, where refreshments were served to the paraders and after the procession had been reformed the scroll was taken to the new synagogue at 83 Elizabeth street, its future home.

A Gun and a Boy.

Last year, writes Dr. Grenfell, a friend sent me an old gun—a double-barrel twelve-bore breech-loader—and I was able to give it to a lad of 16, whose mother is a widow, and to whom the gun meant not merely a toy, but a livelihood, if he is successful with it. The only condition attached was that it was to come up for inspection every annual visit I made, and to be confiscated, if it showed neglect. The boy is a splendidly-built little fellow, and he had kept the following diary, which, when I called this summer, he handed me to show what he had killed, though he had to be very sparing with his shot, as I could only spare him sixty cartridge cases:

"Arther Nowell receaved his gun from doucker grendell the 10 of may and kill 2 parathur (partridges) the 11 i woes veary zlad of my gun I kill 30 parathur 1 loue (loon) 1 guse (goose) thir woe no hunt a fue (few) ducks an houngs (hounds)."

Burns Strong in Australia.

Tommy Burns, the Canadian pugilist, has made a tremendous hit in Australia. Immense crowds gather to see him. He is forced to make public speeches and to hold great "receptions" on the lawn at his training quarters.

The Sydney Referee, after printing a column or two describing Tommy's popularity, adds the following note:

"The attention paid to Burns drew a protest from Rev. J. Walker at Ballarat during the course of a sermon at St. Andrew's kirk. Mr. Walker deplored the fact that the famous pugilist cut a greater figure in the public eye than eminent theologians or politicians."

Fight With Snake.

Mr. P. Gascon of Terminal Park, Montreal, had a hair-raising experience the other night near his home, in the shape of a battle with a snake measuring ten and a half feet. The fight between Mr. Gascon and the viper last over ten and a half minutes, and it was only with the aid of two neighbors, who had come to the about for help of the terrified man, that the three succeeded in clubbing the monster to insensibility.

This is the first time that a snake of that size has been seen around Montreal at liberty.

Address.....

Tom Walker.

Tom Walker, whose name is so affectionately lined with that of his Satanic majesty in the world-wide saying, "The devil and Tom Walker," was a poor old miser, born in Massachusetts about the year 1727. Tom suddenly became very rich and opened a counting house in Boston during the panic which prevailed in the time of Governor Belcher. He grew rich and richer, but one day as he was foreclosing a mortgage with a poor land jobber a black man appeared on horseback and knocked at his office door. Tom went to open it and was never seen again. Of course the good people of Boston immediately voted that he had sold his soul to the devil for wealth.

Massage.

Massage as a remedy for insomnia and other ills is most ancient. The very word "massage" comes from the Arabic word "mass." It was stolen from the Arabic doctors by the French doctors. In the "Odyssey" the heroes are massaged after a battle. The word "shampoo" is from the Indian word, "shampua." Masseurs were employed in India by Alexander the Great. Massage is one of the things they discovered in ancient China. Captain Cook was massaged for a quarter of an hour by twelve natives of Tahiti. They cured his rheumatism. Paracelsus tells how the Egyptians practiced massage.

Caustic Wit.

A well known doctor who dabbles in literature recently published a poem. Shortly after its appearance he was conversing with a lady celebrated for her wit.

"Well, doctor," she remarked, "so I understand you have taken to writing verse."

"Oh, merely to kill time."

"Indeed! Have you disposed of all your other patients?"

Bell-Ringing Record.

Twelve members of the St. Mary-le-Tower Society of Church Bellringers, Ipswich, Eng., have succeeded for the first time on record in ringing a peal of Cambridge Surprise Maximus of 5,280 changes in three hours and fifty-seven minutes.

Some Definitions.

The late Frederick R. Coudert, the noted lawyer and wit, had a great fondness for children. He collected indefatigably the quaint saying of children, and one of the treasures of his library was a small manuscript volume called "A Child's Dictionary," and these are some of the definitions that Mr. Coudert would read from it:

"Dust.—Mud with the juice squeezed out of it."

"Snoring.—Letting off sleep."

"Apples.—The bubbles that apple trees blow."

"Backbiter.—A mosquito."

"Fan.—A thing to brush the warm off with."

"Ice.—Water that went to sleep in the cold."

RICH COUNTRY.

Prof. Gwillim Speaks of Resources of Northern British Columbia.

J. C. Gwillim, professor of mining in Queen's University, Kingston, recently completed a tour through the Telkwa, Bulkley and Babine country in northern British Columbia on behalf of the Trail smelter. His impressions as regards its agricultural and mining possibilities are rather favorable.

"The Telkwa-Bulkley-Babine country is a great district southwards of Hazelton. The valleys are broad, but not flat-bottomed as many people expect. They are low rolling slopes, partially or totally wooded. The growth upon these valley slopes is extraordinary, and no fall frosts had occurred up to Sept. 10 in the main Bulkley valley," said Mr. Gwillim.

"All grass, stock and root crops seem to do very well. There seems to be a future for stock and dairy products with hay and oats as probable exports to the coast and north country. The conditions southward toward Nechaco, and southeastward toward Babine lake appear to be equally favorable for a large farming community.

"Concerning mineral resources, ores of lead, silver and copper have been found over a very large territory, but little has been done in the way of development. The distances are great and at present the transportation is all by pack animals. A wagon road is being built from Hazelton to Aldermere, a point sixty miles south; from this trails of twenty and thirty miles branch off into the mountains on either side. The country is a favorable one to prospect, but development and cheap transportation must come about before there will be any production of large tonnage.

"Any one entering this district at this stage should receive easy terms and plenty of time to develop mineral properties because the cost of development will be great, and also experimental, and the time of realising from ore production cannot come until the Grand Trunk Pacific is on a shipping basis."

Willow Grouse in City.

The capture of a willow grouse on one of the principal business thoroughfares of Victoria caused some talk recently. It was late and the streets practically were deserted. A gentleman had just passed out of a restaurant when he was astonished to see a bird, which looked remarkably like a grouse at first sight, dash itself against the window pane and fall at his feet. He picked it up, wrung its neck, and then took time to examine it. Being himself somewhat of a follower of the simple life as interpreted by local disciples of Nimrod, he recognized that it was a grouse of the willow species. Agreeably astonished, and realizing that he had had a most unusual experience, he recounted it to his friends. Many of the latter put it down as a yarn which would have to be accepted with the proverbial "pinch of salt." But when he produced the evidence and related the details again with a wealth of exact detail the story was given credence and circulated as being another of the season's wonders.

First Relic of "Jonet."

One of the first evidences to be found of the steamer J. H. Jones, which was lost two years ago with all hands, was left here recently by the steamer City of Meaford, says The Owen Sound Times. It was the name board of the ill-fated steamer and could be easily recognized by those who knew the boat when she was above water. The board was picked up at some point along the northeast shore and handed by the captain of the City of Meaford to the officials at the office of the Dominion Transportation Co., where it has attracted a great deal of interest. Though the officers of the City of Meaford did not give the exact location where the sign board was picked up, its finding on the northeast shore confirms, in the minds of some marine men, the conviction that the boat went down near the Christian Islands, and that her machinery gave out and she drifted from her course off Lion's Head in the gale to some point near the Islands, where she foundered.

Roof Shingles.

Shingles are usually sixteen inches long, and a bundle of them is twenty inches wide and contains twenty-four courses in the thickness at each end. A bundle of shingles will lay a course eighty feet long. When shingles are exposed four inches to the weather 1,000 will cover 107 square feet; five inches, 132 square feet; six inches, 160 square feet.

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No! "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. M. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organized by Messrs. Windsor and held through out the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.
